Reds—F. McCormick grounded to Higgins on the grass in front of third and was thrown out. Ripple, swinging hard, struck out on five pitches. Wilson hit the first pitch on the ground into left field for a single. Wilson stole second, getting half way there before Newsom's pitch reached the catcher. After looking at two balls, Joost grounded out, Gehringer to York. 0 runs, 1 hit, 0 errors, 1 left.

Third Inning.

Tigers—Sullivan sent a grounder along the first base line and beat F. McCormick's throw to Derringer for a single. Newsom after looking at one strike, laid down a sacrifice bunt, F. McCormick to Joost who covered first. With a one and one count, Bartell raised a high pop fly to Joost on the base path near second. McCosky walked on five pitches. With the count one and one, Gehringer sent a sharp grounder to Werber who stopped the ball but had to pick it up and threw wild to first, the ball getting past F. McCormick and Sullivan coming home before F. McCormick could throw to Wilson. The play was scored as a base hit and an error for Werber. Greenberg got the count to three and two, and then fanned on a high one inside. 1 run, 2 hits, 1 error, 2 left.

Reds—With the count one and one, Myers looped a single into short left. Derringer, attempting to bunt on the first pitch, popped directly into Newsom's glove, and Myers held first. Werber knocked the first pitch straight at Higgins who threw to Gehringer, forcing Myers at second. M. McCormick worked the count to two and two, and then struck out. 0 runs, 1 hit, 0 errors, 1 left.

Fourth Inning.

Tigers—With the count one and one, York lifted a pop foul to Wilson in front of the Tigers' dugout. After looking at two balls, Campbell raised a high fly to Goodman. Higgins hit a hot grounder that Werber deflected against the railing in front of the left field stands and had to run it down, Higgins getting a double before the ball could be retrieved. Sullivan was walked intentionally. Newsom hit a grounder that struck Higgins in the stomach as he was running toward third, making an automatic out, with Newsom getting credit for a single and Myers a putout. 0 runs, 2 hits, 0 errors, 2 left.

Reds—With the count two and two, Goodman struck out. F. McCormick looked at one ball and then raised a high fly to McCosky in left centre. After taking one strike, Ripple grounded out to York, unassisted. 0 runs, 0 hits, 0 errors, 0 left.

Fifth Inning

Tigers — Bartell lined the first pitch to M. McCormick, who took it without moving. McCosky looked at one strike, and then flied to Goodman in right field. With the count one strike and two balls, Gehringer lifted a pop fly to Myers on the base path between second and third No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

Reds — With the count one strike and two balls, Wilson lined a single into right centre. Al Benton, a right-hander, warmed up in the Tigers' bull pen. With the count two strikes and one ball against Jim, Joost grounded into a double play, Gehringer to Bartell to York. On the first pitch, Myers raised a long fly to Campbell in right centre. No runs, one hit, no errors, none left.

3,000 EMPLOYEES OF OSHAWA PLANT TAKE STRIKE VOTE

Endorse Walkout of 78 Body-Shop Workers on Monday

PLANT ON WAR WORK

Oshawa, Ont., Oct. 8 (CP)— A strike of some 3,000 employees of the General Motors plant here has been called for tonight. The decision was made Monday at a meeting of 1,500 members of the local union of the United Automobile Workers of America.

The present walkout affects only domestic production in the plant but the threatened strike would tie up the whole plant which is engaged in large-scale production of war equipment.

A statement issued after the meeting said that the meeting endorsed the recommendations of the bargaining and executive committee that "workers in the body room should not return to work until the company has settled grievances.

"Speakers at the meeting pointed out that the company had many times violated the spirit of the agreement and particularly in this instance by not giving an answer in three days of the required notice given by representatives of that department.

"The feeling was also expressed that the company had threatened discrimination by its statement that all workers who walked out in the body department would be discharged and that the company would discontinue its domestic production and revert to war orders, hiring only what they chose to describe as 'loyal employees'."

The men in the body department went on strike earlier Monday when they expressed dissatisfaction with "efficiency rates" on which their pay was based.

No comment was forthcoming from H. J. Carmichael, Vice-President and General Manager, Monday but it was learned a company statement would be issued today.

MUST TAKE RISK DURING AIR RAIDS

Workers, Says General Secretary of Trades Union Congress, Must Keep Up Production of War Materials

Southport, England, Oct. 8—(CP)—The Trades Union Congress was told by its general secretary, Sir Walter Citrine, today that workers must take risks to keep production of war materials going during air raids.

He said Britons "might as well make up their minds to sue for peace" if all insist on taking cover at the sound of the air raid sirens.

The convention adopted a resolution asking the government to "organize forthwith proper arrangements for the safety and comfort of those compelled to take shelter outside their homes."

IT'S STILL "THUMBS UP" FOR THIS LAD

He's wan from his ordeal and still wearing his lifebelt, but it's still "thumbs up" for this English lad as he rides "pickaback" on one of the sailors. The boy was on the City of Benares, en route to Canada, when it was torpedoed. After floating in a lifeboat for eight days with five other boys, the lifeboat was sighted by a Sunderland flying boat which directed a British destroyer to the rescue.

Kansas City Star Features 'Canada at War' in Sunday Edition

New York, Oct. 8 —(CP)— The Kansas City Star, one of the major newspapers in the midwestern United States, informs its readers with a page of pictures and columns of stories that Canada is building "a mighty war machine for Britain."

In its extensive Sunday layout, the Star thus joined a large group of United States newspapers which have published a series of lengthy articles based on an extended tour by American newspapermen of eastern Canada munitions factories, airdromes, air training schools, military camps and naval ports.

J. D. Bowersock, the Star's representative on the 3,000-mile journey, was impressed with Canada's "tremendous effort in which lies the hope of England." He wrote:—

"Buzzing wheels of industry, the sound of marching feet, the rattle of tanks, the mighty road of anti-aircraft and anti-tank guns and the rat-a-tat-tat of machine guns in Canada today are harmonizing with the hum of airplane engines to create a great training symphony."

He wrote extensively of what he saw all through the tour, winding up with a description of an east coast port where the newspapermen were taken on former American destroyers now manned by Britons.

Wayne Thomis devoted one story of his series in the Chicago Tribune to the German sailors held prisoners of war at Kingston, Ont. The elected spokesman for the camp, a German named Hans Minck, told the Americans:—

Prisoners Treated Well.

"The Canadians treat us all right but we naturally don't like prison. The food is good. But they only give us one newspaper a day for the entire camp.

"We all expect to be out of here by Christmas."

Minck also said all the Germans were convinced Hitler would win the war and that they would be free "before Christmas".

In another of his articles, Thomis discussed the Royal Canadian Navy, under the title: "One year ago—12 ships; now—119."

He also told of the tracking down of an unlicensed radio station in Halifax which a young girl was operating in her room in a private school.

"In the room of the girl they (the authorities) found the radio transmitter concealed in a trunk," he wrote. "Apparently she watched the convoys leave through glasses from the window and then radioed her information to Nazi agents in the United States. Following her arrest, references to Halifax convoy movements ceased in the Nazi broadcasts."

Hal O'Flaherty in the Chicago Daily News also devoted an article to Canada's Nazi prisoners whom he found were kept busy and fed well. "Their lives are not burdensome," he wrote. "Their guards are humane and it only is to be hoped that Germany has treated her prisoners of war with equal regard for humanity."

William Davis Taylor in the Boston Globe published two week-end articles. One dwelt at length on the duties and progress of the munitions and supply department in the dominion, listing munitions factories built or building, ships on the ways, and the like. The other told of the financial burden and means with which the dominion is meeting it.

Millions of Christmas Trees Will be Shipped Soon to the U. S.

By Ken Clark Canadian Press Staff Writer.

Ottawa, Oct. 8 (CP)—Millions of Canadian evergreens will start moving into the United States next month—paradoxically helping win the war against Hitler by spreading Christmas cheer.

Last year, shipments of Canadian Christmas trees across the line were valued at $535,692 in Canadian funds But since the trees were sold in the United States, this sum became available to Canada in the form of American exchange.

Nowadays, American credits are needed to purchase munitions and other war supplies manufactured in United States factories. In terms of warplanes, for instance, Christmas trees last year would have provided about 20 front-line fighters, priced somewhere around $25,000 apiece.

During the next two months, millions of trees will be shipped to New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Michigan, Ohio, Connecticut, Missouri and Maryland. In 1939 these states imported 4,643,961 trees, an increase of almost 500,000 over shipments of the previous year. The Canadian government expects still another increase this Christmas season.

The Department of Agriculture reports that many of the trees shipped are grown by farmers.

Ordering by operators has been going on since late summer and shortly will be concluded. Cutting gets underway early in November and carloads start rolling south later in the month.

Some large operators send buyers into Canada late in the summer to purchase the trees standing. They return later in the fall to hire workmen for cutting and bundling.

There has been a movement in Scotch pine especially in the border cities of Ontario.

Meantime, Canada's forests are helping in another way to maintain the Dominion's foreign exchange position.

NO SHORTAGE OF FIELD GLASSES

Ottawa, Oct. 8.—(CP)—"A shortage of field glasses and binoculars no longer obtains in Canada", Munitions Minister Howe said today. He added that the temporary shortage of some months ago had been met by the public's response to his appeal and by the wholehearted co-operation of a United States firm on which Canada largely depends for adequate supplies of this equipment.

CANADA TO BUILD 100 NAVAL SHIPS

Navy Minister Also States Personnel Will be Increased to 20,000 by 1942

Winnipeg, Oct. 8 (CP). — Navy Minister Angus Macdonald said in an interview here yesterday that Canada will build 100 additional naval ships during the next year at a cost of approximately $50,000,000 and will increase its naval personnel from about 12,000 men to 20,000 by the spring of 1942.

En route by airplane from Ottawa to visit Canada's Pacific naval establishments, Mr. Macdonald said expansion probably will involve enlargement of facilities at the naval bases of Halifax and Esquimalt, B.C.

Canada's navy had been increased in one year from 113 to 130 vessels and it was hoped to increase it within a year by another 100 vessels, ranging from destroyers down to smaller craft.

It had not been determined whether the dominion would acquire larger craft such as cruisers, the minister said, explaining enlargement of the Royal Canadian Navy was being carried out after consultation with the British government.

Twenty Per Cent Of 21-Year-Old Group Medically Unfit

Approximately twenty per cent. of the men in the 21-year-old group, in Military District No. 3, with headquarters in Kingston, and in which the Belleville area is included, are medically unfit and will not have to report for military training, commencing October 9th., it is reported in the Kingston Whig Standard.

It is also understood that about ten per cent. of the group, who own farms or work on farms, have applied for postponement of their period of training. In most cases these requests will be granted and the men will report at a later date.

It was also intimated that on account of the large number of men found medically unfit and the list of those who had been granted a postponement of their date of training, it was possible that some of the 22-year-old group would be called up at once.

From Military District No. 3 it is proposed that 2,250 will report at three training centres, located at Brockville, Cornwall and Peterboro, to receive one month's training under a staff of experienced officers, most of whom saw service in the first Great War. The training will not be too strenuous and the idea of the whole scheme is to try and make the young men, who are taking the training, like it. Local men in the 21-year-old age group now being called up will report at Peterboro on Wednesday.

Permissible to Lend Gun to Members Of Immediate Family

With the Canadian hunting season at its advent for 1940 and coupled with the recent registration of shotguns and rifles, owners of such firearms have become perplexed regarding the loaning of the same to members of their immediate family. Registration permits for the permission to lend or borrow firearms have been in the hands of the authorities for a month, but more recently Inspector Frank Gardner, in charge of District No. 8 of the Ontario Provincial Police, had occasion to question the Headquarters Department of the O.P.P.

"I contacted the proper authorities in Toronto regarding the lending of rifles and shotguns, for hunting purposes only, to members of their immediate family and today received information that such practices were permissible within the immediate family only, but when such loans are made those borrowing the firearm should carry the original registration certificate under which the gun is registered, thus eliminating any difficulty or embarrassment that might arise if the hunter is stopped by an officer," revealed Inspector Gardner.

The reply to Inspector Gardner's enquiry read as follows: "With reference to your communication this is to advise you that where a father, brother, sister, mother, son or daughter has a shotgun or rifle in the family, it is permissible for members of such a family to use the firearm on a registration and they should, when carrying the firearm for hunting, be in possession of the said registration certificate."

The War Today

By H. M. PETERS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Britain turned her back today upon the policy of appeasement in the Far East and notified Tokyo that the road through Burma to the vast areas in western China controlled by Chiang Kai-Shek's government will be reopened next week.

Prime Minister Churchill made the announcement in the House of Commons.

This direct outcropping of Japan's decision to sign a military alliance with the European axis was accompanied by four interesting developments:

1. The United States State Department is advising Americans in the Far East—Japan and its dependencies, Indo-China, and Hong Kong—to return home.

2. Col. Ralston announced at Ottawa that intense attention is being paid to military preparations for western Canadian defence and that the question of establishment of a Pacific military command, similar to that established in the Maritimes, is under consideration.

3. At Washington and at London the Russian ambassadors were in conference with British and United States authorities, leading to widespread speculation that further aid to China by the Russians was under consideration, and that Russia in return would have access to important raw and other materials that Britain and the United States control.

Japanese Land Naval Forces

4. The Japanese, in what was regarded as an arbitrary manner, landed naval forces at Liu Kung Island, off Shantung Peninsula North-Central China, which Britain has leased for many years. The British government renewed its lease with Chiang Kai-Shek, Jananese chose, through its puppet regime at Nanking, to regard the lease as no longer in effect.

The Burma Road was closed for three months, during the rainy season, after negotiations between Britain and Japan. The British announcement at the time said it was hoped the Japanese would use the interval to seek a real basis for peace with the Chinese government. No such attempt was made.

Over the road now will flow again the supplies which the Chinese need. More than that, it will be a moral factor for the Chinese, still fighting after 3 1-4 years of war, especially when it is coupled with last week's Washington decision to make available a loan of $25,000,000 to Chiang Kai- Shek's government.

The Japanese however, can attack the Burma Road with more hopes of crippling it now that the Vichy government has permitted the Nipponese to base aircraft in French Indo-China.

A broadcast from Tokyo by Domei the main Japanese news agency, quoted the Japan Times, a widely-read newspaper, as describing Britain's decision as "an unmistakable indication that she is taking up with the United States a common front against this country."

John Kluk Committed On Murder Charge

Toronto, Oct. 8 —(CP)— John Kluk was committed for trial on a charge of murdering Archie Borisevich Sept. 23 after a preliminary hearing today before Magistrate R. J. Brown.

Kluk sat motionless, vacantly staring, while Walker Kozlowski, a roomer at Borisevich's house, recounted how Kluk and the dead man had been out together the day of the shooting. After coming back to the house Kluk had gone out again, then returned demanding a drink. Borisevich had refused, calling Kluk a stool-pigeon. Borisevich had moved towards Kluk, threatening to kill him. Kluk tried to get into Kozlowski's room but the latter had held the door. Then Kluk shot Barisevich.

Kozlowski said he had warned Borisevich not to attack Kluk or Borisevich would go back to jail, from which he had been released that morning after spending 30 days.

"BEEFEATERS"—AMERICAN STYLE

In the dangerous days of Henry VII, his body guard Yeomen had to taste all the royal food and drink before serving it up. Nicknamed Beefeaters, this oldest military corps in the world still wears on state occasions the picturesque uniform, here shown, dating from 1485. Now Ye Beefeaters of America has been formed "by men and women of goode will" in many cities to dine on Thursday nights for the benefit of the British-American Ambulance Corps. Here master chefs of the society of amateur chefs practice on the roast beef for the first Beefeaters' dinner in New York city at the Hotel Biltmore, Oct. 10. LEFT to RIGHT these Beefeaters are, Shepard Barclay, bridge authority, James Warner Bellah, popular novelist; Bradshaw Crandell, illustrator and creator of magazine cover girls, and Ben Irvin Butler, food editor.

EAGLE SQUADRON OF U.S. PILOTS PART OF R.A.F.

Will Soon Take Its Place in Front Line of Britain's Defenders

SPECIAL BADGE WORN

London, Oct. 8 —(CP)— The first Royal Air Force fighter squadron composed entirely of United States pilots will shortly take its place in the front line of Britain's defenders, Air Secretary Sir Archibald Sinclair announced today.

The unit, which will be known as the Eagle Squadron, will be commanded by Sqdn.-Ldr. William Erwin Gibson Taylor of Fort Leavenworth, Kas.

The squadron will form a part of the regular R.A.F. and its members will wear a special badge, approved by the King, consisting of an eagle with wings spread surmounted by the letters "E. S." The Americans will wear the regular R.A.F. uniform of sky blue.

'Joined Spontaneously'

Sir Archibald said they "joined spontaneously, following the glorious example set in the Great War by the Lafayette Escadrille."

None but qualified pilots with at least 250 hours flying time are accepted in the Eagle Squadron.

They are not required to take an oath of allegiance to the King. It is not decided yet whether the squadron will fly American airplanes.

Some of the pilots have been fighting with units of the R.A.F. and now are released to join the Eagle Squadron.

Taylor served in the United States naval air service with the Fifth Fighting Squadron of the Aircraft Carrier Lexington. Later he was a commercial pilot on a New York-Chicago line.

'SOLD RUMANIA AT BRENNER PASS'

London Express So Headlines Story of Nazi Troops Arrival in Rumania

London, Oct. 8 (CP)—"They sold Rumania at the Brenner Pass"—a reference to the meeting last week of Hitler and Mussolini—was the headline The Daily Express used today to tell its readers that German troops had arrived in Rumania. The Express is published by Lord Beaverbrook, Minister of Aircraft Production.

The Express declared: "So the cry will go up— Bomb the Rumanian oil wells. That is a big job and one for the experts. But if it is possible, then there is another military objective for the broad shoulders of the R.A.F."

Turkey is pledged by the treaty of Oct. 19, 1939, to give Great Britain "all assistance within its power." In the event of "any action of aggression by a European power leading to war in the Mediterranean."

(Britain did not invoke the pact when Italy entered the war.)

BABY'S MOTHER 'SNATCHES' CHILD

Action of Woman Will be Dealt With by Crown Attorney at Kitchener

Kitchener, Ont., Oct. 8 (CP)—The "snatching" of a two-year-old child from the Kitchener-Waterloo Orphanage by the baby's mother will be dealt with by the Crown Attorney, Inspector A. P. Pullan of the Children's Aid Society said today.

First announcement the little girl had been removed from the institution was made last night at a meeting of the Orphanage Board. The baby allegedly was taken Sept. 15 when the matron, Miss Lydia Dankert was at church and a maid left in charge at the home.

Dr. Kagawa, Author, Reported Released

Brantford, Ont., Oct. 8—(CP)—Dr. Toyohiko Kagawa, author and social reformer who is well known in Canada, has been released by Japanese police after a 13-day period under arrest, George Keen, General Secretary of the Co-operative Union of Canada said here today.

Mr. Keen gave as his authority for the report of Dr. Kagawa's release the Japanese newspaper "Chuagi" which he said published the information Sept. 17.

Dr. Kagawa some years ago toured Canada and the United States and spoke before many co-operative organizations. His arrest was made on a charge that he contributed to a United States magazine an article disadvantageous to Japan.

Cincinnati Reds Score Shutout To Even Series With Walters Throwing 5-Hitter at Tigers

Seventh and Deciding Game to be Played at Crosley Field Today

REDS' INFIELD GOOD

Inner Works Click Off Four Double Plays to Cut Down Tiger Rallies

Cincinnati, Oct. 8—(AP) — Two exhausted teams brought out their last tired pitching resources today for the seventh and deciding struggle of the 1940 World Series at Crosley Park. Cincinnati Reds shutout Detroit Tigers 4-0 here yesterday to square the series at three games each.

It appeared the Buck Newsom, whose seemingly bottomless store of heart and strength already had carried him to two victories in the series, would go to the mound for Detroit. Big Paul Derringer was scheduled to hurl for the Reds. Derringer beat the Tigers three days ago in Detroit.

Bucky Walters shut out the Tigers yesterday for his second triumph. He allowed only five scattered hits and just to make the day complete smashed a powerful home run over the left field fence in the eighth inning for his team's final score.

Infield Improves

The Reds' infield, out of balance in the first game of the series, improved steadily as the play-off progressed and yesterday was air-tight.

Every time the Tigers started to make trouble, the Cincinnati infield came up with a spectacular play to throttle the threat. Eddie Joost made a stop and throw at second base off Bruce Campbell in the seventh inning that ranked with the great outfield catch Jimmy Ripple made in the previous day's game at Detroit.

Walters struck out only two men but he walked only two. He retired in order the first five men he faced. The plate umpire, "Red" Ormsby said he had never seen a pitcher with finer control. Hank Greenberg didn't get a ball out of the infield all afternoon.

Out in First Frame

Schoolboy Rowe for the second time didn't have a thing on the ball. The Reds took more than three innings to knock him from the box in the second game of the series. Yesterday they disposed of him in the first frame.

Four of the first five Cincinnati batters hit safely and the other sacrificed, bringing in two runs and giving Walters all the lead he needed. Another fine job of relief pitching by John Gorsica was wasted. He allowed only one run and five hits in the six and two-thirds innings he pitched.

A STITCH IN TIME

This was one time a player could take time out from the World Series and still not meet the wrath of the umpire or the team. First-Baseman Frank McCormick of the Cincinnati Reds, tore his trousers while sliding into second base. To continue playing would have been very embarrassing so McCormick called upon his manager to please have somebody fix the trousers, which is being done with tape, as pictured above. Umpire Ormsby looks on.

Cincinnati, Oct. 8 —(AP)— Hero of the series to date is Bill Werber of the Reds—the goat, Schoolboy Rowe . . . The River Downs race track here is bulging with the largest number of steeds since the plant opened in 1925 . . . It may have been the snappy weather, but we're telling you it would have been a cinch to get a seat to yesterday's game as low as $1.50 an hour and a half before the contest started . . . Scalpers took a terrible licking—just as they did in Detroit . . . And it's about time, boys . . . Bridges will start for Detroit today with Newsom warmed up in case of emergency . . . The Reds still figure to win.

COLONELS BACK IN THE RUNNING

Louisville Tames Newark Bears to Win Their Second Game in Series 6 to 2

Newark, N.J., Oct. 8 —(AP)— Louisville Colonels were back in the thick of the fight with Newark Bears for the little world series baseball championship today thanks to Cecil (Tex.) Hughson, smooth-pitching right hander.

Hughson last night hurled the American association team to a 6-2 victory—its second in the five games played of the best-of-seven series. Hughson also gained credit for the Colonel's first win.

Hughson got away to an unsteady start, the Bears reaching him for three singles and a double in the first inning. Tex got out of this difficulty with only one run. Alex Kampouris accounted for Newark's other tally with a wallop over the left field wall in the third.

Hughson fanned eight men and gave up nine hits and one pass.

While Tex held the Bears in check his teammates pecked away at the offerings of George Washburn, ace of the Newark mound corps. Art Parks homered in the fourth to put the Colonels in the lead to stay.

World "Serious" Sidelights

(By Fritz Howell, Associated Press Sports Writer)

Cincinnati, Oct. 8—(AP)—Bits of baseball banter! The guy responsible for either Cincinnati or Detroit losing today's game finale of the World Series is likely to be a mite unpopular with his mates. There's about $2,100 difference between the individual shares of the winners and losers, and these athletes think almost as much of money as they do of their base knocks.

The several hundred newspapermen covering the classic are getting tired of it all. One of the boys in the Press box came up today with an observation just about summing up the consensus. "Those Yanks are my kind of team," he declared. "They get you back home in a hurry."

The scribes, who like to think of themselves as experts on things baseballish, are getting a kicking around from the Reds and Tigers. Before the series the typewriter pounders declared it was strictly a scrap between Detroit's power, hampered by a shaky infield, and Cincinnati's pitching, aided by a fine fielding inner works but handicapped by lack of hitting.

With the thing practically over, just about the reverse has popped up. The Reds have out-hit the Tigers, 51 to 49, while the Tigers have erred but four times to seven for the Redlegs.

The Red infield, however, is right on the heels of one of the fall classic's most coveted records—that of making the most twin-killings in a series. They have nine to their credit and they need one today to tie the mark set in 1924 by the Washington Senators. Last year the Reds tied the record (one) for having the least number of double plays in a series, and back in 1919 they teamed up with the Chicago Black Sox to register the greatest two-team total (16) the Reds getting seven and the Sox nine.

It's nice work, this baseball. The two clubs have been at it about two and a half hours a day for six days, but the gate receipts hopped up [illegible] $1,101,023.00 yesterday. And those players will split $373,830.56, which isn't bad for about nine hours' work, since they share only in receipts from the first four contests.

MIKE DOMERKO HELD TO DRAW BY TOM GEORGE

Both Main Bouts on Card Go Limit With Keen Competition Shown

ALLEN WINS BOUT

Pedro Valdez Easily Disposes of Michaell in the Preliminary

Tom George, the pudgy Macedonian grappler, justified his contentions of being a main-bout attraction when he wrestled to a draw with Mike Domerko, the Syracuse 231 pound goliath in the main bout of last night's grappling card at the Hume Arena, each man winning a fall in a best-in-three match. Both main bouts on the card went the full hour limit when Jimmie Allen, the former Canadian amateur titlist, won one fall over Ollie Olsen, of the Trenton R.C.A.F. in the first main attraction after 60 torrid minutes of wrestling.

Tom George assumed the villain's role in the main scrap early and after roughing Domerko, tangled his opponent with Referee Cliff Faux and a merry mix-up saw the trio rolling across the squared circle and the patrons in a frenzied uproar. Actually it was a problem to solve, that is to say whether the main bouters were battling between themselves or had a general pick on Arbiter Faux, who seemed to be on the receiving end of attacks as frequent as did the contestants. Later George really roughed matters and with the employment of two vicious illegal knee clouts, left Domerko writhing on the floor, losing all faith in humanity and an easy victim for a press, but it had taken over 41 minutes of rough and tumble ring antics.

Evens Bout Quickly

Although George plied his roughhouse trade early after a rest period, Domerko absorbed it "a la sponge" and clipped Mrs. George's little boy a brace of elbow punches that left Tommy hors de combat and the bout all tied at one fall each and only nine minutes left. In the last nine minutes Domerko hung George through the ropes, similar to the old practice of Howard Cantonwine, but George's bull-neck withstood the hemp. There was plenty of grunting and an abundance of groaning on the part of both men, but with the exception of a marathon race staged around the outside of the ring, little was accomplished by either contestant before the final bell halted hostilities.

In the semi-final it was a little different, as Ollie Olsen, the pride of the Air Force, did himself proud by staging 60 minutes with Jimmie Allen, despite the fact Allen won the only fall of the night. The long lanky Olsen applied the use of his wiry legs to an advantage, but the fun came when Allen hung Olsen through the ropes. Olsen gained his freedom and strung-up Allen likewise and Allen then elected to string-up Referee Faux, who ultimately found himself dangling between the strands with no sympathy being shown by any person in the Arena for the unfortunate third man in the ring. The only fall came along about the middle of the hour after Allen softened Olsen up a bit with a couple of hard pile-drivers, that were so strenuous they resulted in the floor of the ring being shattered, but this fact wasn't discovered until the heavies entered the ring in the main bout.

Ring Damaged

All of the profits on the night's show will of course go towards the repairing of the damaged ring. However, Allen won the only fall after applying an aeroplane spin on Olsen and dropping him for a press in 38.35 minutes. When the full hour bell sounded Olsen cried to the high heavens because Allen's arm was lifted in victory, but his verbal efforts proved no more prolific than his wrestling, as he lost both decisions to Allen.

In the curtain-raiser Jimmie Micheall, a local Greek lad, did remarkably well to stay four minutes with Pedro Valdez before the "Mex" slipped on a lightning armlock and rolled Jimmie over for a snap fall, but still the local lad is showing promise and looks better every time out.

EXECUTIVE ASKED TO NAME NEUTRAL ARBITERS IN UNION

Montreal Official Believes it Will be Better for Everybody Concerned

HEAVY GRIND STARTS

Football Warriors Take to Heavy Drill for Weekend Contests

(By the Canadian Press)

The East's football warriors, their bruises from the season's first battles hardly soothed, go back to the heavy training work tonight with repercussions from Saturday's games still in the air.

Secretary Emmet Burke of the Montreal Big Four Club, beaten 9-8 by Toronto Argonauts on a play allowed after regulation time ended, announced that he was asking the Big Four executive to rule that neutral officials should handle all future games in the interprovincial union.

Burke emphasized that Montreal was not squawking about the decision by a Montreal referee allowing Argos an extra play because of a high tackle by a Montreal player on the last regular play. "We feel it would be better for all concerned to have neutral men," he said. "It saves the arbiters from being liable to charges either of favoring the home team or leaning over backwards."

While this development took place, Bill Hughes got reinforcements for the club and learned that two of his young backfielders, injured Saturday, would be lost for the remainder of the season.

Two Lost to Team

Big Dave Ryan, all - Eastern centre two seasons ago with Montreal Nationals of the Senior Ontario Union, and Joe Farha, an outside with Nationals last year, announced that they would turn out with the Big Four team. But Johnny Howard was lost because of a ruptured kidney suffered against Argos and Johnny Quilty left Montreal to try out with Montreal Canadiens' Hockey Club at St. Hyacinthe, Que.

There was little stirring on the other football fronts last night. Argonauts had a light workout, preparing the way for an intense week of practice for the coming battle against Hamilton Tigers. Coach Lew Hayman said he was not satisfied with the work of either the line or the backfield against Montreal.

Jack Frizzelle, Balmy Beaches' swiftest runner, was reported ready to get back into action. Frizzelle was injured in an exhibition game against Ottawa two weeks ago and has not played since. He is ex- when they tackle Camp Borden in ppected to line-up with Beaches Toronto Thanksgiving Day.

SHORE STARTING 16TH SEASON IN MAJOR HOCKEY

Dynamic Defenceman Will Play All His Hockey This Year With Springfield

OWNER OF CLUB

Believes New Arrangements About U.S. Money Will Work Out Satisfactorily

By Lloyd McDonald Canadian Press Staff Writer.

Ottawa, Oct. 8 (CP)—Eddie Shore whose "bad man" reputation has kept him in the public eye through 16 professional hockey seasons, got set for another winter on the ice today when he began an 18-day training period as playing manager for Springfield Indians of the American Hockey League.

For the first time since 1926 when he joined the National League's Boston Bruins, the veteran defenceman is looking forward to a complete season with a minor-league club.

"This year I've decided to line up with one team—the Indians," he said. "Jumping around from one league to another was quite a job, although I did like it."

Last season, for instance, he played part of the year with both Springfield and Boston, then joined New York Americans.

The 36-year-old star was in Ottawa auditorium as aspirants for the 1940-41 Springfield club drew their equipment before starting their pre-season training. The Indians go to the United States for the opening league game Oct. 30.

Shore thought Canadians playing with American hockey teams will favor the new arrangement under which part of their salaries will be turned over to an authorized Canadian foreign dealer. They will be given the money to pay their expenses and on returning to the Dominion will be given the rest of their money in Canadian funds.

Shore was consistently on the defence line of annual all-star teams selected by The Canadian Press, he was on the first team seven times in 10 seasons and made the alternate team in one of the other three. He was missing from The Canadian Press all-star lineup in 1937, when he was out with injuries during most of the season and last year.

B. C. BURRARDS DOWN ST. KITTS IN FIRST GAME

Behind Going Into Last Quarter Western Team Scores Six to Win 14-9

A SPEEDY CREW

St. Catharines Outchecked and Outrun in Thrilling Lacrosse Struggle

By Allen Nickleson Canadian Press Staff Writer.

Toronto, Oct. 8 (CP)—If they do nothing else, and the odds are that they will accomplish such a thing as winning the Canadian senior lacrosse championship, Vancouver Burrard Blue Bombers already have shown that they have the courage of which champions are made.

It takes a great team to come from behind—especially in strange surroundings—and the Bombers did just that as they defeated St. Catharines Athletics 14-9 here last night in the first game of a best-of-five series for the Mann Cup.

Playing on the concrete floor of Maple Leaf Gardens for the first time, the speedy Bombers staged a courageous uphill fight to score six goals in the final 15 minutes for the victory margin. And while they were on this scoring spree, the Pacific coasters held the Athletics to no score—something no other team has been able to do in a quarter of any game this season.

Behind 9-8 going into the last quarter, Burrards received a tremendous ovation from a crowd of 5,126 for the persistency of their attack, their spirit and their dauntless backchecking. They were so good they appeared comparatively fresh at the end while the Athletics were a drooping band.

Play Again Wednesday

The second tilt of the best-of-five series will be played here Wednesday night and on the basis of their uphill battle, the Bombers are conceded more than an even chance. Third game will go on Friday.

Seeking the Mann Cup they won in 1938 but lost last year in the finals to New Westminster Adanacs, the Athletics started out as potential winners. They scored a goal just 29 seconds after the game opened and appeared to have the Bombers on the run. The Vancouver stalwarts were behind 4-2 at the end of the first quarter and 6-5 at half time.

It really was close all the way, but the Saints appeared to have the necessary finishing touch to eke out a victory—until the final quarter.

Buck Barry Hero of Win

A hero of the Burrard victory was Buck Barry, a red-haired defenceman who managed to find time out from his rear-line duties to score four goals. He was knocked down by the hard-hitting Athletics' rearguard—and he handed out a few knocks himself—but he always came back for more.

Outs and bruises were numerous but all players on both sides said they'd be in the lineup for the second match. Although a hard-fought struggle, the match was comparatively clean and only minor penalties were issued, four to Burrards.

Leading scoring lights for the Athletics were Billy Wilson, considered one of the smoothest stickhandlers in eastern Canada lacrosse, and George Urquhart, each of whom scored twice. Probably the most aggressive player on the Saints' roster was Carl Madsen, who spent four minutes in penitence for minor offences.

CALLING 'EM Between the Lines

with Ken J. Colling

No matter whether you are a baseball fan or not whenever the diamond classic, the world series, rolls around the people on the street become baseball minded. Much has been written in the past regarding outstanding features which have immortalized the world series. There was the rise of the Boston Braves in 1914, that is history. That 1919 series which broke "Old Roman" Comiskey's heart and health, there was Bill Wambsganss' unassisted triple play for Cleveland in 1920; Babe Ruth never losing a world series game as a pitcher and later for his hitting three home runs and calling his shot on one; the Yankees winning four successive world series championships. All of these facts are well-known to the average baseball fan, but what about the world series "NEVERS".

Yes, the fall classic has its "nevers", as well as its crowning achievements. Here are a few world series "nevers" for your careful perusal—

No no-hit game has ever been pitched.

No pinch-hitter has ever bagged a homer.

No player has ever erred four times in a game.

No player has ever participated in five straight Series.

No Series game has failed to go the legal number of innings.

The St. Louis Americans are the only club in the majors never to appear in a World's Series.

Steve O'Neill, who once headed the Cleveland Indians, will be back in the major leagues in 1941, according to his own admission. However, Steve isn't saying with what club nor in what capacity, but don't be surprised if he replaces Oscar Vitt as the helm of the Indians, as Vitt is a dead pigeons insofar as the Cleveland club is concerned.

Then, do you remember when in one of the daffiest finishes in all World Series history, New York Yankees defeated Cincinnati Reds 7-4 in a 10-inning game, a year ago today, to win their fourth straight world championship. It was the fourth game of the series.

When Newsom and Walters hurled three-hitters last week they just missed getting into the exclusive world series pitching bracket. Here are a few series pitching achievements—Ed Reulbach of the Chicago Cubs is the only pitcher with a one-hit game to his credit in World's Series competition. He limited the White Sox to a single safety in the game of October 10, 1906.

Eight pitchers have tossed two-hitters in Series contests, as follows: Ed Walsh, White Sox, Oct. 11, 1906; Mordecai Brown, Cubs, Oct. 12, 1906; Eddie Plank, Athletics, Oct. 11, 1913; Bill James, Boston Nationals, Oct. 10, 1914; Waite Hoyt, Yankees, Oct. 6, 1921; Burleigh Grimes, Cardinals, Oct. 5, 1931; George Earnshaw, Athletics, Oct. 6, 1931; Monte Pearson, Yankees, Oct. 5, 1939.

If you think the Monday night grapplers don't apply the pressure now and again over at the Hume Arena, just drop around and take a gander at the floor of the ring after last night's show. The main bouters actually tossed each other around in such a rough and sturdy manner that the flooring of the ring was actually shattered and broken. Those are facts and so is the fact that Tom George, the really pudgy Macedonian, lived up to his contentions that he was a main bout attraction or else. George battled to a 60 minute draw with Mike Domerko, the former Syracuse middle winger, whose ring antics bordered on the comical at times, but nevertheless Tom was on even footing with Domerko at the final bell although the grunting was even and George won in the groaning contest. All was even in the marathon the principals staged outside of the ring however. George seemed to be somewhat hungry, as he was continually trying to get a nibble out of Domerko's ear and aside from this the next best fun came when Ollie Olsen, of the Airport, and Jimmie Allen, both strung up Referee Faux in the semi-final. This was fun for everybody except Faux.

The Cincinnati Reds and Detroit Tigers are right back where they started from a week ago yesterday—all even. As has been the case in all 1940 world series games, pitching was again featured yesterday when Bucky Walters served up a five hitter and the Reds blanked the Tigers at 4 to 0. Not only did Walters hurl a five-hitter, but he added a round-tripper as he blasted one of Hutchinson's first pitches in the eighth, for a home run. The ovation aforded Walters was unsurpassed in major league ball yesterday. The Reds fielded sparkingly kicking in with four two-ply plays to nip any chance the Tigers might have had in countin gruns. Those skeptics, who claimed that defence would not win a world series aren't quite so sure of their point as the teams enter upon the seventh and final contest today. If the Reds win today much of the series glory will go to Bucky Walters, whose two sparkling pitching efforts have done much to make the Reds slight favourites as the umps cry "Play ball" this afternoon.

SPORT SPICE—The Canadian Red Cross benefitted to the extent of $1,528.61 from the Argo-Balmy Beach charity tilt in Toronto this season...... They're still talking of that moneyed punt Jimmie Follwell made down in Montreal Saturday ......Strangely enough both times Walters won for the Reds, Schoolboy Rowe was the losing pitcher and he in turn was replaced on both occasions by Corsica...... Eddie Shore will be starting his 16th consecutive professional hockey season this year and he's elected to stick with his privately owned Springfield team...... It's a dead loss to the N.H.L...... To date the Reds have made seven errors to the Tigers' four, but have completed nine double plays in the series to the Tigers' three; Detroit has scored 27 runs to Cincinnati's 20 and there is only one point difference in the clubs' batting averages, .251 for the Reds and .250 for the Tigers, so let's go.

A battery operated, four tube radio receiving set has been developed that is small enough to be carried in a coat pocket.

Gloves that can be converted into mittens have been invented in England for the use of aviators flying at high altitudes.

Canes that glow for their entire length when a switch is touched have been invented for blind persons to protect them at night.

Of a total of about 106,000 acres of land in Barbados 65,835 acres are under cultivation, there being only one large wooded area.

Many friends attended the funeral service of the late Mrs. Catharine Hazard at her home on Johnson Street on Saturday afternoon. Death had occurred on Thursday, October 3rd. Mrs. Hazard was in her 82nd year. Her husband Niles Emory Hazard predeceased her forty years afo, and an only daughter, Miss Geraldine Hazard B.A., died years ago, and an only daughter, in Glenwood cemetery.

Special constables were stationed at the airport and bombing school on Sunday as the traffic every Sunday is very heavy, and cars were not allowed to proceed as close to the building operations as formerly.

HOW TO OVERCOME ITCHING PILES

If you are annoyed with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not neglect the same or run the risk of an operation. Any itching, soreness or painful passage of stool, is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once. For this purpose get from J. S. McKeown or any druggist, a package of Hemroid and use as directed. This formula, which is used internally, quickly relieves the itching and soreness and aids in healing the sore, tender spots. Hemroid is highly recommended, is easy to use and it seems the height of folly for anyone to risk an operation when a simple remedy, which is so pleasant to use may be had at such a reasonable cost.

Fifth Column Backbone Of Nazi Foreign Effort Trade Members Told

Ottawa, Oct. 8 (CP)—There are between 50,000 and 100,000 "potential fifth columnists" in Canada, and about 1,000,000 in the United States, Detective Sergeant T. G. Scrogg, who co-ordinates counter-espionage activities for the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, said in an address here Monday night.

Scrogg, speaking before the Ottawa Junior Board of Trade, said the fifth column is the "backbone of the Nazi foreign effort." He defined its members as "persons in this country . . . willing to do something for a foreign country with which we are at war."

"Just because there hasn't been a piece of sabotage or a bomb dropped in this country, doesn't mean it isn't going to happen," he said.

Scrogg had high praise for the co-operation of private interests in anti-sabotage measures. Many expensive systems of protection in materials and men had been installed, and perhaps therein lay the answer to the absence of sabotage attempts in Canada.

"The production plants of Canada are guarded perhaps better than those of any other country in the world, certainly better than plants in the United States," he said.

He said members of the R.C.M.P. which he described as truly National police force, "do not ape the gestapo."

"The democratic way of life may hamper us at times, but we dig for evidence with legitimate tools," he said.

Scrogg continued:-

"Whenever you find a Nazi, there you'll find a fifth columnist," but he emphasized he had used the word "Nazi," not German.

Severe Typhoid Epidemic Raging In Germany Report

New York, Oct. 8 —(CP)— The New York Post said yesterday it has learned a severe typhoid epidemic is raging in western Germany. The information came through relatives in New York of a woman who died of the disease.

The Post added:—

"The patient died in a large hospital in Saxony, in central Germany, early in September. On Sept. 9 the director of the hospital wrote to the next of kin, who live in central Germany, advising them of the death and explicitly stating the cause as typhoid fever. The body had to be burned, he explained, because the hospital had an immense number ('unzahlige') of typhoid cases.

"The director explained that the pressure on the hospital facilities was due to receipt of a large number (again 'unzahlige') of typhoid cases from the western part of the Reich where British bombings have been heaviest.

"The recipients of the letter forwarded it to other relatives in the New York area. Their identity cannot be disclosed for fear of reprisals against members of the family in Germany. The letter had been opened by the German censor, and presumably passed by him without careful consideration, because it was an official communication."

AT THE McCARTHY

"Sir Harry Lauder"

His songs will drive your cares away...Hear and see Scotland's most celebrated Ambassador of entertainment...Sir Harry Lauder in "Song of the Road" which will be the next attraction at the McCarthy theatre. The program also will include an excellent race-track drama "The Long Shot" featuring Gordon Jones, Marsha Hunt, Harry Davenport, C. Henry Gordon, Geo. E. Stone and Tom Kennedy.

"Three Faces West"

One of the finest productions of the season "Three Faces West" co-starring John Wayne, Sigrid Gurie and Charles Coburn, is now showing at the McCarthy, plus a comedy scream Popeye in "Nurse Mates," latest Fox News events and a technicolor musical hit "The Royal Rodeo." In addition to this program on Wednesday evening at 8 p.m. Ozzie Williams and his band will present a variety of musical and specialty numbers in an added stage attraction, which promises to be a real musical treat, that everyone will thoroughly enjoy.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Zanzibar"

Demonstrating the full dramatic force of motion picture entertainment, Universal's "Zanzibar" opened yesterday at the Capitol Theatre.

For sheer thrills and weird mystery ,this picture sets an impressive high which will prove a treat for those who like rugged and lusty adventure.

Lola Lane gives one of her best performances as the girl explorer, and James Craig is a new challenger for romantic honors as the American adventurer who seeks danger and finds it in large doses.

Eduardo Cianelli is grimly menacing as the foreign agent opposing Miss Lane, and Henry Victor is a perfect henchman. Other veterans contributing to the picture's dramatic force are Tom Padden, Clarence Muse, Samuel H. Hinds.

"Private Lives"

When Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer invaded Broadway and brought its most popular hit of the season, "Private Lives," it certainly must have had a co-starring arrangement for Norma Shearer and Robert Montgomery in mind. For, in the mind of this reviewer, no two other players in pictures today could have done justice to the sparkling Noel Coward play as have this grand team.

"Wings of Youth"

The sixth of the series of Canada Carries On, "Wings of Youth" features the 35,000 skilled fliers a year.... Canada's answer to warfare against women and children.. ....Airfields....Coast to coast.... The common wealth air training scheme.

AT THE BELLE

"I Was An Adventuress"

Filled to the final fadeout with glamorous romance and exciting drama, "I Was An Adventuress" brings beautiful Zorina and handsome Richard Greene together on the screen of the Belle theatre today in a film of which Darryl F. Zanuck, production chief of the 20th Century-Fox studios, can well be proud.

Zorina, who appears by courtesy of Samuel Goldwyn, plays the part of the self-styled Countess Tanya Vronsky, an exquisite huntress of fortunes, who thought romance was not for her until she met the one man, in the person of Greene. Together Zorina and Greene move romantically through gay continental resorts to prove themselves by all odds one of the most attractive pairs the screen has ever cast together, and her first dramatic role grants Zorina an opportunity to prove herself a fine dramatic actress.

But the entertainment appeal of "I Was An Adventuress" does not end with Zorina and Greene. While engaging action of the picture pivots on their love for each other, there are many other absorbing facts to the story. A superb supporting cast headed by Erich Von Strochim, "the man you love to hate." Peter Lorre as the muddle-headed, light-fingered Polo, will astonish his many fans with the marvelous subtlety of his comedy. Here, indeed, is a grand comic performance by one who in the past has been noted for inspiring terror rather than laughs.

"Sailor's Lady," Funny

There's rollicking entertainment ahead, so clear all decks for fun! The season's heaviest cargo of laughter with a comedy cast playing a riotous love story for all its worth, will be seen in "Sailor's Lady," starring Nancy Kelly and Jon Hall, the companion feature attraction.

From start to finish, producer Sol M. Wurtzel has set a full-steam-ahead pace which will delight screen fans. Speedy action, romance ashore and fun afloat, have blended skillfully into a refreshing entertainment treat

Other fun-makers in the great 20th Century-Fox cast are: Joan Davis, Dana Andrews, Mary Nash, Larry Crabbe, Katharine Aldridge, Harry Shannon, Wally Vernon and "Skipper," the cutest sailor you ever saw.

The Belle News of the hour will be exhibited on the same program.

TRAINING PERIOD ONLY 30 DAYS SAYS RALSTON

Prepared Statement Given by Defence Minister on Monday Night

CAMPS OPEN OCT. 9

Ottawa, Oct. 8 (CP)—No young Canadian called into the militia for compulsory military training in 1940 will spend more than 30 days in camp.

Defence Minister Ralston made this clear late last night in a prepared statement.

He said that whether or not any change is made for men called up later will depend on the result of studies now being made into Canadas manpower problem.

In his statement, Col. Ralston said it had been drawn to his attention that "the headlines in some of the afternoon paper" conveyed an erroneous impression of what he said at a press conference yesterday morning.

"What I said was that there have been representations regarding the increasing need of men in war industries and that this whole subject is receiving the intensive study of a committee," he said.

"I mentioned that one of the methods suggested in order to make more men available for industry might be to make the training periods longer and thereby reduce the total number of men to be called for training during any one year."

Col. Ralston said this was only one of a number of suggested methods for making more manpower available for the war industries. All these methods were being studied.

"But," he said, "it can be stated without any reservation that there will be no extension of the 30-day training period in the camps to be held in 1940, and whether any change might be made in connection with some of the late camps would depend on the result of the study which is now being made of the whole man-power problem and the needs of the munitions industry and of the services."

According to earlier announcements, two 30-day training periods are planned for 1940, the first starting tomorrow, Oct. 9, and the second about Nov. 22.

At his Monday morning press conference, Col. Ralston said that in connection with manpower the Government had to consider the position of industry, the supply of equipment and the needs of the armed forces for men.

No Germans at Dakar Says French Embassy

New York, Oct. 8 (CP).—Havas News Agency Monday issued the following statement from its New York bureau.

"The French embassy has been authorized to make the following denials to certain news items recently published in the United States:

"The embassy has been officially informed that there is no German officer, soldier or civilian official in Dakar or in the whole of France's western Africa.

"The embassy also denies that work on the fortifications in the Island of Martinique is proceeding and the existence of a new plan for the reinforcement of these fortifications.

"Furthermore it states that a report, to the effect that the Italians have requested the control over certain air bases in Syria and demanded the delivery of the French military planes stationed there, is without foundation.

"These denials have been officially conveyed to the State Department in the course of a conversation, between the Under Secretary of State, Mr. Sumner Welles, and the French Ambassador, M. (Gaston) Henry-Haye.

NO "AIR RAID NERVES" HERE

Seeking a night's lodging and shelter in the famous Piccadilly subway station, this London family is quite unmindful if the high explosives which may be blasting the city above as they concentrate on their card game before bedding down. Certain sections of the subway are found more desirable by London's air raid refugees than the usual shelters because of the greater space and better sanitary facilities. Nightfall usually finds families grabbing sections for themselves and setting up temporary housekeeping.

Bail Refused Woman On Dangerous Driving Charge at London

London, Ont., Oct. 7—(CP)—Bail on a dangerous driving charge was refused to Mrs. Marguerite Beswarick of Strathroy district here today when she appeared in court with a registration card not made out in her name. She was remanded a week.

Crown Attorney Norman Newton refused to permit bail until he had learned why Mrs. Beswarick's card was made to "Miss Margaret Kennedy." Chief Constable George Tanton of Strathroy said Mrs. Beswarick's maiden name was Titus.

"When I talked to my lawyer about separation papers he said it was alright to use that name," explained Mrs. Beswarick.

"What is your first name," Margaret or Maud?" asked Mr. Newton.

"It's Marguerite but I'm sometimes known as Maud," Mrs. Beswarick said.

The charge followed an accident Sunday in which four-year-old Billy Bloomfield was seriously injured.

Little Benny's Note Book

Some lady came to see ma this afternoon, being a wide lady by the name of Mrs. Bockert, and ma was talking to her about things in genrel such as men's dispositions and ladies shapes, Mrs. Bockert saying, Personly I cant truthfully say I'm proud of my figure, but at least I'm sattisfied with it if you know what I mean. I mean I realize that nature intended me to be a large type within reasonable limits so why should I ruin my health trying to go against nature? she said.

Well I'm glad to hear you express the thought so well, because that's my own philosophy to a tea, ma said. These naturelly slender women with their perennially up and down figures have nothing to brag about. They were simply born that way and they dont even have to think about dieting, in spite of all their insincere talk about calories. I'm sure the ancient Greeks knew more about beauty than the modern fashion designers, they were famous for it, and just look at the statue of any Greek woman with its naturelly rounded lines, she said, and Mrs. Bockert said, Exactly, figures very the same as anything elts in life, and they're all normal as long as they're not overdone, that my philosophy.

Mine too, I always give a harty laugh up my sleeve when I see avvertizements for so called miraculous cures and diet sistems, ma said and Mrs. Bockert said, Yes, aren't they abserd? The newest one of all takes the grand prize. I've got the clipping in my bag right now, I cut it out of the paper just for amusement, she said, and ma said, O, do let me have a look at it, as a pure matter of curiosity.

Being the last I heard on account of the fellows starting to whissle for me outside.

Receipts: Cattle 170; calves 297; hogs 1,133; sheep and lambs 909.

Most of the cattle offered were cows and bulls. Good cows brought $5.50 to $5.75 with medium kinds from $4.75 to $5.25 and common butchers down to $4. Canners and cutters were $2.50 to $3.75. Common bulls $3.50 to $4.25.

Veal calves were much in demand and prices firm. Veals ranged from $8 to $10.50 with a few tops up to $11. Drinkers were $5.50 to $7.50. Grassers made the bulk of the offerings, selling from $4.25 to $4.75, but mostly $4.50 to $4.65.

Good ewes and wethers sold for $8.50 to $8.75 while culls and bucks suffered a cut of $2 per hundredweight. Sheep were $3 to $5.50.

Hogs remained unchanged at $9 for B1 alive, fed and watered, and up to $9.25 off trucks, $12 dressed. Grade A drew $1 premium with discounts on off grades. Sows were $5.25 to $6 live weight.

Hog Quotations

Toronto, Oct. 8—(CP)—Dressedweight were down 10 cents at Peterborough and prices were unchanged at Barrie, Brantford, Hull and Stratford in Bacon-Hog markets reporting early today.

Dressedweight: Barrie $11.85, Hull $11.30, Peterborough $11.40, plus transportation, Stratford $11.50 plus transportation, Brantford $11.50 plus transportation.

Unchanged prices were reported from Chatham at $8.25 liveweight and $11.15 dressedweight. London $11.50 plus transportation, unchanged.

Cream Prices Show Improvement

Toronto—Churning cream prices improved in sympathy with the prevailing strong trend in butter during yesterday's action on the Toronto open produce market. Eggs also showed a better tone.

Top grades came in for more attention on the egg market, which tended to lift prices on these grades. Pullets were the weak spot in the day's trading, with volume of arrivals exceeding local demand. A heavier pullet crop this year will contribute to an ample supply of fresh eggs during the fall and winter, says the Dominion Department of Agriculture, which points out that perhaps the heaviest winter fresh egg production ever experienced in Canada is in definite prospect. With a good flow of fresh eggs, interest turns to the marketing of storage eggs. The export market will absorb a good portion of present stocks, but large quantities still will be left for home consumption, the department states. It seems desirable that within the next few weeks while prices of grade A-large are reasonably high and the lower grades in good demand, as many as possible of these storage eggs should be moved into consumption.

Trading on the butter market was not heavy because of the lack of offerings and the fact that buying was not general. No. 1 grade Ontario creamery solids sold early in the day at 25¼ cents, but these offerings were soon cleared and later business was transacted at 25½ cents. Buyers raised cream prices as butter went higher. No. 1 grades ranged at 24 cents to 25 cents, on truck country points.

THOUSANDS VIEW WOMAN'S CORPSE

Body of Young Woman Was Kept for Nine Years by 70 - Year - Old X-Ray Expert

Key West, Fla., Oct. 8—(AP)—The fantastic story of an old man, who sought to restore life to a young woman he loved, attracted throngs to an undertaking establishment for a glimpse of the corpse he kept in his bedroom for seven years.

More than 2,000 Key Westers yesterday filed past the remains, which Karl Tanzler Van Cosel said he wax-moulded into a likeness of the beautiful matron who died nine years ago at the age of 19.

Van Cosel, 70-year-old X-ray expert formerly employed at the Marine Hospital here, remained in jail in default of $1,000 bond. He faced a hearing in Justice of the Peace Court today on a charge of "maliciously" disturbing the contents of a tomb, but County Solicitor Allan B. Cleare, Jr., said that, regardless of the outcome, a sanity hearing would be held.

"I wouldn't like to assume the responsibility of turning loose this man without an examination by a competent psychiatrist and a decision by a board of examiners," Cleare declared.

"His existence has been woven around the memory of a girl for the last several years and no one knows how he will react if he feels he has lost the body forever."

Mrs. Mario Medina, sister of the dead girl, Eleno Hoyos, said she was determined that the body would be buried again in the ground "to rot there like all her ancestors."

Van Cosel appeared surprised that he should be arrested.

The slight, bearded man readily told of falling in love with the girl, then separated from her husband, when she was treated at the hospital for tuberculosis.

After her death he financed the construction of a vault and obtained permission of the family to have the body disintered and placed there.

When he found that decay had set in, he said he took the remains to the hospital and used chemicals he believed would preserve the flesh. Later, he took the body to his home.

U. S. Citizens in Far East Advised To Return Home

Shanghai, Oct. 8 (AP).—All United States consulates in Manchoukuo, China, French Indo-China, Hong Kong, and Japanese territory were reported today to have been ordered by the United States Department to advise American citizens to return home as soon as possible.

It was understood that consular officials were told to advise Americans in these areas to take advantage of transportation facilities immediately because it was unknown how long they might be available.

Emphasis was said to have been placed on the desirability of early departure of all women and children and men in non-essential posts.

There are approximately 9,000 white Americans in the affected zones, plus some 2,000 Shinese-Americans and Japanese-Americans.

It was believed possible some extra ships might be diverted to facilitate the removal, as all ships now available have been booed for some time in advance.

Bomb Splinters From Battle of Britain

(By Douglas Amaren, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Oct. 8—(CP)—Home-made shelters are all right in their place but there is one London businessman who has given them up as a bad job. He slept nightly under the dining room table, the side-board on one side and the wall on the other forming, he believed, good protection against the collapse of his house. The protection was fine but one night an explosion nearby wakened the businessman so suddenly he jumped up quickly, whacked his head on the underside of the table and knocked himself out.

The house on Gower Street where Charles Darwin lived from 1839 to 1842 was damaged by a bomb in a recent night raid. It was occupied at the time of the bombing by the Indian Students' Hostel.

Birmingham hopes to raise $22,250,000, enough money for 250 bombers, during War Weapons Week, Oct. 14-19.

People of Eye, Suffolk, Britain's smallest borough, who have been demanding an air raid siren since the start of the war, have been informed they can have one—if they buy it themselves.

The radio wasn't playing "There Will Always be an England," when an East-end family emerged from their bomb-damaged home, but it was still going, although much of the house was in ruins. An announcer was announcing "Hints to Gardeners."

Mrs. Clarissa Stokes of Ramsgate celebrated her 102nd birthday by walking two miles through the streets of her native town looking at some of the places that were bombed. "It will take more than the Germans to make me leave my home," she said.

Explosion of a time bomb buried a man, his wife, and their son in a shelter. They were trapped for nearly an hour until their dog, barking and pawing the debris, attracted rescue workers who dug them out uninjured.

Another dog pounced on an incendiary bomb and smothered it, while another swam five miles down the Thames River after a bomb fell near its kennel.

During a recent scare when church bells were rung in certain parts of the country a man and his wife were roused from their slumber. "Gas," said the husband as he hustled his wife into her mask and down to the shelter. There they sat in extreme discomfort, puffing and blowing, waiting for something to happen. Almost 30 minutes later, after he had done some hard thinking, the husband remarked in a muffled voice: "Wait a minute, I believe I'm wrong. Bells were for invasion, it rattles for gas."

TRIPLE PACT

"But quite a lot of things are going to happen to Hitler and the Nazi regime before ten years are out," continued the prime minister.

"And even Mussolini has some experiences ahead of him which he had not foreseen at the time he thought it was safe and profitable to stab the stricken, prostrate French Republic in the back."

Compulsory Property Insurance.

Mr. Churchill announced a compulsory nationwide scheme of property insurance against bomb damage which will have retroactive application.

London, Liverpool, Manchester, Birmingham and other bombed areas "will rise from their ruins more healthy and, I hope, more beautiful," the Prime Minister went on.

He promised that the Burma Road, the backdoor route to China, will be re-opened the day after the existing three-month agreement with Japan lapses. It was closed to permit Japan to reach some settlement with China in the Far East but, instead, Japan has signed an alliance with Germany and Italy.

Triple Pact Aimed at U.S. and Russia

The Prime Minister declared the Berlin-Rome-Tokyo pact was aimed primarily at the United States and in a secondary degree was pointed against Russia.

In some ways it resembled a resurrection of the anti-comintern pact, but neither the United States nor Britain "is accustomed to react to acts and threats of violence by submission and certainly the reception of this strange ill-balance declaration in the United States has not been at all encouraging to those who are its authors.

Dakar Expedition

Mr. Churchill made only a short reference to the Dakar expedition which he said he could not discuss publicly without giving Germany too much information. However, he said three French cruisers and three destroyers which turned up at Dakar a short time before the De Gaulle expedition arrived had passed Gibraltar by "a series of accidents and some errors."

"This is now the subject of disciplinary action and investigation, as it resulted in neither the First Sea Lord nor the cabinet being informed of the warships' approach to Gibraltar," he added. "After the ships were in the Atlantic they were ordered stopped at Casablanca or at least prevented from attacking the free France colony of Duala where they had planned to strike."

Results of Naval Action

In the Dakar naval action one British battleship and one large cruiser were damaged, Mr. Churchill said. They could still steam and fight but would require extensive repairs later. Two Vichy submarines were sunk, two destroyers set afire, one cruiser hit and the battleship Richelieu was further damaged. This craft was damaged by a special British expedition some weeks ago.

It was one of the Prime Minister's dramatic war reports and he ended it as follows:-

"Long dark months of trial and tribulation lie before us. Not only great dangers but many more misfortunes, many short-comings, many mistakes, many disappointments, will surely be our lot. Death and sorrow will be the companions of our journey; hardship our garment, constancy and valor our only shield."

As he spoke the sound of anti-aircraft fire came faintly from the distance.

Mr. Churchill explained that the step taken to enable Japan to compose her differences with China had no further meaning now that Japan, instead, had entered into a triple alliance with Germany and Italy.

This alliance he called a revival of the anti-comintern pact.

His review of the war was made with quiet fervor which never faltered despite the guns and sirens often loudly interrupting.

Confidence in Gen. de Gaulle

Mr. Churchill suggested that the Dakar incident could easily be expanded out of all proportion and confessed there had been both negligence and error in the passage of French ships through Gibraltar to the French West Africa port.

He bespoke confidence in the judgment of Gen. Charles de Gaulle, leader of French forces still fighting with Britain, that Dakar had been a friend of Free France until the arrival of those ships altered the situation. He gave assurance that sterner action against the enemy would follow that incident.

Britain Stronger Than In July.

Murmurs of approval greeted his statement that the effect of blitzkrieg had been far less damaging than some had feared, that Britain is stronger than she was three months ago, and that her vital forces are more numerous rather than depleted.

Britain's experience with bombers has already made it possible to project compulsory retroactive insurance for property damage, he told the House.

Mr. Churchill declared Germany must also be increasing her strength by looting occupied countries and making some use of their skilled labor.

Only the riches of the new world, becoming increasingly available, could counteract that, he said.

Britain and Spain.

The prime minister emphasised Britain's present desire to see Spain win back prosperity after the civil war. All Britain seeks, he said, is assurance that Spain shall not become an avenue of supply for Britain's enemies.

To that end measures of blockade will always be carefully examined on Spain's behalf, he said.

Germany has sent over nearly 400 long-range bombers on an average every 24 hours since Sept. 7, Mr. Churchill declared, doubting whether such sustained attack could be greatly enlarged.

Italy, he said, has experiences ahead of her not foreseen when she declard war.

Maximum Harm to War Machinery Only

As for reprisals on the German population, Mr. Churchill said, "Our object must be to inflict the maximum harm upon the war-making capacity of Germany and that is the only object we shall pursue."

"A month has passed since Herr Hitler turned his rage and malice on the civilian population of our great cities and particularly on London," he continued.

"Hitler declared in his speech on Sept. 4 that he would raze our cities to the ground and since then he has been trying to carry out his fell purpose. Naturally, the first question is to what extent the full strength of the German Air Force has been employed......

"Certainly there has been continued falling off in the last week or 10 days. Since the heavy raidings began we have had a steady decline of casualties and damage to so-called vulnerable points......

Blind Bombing by Nazis

"We know exactly what we are doing in reply and the size of our own bomber forces, and from many sources open to us believe that German heavy bomber pilots are being worked at least as hard, and it may be a great deal harder than our own and the strain on the bomber is considerable.

"The bulk of them do not seem capable of anything beyond blind bombing.

"On the whole we may, under all reserve, reach the provisional conclusion that the Germans' average effort against this country absorbs a very considerable part of their forces and strength.

"I should not like to say we have the measure of their power, but we feel more confident now than we have ever been before."

Nazi Dive-Bombers Kept out of Fighting

Since August 15, after a "severe mauling", Mr. Churchill said, German short-range dive bombers have "been kept carefully out air fighting."

But, he warned, they may "be held in reserve for a general plan of invasion or to operate in some other theatre of war".

Mortality Rate of Ton of Bombs

He continued.

"We were told on September 23, that 22,000 tons of explosives had been discharged upon Great Britain since the beginning of the war and we were also told that last week, 251 tons had been discharged upon London in a single night—only a few tons less than the total dropped on the whole country through the last war.

"One hundred eighty persons were killed in London on that night. That is to say, it took a ton of bombs to kill three-quarters of a person. In the last war, small bombs of early patterns were used and killed ten persons for every ton discharged in built-up areas.

Shelter Conditions Improved

"That is a very remarkable fact deserving profound consideration. There can be only one explanation —that vastly improved methods of shelter have been adopted.

"This appears not only to be remarkable but also reassuring and it has also altered the course of the whole or the estimates we had made of the severity of the attacks to which we could be exposed

Much Lower than Expected

"Whereas we expected to sustain losses which might amount in a single night to 3,000 killed and 13,000 wounded—in a single night and night after night—up to last Saturday air raid casualties were about 8,500 killed and 13,000 wounded."

"People must be taught not to despise the small shelter", Mr. Church said, adding that "dispersal is the sovereign remedy against heavy casualties".

All Classes Suffer Equally

Destruction of property has "been very considerable", Mr. Churchill acknowledged. He said all classes have suffered equally "as they would desire to do".

On every side he had heard cries of "we can take it" and also "give it 'em back" and he hinted "it may be that new methods will be devised to make the wholesale bombing of the civilian population by night or in fog far more exciting than it is at present. He did not disclose any of these methods but warned "no one must look forward to any relief merely because of the winter weather".

He also warned against any relaxation of vigilance against invasion "which we have been promised every month and almost every week since the beginning of July".

Poultry Project Of Kiwanis Club Is Completed

The poultry project instituted and administered by the Kiwanis Club of Belleville in order to interest junior boys and girls of the district is nearing the end of another year and the project has been an unqualified success under the direction of Charlie Tripp and his energetic committee composed of Bruce Bottum, Jim Cowan, Herb Fox and Ross Stiver. Today Charlie and his workers are out in the country with Linn Fair, Agricultural Representative for the County, and a staff member from Swifts judging the poultry that was placed out early this spring. In all, 1,500 chicks were distributed to six schools in Thurlow and Sidney Township with each school taking 250 birds, and ten pupils in each school taking twenty-five. The Swift Canadian Company joined in the project by supplying some feed, a poultry brooder and other accessories necessary for the raising of the chicks.

Some of the chickens raised are returnable to the Kiwanis Club, while the other remain the property of the children, who raised them in order they may become interested in this part of farm life and become poultry enthusiasts. The chickens that are returned to the club will serve a useful purpose of raising funds for the Kiwanis Club and a chicken bingo will be held in this city on Thursday and Friday of this week and every citizen of Belleville and the surrounding district can take part by patronising this bingo. The birds will be especially prepared for the bingo and the winners can have a lovely Thanksgiving chicken, while at the same time assist the Kiwanis Club in their many war projects.

The children, who won prizes will not be forgotten by the club for in the near future an "Agricultural Night" will be held at which the winners will be banqueted by the club and presented with their prizes. This worthy cause requests the co-operation of every person and the Kiwanis Club will judiciously and wisely expend the money obtained from the bingo to the best possible advantage.

E. C. ROWSOME ASKED TO ATTEND

E. C. Rowsome, the 'Big A' Company, Ltd., 172 Pinnacle, Belleville, has been invited to attend the annual national convention of the refrigerator division of Stewart-Warner Corporation at Indianapolis and French Lick Springs, Ind., October 16-18.

Service managers will remain in Indianapolis to attend a special convention.

Joseph C. Elliff, Chicago, assistant general sales manager, is in charge of arrangements. More than 400 distributors, dealers and factory representatives, trade paper editors, and refrigeration experts are expected to attend.

BRUIN HAS KILLED HIS LAST SHEEP

A heavy trap and a well-placed shot ended the sheep-molesting career of this 275-pound bear on the farm of Edward Bowen at Cordova, near Havelock. Mr. Bowen found one of his flock killed and the rest so badly scared from fright that it required several days' searching to round them up. Harry Bowen, son of Edward Bowen, is shown with the bear, described as a fine, pure black specimen. Other bears are believed to be in the Cordova district. After an all-day hunt a large black bear that had terrorized the Cannifton farming district was shot by R. B. Scott. It was brought down four miles north of Belleville.

RAF Bomber Crew Escapes Drowning After Forced Landing

London, Oct. 8 —(CP)— The crew of a Royal Air Force bomber with a Canadian in command escaped drowning when they made a forced landing near the British coast after a successful attack on Berlin. They took to their dinghy and reached safety after first paddling it, propelling it with their hands, and then swimming behind it to push it along.

The Canadian, awarded the D.F.C. recently, said the crew found themselves in difficulties off the Frisian Islands and found they would have to come down on the sea.

"We lightened the aircraft as much as possible by jettisoning all surplus weight and nursing the engine," said the airman whose name cannot be disclosed because of R.A.F. regulations.

"We hoped to find a convoy and come down somewhere near to it, but no ship was sighted. In the meantime, we were getting nearer to England. Soon we saw the coast and our hopes ran a little higher, but unfortunately both engines spluttered and then stopped."

The Canadian pancaked on the water and landed a quarter of a mile from the coast. The navigator and the rest of the crew had launched the dinghy by the time he managed to scramble out of the cockpit.

"It was just as well the navigator had left his position because when we hit the water, which was rather like hitting concrete, the first decks were smashed and water just rushed into the aircraft," he said.

"It did a kind of submarine dive and then came up again. We were soon aboard our dinghy and reached shore in about 45 minutes."

ROBERT LAURIER

ister of Mines, the portfolio left by Paul Leduc, new clerk of the Supreme Court of Canada.

Mr. Laurier said last night that although he has "lived close to politics" throughout his career, this is the first time that he has entered political office. He has been assistant secretary to Rt. Hon. Ernest Lapointe, Minister of Justice, during the last year.

Since Mr. Laurier resides in the provincial constituency of Ottawa East which Mr. Leduc represented in the Ontario Legislature it is expected the new Mines Minister will seek election there.

Studied at McGill

Mr. Laurier was born in Arthabaska, Que., the riding his uncle, Sir Wilfrid, represented for many years in the House of Commons. He attended Loyola College and later studied for two years at McGill University. He was graduated from Osgoode Hall in 1919.

During his student days he was articled in the Ottawa law firm of Murphy, Fisher and Sherwood, headed by Sir Charles Murphy, at one time Postmaster-General in Sir Wilfrid's cabinet.

After graduation Mr. Laurier was associated in legal practice with Hartley George, who later became leader of the Liberal party in Ontario.

He later was associated with the Ottawa firm of Belcourt, Chevrier and Leduc. One of the members of the partnership at that time is now Mr. Justice E. R. Chevrier of the Ontario Supreme Court. Another of the then partners, Mr. Leduc, is the new Supreme Court of Canada registrar.

When the partnership was dissolved in 1923, Mr. Laurier maintained his own office until 1926. He later toured Europe for three years.

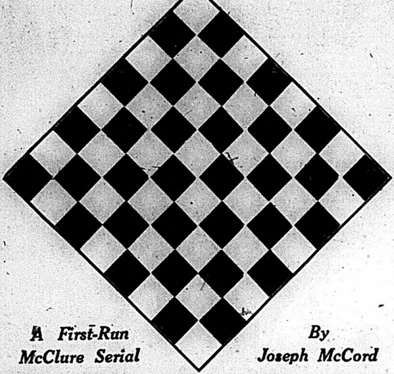
CHECKERBOARD LOVE



A First-Run McClure Serial

By Joseph McCord

CHAPTER VIII.

Audrey Swan was conscious of a curious sensation. It was almost as if her heart had skipped a beat at Olive's smilingly demure: "Has Jeffrey told you about . . . us?"

"I don't believe so." Audrey knit her brows a trifle as if in an effort to be sure.

"I rather thought he had." Olive was regarding her closely as she spoke. "You two are such old friends and I know Jeffrey is fond of you. He's often told me that you are the same as a sister to him."

"Why, yes. We did rather grow up together. You mean then . . . is it congratulations?"

Olive nodded and lowered her eyes. The admission came shyly: "Yes. We're engaged." With the words, her hand came out and Audrey clasped it firmly.

"Congratulations!" she exclaimed cordially. "I think it's wonderful!"

"So do I," Olive admitted, withdrawing her hand somewhat hastily. "We decided just this morning to let a very small public in on it. I thought Jeffrey might have whispered it to you on the way up. He'd been listening for your car. Didn't you notice how rattled he was?" she laughed musically. "I imagine that he's breaking the tidings to his parents now."

"I'm sure they will be very happy for him."

"Hope so." Olive's smile vanished. "Of course, darling, you understand why we are not making a general announcement. I haven't my decree. At least, I don't think I have."

Audrey experienced another inner shock. The explanation had been so matter of fact. "I see," she said simply.

"And are properly appalled," Olive supplemented good-naturedly. "It's only a matter of form. My heart has been free for a long time . . . that is, until I met Jeffrey over in Europe."

Audrey nodded. The smile on her face felt frozen.

"I think marriage will be very good for Jeffrey," his fiancee went on complacently. "He has lived a lonely life, after all. That's the trouble of us 'only' children, don't you think? He never has had the real advantages of a social life of the sort we will have. I'm selfishly glad that it isn't really necessary for him to work for a living . . . grub, I mean. Clubs and sports and meeting the right people will do wonders for him. I don't believe he is cut out to be a business man, do you?"

"No," Audrey admitted slowly. "I doubt if he is. But his father's people have been lawyers for severel generations, I understand. I imagined that he would follow his father's profession and take his place . . . at least, that is what everyone here has always thought."

"Well, a connection with some important law firm in the city might be an asset . . . like Vic's. But he works dreadfully hard, and it will take him years and years to get anywhere! There's no point in Jeffrey's keeping his nose to the grindstone."

"Then you don't plan to live here?"

"My dear child! I'm planning marriage, not retiring to a convent! Country life a week or two at a time is bearable, but that's enough."

When Olive spoke again there was an earnestness in her voice that made it almost sharp. "There is one thing, Cygie, I want you to understand . . . believe. I really love Jeffrey."

"Why, of course you do!"

"My marriage to Phil Cooper was unfortunate. Infatuation, though I really was old enough to have better sense. It was altogether different when I met Jeffrey," Olive continued. "Funny, but I knew he was the man I wanted the first time I saw him. Don't you think love really can come like that?"

"They say so."

"And I know so! Jeffrey has everything, too. But he's a real thoroughbred. You don't have to be with him long to realize it. I am as sure about that after a few months as you are after years."

"Jeff is a dear."

"Well, I'm sure that no one is better qualified than you to agree with me." It was said very sweetly but, for some reason, the words seemed to carry a hidden meaning. Fortunately, the door opened at that moment and Jeff thrust in his head.

"Secret session over?" he wanted to know. He kept his eyes on Audrey as he entered, closed the door after him and leaned against it.

She rose, went to him with her hand extended in a frank gesture. "Congratulations, Jeff. Lots of them. And happiness."

"Thanks, Cygie. Hoped you knew. Like it?"

"Of course!"

"Think it's pretty swell my own self."

"What did your mother and father say?" Olive asked abruptly.

"They bore up very nicely, I thought. They'll be up shortly to welcome you into the clan. Of course I told them there was nothing imminent, and all that." He turned to Audrey. "You're the only one in on the dark secret."

"And I shall be very discreet," she smiled. "I appreciate the honor. Best of luck to you both. I really must be going."

Jeffrey went down to her car with her. "I wanted you to know first thing, Cygie!" he exclaimed boyishly, once they were out of the house. "Told Olive that you were one of the family and if she didn't tell you today, I would. I'm a lucky guy, don't you think?" He was wistfully anxious that she should agree with him.

"And how! Best of luck, Jeff. Good-by." She held out her hand.

"Where do you get that good-by stuff? I'll be around here all summer mostly." As she drove the car slowly down the tree-lined avenue, Audrey for some reason was thinking uncomfortably of her congratulations. Why had she kept saying, "Best of luck?" She could have used a more refined expression, at least. Luck. That really sounded as if Olive and Jeff had staked their future on an uncertainty and that she was hoping for the best. Of course she didn't mean it that way, but the discomfort persisted, the same as that little instinctive feeling of sympathy for Jeff. It was an added temptation to feel that way when she punctured a rear tire almost a quarter of a mile from the farm lane. She pulled to the side of the road and examined the damage. Rather than run on the rim, she would walk up to the house and ask one of the boys to come down and put on the spare.

When she approached the front porch her mother stood there with a worried air.

"Audrey! Has anything happened? Where's the car?"

"Oh, up the road a piece. Tire went flat on me. I was going to ask somebody to look after it."

"Jim was out in the kitchen talking to Julia a minute ago. I'll see if he's still there. You go to the phone and call the operator. Long distance has been calling off and on ever since you went out."

"Who is it?"

But Martha had gone.

After the usual preliminaries and exchanges between operators, Audrey was rewarded with: "There's your party. Go ahead."

Then another voice calling: "Surprise! Surprise!"

"Who is it?" she queried suspiciously.

"Vic, of course! Now I am disappointed. To think you didn't know the voice of your beloved!"

"Silly. I thought you were home. Or didn't you go? Where are you?"

"Up in the big town. In my lonely little nest. I merely wanted to hear your voice."

"That's sweet of you."

"Hang it, you sound as if you thought there was a catch in it!"

"Are you sure there isn't?" she teased.

"You bet. I've been thinking about you all day and what a good time I had meeting you and all that. If you're going to go formal on me, this is by way of a bread-and-butter letter. You did entertain me at breakfast, you know. How's that?"

"Not bad."

"Well, if it isn't enough, how's Olive? Turn out to be anything really serious?"

"No. The doctor says she will have to keep off of her foot for a while. I saw her this afternoon. She looks very well."

"And old Jeff in the seventh heaven over a chance to play nurse, no doubt. Well, that's good. Say, Audrey, in the rush of matters I forgot to say my vacation starts next week and I'm going to do some modest touring. If I get to your neighborhood, do you imagine you'll be at home? And may I drop in?"

"I expect to be home indefinitely. I'll be delighted to see you!"

"Fine! I'll give you a ring. I hope you'll still be glad, for I sure do want to see you again. Even the horses. Thanks again for everything and I'll hope to be finding you. Good-by. . . . Oh, my regards to your mother and father. Good-by."

"Good-by."

"For some reason, that call was very pleasant. Vic WAS nice.

CHAPTER IX.

Judge George Castle sat behind his big flat-topped desk in the one private room of his modest Parville office.

An impressive figure, the Judge, in his snowy suit of linen, with his heavy shock of white hair and dark eyes peering out from under their shaggy brows. Like his elderly secretary, Miss Annie Dodds, he had his spectacles attached to a ribbon. A broad heavy ribbon with a gold slide. It was generally believed that Miss Annie's more modest tether was worn as a tribute to her employer. She was standing near him, taking various papers he discarded and sorting them with her lean efficient hands.

"They surely have been keeping you busy here lately, Miss Annie," was his kindly gruff remark. "But everything seems to be in good order. As usual." He removed his spectacles and tapped them thoughtfully against his open palm. It was characteristic, particularly when he was about to deliver an opinion.

Miss Annie waited, but no opinion came. It was quite unprecedented, but she asked nervously: "Could you spare me a few minutes, Judge Castle, for . . . for a personal matter?"

"Why, of course, Miss Annie. Of course."

She did another unprecedented thing. She helped herself to a seat on the edge of a near-by chair. "I think you know I never would intrude . . ." she began in what was for her a curiously hesitant fashion. ". . . But I was wondering if Jeffrey was planning to be in the office."

The Castle brows lowered in a heavy frown. The Judge's retort was almost testy.

"Absolutely. I put him through law school with that intention . . . for him to carry on in my place eventually. I had hoped to see him here this week, but he has been entertaining guests . . . still is, as a matter of fact. You are ready to put him through a course of sprouts, I trust? That is, so far as the details here are concerned."

"I don't imagine that he will need much help from me." A faint color came into Miss Annie's thin cheeks. "The reason I asked, Judge Castle, is . . . when it won't inconvenience you, I think I . . . I would like to leave."

The unexpected statement held the Judge silent for an instant. Then he exploded gruffly: "My dear woman! You surely haven't conceived a notion that there isn't going to be a place here for you! As a matter of fact, I feel particularly dependent upon you. On Jeffrey's account. Please set your mind at rest on that score."

"Thank you, Judge Castle. It isn't that. I haven't been feeling so very well." This was the difficult thing to discuss. "My physician . . . Doctor Bardsley says I should take things a little easier with the hot weather coming on. He thinks I should not come to the office at all. I am afraid that I shall be quite lost . . . and afraid he is right."

"Well! Of course if it is a matter of health . . . see here, Miss Annie. When you can get ready, treat yourself to a vacation. A voyage. Spend a little time in a cooler climate—bracing air. The office will be delighted to take care of the expense. You've more than earned it."

"You are more than kind, Judge Castle," she answered, making an obvious attempt to control her voice. "But I think I would be more comfortable in my little place here. Your generosity in the past will save me from having to worry." She could have added that the doctor had tried to tell her very gently that her wait at home might not be protracted beyond another year. "I shall be glad to give you as much help as you need meanwhile," she added.

"That is very kind of you, Miss Annie. Of course we will arrange matters here to your ultimate convenience. I owe you that and a great deal more." He tapped his palm again with his glasses. "That means we must induct Jeffrey into his duties here as soon as possible. It will be good for him."

"It will be very nice to see him here. Not in your place, of course, but with you. It will be a good arrangement for you both."

"I have always thought so," the Judge mused. "I have always counted on it, too. Confidentially, Miss Annie, I am just the least bit worried over Jeffrey. I am sorry to say that he did not seem to do particularly good work in his law study."

"But he really is only a boy, Judge Castle."

"Humph. He's twenty-three. You can help me greatly in giving him an insight to the office routine. Fortunately, I shall be off the bench for a little time."

"I'll be glad to do anything I can. And thank you for your kindness." Miss Annie stood up. She was highly relieved that her ordeal was over.

"How about getting in some help for a time?" Judge Castle suggested. "What I had in mind was a competent stenographer. It will save you, even if we can't keep a girl steadily employed."

"Oh, please no! I can manage very nicely."

"Just as you say. As soon as that young man is freed of his present social obligations, we'll see that he gets down to business."

"Yes, sir."

The Judge reached for the telephone and called for his car and chauffeur. He might have a chance to talk with Jeffrey alone, today.

The opportunity presented itself after lunch. Jeffrey assisted Olive to her room when she expressed a desire to rest. Mrs. Castle also disappeared for her usual siesta while the Judge repaired to his library. He took a chair where he could command a view of the front hall and when he saw his son descending the stairway went to the door and hailed him. "A moment, Jeffrey, if you please."

"Want me, sir?"

"If you can spare me some time, yes. Sit down," he added, indicating an armchair. "I wish to talk to you."

Jeffrey threw himself down, draped one of his long legs across the chair arm and produced his cigarette case. "Will you have one, sir?" he offered, extending it.

"Thank you, no." The Judge drew his chair up to the table, took a cigar from a humidor and lighted it with some care. When it was burning to his satisfaction he leaned back and attentively regarded his son. "I believe, as matters now stand, you expect to marry Mrs. Cooper before New Year's."

"Why, yes. That's the arrangement, providing . . ."

"I am quite aware of the proviso. Her father is Harvey Harrison of the Harrison Products Corporation. From all accounts, he is a very wealthy man. A millionaire several times over, I should imagine."

"It wouldn't surprise me."

"I should judge . . . rather, I am convinced . . . that you would have a low opinion of a man who was content to live upon his wife's bounty. Had you given the matter any serious thought, may I ask?"

"Why, no." Jeffrey was a little taken aback at the direct question. "Of course I had always thought that . . ."

"That you would be associated with me in a business way. Such an arrangement was in my mind when I sent you to law school. You know that has always been my hope and intention."

Jeffrey, for the first time, was tempted to insinuate that his father's success had not been particularly handicapped by the million-dollar dower brought him by Louise Langdon. He contented himself with: "That is the matter you wish to discuss, sir?"

"There is nothing particular to discuss," the Judge retorted, knocking the ash from his cigar. "In view of a long vacation and your intention to support a wife, I assume that you are ready to settle down and think of a professional career. In that event, I am ready to arrange a partnership with you. More than that, I am willing to guarantee you a substantial income from the start. If that does not interest you, I am bound to suggest that I think your mother and I have done our share toward giving you a start in life. Doesn't that appeal to you as a fair proposition?"

"Very." The quiet agreement had its effect.

"Now see here, my boy." The Judge's heavy features relaxed in a frosty smile. "I need you. In fact, I need you particularly just now. You are not planning to be away long, are you?"

"You mean when I go to the city?"

"I understand that you are taking Mrs. Cooper home."

"I haven't planned definitely. Olive spoke as if she is expecting me to stay a few days . . . spoke about a number of friends she wishes me to meet."

"Well, I shall have to make due allowances, I presume. However, I will ask you to return as soon as possible. I wish you to take your place in the office. In fact, it will be necessary for you to assume charge and you will need to familiarize yourself with everything."

"Take charge!" Jeffrey's eyes widened in surprise. "What's the matter with our old girl friend?"

"Miss Dodds is leaving me."

"Not really! Why? Not on my account, I should hope!"

"No. She tells me it is according to the doctor's orders."

"Lord! That's a horse of another color. Why, I was . . ."

"And so was I," his father finished grimly. "What is still more to the point, she wishes to be relieved from her duties as soon as possible."

CENTRAL GERMANY VIOLENTLY BOMBED BY RAF

Nazis Fly in Loose Formation to Avoid Heavy A. A. London Defence

British Officials Leave Rumanian Oil Fields

Permanent Invalids In Hospital Hit By German Raiders

Dive-Bombers Machine-Gun Houses And Civilians in the Streets

London, Oct. 9—(CP)—Flying in loose formation to evade the city's growing anti-aircraft defence, as many as a dozen Nazi planes were counted over London at one time this afternoon in the continuing attack on the capital.

The planes looked like miniature white crosses against the blue sky, with the puffs of anti-aircraft fire dotting their trail. No sound of bomb could be heard above the firing of the ground guns.

After a particularly heavy burst of the "archies" one plane, flying lower than the others, turned off and made toward the coast—probably damaged.

The afternoon sun had cleared away the clouds that hid raiders in their first daylight follow-up to overnight assaults in which heavy bombs smashed an air raid shelter and three wings of a hospital housing 108 patients.

None in the hospital was believed to have escaped either death or injury. Eight persons were killed in the shelter and an undetermined number injured.

Plane Blown to Bits

Later in the afternoon a few bombs were dropped on London while over one section of the capital a German raider, caught in the full blast of anti-aircraft fire, was blown to pieces.

In raids that seemed aimed directly at the coast, two of three raiders striking at one southern town were shot down, while three German fighter planes dived on Dover harbor, in the southeast, and shot down a barrage balloon.

Why The Weather?

Double seasons! If one cared to have two summers in a year, one should live on or near the equator. Because there the sun passes overhead twice a year, once in going south in our fall, and again in coming north in our spring. In the temperate and frigid zones, the sun reaches its highest point only once a year. While oceanic islands near the equator have two periods of maximum temperatures and two of minimum during the year, they are not very marked, the differences being only 2 or 3 degrees. In the interior of continents, however, equatorial places experience an annual range of about 12 degrees, because there the equalizing effect of the ocean is not felt.

WAR HAS HIT MEXICAN MINING

European Markets for Zinc and Lead Are Cut Off

Mexico City, Oct. 9—(AP)—The war has hit the Mexican mining industry a severe blow by cutting off its European markets for zinc and lead.

For years the industry has been hanging on by virtue of the United States treasury's premium prices for gold and silver, but Mexican mining men regard these as only by-products in the production of the commoner metals.

A large part of Mexican lead formerly went to Scandinavian countries, France, Italy and Germany. Britain was a good buyer, too, but when war came she began taking supplies from the dominions at fixed prices.

More than half of Mexico's zinc concentrates formerly went to European smelters, chiefly in Belgium. The war has changed that.

Some mining experts estimate there are now in storage 100,000 tons of lead — about six months' production—and a like quantity of zinc concentrates or about four months' output.

This piling up of supplies and the dwindling demand has combined with labor problems, long a factor in profit and loss in Mexico, to put the industry in what mining men describe as serious straits.

Third Child is Dead From Gastroenteritis

Stratford, Ont., Oct. 9.—(CP)—The third child death from an intestinal inflammation known as gastroenteritis within a week occurred here last night.

The latest victim of this minor epidemic is Jacqueline Mary Connelly, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Timothy Connelly. She would have been two years old October 30.

On Monday Dr. H. B. Kenner, medical health officer, said two children had died within the previous four days from this intestinal inflammation.

JAPAN THREATENS TO CLOSE BURMA ROAD WITH BOMBS

Tokyo Press Adopts Truculent Attitude in Comment on Re-opening of "Backdoor' Route

READY FOR ACTION

U.S.-Japan Relations Are Said Likely to Grow Worse Japs Believe

Tokyo, Oct. 9. — (AP)— The Tokyo Press intimated today that Japan will close the Burma Roan with bombs if Great Britain reopens this "backdoor" route linking China with vital sources of war materials.

Claiming the recent acquisition of airplane bases in French Indo-China has give Japan a strategical advantage against China, newspapers said the Japanese now are ready for direct action.

(Britain will re-open the Burma Road October 17, Prime Minister Churchill announced in the House of Commons in London yesterday.)

The Japanese newspaper Nichi Nichi said that "further words are unnecessary" because Japan already has explained to Third Powers her determination to eleminate the supply routes of Gen. Chiang Kai-Shek.

Transports Horse Across Continent By Chartered Plane

New York, Oct. 9 (AP).—It cost $3,700 last night to win for film cowboy Gene Autry's steed, "Champion", the distinction of being the first horse to fly across the continent in an airplane. Autry flew the horse here from Los Angeles for a rodeo appearance. The bill for chartering the 14-passenger transport was $3,000 and $700 was paid to convert the plane into a horse stall for the trip.

'Close Liaison' Between Labor Ministry and Foreign Office-Bevin

Southport, England, Oct. 9—(CP)—Labor Minister Ernest Bevin told the Trades Union Congress today that any reconstruction of the world "must be through harnessing of the rising masses of labor to whom the future really belongs."

The minister said that now, for the first time, a "very close liaison" has been established between the Labor Ministry and the Foreign Office.

"The object of that," he said, "is to get the while diplomatic service to realize they move in a new environment and to recognize the limited court circular society of the chancelleries never will return."

Mr. Bevin said diplomatic training and the right of entry into the diplomatic service have to be broadened.

"If a boy from a secondary school can save us in a Spitfire," he declared, "the same brain can be turned to produce a new world."

As far as the reconstruction of Britain itself after the war is concerned, Bevin said, a cabinet committee already has been established to handle the problem.

'Enemy Has Failed to Break Down Our Fighter Defence in Major Effort'

London, Oct. 9 —(CP)— Capt. Harold Balfour, Under-Secretary for Air, told the House of Commons today that a completely raider-proof defence is not in sight, notwithstanding that the barrage protecting London grows increasingly effective.

"Large mass day attacks undoubtedly are the major threat to this country," Capt. Balfour said, "but the enemy has failed to break down our fighter defence in this major effort."

He declared no system could be effective to the point that no raider would be able to get through under cover of cloud or night.

"The answer to the critic who asks, 'Where are our fighters today?'" he said, "is that for every raider a critic sees our fighter defences have intercepted masses and thus soved the country's defences."

Nazi Naval Bases at Bremen, Wilhelmshaven 'Extensively Damaged'

London, Oct. 9 —(CP)— Tons of high explosives and hundreds of incendiary bombs were dropped last night on the vital German seaport of Bremen, the Air Ministry announced today.

Royal Air Force heavy bombers ranged over Bremen and the naval base at Wilhelmshaven, as well as inland German cities and towns and the already badly shattered English Channel invasion bases.

The attack on Bremen lasted more than half an hour, the Air Ministry said. Time and time again the R.A.F. unloaded showers of bombs. The air was filled with debris from explosions and fires broke out in the area.

Oil refineries at Gelsenkirchen, in the industrial Ruhr Valley, the Krupp munitions plant at Essen, a metal works at Hanau, a Kiel power station and the Fokker aircraft factory at Amsterdam were raided.

Flames Roar Skyward

One pilot who took part in the Bremen attack said he saw flames roaring skyward from a building which shortly exploded, tossing broken timbers and pieces of steel high in the air. Long after he and the others had started for home, he said, they could see new fires break out.

The Air Ministry said the raid on Wilhelmshaven was "equally punishing" in spite of intense anti-aircraft fire. More than 15 tons of bombs were dumped on the naval base.

One pilot reported to the Ministry that an unidentified plane showing dim navigation lights followed him as he was flying about 10,000 feet above the Frisian Islands off the Netherlands coast. Another plane joined his pursuer and both closed in on him. He dived to 8,000 feet, swiftly changed course and eluded them.

Freight yards at Mannheim and Grenberg and several German airdromes, as well as the Channel ports, were raided. All the planes returned safely.

WILLKIE LEAVES QUESTION OF WAR TO THE PEOPLE

Republican Nominee Says He Will Refuse to "Appease Dictators" if Elected

FLAYS PRESIDENT

En Route With Willkie Through Connecticut, Oct. 9 (AP)—A refusal to "appease the dictators" and a pledge to let the people say whether they want war were coupled by Wendell L. Willkie before he started his campaign tour of New England today.

In a series of talks in New York last night, the Republican presidential nominee called for a strong national defence but advised against "shouting insults at the dictators or anyone else."

"Does anyone in this audience think that the President is really trying to keep us out of war?" he asked in a Bronx high school auditorium.

"No," shouted many of his listeners.

"Are there any international understandings about American en-

CORRESPONDENT FAILS TO APPEAR FOR BROADCAST

Richard Boyer Who Was to Have Spoken on Experiences as Correspondent in Berlin Reporting for Work Today

New York, Oct. 9 (AP)—Richard Boyer notified his employers, the tabloid newspaper PM, that he would appear for work today, ending concern over his failure last night to appear as scheduled on a radio program and relate his experiences as the newspaper's Berlin correspondent.

An editor at PM said Boyer called to say he would appear for work late today to complete another in a series of stories on Germany, some of which have been criticized by the Nazi regime.

The editor said that Boyer did not explain his absence and that no questions were asked him concerning it.

Efforts to locate Boyer throughout the night were unavailing. Editors of PM first began searching for him several hours before he was scheduled to appear at 10 p.m.

Definite Distinction Is Made Between Civilian Internees and Prisoners of War in Canada

Ottawa, Oct. 9 —(CP)— A definite distinction is made between civilian internees and prisoners of war now housed in Canadian internment camps, internment officials said Tuesday.

They said the only cases where the distinction had been relaxed was "where it was to the advantage of the civilians."

The officials were commenting on a dispatch from London reporting that Glenvil Hall, Labor, said in the House of Commons yesterday that no distinction was made, and that Home Secretary Herbert Morrison replied he would see if he could draw attention to the matter by conversations and "see if it can be put right."

One internment official here said the prisoners of war and civilian internees receive "absolutely separate and distinct attention." For instance they were kept in different camps.

Distinction Between Types

In addition to separate camps for war prisoners and civilians, a distinction was even made between types of civilians. The "Nazi-type" of internee was kept in separate camps from the "refugee" type.

"Naturally, all have to be subject to disciplinary regulations," he said. "That may be one reason why the matter came up. In camps in England, some of the civilians were allowed considerable liberty under certain conditions. In Canada, we haven't found that to be practical."

The official mentioned "a few of the ways" in which the distinction had been disregarded, to the advantage of the civilian internee.

Not Entitled to Clothing

Civilians were not entitled to free clothing, but that was being provided. Civilians were supposed to pay their own postage if writing home, but "many of them hadn't the money" so they were allowed the same privilege of free postage as that accorded to prisoners of war.

"That might be another reason for the question in the House of Commons," the internment official said. "These letters from civilians were marked with the same stamp used for letters mailed by prisoners of war.

"Some of the civilians have objected to that, and they will probably be given the right to mail letters in plain envelopes, providing they pay their own postage charges."

He said civilian prisoners had also been extended the same exemption from customs duties on parcels they receive as that given to war prisoners. They were given opportunities for study and other privileges.

"These civilian internees are looked upon as enemy aliens who must be kept in custody," he added, "but they are being given every consideration consistent with safety."

The official said that the original intention was to send to Canada from the United Kingdom only prisoners of war and dangerous aliens. However, some "refugee-type" internees had also been sent.

PLAN DRAFTED AT BRENNERO READY SAYS ROME STORY

Mussolini Flies to Gorizia to Review 20,000 Young Fascists at Padua

MAY MAKE SPEECH

Observers Suggest Hitler-Mussolini Plan of Action Might Turn to Near East

Rome, Oct. 9 (AP)—The new plan of military action drafted by Hitler and Mussolini at Brenner Pass last Friday was believed today in some quarters ready for execution as Mussolini inspected troops of the 11th Army Corps encamped near Gorizia, within 25 miles of the Yugoslav frontier.

Mussolini flew to Gorizia and then proceeded by automobile to the encampment. Tomorrow he will review 20,000 young Fascist volunteers at Padua. The ceremony will be broadcast on an International network at 11:25 a.m. (5:25 a.m. EDT) and there have been indications that Mussolini might seize this occasion to make a speech indicating some of the decisions reached at last week's conference with Hitler.

A Bulgarian youth delegation arrived at Padua today, completing the foreign representation. German, Hungarian, Rumanian and Spanish delegations were already there.

Near East May Be Point

Some observers suggested that the Hitler-Mussolini plan of action might turn to the Near East — specifically an attempt to seize control of the Dardanelles, through which oil tankers pass from Black Sea ports.

Turkey and Greece are both friendly with Britain and it was suggested that the axis powers might find provocation in that quarter.

With the Dardanelles under axis domination, tankers from Rumania's fields could be sent into the Mediterranean with supplies for German and Italian planes. Beyond the Dardanelles lie Iraq, with its pipeline carrying oil to British ships at Haifa, and Syria.

The consenus of Rome's foreign colony was that Yugoslavia would be safe from invasion. This belief, however is based on the assumption that Yugoslavia will conform to the axis program and will remain a source of food supplies.

London, Oct. 9.— (CP)— The British government is in close touch with Turkey on matters of "mutual concern", including developments in Syria, Richard Butler, Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, told the House of Commons today.

He added the United States and Russia had not yet been consulted on the situation. It was presumed the Turkish talks were concerned mostly with German penetration of Rumania.

Good Looks Don't Make Soldier, He Needs Inner Qualities

By GLADYS ARNOLD
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Oct. 9 (CP)—So far as the National Defence Department is concerned Apollo, for all his great physical standards, was just another fellow. If he hadn't the inner qualities required for modern war he just wouldn't measure up to the Canadian army ideal of a perfect soldier.

"Of course training can go a long way towards making a good soldier but to be a leader you have to have certain qualities of character which do not change and cannot be added," said Maj.-Gen. H. D. G. Crerar, Chief of the General Staff, today.

"A man's profile and physique might make him a hero in the movies but the perfect soldier in a real army may as likely as not be as ugly as sin and medium sized."

Neatness, smartness of carriage and cleanliness count, according to the general. The shape of the nose doesn't. In 100 perfect soldiers there may be half a dozen Roman or aquiline noses but the other 94 snubs or pugs are just as perfect from the army point of view.

Neatness is an indication of self-discipline and a mental attitude. "If a man has no personal pride he is unlikely to have pride in his equipment," said Gen. Crerar. "Physical fitness, mental alertness and a sense of duty are vital qualifications—his own life and those of others depend upon it."

In this war the little man gets his chance. A good little man may have the edge on a good big man because mechanization has changed standards since the days when Apollo was figured on as the perfect specimen.

In the last 25 years the educational qualifications for the perfect soldier have gone up. "The need for individual initiative and intelligence and the same time great team spirit was never before so necessary," said Gen. Crerar. "Instead of taking orders, a man may often have to depend upon his own judgment."

Gen. Crerar cited the case of a young non-commissioned officer in a bombhole with a machine gun and perhaps two men to help him. "This man is fighting a little war of his own. He must know exactly where he fits into the scheme of things and what his part in the war is. He can't wait for orders. He probably won't be able to get them."

Departure Advised Following News Nazis Cross Border

Sir Reginald Hoare, British Minister, Also Likely to Leave Country

Bucharest, Oct. 9—(AP) — The last British officials who have been supervising Great Britain's extensive interests in Rumania's oil fields were reported leaving their posts today as the first contingent of German troops neared the petroleum producing area.

Departure of the Britons was said to be in pursuance to direct advice from Sir Reginald Hoare, the British Minister, following receipt of news that Nazi forces had crossed the frontier.

The entire British colony was expected to leave the country and foreign observers believed an open break in British-Rumanian relations was inevitable. The number of Britons resident in Rumania was not known.

Two German Planes That Machine-Gunned Streets Shot Down

A South Coast Town, England, Oct. 9 (CP).—Two out of three German planes which raided this town today were shot down after a series of low-flying attacks in which they machine-gunned the streets and killed at least three persons.

One plane, hit by anti-aircraft fire, fell in a park with bombs still aboar dand the explosion blew the plane to bits, killed its crew and damaged a chapel and several residences.

The other plane was seen to fall into the sea, Home Guards claiming credit for its destruction.

Townspeople said the planes turned their machine uns on buses and trains and chased persons along the streets. A seven-year-old girl, a woman and a man were reported killed.

Estate of $2,742,000 Left by D. Fairbanks

New York, Oct. 9 (AP).—The estate of the late Douglas Fairbanks, Sr., motion picture star, had a gross valuation of $2,742,060 and a net of $2,318,651, the Guaranty Trust Company, the actor's executor, disclosed today. Fairbanks died last Dec. 12, and left 1,000,000 to his widow, the former Lady Sylvia Ashley of England, and $600,000 to his son, Douglas Fairbank, Jr. Other bequests totalled approximately $500,000.

NO DERELICTION OF DUTY-CONANT

No Action Will be Taken in the Mrs. Louisa Roy Case Says Attorney General

Toronto, Oct. 9 (CP).—Attorney-General Gordon Conant reported today that he nds no dereliction of duty arose in the case of Mrs. L. Roy, of Field, Ont., who after being charged in court at North Bay with abandoning her four-months-old baby was declared to be a heroine and not a criminal by Judge Plouffe. No action will be taken in the case, Mr. Conant said.

With the exception of failure of the superintendent of the Nipissing Children's Aid Society to appear in court, Mr. Conant says, "I do not find that there was any dereliction of duty on the part of the officials."

Mr. Conant expressed regret that Mrs. Roy was kept in custody at all when a summons would probably have been sufficient to ensure her attendance in court.

"The question as to whether a summons or warrant is necessary is a matter for the discretion of the officials in all cases," Mr. Conant said. "I have no doubt that the discretion was honestly, although perhaps mistakenly, exercised in this case."

Expressing deference to the judge's view as to Mrs. Roy being a heroine, Mr. Conant explained that if any person involved in the matter could be described as such, he would be disposed to so characterize the daughter, Yvonne.

"Although only 14 years of age," said Mr. Conant, "she was entrusted with the care of seven children for about ten days and appears to have looked after them very well with the available facilities."

Interceptor Plane Disappears in Three Minutes From Take-off

Buffalo, N.Y., Oct. 9 (AP)—Aviation writers of a score of United States newspaper and trade publications watched today the first public "on wing" demonstration of the P-39 Airacobra Interceptor plane.

Robert Stanley, chief test pilot of the Bell Aircraft Corporation, climbed almost straight upward to disappear in less than three minutes from the take-off.

Company officials refused to disclose performance details, such as rate of climb, or top speed, other than to say the latter is "around 400 miles an hour."

The exact number of these low-swing all-metal monoplanes to be turned out for the United States and Great Britain never has been disclosed, but based on the Company's known backlog, of approximately $65,000,000 is believed to be approximately 1,600.

The Airacobra's present armament, a 37-millimetre cannon and four machine guns, concentrates the fire power in the nose. The British version, however, will have two additional .30-calibre machine guns in the wings. British deliveries are scheduled to begin Nov. 1.

AMMUNITION SALES ABOUT SAME AS 1939

Although cost of ammunition has risen slightly, the increase has not had a general effect on hunters, dealers stated this morning. The cost of American ammunition, naturally is much greater than that of Canadian manufacture, due to duties, etc. However, in the general consensus of hunters' opinions, the Canadian product is just as good. Sales are approximately at the same levels as those of a year ago.

PATRIOTIC CITIZEN CONTRIBUTES $500 TO RED CROSS CAMPAIGN

Among the patriotic gestures, many of which are unheralded and unsung, was that of a prominent Belleville resident who prefers to remain anonymous, who gave $500 to the current Red Cross campaign.

The gesture was a repetition of similar ones in which contributions of the same amount were made by the gentleman in question. The donations come at the rate of $50 monthly and the generous donor has yet to miss a payment.

27 DECOY DUCKS TAKEN FROM COTTAGE

With the apparent urge for a duck hunt, but only a shotgun in possession, a burglar entered the summer cottage belonging to Charles Hilton, Belleville groceryman, and stole 27 decoy ducks and a box of shells. No reports as to the result of his subsequent shoot were available, however. The theft of the decoys and shotgun shells took place over the week end and was reported to Provincial Police yesterday after Mr. Hilton found his cottage had been entered and the hunting equipment stolen. A window in the cottage had been completely removed, along with the window sill, Provincial Constable Burton discovered upon his investigation looking into the robbery. "And he didn't have the common decency to leave a feed of wild duck," lamented the owner of the hunting equipment today.

BOY IS RETURNED TO TRAINING SCHOOL

Observing a youthful lad wandering about the city streets and acting rather strangely some time after midnight last night prompted P. C. Thomson, of the City Police Department to apprehend the lad for questioning. At the police station the teen-aged lad stated he was from Ottawa and was endeavouring to hitch-hike to visit an aunt, who was supposed to reside on a farm north of Belleville. Police took little stock in the lad's story and later it was disclosed he had escaped from the Bowmanville Boys' Training School early yesterday. The school authorities were notified and the lad returned to that institution today.

BOATING SEASON DRAWING TO CLOSE

That the boating season in Bay of Quinte waters is drawing rapidly to a close for another year is suggested by the fact that many of the local pleasure-boat owners have already harbored their ketchs, yawls and motor-driven craft for the winter. From this time on only the more hardy of the water lovers will brave the chilly winds to take a spin on local waters. Navigation will continue until the freeze-up, however, with the last trip of the packet-freighter Glen Allen usually taking place around the middle of November.

SMALLER ACREAGE FALL WHEAT SOWN

Sowing of fall wheat and other autumn grains may be from twenty to twenty-five per cent. less than acreage of a year ago, representatives of the Department of Agriculture stated this morning.

Delay in seasonal work, lapped over into the fall sowing season and farmers did not get their fields prepared as early as in other years. This plus the fact that growers were faced with the price of 55 cents per bushel did not provide much stimulus. Besides, it was added, a number of farmers have come through with a surplus of grain from last year, and this may possibly be the reason for the reduced acreage.

DESTROY HORSE AFTER BEING HIT BY CAR

A horse valued at $130 had to be destroyed yesterday near Campbellford, after it was struck by an automobile driven by a member of a local militia regiment. The horse was one of a number which broke out of a pasture owned by Raymond Stillman. It galloped down the road to the highway directly in front of the automobile, and was hurled six feet. Damage to the extent of $75.00 was done to the car. One of the occupants was slightly injured by flying glass.

All unmarried French citizens over 18 years of age who have never been convicted of a crime are eligible to enlist for three years.

Compulsory Military Training For Canada's Young Defenders Opens at 39 Training Centres

29,750 of 21, 22 and 23 Years Will be in Camp by "Taps" Tonight

SPECIAL HUTS BUILT

(By The Canadian Press)

This is a banner day in the lives of 29,750 young Canadians, and just about as big for two Government departments.

Today marks the start of the first compulsory military training period under the National Resources Mobilization Act. Young men of 21, 22 and 23 years—almost all of them 21—are already established in the 39 training centres from coast to coast, or will be there by tonight.

The National War Services Department, responsible for calling up the men, giving them medical examinations and selecting the ones for the first 30-day camp, has just about finished its job. It will have to get busy picking men for the second game opening about Nov. 22, but its responsibility for the first group ends with arrival of the men at camp.

Then the National Defence Department takes over, for it is responsible for looking after the men at training centres, and seeing that when they leave next month they know at least the rudiments of good soldiering.

Officials in Ottawa say there seems to be eagerness, rather than reluctance, on the part of men called into the Non-Permanent Active Militia for compulsory training.

They add that more complaints have been received from Montreal, for instance, from men who were not called and want to go to camp than from men who were called and would rather stay home.

Movement Begins Tuesday

Yesterday the big movement of men to camp began, although a very few from outlying districts had to leave before that to reach camp by the Wednesday deadline.

By tonight, the big majority of the recruits will be established for their 30 days in camp, Officials are confident that 90 per cent or more of those selected will arrive before sundown, allowing for the possibility that some recruits may meet with accidents, take ill, or perhaps not receive their notices for one reason or another.

The formalities of signing on, getting their uniforms and becoming familiar with camp organization will keep most of the men occupied until tomorow—in some centres perhaps longer. Once these things are attended to, the actual training routine will begin.

Special Huts Built

Special buildings have been erected at most of the 39 camps to house the men.

Toronto and its suburbs—Military District No. 2—are sending 1,000 men to camp at Long Branch, 12 miles from the centre of the city, where a small town has been built along the Lake Shore Highway to accommodate them. Another camp is established 25 miles north of Toronto at Newmarket. The quota for Toronto area is 4,000 men. Other camps in Toronto district are situated at North Bay and Brantford.

About 3,000 men from Western Ontario will start training at Kitchener, Chatham and Woodstock. Truckloads of equipment and uniforms have been arriving daily as staff men put finishing touches on the centres.

In Eastern Ontario, big camps are ready at Cornwall and Brockville. Fifty men reported individually at the Cornwall centre yesterday, and last night more than 300 arrived by train from Ottawa and Hawkesbury areas.

Seven hundred and fifty trainees will be accommodated at Peterborough. They come from Hastings, Prince Edward, Durham, Northumberland, Victoria, Haliburton and Peterborough counties. The first to arrive was Eric Weldon of R. R. No. 4 Picton, who reached the camp yesterday after hitch-hiking all day Monday.

Red Cross Donations Well Over $6,000 Officials Announce

Confident that the Belleville Red Cross was well on its way toward realizing its objective of $8,000, officials reported this morning that over $6,000 or more than three quarters of the objective, had now been reached. A number of canvassers had not yet completed their lists however and it was estimated that when all returns were in, this figure would be considerably raised with a possibility of the objective being attained.

Campaign Chairman, Howard Clarke asks all canvassers not yet having completed their lists to make a special effort to do so with the least possible delay as it was desirous of winding up the campaign as quickly as possible. Red Cross officials are especially pleased with the reception which workers are receiving from the public, stated Mr. Clarke, who also said it was encouraging to note willingness and the zest which canvassers had put into their work.

Professors Disagree With Recent Edict

New York, Oct. 9 (AP)—Eighteen Columbia University professors yesterday formally disagreed with a recent edict by Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, Columbia's President, who advised Faculty members in conflict with the University's national defence aims in the present war to resign from their positions.

Their signed statement said:—

"We do not believe that an instructor's attitude on the present war or foreign policy of the United States should receive any consideration in determining his status as a member of the University."

In addressing a special meeting of faculty members, Dr. Butler stated that those "in conflict with the University's aims in the war between beasts and human beings" should resign.

Girl Guide Troop Raises $25 From Sale of Salvage

"Waste not, and the Red Cross Society will want not for fine contributions" may well be called a paraphrase of a well-known adage.

Such was the case on Saturday when the residence of Belleville responded generously to the appeal of the Girl Guides of the city for collections of materials that ordinarily find their way to the waste basket.

Troop No. 2 under the guidance of Miss Mary Roberts "covered" the city for the collections of such materials and their efforts were rewarded with the fine sum of $25.00 which has been turned over to the local branch of the Red Cross Society.

Officials of the Girl Guides expressed their grateful appreciation of the response of the public to their appeal, today

"We wish to thank them for their efforts in aiding us to help the Red Cross," an official said, adding that a similar collection will be made next month, the definite date of which will be announced later.

Residents are urged to "lay away" such materials as tin-foil, lead-foil, rags, newspapers, magazines, brass, copper, iron and other metals with the exception of tin cans, mattresses, old clothes and similar materials.

FRENCH SOMALILAND SHORT OF FOOD

Vichy, France, (AP)—Governor General Nouailhetes of French Somaliland claimed yesterday that the east African colony's food situation was critical as the result of British seizure of the freighter Esperance which was taking supplies to Jibuti. Nouailhetes claimed French Somaliland had enough food on hand when he left to last six weeks but that no new provisions had arrived.

Police Blotter

Two residents of the Tweed area found themselves afoul of the law in Belleville yesterday after Traffic Officer Doug. Ellis halted a motor car, which was being driven north on Station Street late yesterday afternoon. In the vehicle were Sanford Masters and William Andrews, both of Hungerford Township.

Today before H. B. Wilson, local Justice of the Peace, Masters was charged with drunk driving, while Andrews faced a common drunk count. No plea was taken and the men were remanded in custody pending trial on Friday.

A truck driven by Gordon Irwin, 106 Station St., was in collision with a motor car driven by Dr. M. Branscombe on Dufferin Ave., late yesterday afternoon. P. C. Wright investigated and ascertained, that Mr. Irwin had deposited a load of fill soil to a Dufferin Ave., residence and was leaving the driveway when the collision occurred. The matter was amicably settled without further incident.

With Traffic Officer Doug Ellis back patrolling city streets, several motorists were apprehended in violation of city traffic ordinances yesterday. Speedsters and violators of the Stop Street observances were the chief offenders and charges were preferred in every incident.

With the advent of colder evenings a marked increase in the number of transients seeking shelter at the police station was noted last night when nine shivering knights of the road were afforded warm sleeping quarters at the police station. This is the largest quota of transients seen at the police station since early last June, Night Sergeant Arthur Harman revealed as he went off duty early today.

LONG FOR ACTION

New York, Oct. 9 (CP).—"Our soldiers are longing for an invasion. They feel they can slaughter every one that comes over."

This was novelist W. Somerset Maugham's way of characterizing the spirit of the empire's men who stood ready to repel any attempted invasion of Britain. Mr. Maugham arrived yesterday aboard the Atlantic Clipper from Lisbon. He said he was "absolutely positive of victory".

MORE ARRESTS LIKELY

Amsterdam, Oct. (AP via Berlin). — Further arrests of prominent Netherlanders may continue as a reprisal against the internment of Germans in the Netherlands East Indies unless Monday's arrests of 100 persons bring about the release of the prisoners in the East Indies, it was officially announced last night. No women and children were arrested, the announcement claimed.

ONTARIO INTELLIGENCER

THE PRINCESS TO BROADCAST

Sunday will be a memorable occasion, when Her Royal Highness Princess Elizabeth will be heard for the first time over broadcast.

Her address is to children, millions upon millions of the young will listen in to hear Her Royal Highness.

So she will become the first royal child of her age in Britain to reach by radio the myriads of children throughout the Empire and the United States and children in other lands.

But not only children will listen, for the royal speaker while speaking primarily to children will be heard by adults of all ages, so great is the interest in this young girl who some day will occupy the throne of Britain.

Princess Elizabeth's grandfather, King George Fifth, was the first British Sovereign to use the broadcast and he used it to the noble purpose of drawing more closely to the Throne the Empire family of which he was the head.

A LAURIER AGAIN IN PUBLIC LIFE

The name of Laurier is again associated with public office. For many years Sir Wilfrid Laurier, outstanding Canadian, was a member of the Federal Government and was Prime Minister of Canada from 1896 to 1911. Now his nephew, Robert Laurier, Ottawa lawyer, has been sworn in as Minister of Mines in the Ontario Government, succeeding Hon. Paul Leduc.

While Mr. Laurier has never been in public office he has as lawyer been close to the political life of Canada. He has been associated in his profession with men prominent in the Dominion's life. The senior member of the firm of which he was a member, the Hon. Charles Murphy, was at one time a member of Sir Wilfrid Laurier's government and later became Postmaster General. Mr. Laurier practised law with Hartley George of Ottawa after graduation, Mr. George being later Liberal leader in Ontario. Mr. Leduc, his predecessor in the Mines post, was a member of the firm with which Mr. Laurier was subsequently associated. The new Minister of Mines attended the Imperial Conference in London in 1911 with Sir Wilfrid. Mrs. Laurier is a daughter of the late Premier Parent of Quebec.

29,750 MEN ENTER CAMP

29,750 young men have been called up. This Wednesday they have come to camp first of the many thousands of young Canadians who are to receive military training for defence. To these go the best wishes of the people of Canada as they begin their training. To very many of them this is a new field of interest which will prove most absorbing to the susceptible minds of youth and young manhood. Some may have had some training but the vast majority are doubtless new to the life of the army.

There are many advantages which will accrue to the youth in this training period. They have the inspiration of their exercises and manoeuvres, they realixe the sense of national effort in a war period, they have the medical supervision which will mean probably to many improvement in health as they will learn the advantage of periodic medical examination. They will have the sense of great responsibility as the Dominion reposes in them certain responsibilities which they will be only too pleasant to fulfil.

It is the first time that compulsory training has been made a part of life in Canada except for the latter part of 1917 and in the year 1918 when conscription was in force for the war.

MR. CHURCHILL'S GREAT SPEECH

Prime Minister Churchill spoke with encouragement to the British Commons on Tuesday. He declared that the casualties from bombing by Nazis were steadily diminishing, that Britain's Royal Air Force held the mastery of the air over the British Isles, that compulsory insurance is to be adopted against damage to property, and that British shelters have altered the aspect of the war for many lives have been saved and the deaths per ton of bombs is one thirteenth what it was in the last war.

He said, "We expected to sustain losses which might amount to 3,000 in a single night and 12,000 wounded and made hospital arrangements on this basis of a quarter of a million casualties. We have actually had since the war began up to last Saturday as a result of air bombing, 8,500 killed and 13,000 wounded."

Britain is resisting the attacks of nearly 400 long-range heavy bombers every 24 hours and Mr. Churchill doubts whether this rate of sustained attack can be greatly exceeded. No doubt a concentrated effort could be made for a few days at a time he said.

Present rate of destruction of London would mean it would take "ten years for London to be demolished and after that the progress of destruction would be much slower. Quite a lot of things are going to happen to Hitler and the Nazi regime even before ten years have gone and even Mussolini has some experiences ahead of him which he had not foreseen when he thought it safe and profitable to stab the stricken, prostrate French republic in the back."

"Neither by material damage nor by slaughter will the people of the British Empire be turned from their solemn inexorable purpose," the Prime Minister declared. In this speaks the British spirit.

He answered the question "what are reprisals?" with these words, "what we are doing now is to batter continually, with forces which steadily increase in power, each one of those points in Germany which will do Germany most harm, which will most speedily lessen her power to strike at us."

"Our armies" he said, "must maintain their training all the winter, like leopards crouching to spring at the invaders." He urged unceasing vigilance. The October weather is very uncertain and it is not often there are many lucid intervals of two or three days together in which river barges can cross the narrow seas and land upon our beaches. The enemy has certainly prepared enough barges and shipping to throw 500,000 men on to the salt water or into it," he declared and then referred to Britain's army. "The training of a great, well equipped army, not necessarily always to be confined to these islands must go forward in a hard and rigorous manner," possibly hinting at the offensive on the continent against the Germans.

Increased living allowances are to be given dependents of those in the fighting services.

He provided information as to plans for combatting fires and rescuing suffers, providing food and shelter in districts under attack and of the plans to provide food and hot drinks for those sleeping in shelters and for entertainment in the winter evenings. Health will be safeguarded under these novel and primordial conditions.

Value of Physical Therapy—Heat, Exercise, Massage

During and immediately after the last war when soldiers were returning with crippled hands and feet, stiff joints, weak and even paralyzed muscles, there was a great interest in physical therapy, that is treatment by means of heat, exercise and massage.

In some cities schools for the teaching of physical therapy were organized and graduates were given diplomas. After many soldiers were helped, the fact that physical therapy could help others similarly afflicted became known.

Apparently these measures are not becoming as widely used as they deserve, particularly by physicians who do not know or are not interested enough to learn of the great help they can be in chronic cases. An editorial in the Journal of the American Medical Association quotes Dr. Alan Gregg in an address before the thirty-sixth Annual Congress on Medical Education and Licensure (license to practise medicine), who said:

"Almost as those who keep their children ignorant of the facts of life, we appear to protect the American medical student from the knowledge of physical therapy. But the effects of heat on circulation of the blood, flow of lymph, and inflation, and the uses for and effects of massage, and light or passive exercise or movement of muscles and joints, and the use of the sun's rays, can certainly be learned and taught as physiology — the workings of the body process."

As a matter of fact, all that is necessary to become a skilled technician or operator in physical therapy is to know how to use or apply heat, massage, and exercise. One need not be a physician because most physical therapists work under the direction or prescription of the patient's physician.

If more physicians would investigate physical therapy and make more use of it, it would mean much to the happiness and comfort of cases of fractures in or near joints, and cases of arthritis, thus preventing the permanent stiffness that so often occurs in these cases.

Heat, exercise and massage, persistently applied, can work what appear to be miracles in some apparently hopeless cases. Heat, increased circulation, movement, is the foundation of physical therapy. Electricity and X-rays might be called the superstructure.

London in Wartime

In the last four gruelling nights and days much has been written of the magnificent spirit of the people of this country, but too much can never be said. The Elizabethans would have coined new words to describe them. If their descendants ever stopped to describe themselves, they might well and truly quote Henley's lines.

"In the fell clutch of circumstance
I have not winced nor cried aloud.
Under the bludgeonings of chance
My head is bloody but unbowed."

But it would need a Walter de la Mare or a Lord Dunsany to put into words the intangible beauty of the high courage and endurance displayed in every class. Truly in every class from the King and Queen going about unattended among their people, carrying comfort and sympathy to the East Enders who have lost their homes, from the indomitable men and women who go about the streets at night often under a hail of shrapnel, putting out the fires, extracting the buried, and carrying the homeless and aged to new shelter, and from the workers standing in long queues for the buses to take them to their distant homes where they may have to spend a sleepless night and turn up to work next morning with tired limbs, but unabated courage. One feels it is a high honor to be allowed to be here, even as a spectator, writes Elizabeth Montizambert in Montreal Gazette.

This morning I went to bed at 3 a.m. and woke at 10, to find that after four sleepless nights spent sitting up in a shelter my sexagenarian maid had arrived, simply because it was her job to get my breakfast and bring my ration of margarine, tea and sugar. Even the noise of another siren later in the morning did not send her home.

I opened my paper and read the description of the bombing near St. Paul's, ending with a simple uncommented statement "that the Dean and the Cathedral Ministers had spent the night in the cathedral." After sorting some clothes for the people bombed out of their homes, and scolding a little working dressmaker because she and her husband spent the night in the warmer basement instead of in the Anderson shelter the Government has set up for them in their garden, I went to lunch with Colonel and Mrs. George Vanier before their departure to Canada. Colonel Vanier, like everyone else, is deeply impressed with the way the British are standing up to the effects of German brutality. He told with glee of the amazement of two truculent German airmen when sirens sounded as they were being taken through city streets and they saw with their astonished eyes that there was none of the panic they had been led to expect. He confirmed, too, from personal knowledge the tale of the young German airman who asked naively where were the German troops he had been told were in this country to look after fallen airmen.

Going round to a near-by square bathed in the sunshine that has been such an unfailing help in these probing times, I called in at the Canadian Red Cross offices to find "business as usual" and Colonel Nasmith to explain to me the admirable system by which the comforts, socks, pull-overs, etc., sent from Canada for our men's use are distributed. Individual organizations wanting to share in the pleasure of the distribution sometimes grouse that they cannot get what they would like from the Red Cross. But it is obvious that such permission would lead to confusion, overlapping, and, since men are human, a good deal of waste. The Canadian Red Cross scheme ensures every man getting what he needs. He has only to ask his platoon officer for anything he wants. The request to put through to the O. C., who requisitions the Red Cross and the things are supplied at once without delay.

Up on the next floor, Mrs. Stickney, Lord Beaverbrook's sister, who directs the relief department, showed me tht lovely piles of carefully sorted clothing sent from Canada to meet the needs of various organizations dealing with war sufferers. Only yesterday thirty-three cartons of clothing and three hundred and eighty-seven quilts and blankets were dispatched to air-raid homeless ones. While I was looking at the charming pink woollies for babies, the siren sounded its prolonged wail and we had to troop down to the shelter, where knitting and sewing went on as stories of bombing and bravery were swapped.

Out into the sunlight at the all clear, that sounds almost as lugubrious as what the P. M. so aptly calls "the banshee's wail," I went round to collect as identity bracelet, only to find the shop had vanished. The evening placards told their indignant subjects that bombs had touched the London home of the King and Queen when they were out on one of their errands of mercy, spattering the George IV. Chinese panels in the Queen's dining room that Queen Mary had brought from the Brighton pavilion. I took one horrified look at the debris in a famous arcade and the havoc of an equally well-known shopping street, and turned homeward to be in time to hear Mr. Churchill on the wireless, but another siren put an end to that plan.

Among the by-products of Hitler's frequent hymns of hate is the variety of experiences they bring. My second shelter in one afternoon was the basement of a bootmaker's shop, where among rows of customers' lasts an elderly assistant provides cups of hot tea and slabs of plum cake, so solid that only a brave nation would dare eat it. After sharing this sustenance with two young things from a neighboring flower shop I strolled across St. James's Park, lovelier than ever in the waning light. I wished the Germans could see it by television. Unperturbed people were wandering past the banks of zinnias, a girl was feeding sparrows on the bridge, out of her hand. I asked her how long she had taken to tame them, and she said that this was the first time she had ever done it, but that the recent drought had made them hungry. In Victoria Street the damage done to the roadway was already nearly repaired. The chemist opposite it had merely boarded his shattered shop front with the sign "Business as usual". An equally nonchalant neighbor had added to his announcement, "Good Old England". I had hardly reached home when a beneficent friend telephoned to bid me spend the night in a less noisy part of London. As I write these lines the joke is on her, for a new set of A. A. guns is making the most infernal din, while a maid returning from her evening out reports "all quiet on the western front." It is now midnight and the hate is in full swing. It is deafening, and saddening, and not a little frightening, but at the same time exhilarating and life-enhancing. It's a grand spectacle, this nation at bay on behalf of the freedom of the world.

'BEST THING IN LIFE IS NOT JUST TO KEEP ONESELF SAFE'

A Regina citizen recently wrote a letter in England offering to look after his boys for the period of the war. His friend declines in the following impressive letter.

I don't know what you will say to this letter and I hope you won't be too sorry, but we are gradually coming to the decision that we are not going to send the boys, even if the Government scheme comes on again.

The reasons for this are only now coming clear in our minds. At first in those black days when France broke, it seemed so entirely right to send them away. Everything pointed to a quick war, and to its being over quickly and also its being bad while it lasted. But these long weeks have made a very big difference in the outlook, and I'm going to try to put down what we are thinking, so that you will understand what I mean.

To begin with, it all looks as if this is going to be a very long war. Something may happen otherwise, but nothing looks like it, and if the boys once leave England, there can be no coming back till it is over. Even if it is four years, like the last war, James will be nearly 16. I think at first I was too much swayed by the thought of how jolly it would be for them—all the adventure and independence — but now another thought has quite ousted that one.

For after all, it must be good for boys to understand and (possibly help) their country through a hard time. This generation has got to understand the huge need for changing the world a bit. We've got to co-operate and be friendly and understand other people; and if through all their impressionable years we send them away from Europe, how can they come back and understand and help? England will be a hard place after the war, and it won't be any preparation for its hardness to come to it fresh. We feel they had better get used to it, to realize gradually as they grow up what it is we are planning and hoping to avoid in the future.

More and more have I realized it does boys good to be here. There is no sort of Empire fellowship that could be shown better, or taught to them better, than by seeing these men from every corner of the world pouring in to England to help. We need them all the time, Canadians and New Zealanders and Australians, air force and army. Whenever I meet them I'm filled with a feeling it's hard to describe. Not pride, or gratitude quite, but a kind of simple glad friendliness. They take it so for granted that they should be here; and they make us realise, each time we meet them, that the spirit of rightness and goodness is so alive in the world.

We feel it is so good for the boys to grow up with this example right near to them. We want them to take it for granted later on, and also to grow up to feel that the best thing in life is not just to keep oneself safe.

I sometimes think we put too much important a value on just living. It matters so awfully much what we live for.

I believe days like we are living through now show up these values at the back of ourselves. We are perhaps realizing them consciously for the first time—but having realized them, we can't help seeing them in the boys' lives, too.

I don't mean all this to sound solemn or pious. We are not solemn one bit. We are just bubbling over with laughter and fun and interest in everything. We swim in the river, out in our water meadows every morning, and to-day we have been out to a farm where they were cutting wheat and we had tea in the field and waited for the rabbits at the end! The days are lovely — perfect, peaceful English days. It's five or six weeks since we even had an air raid warning. There are occasional enemy 'planes being chased, so high we can barely see them.

Today, going out to the farm, we passed an airdrome with countless 'planes waiting at the "ready". I was amazed. I've never before seen more than three or four on the ground there. Everything is ready everywhere, and there is no apprehension or dread in any single person I've ever met. People are (I was just going to write "light-hearted", but that is not quite true). "Serene" is the sort of word that describes it much better.—Regina Leader Post.

'Twas a Great Joke On Sir John!

Reader's Digest invited Miss Rebecca West, one of Britain's most distinguished writers, to report on "air-raid reactions which had come within her immediate observation." This is her cabled reply:

My Cook: "Yes, ma'am, I heard the sirens all right, but I'm making the greengage jam. I can't leave it to burn, and if I take it off now and heat it up again afterwards it loses the full flavor. So please may I have 20 minutes more?"

The Housemaid: "Do you think people will think it vulgar of me, Madam, if I mend the master's underclothing in the shelter? If we are down there today as long as we were yesterday I could get on with his undervests."

The Gardener: "So my wife she sat up in bed and said, 'Charlie, that was a bomb Whatever do we do?' So I said, 'We turns right over, my dear, and we goes to sleep'."

The Gardeners Boy: "We been laughing ever since they bombed the hall, for Sir John he has the most terrible strict system about having the whole household roused as soon as there's a raid warning. Something slipped up and they didn't get no warning at all and the first thing they knew was a German plane dropping a bomb in the gardens and when they got out there they found the air-raid shelter blown to bits. So Sir John don't now rightly what to do, for the chap that didn't give the warning saved all their lives. And seeing what a proper martinet he is we can't stop laughing."

The fishmonger's boy (about 16, with a leer): "I'm just going on delivering goods. Then I'll see all the fun that's going on and if I'm killed they'll write in the papers about my beeyootiful devotion to duty."

The charwoman (with irritation): "All Hitler has done so far as I am concerned is to keep me awake—and I have known a lot of tomcats able to do that just as well."

My husband, inspecting a factory when the alarms sounded, hurried out to see that the car driver, a withered old creature, got inside the shelter. "Please don't make me go in, sir," the old man pleaded. "If I could see one of our boys bringing down one of them it would make me young again, and be far better than living another hundred years."

The woman next me in a shop was about to pay for the dress she had just bought, when the sirens sounded. She put back the money, saying, with a smile: "Guess I'll pay for that gown when you deliver it, just in case I'm killed or you're killed or anything happens to the gown."

A friend of mine, walking along the street one morning, passed a house that had had its front blown off. A young man and woman were standing inside, laughing. When they saw my friend looking at them they explained: "We had inherited a lot of ugly furniture and it's all gone. So now we can start fresh. Come in and have a whisky and soda — they didn't smash the store cupboard. Isn't it wonderful to be alive?"

A placid-faced Welsh woman I met in the train told me that in her town they had had as many as four raids in one day. "It's foolish of Hitler to send his airplanes over so often", she said. "You get used to anything if you have too much of it. My father was a great preacher, and was always threatening us children with hellfire. In the end hell was no more to us than Cardiff. And now I'm getting used to Hitler the way I got used to hell."

A country innkeeper, with whom we stayed, best expressed the general feeling. When the bombing got very close, he went to the doorway; and, looking up, said: "Blaze away if you like. But if you knock down the old Dog and Duck don't think that Winston Churchill is going to bust into tears and call off the war!"

Warren, presiding over the October session of Renfrew County Council, announced Tuesday the council would table until after the war an appeal to the Privy Council for re-opening of the Canadian National Railways line between Arnprior and Eganville. Service on the line was discontinued last Spring by decision of the Board of Transport Commissioners.

FUTURE OFFICERS 'PUT THRU MILL' IN THEIR COURSE

Undergo Same Discipline, Drill and Fatigues That Befalls Lowest Gunner

10-DAYS TRAINING

(By E. L. Williams)

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Halifax, Oct. 9.— (CP)— They may be future officers but for the time being members of the Nova Scotia Technical College Canadian Officers Training Corps undergo the same discipline, drill and fatigues that befall the lowest gunner in the Royal Canadian Artillery. They are "put through the mill" and like it.

At the Corps' 10-day training camp attended by "A" and "C" Batteries—"B" Battery's camp was scheduled for another date—they slept in tents, separated from the ground by a wooden flooring, a groundsheet and a palliasse filled with hay. They did physical training and foot drill, mounted guard and did kitchen fatigues as would the lowest ranks in the non-permanent active militia. Unless they held non-commissioned officers' status in unit they had to be back in camp by 10 each night, about 90 minutes after the day's last lecture.

The Tech C.O.T.C. was the first in Canada, perhaps in the empire, to turn to artillery training. Formed just after the first Great War to train infantry officers, it eventually became an engineers' unit and six years ago an artillery training corps. At the start of the Second Great War coast defence and anti-aircraft training was substituted for field artillery.

"A" Battery is composed of undergraduate students at Tech, "B" Battery of undergraduates at St. Mary's College and "C" Battery of graduates of Canadian universities. Many of these—lawyers, engineers, businessmen and others—stand fairly high in their professions. Two are clergymen, one a Church of England canon, the other a Baptist minister.

Seek Artillery Knowledge

"C" Battery has been under instruction since early May. Three nights a week, at least three hours a night, its members undergo physical training, foot and gun drill and hear lectures on military subjects. Some already hold commissions in infantry units and are seeking artillery knowledge.

The camp this year wasn't, as usually is the case, at any fort or military training centre but almost in the heart of downtown Halifax, lack of good accommodation elsewhere prompted the selection of the college athletic field. It was not entirely an experiment because the field previously had been used as a camp site.

A highway material testing laboratory became the cookhouse. Another laboratory was turned into the officers' mess, a classroom into the Sergeants' mess and the gunners ate in what ordinarily is a drafting room.

Every Minute a Busy One

But the mid-city site didn't dissipate the military atmosphere that goes with a training camp. From reveille, usually at 6 a.m. to lights out at 10.15, every minute was a busy one. Discipline was strict but not harsh.

Thirty minutes of physical drill followed reveille--most of it done with the stars and moon still shining. Then came a few minutes to wash and shave, breakfast, and a short space to make up beds and tidy tents. Each tent was inspected strictly daily.

Most of the morning was devoted to foot drill with each men taking his turn drilling a squad under the supervision of permanent instructors. After lunch they piled into trucks to be taken either to a fort for training and drill in coast defence guns or to an airport for instruction in anti-aircraft artillery which lasted all afternoon.

After supper came lectures on mapping, military law and other subjects. At the end of the lecture, usually about 8.15, came the day's first leave.

Ottawa Senators Open Ice Season

Ottawa, Oct. 9 —(CP)— Ottawa Senators opened their pre-season ice practices here last night in preparation for the 1940-41 Quebec Senior Hockey League campaign—but late Tuesday they had no coach.

Club officials debated the qualifications of two candidates for the job while the team's 18 players limbered up their skating legs at Ottawa auditorium.

The men being considered by the executive are Allie Garland and Gene Chouinard, both prominent in hockey circles here as coaches of junior teams. A decision is expected today.

Four new players made their appearance at the practice. Eddie Powers of Toronto returned after a season with Baltimore in the eastern United States amateur hockey league, while Tony and Albert Lemay with St. Hyacinthe in the Quebec Provincial league last year and Doug Cheyne of Winnipeg also worked out.

The Italian government will establish a city near Rome to be devoted to the production of primary and subsidiary materials for the manufacture of chemicals and homes for the workers.

RELIEF COSTS IN PICTON SHOW STEADY DECLINE

Only Twenty-Seven Persons in Town of Picton Now Receiving Relief

COUNCIL MEETS

Picton, Oct. 9 — Relief costs in Picton show a steady decline, town council learned at its October meeting. There were 27 persons receiving relief last month compared with 77 a year ago. The cost last month was $243. against $486.. in September 1939.

The necessary deputy returning officers and poll clerks were appointed for the election in December, with nominations on November 22.

Deputy Reeve Ralph Warren presented a report of the finance committee of which he is chairman.

Due to the fact that the appropriation for street expenditures has already been exceeded, the streets committee was instructed to discontinue further improvements for this year, with the exception of any necessary work that must be done. Council agreed that a great deal of very necessary work had been done on the streets this year something that previous councils had failed to do. A great deal of oiling had been done, and a start made on a program of permanent streets which will eventually, if carried to completion, save the town a great deal of money on maintenance costs. It has been impossible to complete the program of sidewalk repairs that had been originally planned, but members of council felt sure that the ratepayers would understand the situation in which council is placed, being unable to spend more money without exceeding the amount of money available for this purpose.

A cheerful indication of the finance report was the increase in taxes collected to date compared with a year ago. Current taxes paid to date totalled $51,237.16 compared to $47,186.20 last Sept. 30th. Arrears of taxes have also been kept at a low level.

Grant to War Victims

As the result of a generous gesture on the part of Picton town council, the sum of $30 will be sent by the town treasurer to the Toronto Evening Telegram's War Victims' Fund, which is being used for the relief of persons in the Old Country who have suffered from bombing.

Deputy reeve Ralph Warren made the suggestion that the town treasurer retain the council fees for Monday night's session which amounted to $29. The clerk offered to make the sum an even $30 by donating $1 towards the fund.

The motion read: Warren-McGibbon—that the town treasurer be instructed to retain the council fees for this meeting and forward the same to the Evening Telegram's War Victims' Fund with the compliments and best wishes of this council. The motion carried unanimously.

Council appointed a deputation consisting of the Mayor, deputy-reeve Ralph Warren and the engineer to act with a deputation from Hallowell Township council to approach the Dominion government on the matter of an improved road to the new bombing and gunnery school at Picton. Council felt that this was a matter which should be gone ahead with without delay. The old road up the side of the hill is carrying a very heavy amount of traffic to and from the new airport at the present time, and is very badly in need of repair. A permanent road would be an excellent investment council agreed.

Continue Garbage Collection

Council approved a suggestion that garbage collection should be continued for the rest of 1940. Several members of council reported the many favorable comments received from local citizens on the work done in collection of garbage and the cost was reported as only $4 weekly.

Alice Street Scene Of Stark Desolation, Plaque Escapes Bombs

(By J. F. Sanderson, Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, Oct. 9—(CP)—Down in no man's land of East London is a small street called Alice Street. It is a scene of stark desolation, of demolished houses, crumbling walls, twisted beams battered and beaten by German bombers.

The front wall of one house, in the centre of a row of 20, remains standing almost like a weather-beaten sentinel among the ruins. On it is a small shrine, a memorial to "The Men of Alice Street Who Fell in the Great War."

It is a simple, home-made memorial, a wooden plaque bearing the roughly carved names of nine men of Alice Street who lost their lives 25 years ago in a vain effort to make Alice Street safe for their children.

Above the plaque is a glass-enclosed receptacle for flowers and under it is the motto "Give Us Peace in Our Time, Oh Lord."

In Alice Street itself and for some distance in all directions every pane of glass has been shattered except the glass in the shrine. It escaped the fury of the Nazi bombs. It was not even cracked.

Alice Street may be a shambles but its rough, crude shrine to nine brave men still stands, a pathetic motto of a hope now vanished like the houses that lined the streets.

Alice Street will be rebuilt some day when the east end of London ceases to be no man's land.

Churchill Praised For Talking to People With Frankness, Candor

New York, Oct. 9.—(CP)—"He has refused to treat his people like children. And they are responding gloriously, with all they have and all they are".

Thus the New York Times commended editorially today Prime Minister Churchill's speech in parliament yesterday. It said Mr. Churchill "knew he could talk to his country with perfect frankness and candor; there could be no greater compliment to brave people at such a time".

The Times added:

"The British people have had quite enough of the 'soothing' leadership of former years, which led them to believe that they had air parity with Germany and that there was 'no cause for panic or alarm.' . . . It is one of Mr. Churchill's supreme gifts to democracy that he has put furtiveness and concealment aside in dealing with his countrymen".

The New York Herald Tribune said:—

" . . . The inspiring courage, resolution and will to ultimate victory which the Prime Minister puts into every sentence should not blind Americans to the fact that Britain needs every aid she can get. The survival of the whole world as we have known it now hangs on British endurance; great as that quality may be, we cannot always assume that it will work miracles on our behalf".

U.S. WATCHES FAR EAST, KEEPS EYE ON AIR STRUGGLE

Roosevelt Consults With His Two Top Naval Advisers

Several Thousand Men to be Sent to Hawaii to Reinforce Warships' Personnel

Washington, Oct. 9 (AP)—The United States watched the Far East attentively today, and at the same time kept an alert eye on the progress of the air war over Europe as a critical factor in the present world struggle for power.

The State Department, it was understood, was reckoning with the possibility that an emergency affecting the United States might occur in the Orient. Not wholly in the background, however, some officials said, was the question of additional aid to Great Britain.

The reactions of Japan to events of the last 24 hours were variously interpreted, particularly since the events included Britain's announcement that the Burma Road to China would be re-opened for supplies, the ban on the further flow of subsidized American wheat to Far Eastern ports, and the precautionary steps to get American nationals out of potential trouble zones in the Orient.

Some officials here interpreted the tenor of Japanese reactions to indicate the possibility that any major Far Eastern thrust under the aegis of the Berlin-Rome-Tokyo alliance might be held in abeyance, at least for the present.

They based their interpretations on the fact that Japanese newspapers minimized the importance of the Burma Road reopening, intimating that it could be bombed from recently-obtained Japanese airdromes in French Indo-China.

The attention the Government is giving to the uncertain state of affairs in the Orient was underlined yesterday by an extended conference here between President Roosevelt and his two top naval advisors, Admiral William D. Leahy, former Chief of Naval Operations, and Admiral J. O. Richardson, Commander-in-Chief of the Fleet in the Pacific.

Richardson said afterwards that "the readiness of the fleet" for any emergency had been discussed. He disclosed that he would take back several thousand men with him to the present fleet base at Hawaii to reinforce the personnel of warships there.

Canada to Continue Evacuation Plan Of British Children

Ottawa, Oct. 9.—(CP)—The executive of Canada's National Advisory Committee for children from overseas decided at a meeting Tuesday to continue its work despite suspension of the United Kingdom Government's plan for evacuating children to Canada.

With a large number of children already in Canada and requiring care and supervision the executive declared there was a continued need for the type of work it is doing.

A statement, released at conclusion of the meeting, said it had been brought out that there has been no suggestion of abandoning the evacuation plan altogether. It was presumed movement of children to Canada from Great Britain will be resumed when conditions for travel are considered reasonably safe

"In the meantime", said the statement, "the children already placed in Canada must be taken care of and the necessary expense of doing so must be met.

"While those persons to whom the children go meet the ordinary expenses involved, the Committee must be in a position to take care of what might be termed emergency expenses such as hospital fees, school-books, dental and medical care and similar obligations".

Thus far no general appeal for funds has been made by the committee and yesterday's meeting discussed the need for assistance.

Of 7,000 children brought to Canada, only 1,500 came under the government sponsored scheme. The others came under private auspices.

Tuesday's meeting was presided over by Dr. R. C. Wallace, principal of Queen's University, Kingston, committee chairman. Another meeting will be held next week.

Tuesday, Aug. 20, 1940

Dear Moms:

Well here I am on guard duty at an anti-aircraft post, hoping to get sight of a fritzie airplane, so I'll be able to use this machine gun here in front of me. We have Nazi planes over here bombing around us nearly everyday lately. and it almost isn't safe to venture out without a steel helmet.

I received 3 letters today, from Mrs. Cole and Jean and Joan Britton, the first I've received here in England, except for the one from you that I had forwarded to me from Camp Valcartier the first week I was here in England. Cameron and I were together almost always, but now I have moved away with my regiment again and so I am now again separated from him. I don't know where he is but I'll soon find out.

Mother Cole said you had a letter from a lady who had seen me on the way to Halifax before we left Canada.

Say, you might send your son a box of goodies occasionally, for instance, chocolate bars, candy, cakes some canned Canadian beans, bully beef, canned spaghetti and etc. if you don't mind.

My leave comes soon and I'll write you from Scotland.

I've met a swell Scottie lassie over here and she was "just dying to meet a Canadian" as she put it.

Tell Elwyn I'll send him some stamps as soon as I get a chance to buy them.

How does Dad take it about me being over here in England?

We are camped out under trees with camouflaged tents on some farm out in the sticks.

Give Darrell and Elwyn my love and have them drop me a line when you write.

I'll close now, still, your loving soldier son,

Doug.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Tea-Hostess

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

What would my duties be as hostess at a tea to be given for mothers of children at school? At gatherings of this sort every one seems to hesitate to come to be served. What is a good way to get guests started toward the tea table?

Should guests serve themselves or should some one take the plates and tea to them? Hostess.

You would solve your problem most graciously and conveniently if you (or you and one of the teachers) choose two of the mothers to act as co-hostesses. It is always best to have two hostesses presiding over the tea table. One takes her place behind the tea service and one would be opposite her, at whatever type of service (coffee, for example) is placed opposite the tea service.

When the time comes for the serving of tea, you may go up to a guest and say, "Won't you come to have a cup of tea?" Take the guest up to the hostess who is serving tea and she will do the rest. She asks, "How do you like your tea? Shall I make it strong or weak?" Then when she has poured it according to the guest's preference, she asks, "Sugar? And lemon or cream?"

After the deputy-hostess has prepared the tea, the guest takes the cup, a tea plate and napkin, and serves herself to whatever food she wishes. Sometimes, if no beverage but tea is served, the second co-hostess may help with the passing of the sandwiches and, later, of the small cakes.

Tea guests should really take the initiative in serving themselves, after they have been served the tea. If, as you say, there is a hesitation on the part of the guests, then the food should be passed to them.

Birth Announcement

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. Does receiving an announcement of a child's birth mean sending a present? I am to have a baby soon, and since most of my relatives and friends live very far away from where I am now living. I want to send the mannouncement cards. Some of these are not especially intimate friends, but we used to work together, and I would like to have them know of the birth of my baby.

However, I hesitate to send these announcement cards, fearing that they may think that an announcement means that they have to send a gift. Is there anything I can do about this?

2. If the girl is married, should the birth announcement be addressed to Mr. and Mrs.? Dorothy.

1. You do not need to worry at all about the fact that these birth announcements may suggest to your friends that they should send gifts. Just regard them in your mind as what they are — announcement cards. They do not call for a present. Your friends will, of course, be happy that you took this way of telling them the good news.

Some of your relatives and perhaps some of your close friends may send you gifts for your baby. Many of them—I hope all of them — will write you. The thing for you to do is to tell them the good news in this convenient way, and let them use their own choice as to what they wish to do.

2. Yes, these formal birth announcements should be addressed to Mr. and Mrs., as in any other formal announcement.

Kneading Away Fat

Give the muscles of the arms, back and chest plenty of work to do.

By HELEN FOLLETT

Rolls of fat on the shoulders are a heavy burden to any woman who would step along with the beauty parade. Adipose tissue has a maddening way of settling in spots; 'tisn't half as bothersome if it spreads itself over the entire body surface. Localized fat ruins good proportions.

If you are among the afflicted, lie on your tummy, get some member of the family to massage the rolls. The flesh should be picked up with the fingers, kneaded and pummeled. Hard pressure with a rolling pin will give the same results as rolling machines used in reducing salons. Afterwards a salt glow. Ordinary table salt is moistened, frictioned in the flesh, removed with clear water.

Work Muscles

At gyms women and girls with plump shoulders and backs are made to chin the bar. Drawing up the body gives the muscles of the arms, back and chest plenty of work to do. They snake off the fatty upholstery.

Any woman afflicted with localized fat should eat those foods that are low in sugar, fats and starches, because localized fat shows an inclination to gain weight and why take a chance of growing a pudding-bag shape? Time does not help. Time gets right in the game and makes things worse for the poor duckie.

In the winter time one can account for a red nose. It is insulted and irritated by cold winds. But when the nez takes on a flush in the summer season it should be taken in hand immediately.

Digestive disturbances are sometimes responsible, although the commonest cause is some skin infection. Home treatment will not avail.

IF SPAGHETTI TASTES FLAT
Add a few drops of a concentrated relish

WHETHER you buy spaghetti in the can or cook it yourself, you will improve the flavour wonderfully if you add a little H. P. Sauce. A good way is to stir in H. P. while heating up or cooking the spaghetti: And some people like the H. P. flavour so well that they will add a little more when the spaghetti is served on their plates. One good point about H. P. is that you use it sparingly. A little of this thick, fruity sauce imparts a lot of flavour and it's a flavour that is appetizingly delicious. Don't forget H. P. Sauce next time you have spaghetti or macaroni. Use it also for flavouring soups, stews, meats, fish, fowl, sandwiches and salads.

Teach Students Independence

By Garry Cleveland Myers, Ph.D.

Not all who go to college are grown up. Some are infants still. Some are not far from the crib, over-dependent on their parents, emotionally unweaned. Some of these unweaned college students will have a hard time of it. A few will suffer so from homesickness that they will return to Pop and Mom. The reason given may be "ill health." And this will be the true reason—mental ill health. An adult can't have good mental health and still be a baby.

Of the thousands of youths who for the first time enter college this fall, there will be a wide variety in terms of self-reliance at one extreme and emotional dependence on the other. If one were to rate them on a scale, one would find them ranging from one extreme to the other with the bulk between, of course.

How would you rate your son or daughter on this scale? In case you are the youth, how would you rate yourself?

A Quiz

Here are some questions which might aid in such a rating: Who first decided that you should go to college? Who chose the college? Who collected and studied the information about this college first? Who first wrote the college?

Who planned, prepared and purchased your clothes and equipment for college? In this respect did your parents do for you anything you could have done for yourself? Who packed the trunk and got it off to the station? Who ascertained the bus or train schedule? Who bought the ticket? Who checked on the oil, gas, tires?

When you arrived at college, did you wire, telephone, write home for things you forgot and left behind? Who looked after paying your entrance and tuition fees? Board? Have you a budget? Have you a bank account in your own name? Or must you write home for money every time you feel the need of it? When you do write for money is the purpose you state always the true purpose?

When you write home do you present your experiences in true light or play for pity and sympathy? Suppose someone were to read your letters home or the letters of your parents to you, would they, if they did not know the facts, suppose these were letters from one adult to another?

My fellow parent of the young child: Please begin now to educate him to be ready for college or elsewhere away from home as a grown-up self-reliant person, with good habits of responsibility, ready to look after himself and make good.

Fashion Flashes

NEW BEAUTY lurks in frocks created for autumn galas. A full-skirted frock of ethereal white tulle is trimmed all over with clusters of ermine tails.

NEVER NICER than this season are those softly-done wool suits that become the backbone of a wardrobe. A beauty is in Chinese red with buttons of simulated ruby cabochons. High-notched revers and scalloped cuffs of leopard.

GOING PLACES these days is the street-length black frock set off with glitter. Black crepe makes the slim bodice and gored skirt of a nice little frock which has a yoke of flesh pink chiffon trimmed with bands of jet beads.

ACROSS THE CAMPUS you'll note sweaters of all types. A grand college sweater is of white wool worn with a gray skirt and a cardigan of wide knitted bands of red, white and blue.

ALWAYS GOOD is black with a touch of white. A new smart accessory set of bag and glove is in black kidskin with triple rows of fine white stitching.

TO BE CHERISHED and worn for years is a new handsome coat of natural colored llama hair cloth, made on loose, full-swinging lines and trimmed with wide collar and broad tuxedo bands of natural lynx.

The Stars Say

For Wednesday, October 9

An eventful day with much stirring of a thrilling and most dynamic character is read from the predominant astral influences. Matters of a most exciting and unpredictable nature are likely to arise like a bolt from the blue and end, in their final adjustments, probably in the far-distant future. This radical force may call for a complete spading-up or abrupt about face in plans, objectives, surroundings and associations, but all happy and breathtaking.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year of whirlwind adventures, precipitated without inkling from sources both breathtaking, surprising and mysterious. The element of the curious, subtle, obscure and intriguing dominates all departments of life, with radical and far reaching effect on the future and its fortunes. Complete change in plans and purpose may be looked for.

A child born on this day may be the possessor of many forces, talents and capacities of high-powered intensity. It will be energetic, inventive, original, bold and adventurous. Probably with such audacity, independence and courage as to precipitate it into the limelight. It will have keen intuitions and far vision of a subtle or mysterious quality.

DR. DAFOE'S COLUMN on the Quintuplets and the Care of Your Children

Stature

Most persons probably do not realize what a great factor diet is in the stature of children. My practise has shown me some impressive evidence on this point. I recall one case in particular. There were two boys of nearly the same age in a family. They were nearly the same size for a number of year. Then one of them developed a great deal of "finickiness" about food. He wouldn't touch milk, and wouldn't eat a varied diet. The other was a good eater, and he drank a lot of milk. The younger one, the milk drinker, began to outgrow his brother. Today he is four inches taller, and I'm convinced diet is responsible for at least three inches of this difference.

Something I read the other day about two tribes in Central Africa reminded me of these two boys. The Masai tribe include in their diet, raw blood from their cattle, as well as quantities of meat and milk. Their neighbors, the Kikuyu tribe, live chiefly on maize, bananas, and other plants. They have no meat to eat, no blood to drink.

Well, the blood drinkers are said to be on an average, full five inches taller than the vegetarians. Now, I'm not advising anyone to start drinking blood in order to grow tall. Neither am I saying that vegetarians won't grow as tall as meat eaters. The diet of the Kikups tribe could be altered to include all the height improving elements, without the blood. This comparison between the tribes is just more evidence of the effect of diet on stature. The point is, if you want your child to attain his best possible stature, you must see that his diet is ample, and that it contains a balanced mixture of all the needed elements.

For growth, calcium is one of the most important food elements. If your child doesnt get, or can't assimilate enough calcium, he won't grow as he should, he won't be as healthy as he should. Best way to insure that he gets his calcium is to see that he drinks plenty of milk. For milk is about the only food that contains really generous quantities of calcium. In an ordinary diet, we depend for two thirds of our calcium on milk. For a nine year old child to get two-thirds of the calcium he needs, he must drink a pint of milk every day. Personally, I think each child should have a quart of milk, pasteurized milk, every day.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Marriage Offers Best Chance of Achieving Satisfactory Lifetime Relationship

Perhaps some of you may remember a play a few seasons back, called "The Circle." The theme was that an irregular relationship between a man and a woman is far more exacting than actual marriage.

Fear of losing a man held by a love tie makes a woman more demanding, more jealous and watchful than a wife would be. On the other hand, a man is bored that the world takes it for granted that he wears the insignia of a certain woman. We're not talking about casual romances which neither party takes too seriously, but the compact which the pair believes to be binding as marriage itself.

In "The Circle", if you happened to remember it, the man was about to assume high office in England when at the last minute he eloped with a married woman, with whom he had been long in love. This necessitated the couple living abroad, where they got terrifically on each other's nerves, the woman watching him as patiently as a cat beside a mouse-hole. He was her entire world; if he went, her world crumbled.

Now it's not unlikely that if these two had been married the wife would have forgiven him if he had strayed from the marital reservation, as wives forgive every day in the year. Mistresses seldom forgive.

Words, glances, little courtesies extended to others which to a married couple would be of no great significance, start long trains of suspicion to people not legally bound, because the dreaded question rises, "Is it all over?" and an inferno of jealousy yawns.

No one understood the devious ways of the human heart in matters of love or the tornadoes of passion better than Balzac, who wrote fifty-two novels dealing with love in its various phases. In one of his books, which makes a study of two types of marriage—the wildly passionate and the more rational and composed—there seems to be little difference today than when the book was written, almost a hundred years ago.

Renee de l'Estorade represents good judgment in marriage. She says: "Marriage offers life, while love offers merely physical enjoyment." Marriage can subsist when physical pleasure is over and gives place to interests far more valuable. A happy marriage can be founded on friendship which, due to its special quality, glosses over human weakness.

Her friend, Louise, who has made an intensely romantic love match, spoils it with her excessive jealousy and brings about the death of the man she loves and her own ruin. Balzac's thesis is, if health, intelligence, identity of origin, tastes and social status are combined, love can be achieved by young and healthy couples.

Two of our most promising young writers, Aldous Huxley and Ernest Hemingway have written of men and women who have attempted to achieve happiness by promiscuous indulgence. The striking thing about these temporary unions is the appalling melancholy and boredom the individuals who have contracted them suffer.

In the beginning when Russia threw out many of her social customs, she attempted to eliminate marriage or make it so unstable that it would persist only in name. Today it seems that owing to the efforts of women, the durable form of marriage has been revived.

BABY'S TEETHING UPSETS QUICKLY CHECKED

YOUR BABY must "get a tooth". But he need not get a fever with it—if baby's mother is wise he won't.

Here is what one wise mother, Mrs. Archie Begbie, of Consecon, has to say: "We have not lost one night's rest through teething as I always use my old standby, Baby's Own Tablets. They are worth their weight in gold."

And Mrs. B. A. Sebine, of Galt, Ont., says: "I have given Baby's Own Tablets to my baby girl since she was three weeks old and, although she cut her teeth rapidly (all four molars at once) she has never yet wakened us at night. I would not be without these tablets."

Give these safe, sweet-tasting tablets at the first sign of teething fever. Easy to take, prompt in action, yet safe. Analyst's certificate in every package.

Purchase of War Savings Certificates Helps War Effort and Provides 'Nest Egg' for Use at Close of the War

Money That is Saved Now Will Protect Workers' Homes and Families Later on Says J. G. Parker to Belleville War Savings Committee

WANT ANNUAL SALE OF $100,000,000

A nation-wide effort to increase to two million, the number of regular subscribers purchasing War Savings Stamps and average the sale of $100,000,000 of these certificates annually for the duration of the war, is the new objective of the War Savings Committee, told Mr. J. G. Parker, General Manager of the Imperial Life Insurance Company, at a meeting of the Belleville War Savings Committee, held in the Quinte Hotel Tuesday evening. The meeting of the local committee was held to make preparations and complete details for a campaign to further the sale of war savings stamps in the Hastings and Prince Edward districts.

Mr. Parker attended the meeting purely in an organizational capacity as did Mr. E. J. Quinn of the London Life Insurance Company, both these men having been loaned by their respective companies to the Canadian War Savings Committee for the purpose of instructing local committees concerning the campaign.

Both Mr. Parker's and Mr. Quinn's talks were in respect to employer-employee section of the campaign wherein industrial plants are urged to co-operate with the War Savings Committee in adopting the "payroll deduction plan" of promoting the sale of War Saving Stamps. Mr. Parker dealt with conditions now existent in the Canadian industrial world and warned that as a direct result of tremendous increase in earnings and a corresponding increase in spending, there will be an acute relief problem to deal with at the close of the present war.

"The one certain way of alleviating this acute relief problem would be to encourage savings on the part of the workers now," stated Mr. Parker. "If this were done, workers would benefit greatly by the background of savings created and this is the basic theory behind the need of war savings. War Saving Certificates provide an attractive medium whereby increased income can actually be enjoyed by delaying the process of spending and the purchase of these certificates is clearly a vital part of our war effort. The money which we are saving in this manner is going to protect our homes, our families, and our liberty," stated Mr. Parker.

10,000 Firms to Co-operate

Mr. Quinn, in further elucidating on the employer-employee angle of the campaign, stated that over 10,000 industrial firms throughout Canada had, during a recent survey, indicated their willingness to co-operate in the projected "payroll deduction plan" of promoting the sale of war stamps to industrial workers. It was hoped that at least 75 per cent. of industrial workers would show their co-operation by participating in this plan and that the urgency of the situation would suggest that a minimum saving of 25 cents per week would be undertaken by each employee in the lower wage brackets, and, in other cases, a much greater saving effected.

Sale Now $4,000,000 Monthly

At the present time the sales of War Savings Stamps throughout Canada amount to approximately $4,000,000 per month, stated the speaker, but if the annual objective of $100,000,000 was to be realized this amount must be augmented considerably. Members of the local committee were advised that in view of the increased tempo of Canada's war activity, together with a deeper realization of Canada's need, should give them confidence in asking the employer to co-operate with the War Savings Committee to the fullest possible extent. One hundred per cent. participation by employees in the plan is the goal aimed at, said Mr. Quinn.

Payroll Deduction Plan

In many cases, especially where the employee list did not total over 250 persons, the adoption of the "payroll deduction plan" would constitute no additional clerical cost, it was claimed. While it was admitted that the adoption of the plan would cause some extra clerical work, in most cases this work was undertaken without thought of it being too burdensome, considering the jeopardy to safety and security which is threatened by the war and which the sale of stamps will aid in retaining. If the employer considered himself incapable of selling the plan to his workers it was suggested that some selected person thoroughly conversant with the scheme should address the workers at a special meeting of the employees.

B.C.I. Students Sell Many W.S.S.

The outlet which the public schools, both in the city and rural districts, permitted in making persons other than those represented in the employer-employee class acquainted with the need for sale of War Savings Stamps was stressed and, as an example of the work which could be accomplished from this channel, the meeting was informed that through the voluntary work of the students at the Belleville Collegiate, between $400 and $500 worth of saving stamps were sold each week. In Prince Edward County, it was revealed, County officials had presented each school child with one war savings stamp as a start towards his obtaining a certificate.

Much good work could also be accomplished through the co-operation of women's institutes, cheese factory boards, service clubs and theatres, it was claimed. "Get the idea across that it is an investment which people are making when they purchase stamps and we'll have no difficulty in getting the co-operation of industrialists and individuals," was the attitude taken by members of the committee.

Mr. Parker and Mr. Quinn were introduced by Mr. James A. Barclay, Chairman of the Employer-Employee division of the local War Savings Committee for Hastings and Prince Edward Counties, while others present at the meeting included Mr. P. C. MacLaurin, Chairman of the War Savings Committee for Hastings County, Mr. J. O. Herity, Mr. K. S. Hill, Mr. W. J. Morrison, Mr. Leo Quinn, Mr. G. W. Barber and Mr. B. F. Ogilvie.

Bomb Splinters
From Battle of Britain

By Douglas Amaron Canadian Press Staff Writer

London—Have you heard the story of the London girl who presented her boy friend with a white feather when he joined the army this week?

Slap stick.

The blast of a bomb blew a housewife across the kitchen and she ended up with her face stuck in the trifle she was making for dinner.

Returning from the country, finding his house destroyed by a bomb, a man searched among the ruins and came across a book. The title was: "Minor house repairs and how to effect them."

Some London restaurants have started a scheme for dinner and bed for the night at an inclusive price. In one restaurant the buttery has been converted into sleeping quarters and equipped with comfortable mattresses.

A famous London tavern, windows shattered by a bomb explosion, has the following notice posted at the front door: "Open as usual."

The little tea and coffee shop next door, not to be outdone, announces cheerily:

"More open than usual."

Another appropriate sign hangs in the window of an undertaker's parlor. It reads: "It is our pleasure to do business with Germans and Italians."

Court action against a London bottle party was withdrawn when a bomb wiped out the club.

A. R. P. Warden L. Sleigh was having trouble with his stirrup pump so he picked up a loaf of bread that was handy and pounded out the incendiary bomb with it.

An East Ham firm of wood merchants has sold 7,000 window frames to East London residents to be used as bunks for Anderson shelters. The frames cost 5-6 originally but were sold for sixpence each and half the proceeds were turned over to a Spitfire fund.

A West London garage, open at both ends, was converted into a roadway when a bomb dug a huge crater in the middle of the regular highway.

J. Donnelly found a large incendiary bomb blazing in a lumber pile in a northwest coastal town. He had no means of extinguishing it so, although it was blazing fiercely, picked it up in his coat, dashed into a neighbor's house and dumped it in the sink.

Convicted of stealing five shillings worth of "souvenirs" from a cottage destroyed by a bomb, William Sopp was fined 5 pounds ($22.25).

A 12-year-old girl guide dumped her baby brother into a ditch and propped the pram over him when enemy planes overhead interrupted their walk.

She came out of the public shelter and saw that her home had been demolished by a bomb. "Coo," she murmured, "if I hadn't taken shelter I would have been blasted to maternity."

WARS IN EUROPE AND ASIA PHASES OF SAME WAR

Retired U. S. Admiral H. E. Garnell Says U. S. May be Better Prepared for Showdown With Japan Now Than 6 Years Hence

Philadelphia, Oct. 9 (AP)—The basic issue confronting Americans today, says Rear Admiral Harry E. Yarnell, retired, "is whether the United States is prepared to live indefinitely as an armed camp and whether our form of government can survive the pressure" of events abroad.

"The war in Europe and the war in Asia are phases of the same war," he said. "If we are going to help the remaining free nations we must be prepared for the alternative of war."

The Admiral retired last year as Commander of the Asiatic Fleet.

Great Britain's announced intention of reopening the Burma Road may provoke Japan to "drastic action" Yarnell warned, resulting in a crisis involving the United States.

But, he said, "we may be better prepared for a showdown with Japan now, while she is bogged down in China than we will be six years from now....when the two-ocean navy is completed."

CHILD ADOPTIONS TO SET RECORD

So Far This Year 1,059 Children Have Been Adopted in Ontario Says Hon. Eric Cross

Toronto, Oct. 9—(CP) — Ontario will set a record for child adoptions this year, Hon. Eric Cross, Ontario Welfare Minister, said today as he announced that September adoptions were the highest for any month in the history of the province.

During September 207 children were placed in adoption, compared to 124 a year ago and 69 in September, 1938.

So far this year, 1,059 children have been adopted. With three months to go, it is expected the 1939 record of 1,110 will be far surpassed.

Mr. Cross suggested that the war undoubtedly had something to do with increasing interest in adopton. When men enlisted, they wanted to make provision for children whom they had had in their homes for some time, by legal adoption.

A change in policy in the Children's Aid branch had also had effect. The aim now was to place more children in private homes instead of giving them institutional care. This he said, tended to stimulate a desire among foster parents to give their wards the status of their own children and adoption papers accordingly were sought.

British Government May Follow Example Of United States

London, Oct. 9 (CP)—Authoritative circles indicated today the British Government is considering following the example of the United States by advising British subjects to leave the Far East.

These circles said the warning would apply to all British subjects who had no "urgent reasons" for remaining, and indicated it would apply to the same zone as a similar warning by the United States Government to its citizens.

(United States citizens were advised to leave much of the Orient, including Japan, Manchoukuo, Shanghai, and French Indo-China).

Hong Kong, Oct. 9 (CP)—Fighting between Japanese and Chinese troops at Chennankwan, a pass between the Chinese Province of Kwangsi and French Indo-China, in which the Japanese suffered 700 casualties, was reported today by the Chinese Central News Agency.

(Chennankwan is on the route by which Japanese troops entered Indo-China from Kwangsi to attack Langson last month. This dispatch would indicate a surprise attack by the Chinese on Japanese lines of communication.)

Key West Townsfolk Sympathize With 'Great Love' of Old Man

Most of Them Wish Wax-Covered Form of Girl Nine Years Dead Could be Restored to Van Cosel

Key West, Fla., Oct. 9—(AP)—Most of the friendly townsfolk of this quaint island city wish the wax-covered form of a girl nine years dead could be restored to the aged man who hoped to bring her back to life.

Thousands who filed past the small form in a funeral home expressed only sympathy for the "beautiful sentiment" and "great love" of the 70-year-old Karl Tanler Van Cosel.

"He has done no harm," one wrinkled old lady said. "Why couldn't he have it back?"

Louis A. Harris who volunteered to represent Van Cosel legally, said he believed the aged man would die if the body were buried.

"I think it would be a crime to take the old man's dream away from him," said Harris. "His actions are proof that love is stronger than death."

Van Cosel, retired X-ray specialist, remained in jail after a hearing on charges of disturbing a tomb. He fell in love with 19-year-old Elena Hoyos Mesa shortly before her death of tuberculosis.

Kitchener, Ont., Oct. 9 (CP) — Three children of Lambro Gakeff, convicted member of Jehovah's Witnesses sect, were permitted to return to Margaret Avenue School today and almost as quickly they were expelled.

After being admitted on condition they salute the flag and sing the National Anthem, the children balked during the morning patriotic exercises. This was reported to Principal W. G. Hunter who immediately ordered the children out of the school.

Their father is facing sentence in police court under conviction of a breach of the Defence of Canada Regulations.

FIRE PREVENTION SUBJECT OF TALK BY FIRE MARSHAL

W. J. Scott, Toronto, Asks Citizens to Co-Operate in Prevention of Fires

PRIZES AWARDED

Fire loss costs every man, woman and child in the Dominion of Canada $2 a year", said W. J. Scott, Fire Marshal for the Province of Ontario, speaking to the Kiwanis Club at their weekly luncheon at the Queens Hotel on Tuesday, and the speaker expressed the opinion that co-operation was urgently needed between the Fire Chiefs of the various municipalities and the citizens to considerably reduce this cost especially in wartime. Mr. Scott introduced to the meeting by A. B. Collins, K.C., expressed his pleasure at the fine co-operation that existed between the Fire Chief of this city and the citizens with respect to the prevention of fire and the resultant loss that would occur if that co-operation did not exist. Alderman A. M. Kennedy, Chairman of the Fire Department in the City Council and Lorne McDougall, Insurance broker, were guests of the Club at the luncheon.

Harold Carruthers, chairman of Boys' and Girls' Work in the Club, reported that $25 had been awarded for the numerous essays that had been submitted by the public school students on Fire Prevention. The contest was directed by Fire Chief Lynch, an active member of the Club. Posters on Fire Prevention, drawn by the pupils were passed around to the members for inspection and they showed the children had the right conception of the scheme and it was stated the knowledge gained would stand them in good stead in the years to come. Mr. Scott in addressing the Club stated that fire loss was a complete waste and recounted the many statutes on the back of a policy which he stated were sometimes overlooked and frequently broken. He told the Club that an Insurance Company did not have to pay cash for losses by fire but did have to replace the property lost by fire.

The speaker asked all to conserve the resources of the Dominion so that the War effort could be vigorously prosecuted and this could only be done by preventing fires in these industries. In this connection he dwelt on the fine co-operation between the R.C.A.F. Fire Department and the City Department during the recent gas fire in this city. He told his listeners that the Fire Marshal's office was training men so they could go out to the different air fields and direct operations in cases of serious fires.

The speaker spoke on the Civilian Defence scheme and asked for the co-operation of the club. Kiwanian appreciation was expressed by Cliff Baragar. Dick Flynn presided at the luncheon and Harold Carruthers led the members in song with Leo B. Riggs at the piano. Ross Stiver announced the chicken bingo to be held on Thursday and Friday of this week and asked for volunteers from the Club to assist and received a fine response.

U. S. Pacific Fleet To be Strengthened Says Secretary Knox

Washington, Oct. 9 —(AP)— At a press conference filled with questions about the tense Far Eastern situation, Navy Secretary Knox said today that the United States fleet, now on duty in the Pacific, would be brought up to full strength immediately by the addition of about 4,200 men.

The additions, he said, will raise crews of the warships from 85 per cent to 100 per cent of their theoretical strength. Knox said also that the navy is "pressing" for the acquisition of 31 additional auxiliary ships.

He was asked whether he concurred in a prediction that the administration feared war with Japan in 15 days and promptly replied "No."

"I don't think anybody knows," he added.

The Secretary said no decision had been made to change the status of approximately 1,200 marines comprising United States defence forces in the Shanghai International Settlement.

D. F. C. Winner Believes Nazi Pilots 'Scared to Death'

Vancouver, Oct. 9 —(CP)— P.O. Noel K. Stansfeld, Vancouver's latest Distinguished Flying Cross winner, believes German pilots now raiding England "are really scared to death."

After a brief gun duel with the rear gunner of a Heinkel 111 north of London, which ended when a machine-gun burst killed the Nazi gunner, Stansfeld said he poured "the rest of my ammo into him."

"I could see three chaps in the front as they circled lower and lower," Stansfeld wrote. "He landed in a field and the three chaps, looking very dejected, crawled out with their hands high above their heads. I saw some local defence volunteers come out and drag them away."

The Board will leave Sunday for Whitby to hold sittings on Monday and then will visit successively Port Hope, Belleville and Napanee, after which it will return to Ottawa before going to Toronto on Oct. 28. At Whitby an application for abandonment of the Whitby-Port Perry line, a distance of 17 1-2 miles, will be heard.

Two abandonment cases will come up at Napanee. One is to close up the line between Napanee to Deseronto, a distance of 6.34 miles, and the second, the line between Yarker and Tweed, a distance of 33.94 miles.

62,000 BLANKETS SENT TO LONDON

Toronto, Oct., 9—(CP) — Sixty-two thousand blankets have been sent to London to aid persons made homeless by German air raids, Canadian Red Cross headquarters announced here today.

An official of the Red Cross said that 10,000 blankets were en route to France when that country collapsed but the shipment arrived in England and was distributed by the Red Cross there of which Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett, former Conservative Prime Minister of Canada, is chairman of the London Advisory Committee.

No blankets have reached France, officials said.

Winnipeg, Oct. 9—(CP) — New clothing valued at $3,000, purchased by Mennonite communities all over Western Canada, was shipped to London, England today by the Canadian Red Cross Society at Winnipeg. Eleven cases of goods were in the shipment.

Premier Churchill Elected Leader of Conservative Party

London, Oct. 9—(CP) — Prime Minister Churchill was unanimously elected leader of the Conservative Party today, succeeding Neville Chamberlain who resigned the post last week at the same time that he withdrew from the war cabinet due to ill health.

Choice of the Prime Minister for the post had been a foregone conclusion since Mr. Chamberlain relinquished it.

Mother Receives Letter From Son In Nazi Prison Camp

Winnipeg, Oct. 9.—(CP)—Mrs. F. Eden of Winnipeg, said today she had received a card from her son, Pilot Officer William H. Eden saying that he and Pilot Officer Donald McDonald, also of Winnipeg, were being held in a German prison camp. They were listed as missing June 14.

Eden said he and McDonald were shot down over France but managed to elude the Germans until July 1.

THREE WOMEN HELD

Toronto, Oct. 9 —(CP)— Three women, Mrs. Margaret MacDonald, 25, Kathleen Miller, 30 and Anne Reilley, 28, all of Toronto, were arrested here today on charges of theft from two men. The complainants, James Taylor, New Liskeard, Ont., and Andrew Grierson, Toronto, were arrested on charges of being drunk.

Says Russia Would Welcome Improved Relations With U. S. And Great Britain

London, Oct. 9 (CP)—Soviet circles commenting on the Far Eastern situation today said Russia would welcome improved relations with the United States, but added that Washington should take the steps toward improving them.

One source said the way also is open for better Anglo-Russian relations. He declared it is too early to assess diplomatic exchanges between Russians and Americans in Moscow and Washington, but added:

"There is no reason why there should not be friendship between our countries—friendship and trade."

Russia, he said, has no desire to "pull anybody's chestnuts out of the fire," and wants war with no one.

Russians, he said, feel they are in a better bargaining position than any of the belligerents or near-belligerents and therefore are entitled to the most polite treatment by any nation seeking their friendship.

SIXTEEN MEMBERS OF C.A.S.F. HOME

Most of Them Suffering From After-Effects of Many Ailments

Toronto, Oct. 9.—(CP)—Sixteen members of the Canadian Active Service Force, most of them suffering from the after-effects of pneumonia, pleurisy or rheumatism, arrived in Toronto from overseas today.

Pte. James I. Stewart, Toronto, expressed the opinion that "every woman in London should get the V.C."

"They're amazing", he added. "They go on with their shopping while raids are on, as if nothing had happened. All the civilians are doing a grand job".

Pte. Harry Dougherty of St. Catharines, Ont., said the "nearest thing" he had in a bombing raid was a shell dropped just 100 yards away. "It caused little damage", he said.

Labor Pool Formed To Speed Up Repairs Of Wrecked Homes

London, Oct. 9 (CP)—Health Minister Malcolm McDonald informed the House of Commons today that a central labor pool has been formed to speed up repairs for wrecked houses and that houses are being requisitioned in certain boroughs for the homeless.

He explained there was a "dogged persistence" of the populace to remain near their bombed homes although encouraged by the government to move to the country.

The number of Royal engineers assigned to bomb disposal work has been increased greatly because of the importance of dealing quickly with the bombs, he told the House.

At the peak of the congestion 25,000 persons were being cared for at relief centres in the London area alone, he said, but that number now has been reduced to 10,500.

FORMER GOVERNOR FOR ROOSEVELT

Washington, Oct. 9—(AP)—Gifford Pinchot, former Republican governor of Pennsylvania, said today he would campaign for President Roosevelt's re-election because, he said, "This is no time to put a green hand in charge of the ship."

Pinchot made his announcement at the White House after a visit with Mr. Roosevelt.

CHINAMAN ARRESTED IN RAID

Cincinnati Reds Win Seventh and Deciding Game of Series by 2-1

SCORE IN SEVENTH

Bartell's Mental Lapse Probably Costs Detroit the Game and Series

(By Gayle Talbot)
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Cincinnati, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Happy after a night of celebration, Cincinnati's baseball fans awakened today to realize that it was true—the Reds had won the 1940 World Series.

The Reds ended the series yesterday. Old Paul Derringer licked Detroit's Buck (Bobo) Newsom, 2-1 in the seventh and deciding game, as tense and thrilling a battle as ever climaxed a World Series.

Newsom, however, was heroic in defeat. Bobo, who pitched the Tigers to two stirring victories, blanking the Reds over one stretch of 16 innings, weakened under the terrific pace at the very climax.

After Newsom won his second game Sunday, his arm was so sore he could scarcely lift it. But he was out there again yesterday, firing them across with only one day's rest. In the seventh inning, however, Frank McCormick and Jimmy Ripple rattled the fences with successive doubles to start the rally that beat the big South Carolinian.

Trailing Going Into Seventh

The Reds were trailing, 1-0, going into the seventh. Detroit had scored off Derringer in the third on a couple of scratch hits when third baseman Bill Werber threw wild to first on Charlie Gehringer's smash. Then Frank McCormick, Red first baseman, inaugurated the seventh with a two-base wallop against the fence in left.

Jimmy Ripple, the next Red, lashed a high, hard drive to right that just cleared Bruce Campbell's head and struck the screen. McCormick, figuring the ball might be caught, held second until he saw it safe, and then tore for third. Campbell made a quick recovery in right and whipped the agate in to shortstop Dick Bartell in the vicinity of second base.

It would have been a cinch to cut McCormick down at home. But for some reason Bartell just caught the ball and examined the seams and looked at Ripple, who just reached second.

Jimmy Wilson then sacrificed Ripple to third, and Billy Myers' sacrifice fly brought him in with the winning run.

BARTELL TOOK $50,000 SNOOZE EXPERTS CLAIM

Second Guessers Claim He Should Have Thrown Ball Home in Seventh

REDS SCORE TWO

Detroit Team Claims McCormick Did Not Know Ball Was Back in Infield

(By Fritz Howell, Associated Press Sports Writer)

Cincinnati, O., Oct. 9—(AP)—The second guessers of the World Series baseball windup are calling Dick Bartell's seventh inning mental lapse—when the Reds scored their series winning runs—the "$50,000 snooze."

Here's what happened. The Tigers were out front, 1-0, as Frank McCormick led off the Reds' seventh with a blistering double against the left field wall. Jimmy Ripple followed with another two-ply shot against the right field barrier. It looked as if Bruce Campbell might catch Ripple's hard drive, and McCormick "tagged up" at second.

As the ball hit the wall, McCormick started for third, but slowed almost to a walk after rounding the bag. Campbell threw to Bartell, between second and third, but Bartell, despite yells and gesticulations from his mates, didn't notice McCormick was only halfway between third and home until too late to make the play. At the same time McCormick didn't know the ball was back in the infield and just jogged across like a guy who hit a homer.

Anyway, the experts figure if Bartell had caught McCormick at the plate, the Tigers would have won the game 1-0, and the series along with it. The out would have left Ripple on second with one away, and Wilson would not have followed with a sacrifice, which put the runner on third from where he scored the winning run on Myers' long fly to centre.

The difference between the winners' and losers' share of the series gold is far above the $50,000, but the second guessers settled for that amount on the "snooze" angle.

Sports Roundup

(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Cincinnati, Oct. 9.— (AP)—The other fellows may out-vote us on the series hero, but we'll string along with old Jimmy Wilson. . . There's a guy 40 years old—yet, he went out there and caught six of the toughest games ever played in series competition . . . to top it all off the old boy actually stole a base.

The boys don't forget.

When Bill McKechnie was managing the Cardinals he sent two dozen baseballs to prisoners of the Federal pen at Atlanta. Yesterday he received a telegram of good luck from the guys. Most of them are members of the famous "Eagan's Rats" mob of St. Louis, who are in there from 47 years on.

Today's guest star.

Lloyd Lewis, Chicago Daily News: "Hank Greenberg is, in personality, the successor of Dizzy Dean as the idol of the baseball mobs, just as Dean was Ruth's successor . . . Unlike them in manner he nevertheless makes it plain to spectators that he takes vast personal delight in winning, just as they did. . .He grins in open happiness when he cracks out a long hit. . .His shoulders droop morosely when he pops out".

Louisville Colonels Are Slight Favorites To Beat Newark Bears

Newark, N.J., Oct. 9—(AP)—Louisville, seeking its second straight Little World Series championship, ruled a slight favorite today to win the sixth game of the 1940 minor league baseball classic and pull up even with the Newark Bears of the International League.

The American Association Club which thrives on "breaks" got one from the weatherman yesterday when rain forced postponement of the third game at Newark and gave 23-year-old Charlie Wagner, its star right hand pitcher, an added days' rest.

Wagner, who has been nursing a sore finger, seeks his 13th straight victory tonight. Opposing him will be Steve Peek, another right hander and the Bears' leading percentage hurler.

"IT'S UP TO YOU, BUCK"

All in a lather in more ways than one, Manager Del Baker, of the Detroit Tigers, talks things over with his ace pitcher, Buck Newsom, in between shaves after the Cincinnati Reds had evened the series and forced a seventh game. Undoubtedly Del is telling Buck he is depending on him to win the final and crucial game.

Montreal, Oct. 9.—Montreal's opening season loss to Toronto Argos doesn't mean a thing, according to Coach Bill Hughes. The veteran Montreal mentor never made great claims for his charges. "Montreal will have a team it will not be ashamed of," is as far as Bill ever went before the season's inaugural. He still sticks by that statement.

On paper Montreal doesn't look impressive, particularly after Johnny Ferraro decided to call it a day, last week, and quit for good. Whether or not Montreal will get over this blow remains to be seen. Ferraro was not only Montreal's outstanding player, but was probably the brightest star on the Canadian gridiron.

There are few big names on the club's roster. There are such sterling veterans as Tommy Burns, Glenn Brown, Bill Davies, Alex. Fleming, Ray Mullins, and, of course, big Pete Jotkus.

Bill Hughes is banking on his younger players to cause most of the trouble to the Toronto, Hamilton and Ottawa opposition. He has a strong aerial attack in young Gordy Noseworthy, Jimmy Riddell and the veteran, Ray Mullins.

Strong on the end-run since way back, Hughes will again depend on this spectacular play to earn a lot of points for the Montreal entry. It was just eight years ago that Huck Welch and Gordy Perry ran circles around the opposing flanks, and Hughes is looking for another Welch-Perry combination. "We'll show you the greatest end run in eight years," said modest Bill, who is frequently referred to as the "maker of champions", having handled four Dominion championship teams.

There are a few newcomers who show plenty of promise. There is, for example, young Johnny Quilty, who hails from the Ottawa school gridiron. He's here primarily for a tryout with the Canadiens in the National Hockey League. Then there is 19-year-old Johnny Howard of Suffield, Conn., and Cliff McClay, an alternate with Westmount in the O.R.F.U. last season.

One thing which Montreal's Big Four clubs have lacked in past seasons is club spirit. Things didn't always run any too smoothly, with players and executives frequently at odds. This year things are different. There's a new spirit around the club.

The new deal is really bearing fruit, and if it has done nothing else, it has certainly accomplished something in bringing about a better club spirit.

The team may be short on experience. Few will disagree on this point. However, it has plenty of fight.

If the Hughesmen put up anything like a good showing, the club should make money this year—which will be quite an experience for a Montreal Big Four entry.

Everything is in favor of the club. With no entry in the O.R.F.U., and the Intercollegiate league not operating, as a war measure, Montreal should get all the support which was cut three ways during the past two years.

Hughes is a quiet sort of operator. He never goes off the long end with pre-season predictions of great things to come. This year's club is no exception.

"Don't expect much from us, beyond the fact that we'll be fighting all the way. The boys may do a lot of wrong things, but by mid-season we should be able to hold all-comers," is the way he puts it.

ST. KITTS TO SHOW DIFFERENT STYLE IN SECOND GAME

Coach Brown to Shift Offence and Defence to Meet Fast Thrusts of Burrards

B. C. TEAM FAVORED

Gallant Finish on Strange Floor Shows Westerners Strong in Every Department

Toronto, Oct. 9 (CP)—One game down in the Canadian senior box lacrosse championship series, St. Catharines will show a different style of play when they clash tonight with the dazzling Vancouver Burrard Blue Bombers in the second match of the best-of-five series.

Coach Art Brown of the Athletics said last night he would shift his offence and defence to meet the fast thrust and fierce backchecking of the Vancouver gamecocks, who took a 14-9 victory here Monday in the opening tilt. Part of the system change will be designed to meet the strong finishes of the westerners.

Behind 9-8 as the last quarter opened Monday, the Bombers went on a sustained drive that gave them six goals and victory, and earned them the plaudits of a crowd of 5,125. Their gallant finish on a strange floor, plus the fact they held the vaunted Athletics scoreless in that quarter, established them as favorites to take the Mann Cup won last year by New Westminster Adanacs.

Coach Brown said the Bombers play a "much different" style of game than the Adanacs, who defeated St Catharines in the Dominion finals last season.

"However, I think my team can hold them the rest of the series," he added. "They can't be much better. We can be a whole lot better."

Coach Les Dickinson of the Vancouverites expressed confidence his team would take the second game although I am certainly not underrating the Athletics."

At half-time of the game tonight, the Minto Cup, emblem of Dominion junior lacrosse supremacy, will be presented to the Ontario All-Stars, just returned from the coast where they defeated British Columbia All-Stars in the Canadian finals.

ARGONAUTS ADD SECOND DEFENCE PLAYER TO SQUAD

Cal Moore, Formerly With Balmy Beach, Turns Out for First Drill

DRILL IN RAIN

Montreal Team to Use Noseworthy More in the Kicking Duties

(By the Canadian Press)

Coach Bill Hughes, still cogitating over his Montreal Big Four football club's loss to Toronto Argonauts Saturday, came up today with the opinion that a lot more kicking on first down might have spelled the difference — and the worried look vanished temporarily from his face.

The statistics gave big George Noseworthy an average margin of almost 10 yards in the kicking duel with Red Storey and Pollwell of the Argus. Hughes figured this could have been put to more advantage and into his little black book it went—along with several other things—for reference when the Montrealers meet up with Ottawa Rough Riders this week-end.

Several other mistakes were ironed out at a light drill by the Montreal squad last night. Hughes said he plans to work out a more airtight forward pass defence, perhaps the Montreal club's main weakness Saturday, before the next game. The Montrealers received another setback, however, at the drill when Lauri Mathieu, veteran backfielder, announced his retirement. Two other backfielders, Johnny Quilty of Ottawa and Johnny Howard also have been lost to the club since Saturday's game.

Argos Strengthened

The Argonauts meanwhile were strengthened by the addition of brilliant secondary defence player as Coach Lew Hayman put the squad through a heavy workout. Cal Moore, who played last year with Balmy Beach, gave up his retirement plans and fell into the drill.

Hayman broke his squad into two sections for the first part of the drill, with the linemen working at the blocking machine while he put his backs and ends through a running and passing workout. The squad concentrated on kicking formations in the final part of the practice.

At Ottawa meanwhile, the Rough Riders went through a three-hour workout on a wet gridiron at Landsdowne Park. Andy Tommy, backfield ace who suffered a slight concussion when Ottawa defeated Hamilton Saturday, was absent. Doctors have advised him to keep out of practices for a few days to avoid aggravating the injury.

With the 1940 world series history today, King Football takes over the sport spotlight and will reign supreme from now until hockey usurps the sport picture. Locally the grid iron curtain will be rolled up this afternoon when Albert College and Cobourg Collegiate pry off the football lid at Cobourg in the opening senior Interscholastic match of the season. There is no way to comment on the relative strength of the two squads, although Coach Pete Beach's Albert College squad has played two pre-season games and should be in fine fettle. The Alberts beat Stirling High School badly last week and on Saturday last played a two-all tie with the strong Regiopolis College team of Kingston.

Only two members of last year's Albert squad are available for service this year, "Des" Partridge and Jack Burrows returning to the squad. The entire Albert backfield will see five new faces in Johnnie Hayman and Bruce Wilson of London, Bob Ralph and Don Ridout of Toronto and Barrie Brawley of New York City. Hayman will direct the team on the field as quarterback. Three Belleville lads are included in the list of Albert alternates in Buster Donnan, Herb Middleton and Austin Watkins. In Ed Carter, former Ottawa collegian, Coach Beach has a strong lineman, but on the shoulders of Ralph and Wilson will fall the responsibility of the ball carrying. Coach Beach has 23 players signed and ready for today's initial test at Cobourg.

Up around the B.C.I. & V.S. Coach Eddie Schrieder is holding late afternoon drills with his "collegian" squad getting ready for their inaugural versus the newly-entered Cobourg Collegiate team here on Thanksgiving Day. Incidentally the B.C.I. squad will wear brand new jerseys, designed by Lester Shiels, when they pry off the local football lid next Monday. One sure starter for the "Collegians" will be Bill Pigden at quarterback, who is in better physical condition today than the majority of the B.C.I. backfielders, we are informed by a reliable source.

Do you remember when Balmy Beach and Sarnia Imperials rolled out a 6-6 tie in a Thanksgiving Day football game at Toronto a year ago today. A lateral passing circus by Sarnia put the Oilers back into action in the third quarter, after trailing 4-0 in the earlier stages of the game.

Did you know that only three players have scored four runs in a single game in the World's Series—Babe Ruth, Yankees, October 6, 1926; Earl Combs, Yankees, October 2, 1932, and Frank Crosetti, Yankees, October 2, 1936.

Three players have tallied twice in one frame in a Series game—Frankie Frisch, Giants, October 7, 1921; Al Simmons, Athletics, October 12, 1929, and Jimmy Foxx, Athletics, October 12, 1929.

Tony Lazzeri and Bill Dickey, Yankees, are the only players who have driven in five runs in one Series game, both having accomplished that feat, October 2, 1936, against the Giants.

The American League domination of the world series was broken yesterday and by a great baseball team—the Cincinnati Reds, winners of the National League and today heralded as the world's champions and one of the greatest defensive teams to come out of the senior circuit in years. Not even the most biased American League fan begrudged Paul Derringer his great victory yesterday. The 1940 world series will go down as one of the most thrilling in modern baseball history, not only because the series went seven games, but because of the uphill battle Deacon Bill McKechnie and his Redlegs staged. Reviewing the series you find the Reds came from behind all of the way and it was in the seventh inning of the seventh game that they moved into the leadership of the series for the first time; so who can't say there isn't a "lucky seventh" in baseball?

The experts to cover the 1940 world series herald Weber, Ripple, Derringer, Walters and others as the heroes of the series but this corner would select Jimmie Wilson, the Reds' 40-year-old catcher, as the No. 1 hero of the 1940 world series. Remember Wilson had packed his catching equipment away in moth balls a number of seasons ago and was coaching the Reds when Lomdari sustained a late season injury, following the unfortunate Herschberger incident, leaving the Reds without a seasoned receiver. Wilson, who was considered too old to catch or even play major league ball, stepped into the breach. What followed—he handled Bucky Walters' slants in a masterful manner for two wins and then continued to duplicate this feat with Derringer yesterday and at an age when the difficult position of catching is considered out of the question. Therefore—it's hats off and the lion's share of the new champions to Jimmie Wilson.

We are indebted to Mr. T. A. Tucker, manager of the Weaver Music Store, for the use of a portable R.C.A. Victor radio during the world series. Not only the sports department, but pressmen et al enjoyed the fine reception of the radio loaned us by Mr. Tucker and the reception was exceedingly good despite the fact teletypes, linotypes and presses were in operation during the reception of all games.

Get the red flannels out of the moth balls—Lester Patrick opened his amateur hockey school at the Winnipeg arena yesterday with 28 players from all parts of the Dominion on hand including Bill Calladine, former Peterboro' centre ice star.

Hit a Homer But Did Not Know it

New York, Oct. 9.—(CP)—Twelve-year-old John Cushen moved somewhat diffidently to the plate, let a couple of fast ones go by, then swung the bat he held none too confidently. The ball went out of the park.

That, his new American pals told him, was a home run. So the young refugee from Bromley, Kent, dutifully ran the bases.

John, who subsequently hit two more homers, was the batting star of the ball game in Columbus playground between 19 English refugee boys and a group of youthful New Yorkers. Aged from eight to 15, the boys arrived in New York last week among more than 100 children and were quartered at the Seamen's Church Institute.

They took to baseball eagerly, though they said they liked cricket and rugby better.

BRITAIN RESERVES RIGHTS ON ISLAND

Spokesman Says Britain Naturally Refuses Japan's Claims

London, Oct. 9 (CP).—An official spokesman said today that Great Britain "naturally" has refused to accept Japanese claims that British rights on the island of Liu Kung off the Shantung peninsula in China have lapsed.

It was added, however, that the island in the North China Sea where Britain has a summer naval station is of no "strategic importance".

(Reports from Shanghai said yesterday that Japanese naval forces had landed on the island, refusing to recognize the renewed lease on the island given Britain by the Chinese government at Chungking.)

The spokesman said the government had forwarded to the Japanese "our reservation of rights on this island".

The informant added that Britain only leased some facilities on the island from the Chinese for use as a summer "rest centre" for the navy.

Britain had been planning, he said to remove what personnel and stores were on the island.

British Vice-Admiral Calls Capture of Weser 'Fine Piece of Work'

Ottawa, Oct. 9 (CP)—Capture of the German freighter Weser off the coast of Mexico by the Canadian Auxiliary cruiser Prince Robert was a "fine piece of work" in the opinion of Vice-Admiral Alfred E. Evans, Chief of the British Admiralty Technical Mission.

In an interview with The Canadian Press the Vice-Admiral, highest ranking naval officer now stationed in Canada, expressed curiosity about how the Prince Robert succeeded in getting the Weser without the usual German scuttling attempt.

Overhauling Nazi ships at sea is nothing new, he said, but seizing one before the crew can sink or damage her is new.

"Anyhow, Beard did it," said Admiral Evans. "I must ask Nelles what the secret is."

(Commodore Charles T. Beard is Officer Commanding the Prince Robert and Rear-Admiral Percy W. Nelles is Chief of the Canadian Naval Staff.)

Veteran Seadog

This praise for one of the achievements of the Royal Canadian Navy came from a veteran seadog, a man who fought in the Battle of Jutland and who had a ship sunk under him in the present war.

Admiral Evans was called out of brief retirement last September and served for several months as Commodore in charge of convoys. His duty was to direct the sailing of merchant convoys, a task which involved remaining on the bridge for the whole time at sea. In that capacity he saw two enemy submarines destroyed and survived the sinking of a freighter by another submarine.

Now he occupies an office in one of the Canadian Government's temporary war offices and his duty is to promote and supervise the production of naval equipment in Canada, and inspect the finished products.

He has a quiet confidence in the ability of the empire to overcome its foes and firmly believes "we are getting on top."

"The Howards of Virginia"

"The Howards of Virginia," Columbia's screen version of Elizabeth Page's Literary Guild best-seller, "The Tree of Liberty" has been selected by the National Screen Council as winner of the Box Office Blue Ribbon Award for September and the outstanding film released for that month.

Frank Lloyd, three time Academy Award winner, and producer-director of such outstanding screen hits as "Mutiny on the Bounty," "Wells Fargo" and "Cavalcade," also is responsible for the production and direction of "The Howards of Virginia." Cary Grant and Martha Scott are starred, with a supporting cast headed by Sir Cedric Hardwicke, Alan Marshall and Richard Carlson. Sidney Buckman, who wrote the screen play, also penned the screen plays of 'Holiday" and "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington."

Miss Page spent more than five years writing the novel from which the winning picture is adapted.

"The Howards of Virginia" does not play anywhere in Canada until Thanksgiving week and amongst the first theatres in which it will be presented will be the McCarthy theatre, where it opens this Sunday midnight.

"Three Faces West"

Sigrid Gurie, John Wayne and Charles Coburn in "Three Faces West" one of the finest productions of the season, is now showing at the McCarthy theatre for the last time. In addition this evening on the stage at 8 p.m. Ozzie Williams and his band will present a program of musical numbers and band specialties, which promises to be a real treat for all patrons. Latest Fox News events, a clever Popeye comedy and an excellent technicolor musical hit "The Royal Rodeo" are added screen attractions preceding the feature "Three Faces West."

Sir Harry Lauder

Sir Harry Lauder's first motion picture entitled "Song of the Road" which is hailed as a masterpiece in screen entertainment, is the week-end feature presentation at the McCarthy theatre in addition to the thrilling race-track drama "The Long Shot" Gordon Jones and Marsha Hunt's first co-starring production.

Sir Harry Lauder, singing the songs that made him world-famous, in his first motion picture "Song of the Road," is the next attraction coming to the McCarthy Theatre.

AT THE BELLE

"Four Sons"

"Four Sons," unanimously hailed by previewers as "an emotional masterpiece, splendidly convincing" is the next attraction at the Belle Theatre. The compelling power and the force of the emotional drama of the new 20th Century-Fox film moved critics to label it in advance as "a picture that must be seen."

For this great picture Darryl F. Zanuck drafted the talents of outstanding players including: Don Ameche, Eugenie Leontovich, Mary Beth Hughes, Alan Curtis, George Ernest, Robert Lowery, and many others.

Surpassing anything he has ever done, Don Ameche heads the brilliant cast. Fresh from his great triumph in "Lillian Russell," he is said to "reveal a new manner in a truly outstanding performance." Previewers claim that his portrayal outshines even his "Alexander's Ragtime Band", "Hollywood Cavalcade" and "Swanee River" triumphs.

Powerful Role

Said to be the most powerfully dramatic role of them all, the character of the mother is enacted by Miss Leontovich. By her portrayal in "Four Sons" previewers agree that she "promises to be a new screen sensation." She was persuaded to perform in her first screen role after starring on the stage for fifteen years in New York Paris and London.

Alan Curtis is splendidly convincing in his role. He has a part which calls for strength, force and determination. His portrayal should add greatly to his reputation for fine performances.

As a reward for the excellent work she did in recent pictures, Mary Beth Hughes was selected to play the leading romantic role in "Four Sons" opposite Don Ameche. She takes a long step forward with a beautiful performance which is said to prove conclusively her potentialities as a major screen personality.

Others Featured

As the two other brothers in the story, George Ernest and Robert Lowery have turned in splendid performances. Lionel Royce and Sig Rumann are also featured in the cast.

"Four Sons" was directed with enormous vigor by Archie Mayo who during the past has turned out some of the most powerful films including "Bordertown" and "Petrified Forest."

The impact of its emotional outcry and depth of feeling on preview audiences left them with the feeling that they had "seen one of the timely and great pictures of the year." The vividness and startling clarity that mark Mayo's work are said to highlight the film.

"The Gay Caballero"

There's top-notch entertainment promised patrons of the Belle Theatre when "The Gay Cabalero" announced as the companion feature is presented with Cesaro Romero as the Cisco Kid. The new 20th Century Fox film is packed with thrilling action, colorful romance and robust drama.

Cisco is rumored dead at the start of the film, but he is very much in evidence as he meets his most unscrupulous adversary—a woman!

Said to radiate more charm than ever, Cesar Romero is reported at his best in "The Gay Caballero," which has a fine featured cast including Sheila Ryan, Robert Sterling, Chris-Pin Martin, Janet Beecher and many others.

Frankie Thomas as Tim Tyler goes a round with Ju-Ju, the chimpanzee in Universal's chapter play, "Tim Tyler's Luck," starting next at the Capitol with the double feature program of "Golden Gloves," and "Rocky Mountain Rangers."

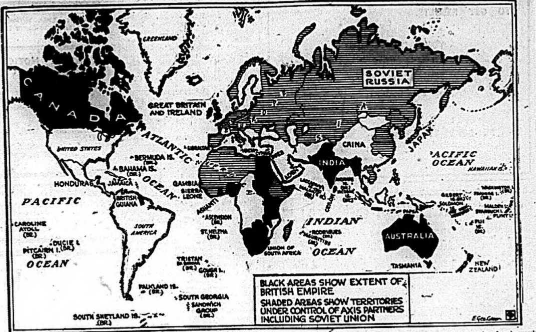
U.S., Britain Move Toward Closer Union, Greater Co-operation

As Lines Are Drawn in World Battle for Supremacy Between Opposing Ideas, English-Speaking Union Is Possibility



By CHARLES J. THOBABEN
Central Press Canadian Writer

Cleveland, Oct. 8. — Many years have passed since the embattled farmers took their stand on the village green at Lexington to fight the British redcoats and since the impressment of American sailors by the British navy led to second war with Great Britain.

During those decades relations of the far-flung British empire and the powerful United States have changed as much as has civilization in its onward march.

Numerous "situations" have arisen between the two great democracies, such as the aid given Confederate raiders by England during the American Civil war, the "incident" when President Grover Cleveland warned the British away from Venezuela by sending an American fleet to South America, and, currently, the censorship of American Clipper mail at Bermuda.

Bends Strengthen

These small breaches of friendship, however, have proved to be but short-lived interruptions in the steadily growing bonds of unity between the English-speaking empires. The United States and Britain have grown closer and closer together in their mutual aims, methods and theories of government.

Both nations, being among the "halves" as opposed to the "have-nots" of Germany, Italy and Japan, appear to believe that they have a common chain of interest in maintaining a situation approximating the "status quo."

Dependent upon their industrialization, sea-borne commerce and distant outposts for most of their great wealth, the United States and England feel they must defend the present world order to save their own economic positions. France and Holland, also largely dependent upon world-wide empires, found themselves too vulnerable and perished before the onslaught of Nazi Germany, leaving the task of fending off the "have-nots" to the island empire and the United States.

Consolidate Positions

After the fall of France, Great Britain and the United States started a rapid consolidation of their defensive positions. The first move was to include Canada under the same provisions for protection that all the other nations of the western hemisphere long have had under the Monroe Doctrine. Following the conclusion of the mutual defence pact with her northern neighbor, the United States proceeded to trade 50 over-age destroyers to Britain in return for the right to establish American defence bases in British western hemisphere possession. This met with immediate public approval on this side of the Atlantic, for it was obvious to any layman that such a deal would strengthen materially defence of the vital Panama canal and the great industrial sections of the Atlantic seaboard.

Then, what. Reports started to circulate that the United States might seek to bolster her position in the Orient by getting similar rights in the British stronghold at Singapore.

It was not long before "official quarters" in Washington and London admitted that conversations were taking place relative to the American acquisition of use of British bases at Singapore and in Australia and South Africa. Trained American naval attaches were sent to these points and to India.

Protect Interests

Admittedly these bases would protect American interests in the Far East, but they certainly are rather distant to be termed bases for the direct defence of continental United States or even the western hemisphere — with the exception of South Africa, where a base might be useful in heading off any attempted assault upon South America.

Undoubtedly, also, Americanlanes.

bases located in such places would be far more useful to the British and their dominions at this critical juncture in the history of their empire. With this kind of a set-up, the British would be relieved of much of the burden of policing the entire world while at the same time fighting a war in Europe and northern Africa. because if any unfriendly power—possibly Japan—should threaten the bases of their surrounding territory the United States naturally would feel a strong concern in their fate — and an interest in defending them.

True World War

The tri-totalitarian military alliance signed by Germany, Italy and Japan served only to delineate more sharply the lines being drawn in the struggle for supremacy between opposing ideologies and economies. Inclusion of Russia in the tri-power alliance would virtually complete the alignment.

What the eventual result will be, no one can predict. One thing is certain, however. If the present trend is continued, a mighty English-speaking union will have evolved. And after the war, the two democracies very probably will continue their consolidation of defences to enable them to maintain their policing of world commerce

CHAPTER X.

It did not take long for Parville to know that young Mr. Castle went to his father's office each morning, frequently in the company of the Judge himself, and spent the day there. Audrey had been greeted with the news from several sources, from acquaintances who appeared to believe that she might be particularly interested. Only to receive an indifferent, "Isn't that nice?"

She was quite aware, however, that she had neither seen nor heard from Jeff for the matter of a fortnight. And wondered. Perhaps it was just as well. Nevertheless, it brought an unexpected glow of pleasure to have him drive up one evening unannounced when she was sitting alone on the side porch. "Want to take a spin?" he called out, without alighting.

"I'm keeping house," she answered. "Dad took Mom to the movies and Julia went to visit a girl friend. Why don't you come up and talk to me?"

"Fine." As he dropped down beside her on the swing couch, he decided, "This is better anyway. I'm tired."

"That's what comes of being a hard-working business man," she said lightly. It was an attempt to cover up her surprise. Jeff did look tired—older, somehow. "How's the new job, or would you rather not talk shop?"

"Why, sure. I was surprised to find there was so much stuff being handled in the office. The old gentleman has been there almost every day and he's been wising me to a lot. He's a walking encyclopedia of law, and the Dodds isn't much less. Between them they make me feel like a boob. Of course I'm not likely to have any pleading to do on this job. It's mostly checking procedure and such. A lot of correspondence to handle."

"Something got you down?" was her cheerful quest for information.

"Darned if it hasn't," he replied unexpectedly, scowling. "Cygie, you're the only one I could tell it to . . . understand, I mean."

"Care to?"

"It's just that a growing suspicion was sort of clinched for me today. I'm a rotter. Maybe you knew it."

"Why, I've always known it!" she laughed. "Who told YOU?"

"Miss Annie."

"So? Then you two are getting confidential."

"I'm not kidding, Cygie. She didn't put it in words . . . in fact, she thinks I'm pretty decent. She sure has done her darndest to build a front for me. Oh, I appreciate it, but . . ."

Audrey waited in silence for him to continue.

"Queer thing, Cygie, I always took that old girl for granted. An antique like the rest of the office junk. If I ever thought of her at all it was to wonder why father hadn't thrown her out with rest of the furniture and got something streamlined. I found out today that she's a human being."

"Why, of course she is! And a nice woman."

"Nice? Says you! Let me tell you about that. This afternoon we were dusting our way through an estate case that's been in the courts so long that the oldest papers are moth-eaten. Well, the old girl was droning along and I was sleepy. She stumped me with a question that a freshman could have answered. She looked over her glasses at me so hopelessly that it got on my nerves. I sounded off like a fool."

"What do you mean?"

"Oh, I merely told her that I know I'm a dolt. And I don't give a darn. I never wanted to study law and am wasting her time and mine. She might as well understand that I intend to chuck it all, and soon. That I'll bluff along with it until the old gentleman can get a new helper. You see, Dodds is quitting . . . expects to leave as soon as I can qualify as a trained seal."

"I didn't know that!"

"I know you didn't. Neither does anybody else, so please keep it under your hat. But it's part of the explanation. I thought she'd probably throw a genteel fit, and wished she would. But all she did was to take off her glasses and look at me as if she were thinking of something else."

"But she must have said something, Jeff. I know she would be disappointed."

"You don't know, Cygie. Neither do I. Since I've been around the office, I've discovered that she is a glutton for work, must have been for years. I knew that she had been well paid and if that was her idea of a good time it was her hard luck. But it never dawned on me that she might have worn out like that old rattletrap typewriter she uses. And that isn't all. For years she's owned that little hut where she lives and she's been using up all her savings to put a brace of poor but worthy nephews through college. And law school! The oldest one was honor man in my class, it turns out. Isn't that a laugh? The second prodigy finishes next June. Getting high marks, thank you."

"But Jeff, surely she didn't tell you that to . . ."

"No. Don't get her wrong. She stuck to her program long enough to finish. Now, she's finished. Cygie, that old girl's had to listen to the . . . death sentence." There was a husky note in his voice.

"Not really! Oh, that isn't fair!"

"Sure it isn't. But it seems to be true. She swore me to eternal secrecy, but I'm not afraid of you, Cygie. She told me there was exactly one reason why she was telling me. It was because the old gentleman has paid her enough to let her work out her life's ambition. She thinks he's a god on wheels . . . perfectly willing to sit down and wait. She wasn't trying to preach to me. But you get the point."

"Of course, Jeff," Audrey said softly out of the twilight. "It was in the hope that you wouldn't spoil her happiness by . . . by letting your father down."

Audrey could see that he was deeply touched.

"I think maybe I know how you feel about Miss Annie," she said slowly. "I thought of her as a fixture, a character. If I made fun of her to anybody else, I must have to myself. And all this time she's been sacrificing herself to give two other people a chance. Jeff, do you think she may be wrong about her condition?"

"Afraid not. She said Bardsley was frank, and you know he hasn't the reputation of trying to fool his patients. I guess we can manage. I'll bluff it through somehow."

Audrey's mind already had traveled back to that little scene in Olive's room at the Castles'. Olive had ridiculed the idea of Jeff working at his profession, laughed at the notion of ever living in Parville. The poor boy was on a spot. He knew where his duty lay, as much as he hated the idea. Olive must have delivered her ultimatum and, probably, was none too enthused about his spending the summer in the office. Intuition told Audrey that he would evade the issue as long as possible, hoping that something would turn up. He was like that, but this curiously evasive attitude was new. Audrey could not remember his displaying it before.

He might have sensed what was passing through her mind, for he remembered abruptly: "Olive has been kidding me plenty about my sudden zeal for the law."

There was just a suggestion of a challenge in the words, enough to determine Audrey not to betray her feelings regarding the other girl's attitude. "Of course!" she laughed. "Why wouldn't she? She hasn't had the chance to see you in the role of a working gentleman."

"No. And she wouldn't get any kick out of it if she did. She doesn't get the idea. I suppose girls with a lot of dough are like that."

"I think you're doing her an injustice, Jeff. Just because she has money is no reason for her to want a playboy for a husband. No girl does. She may like to tease you about it, but she must respect you for wishing to get started in your profession like any other man who's looking forward to having a wife and family. You're tired tonight."

"The old brain has been functioning pretty steadily today, one way and another," he admitted. "It's not used to it. I'm on the point of inquiring about your father's supply of Scotch. Maybe one jigger would help. Maybe a succession of them would help even more. What do you think?"

"I think I'm not going to be an accessory before or after the fact. I know my law. The best thing you can do is to go home and to bed."

"I'm not sleepy."

"Read."

"Those law books hurt my chest. After this afternoon, I wouldn't have the nerve to read anything lighter."

"Count sheep."

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Harmful poisons go into the body, and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't always get at the cause. You need something that works on the liver as well. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless and gentle, they make the bile flow freely. They do the work of calomel but have no calomel or mercury in them. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name! Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Oct. 9 (CP).—Stocks continued their downward drift today on Toronto Exchange. Trading tempo showed little change and turnover totalled 103,000 shares.

The Toronto Exchange announced today that the Exchange will remain closed Saturday as well as Monday, Oct. 14, Thanksgiving Day.

Prices were lower for Aunor, Little Long Lac, San Antonio, Pickle Crow and others and in the base metals Nickel and Noranda weakened ½ to a point and Waite-Amulet and Pend Oreille lost 8 to 10 cents.

All industrials sold down with steels and foods leading the decline and Royalite, Calgary and Edmonton and Home Oil were soft spots in western oils.

NEW YORK STOCKS

New York, Oct. 9.— (AP)—Stock Market leaders with a few dogged exceptions, slipped slightly today.

An early downturn, accomplished in something of a brisk manner, stalled when Steels and Motors suddenly stiffened. Toward the fourth hour, trends were static.

Among the steadier shares were U.S. Steel, General Motors, Chrysler, U.S. Rubber, American Telephone, Eastern Union, Westinghouse, Dow Chemical, Union Carbide and New York Central.

Included on the offside were Allied Chemical, Montgomery Ward, Texas Corp, DuPont, Eastman, U.S. Gypsum, Cerro de Pasco, Caterpillar Tractor and United Aircraft.

Canadian issues were easy. Dome Mines, Distillers Seagram and Canadian Pacific dipped fractions. Canada 4s, in the Bond Market, held unchanged.

TORONTO EXCHANGE CLOSED ON SATURDAY AND ON MONDAY

Lighter Receipts Aid Butter Price

Toronto, Oct. 9—Butter continued to register price gains as light offerings reflected the smaller arrivals of fresh receipts on the Toronto open produce market. Further improvement also developed in eggs.

Buyers in need of supplies to cover the approaching holiday requirements were forced to pay prices 1-2 cent to 3-4 cent higher on the butter market. Available supplies remain very light, with current receipts showing the seasonal decline and holders of storage stocks not offering as yet. The first-grade Ontario product closed at 26 cents per pound after early sales had been made at 25 3-4c.

Offerings cleared freely under good demand, apart from pullets, on the egg market. Trading in pullets lagged and these receipts accumulated. Buying interest was concentrated on the two top grades, which firmed in price in both sections of the market.

CORRESPONDENT

E.D.T. on the broadcast (We the People), and the Columbia Broadcasting System also vainly attempted to find him.

Anxiety Felt at Absence

New York, Oct. 9 (AP)—Richard Boyer, recently returned Berlin correspondent for the newspaper PM, failed to appear on a scheduled broadcast Tuesday night during which he was to have related his experiences in Nazi Germany.

Up to the time of the broadcast at 10 p.m. E.D.T., neither the Columbia Broadcasting System nor the editors of PM had been able to ascertain Boyer's whereabouts, said Howard Barnes, C.B.S. production man in charge of the program.

A PM city desk man said more than two hours later that the newspapers efforts to locate Boyer still were unavailing.

Boyer at Studio Tuesday

Barnes said that at 4 p.m. yesterday C.B.S. received a phone call from a man giving his name as "Mr. Roberts" and identifying himself as secretary to Ralph Ingersoll, PM publisher. Barnes said "Mr. Roberts" declared that Boyer would be unable to appear on the broadcast because of a special foreign assignment which required that he leave immediately by boat.

"This sounded so incredible," said Barnes, "that we called PM and were told that there was no Mr. Roberts connected with the paper."

Barnes said that Boyer appeared at the studio yesterday for a scheduled rehearsal but left before his turn came to go over his script. Barnes added that Boyer lunched yesterday with a PM associate.

The studio received numerous calls regarding the incident including one from Boyer's parents in San Antonio, Tex., "who were worried about the matter," Barnes added.

Phone calls to Boyer's home in New York went unanswered.

Boyer's script was read over the program by Robert Neville, PM's foreign editor.

Soviet Press Quotes Speech by Matsuoka of Japan

Moscow, Oct. 9 (AP)—The Soviet press published prominently today a speech by Foreign Minister Yosuke Matsuoka of Japan in which he was quoted as desiring peaceful relations with Russia.

Matsuoka was quoted as telling a conference of Provincial Governors Monday that conflict between Japan and Russia would mean that "our countries would pull chestnuts out of the fire for other countries."

The newspaper said Matsuoka called for co-operation by Japan and Russia and elimination of any misunderstandings.

SOME LETTERS LOST "THROUGH ENEMY ACTION"

London, Oct. 9 (CP)—The Postmaster General announced today that some of the letters and parcels for Britain posted in the United States the last week in August had been lost "through enemy action." No further explanation was given, but it was assumed some mails had been on a ship sunk by mine or torpedo.

HOME GUARD ORGANIZATION

Washington, Oct. 9.— (AP)—The United States Senate passed today legislation authorizing organization of "home guards" within States whose National Guard units have been called into Federal Service. The measure now goes back to the House for action on Senate amendments.

Magistrate's Car Sprayed With Shotgun Pellets

Bancroft, Oct. 9.—(Special)— A shotgun blazed once-twice across Highway 62, a mile north of Millbridge shortly after noon Tuesday evidently aimed at the automobile of Magistrate J. L. Lloyd, Northbrook, enroute to police court in this village. Pellets struck the car a foot below the front door, the fender and the running board. Magistrate Lloyd who was alone at the time, was uninjured.

The official was driving at a fair rate of speed and whoever did the shooting shot well ahead of the car. Police believe the shots were aimed at the tires of the Lloyd automobile.

The shooting occurred in a lonely part of the highway near a checkerboard sign marking a sharp curve. A woman, who lives in a house approximately three hundred yards from where the shots are believed to have been fired, distinctly heard the two reports, she told police, but saw no signs of hunters.

Provincial Police Officers Palmatier, Burton and Grayling, of Belleville, R.C.M.P. Corporal W. M. Beatty and County Constable Wells searched the district following the shooting. Sergeant Harry Thompson, and Police Constable Patterson resumed the investigation Tuesday night and today.

Hearing an explosion, while travelling along the highway above Millbridge, Magistrate Lloyd stated he heard a noise like a minor explosion and thought a tire had blown out. As he felt no bumps he continued on his way, but further along the highway his curiosity got the better of him, and he stopped his car to investigate. It was then he discovered the pellet marks on his car.

He continued his way to Bancroft, where he notified Police Constable Palmatier. Later he presided at court, in spite of his experience.

The magistrate did not entertain the idea that the shots were fired deliberately at his car. "I don't think I have an enemy who would resort to such measures", he said.

Toronto, Oct. 9 (CP)—Poor markmanship by a patridge hunter was blamed by Provincial Police for the hitting of the automobile of Magistrate J. L. Lloyd of Northbrook yesterday near Bancroft, Ont., Attorney General Conant said today.

The Magistrate's car was struck by 420 pellets from a shotgun. Provincial Police investigated.

"We find the report indicates a hunter was shooting at partridge and hit the Magistrate's car," Mr. Conant said. "The partridge travelled too fast. Marksmen in that district, I'm given to understand, are better at hitting cars than partridge."

DEPARTURE

It was generally accepted that Sir Reginald—who yesterday asked the Bucharest Government to explain its stand on the German action—would depart himself before the main Nazi forces arrived here.

Only Advance Force in.

So far as could be learned in Bucharest only an advance force of some 4,000 German troops had thus far crossed the border, but other troop trains were said to be on the way and heavier equipment en route by Danube River barges.

German sources indicated the Nazi troops expected to be well established in positions throughout the oil fields within a week.

The first contingents of German troops entered Rumania by way of Hungarian - occupied Transylvania and were greeted by the German population at border towns.

German officers claimed they had been dispatched to Rumania to "defend" the oil fields against any peril and to help the Rumanian army attain a high degree of efficiency.

Five British subjects, including one Canadian, associated with the oil industry in Rumania, already are held by Bucharest police and have become the subject of a formal British protest.

The Canadian is John R. Treacy, native of Chatham, Ont., his wife, also detained, was released last week-end.

Athens, Greece, Oct. 9 —(AP)— Oil companies in Greece have been advised that exports of Rumanian oil to this country now are forbidden, it was reported reliably today.

Greece's chief source of supply is cut off.

Oil executives said they were investigating whether the ban was strictly a political measure or due to some unusual transport difficulty.

Although full details were not given, political circles said they regarded the Rumanian action as a direct result of imminent German military control of the Rumanian oil fields and in the form of an economic blockade of Greece.

A number of foreign oil companies also are affected by the shutting off of the source of supply.

Greece at present has a strict rationing system for gasoline. She is understood to have about a two-months supply of the fuel.

JAPAN THREATENS

"Japan need no longer conduct any diplomatic negotiations with Britain", Nichi Nichi said. "The effect of stationing Japanese forces in Indo-China should now be displayed."

Yomiuri commented in a similar vein.

The Burma Road, built after Japan had succeeded in seizing most of China's seaboard, follows a tortuous 2,000-mile route from Chungking, provisional Chinese capital, to Rangoon in British Burma, which has a common frontier with Indo-China.

Japan's acquisition of Indo-China bases has shortened by some 350 or 400 miles the distance which her bombers would be compelled to fly in an attempt to cut the Road.

Expect More U.S. Assistance for China

Some sections of the Tokyo Press claimed the scheduled re-opening of the Burma Road was only the prelude to more extensive Anglo-United States assistance to China in the form of loans. The Road was closed July 17 by an agreement effective for three months.

Yakichiro Suma, Foreign Office spokesman, declined comment on the Burma Road situation. He said, however, that a previous British agreement to suspend shipments to China via Hong Kong was expected to continue, inasmuch as no time limit had accompanied that agreement.

Suma expressed surprise at the action of the United States in advising its Nationals in Japan to return home as soon as possible.

"We can't understand the necessity of it," he said. Japan has no intention of advising her citizens to quit the United States, he added.

(In Shanghai the stock market fell sharply in reaction to news of the United States' action.)

Yomiuri, commenting on Japanese-United States relations, said they were "more likely to grow worse" in view of the Burma Road re-opening, which was taken here as a new instance of Anglo-American co-operation in applying pressure on Japan.

The paper expressed doubt, however, that the United States "is ready to stake her National fortunes for the sake of China."

"Surely they must know", Yomiuri said, "that the more they (America and Britain) interfere with Japan's efforts to settle the China affair the more Britain must suffer directly. . . . It appears that the United States is being forced to reconsider her policy of intimidating Japan, but it would be difficult for her to change now."

Chinese Jubilant

Hong Kong, (AP)—The Chinese Press in Hong Kong today acclaimed Great Britain's decision to re-open the Burma Road to China as indicating "a clearer understanding of the Far Eastern situation" but predicted it would lead to serious Japanese repercussions.

Re-opening of the Road, newspapers said, would prove advantageous not only to China but to the whole "non-aggression front".

Anxiety at Shanghai

Shanghai (AP)—Foreign observers expressed anxiety today lest Japanese army leaders in China, regardless of Tokyo's attitude, should decide to take action over Great Britain's decision to re-open the Burma Road.

Should Japanese militarists take the matter of retaliation into their own hands, these observers said, serious developments might be expected at Hong Kong, British Crown colony on China's southeast coast.

Uneasiness over the general situation in the Orient sharpened by the United States' action in advising its Nationals to return home, was reflected by the Shanghai stock market, where most shares dropped three to five points from yesterday's closing quotations with few buyers in sight.

Financial experts said the drop apparently was inspired by uncertainty over the immediate fate of foreign investments in the Far East, although the prospects for China's continued resistance against Japan appeared more favorable.

These views were echoed by the Chinese press, which predicted that if Japan should go to war with the United States she would immediately seize all undefended American interests in the Orient. The same commentaries voiced belief, however, that the United States superior resources could eventually crush Japan and force her withdrawal from China.

Washington's suggestion that the United States citizens leave the Orient as soon as possible was accepted by Americans here as clarifying the American-Japanese situation.

The American-owned China press said the suggestion made it evident that "a decision has been arrived at in Washington, and that is that America is ready to fight...."

Declaring that both Japan and the United States appeared to have made up their minds on a fixed course, the paper said that "a headlong collision appears inevitable unless one of them changes its course—but if there should be any turning about the chances are it won't be the United States."

American Missionary Societies speeded arrangements to get their missionaries from the interior of China to the seacoast but many were expected to remain at their posts.

Informed sources said Britain has taken no action to remove her nationals from the Orient.

PERMANENT

In the unidentified south coast town, residents said the German planes turned their machine guns on buses, trains and pedestrians, killing three persons, before anti-aircraft fire dropped one in a park with a great explosion of its bomb load and the other into the sea.

The Air Ministry's night communique, however, reported only one German plane shot down in the day's battles, presumably not yet including those on the south coast. It said one R.A.F. plane was lost but the pilot was safe.

The communique said the German raiders had damaged a number of buildings in London and caused some casualties in daylight raids.

The bombed hospital was described as possibly the hardest-hit building in London where the raiding up to midnight was reported to be the most severe the city has undergone.

Three wings, two housing men patients and one housing women, were crumbled. Most of the patients were 80 years old or over—almost all of them permanent invalid cases.

As rescue crews dug for victims in the debris it was feared that not a single patient escaped either death or injury. How many were dead could not be determined.

The first daylight alarm was sounded some time after sounds of distant firing, apparently high above the clouds, were heard in London.

Raiders also were reported over the east coast. One town was dive-bombed and machine-gunned.

The earliest of the daylight attacks was reported over an east Anglian town where a dive-bomber machine-gunned houses, barely skimming the rooftops. British fighter planes pursued it as it turned away. Bombs fell in the residential section of the town.

British fighter planes were seen in the sky over London just before the first alarm sounded. One group of them pounced on a Dornier bomber which appeared out of a cloud bank over the suburbs.

London Market Hit

Two bombs which fell within 100 yards of each other near a London market did considerable damage to one wing of a large office building and to the front of another well known structure across the street.

The headmaster's house at a famous public school near London was demolished by a bomb during the night. None of the students was injured.

Another heavy bomb fell close to a crowded public air raid shelter in suburban London, blowing out one wall and causing a number of casualties. Several persons were killed in another section when a bomb demolished three houses.

After the night attacks glass strewn streets, heaps of rubble that had been homes and workshops, and lengthening casualty lists were reported from 102 sections of Britain. Thirty-eight of the areas were in London, which again bore the brunt of the bombings.

Thames Estuary District Hard Hit

Next to London, the hardest hit area was the tattered triangle down the Thames to the southeast coast.

Across the choppy strait that is the "no man's land" between Britain and the nearest Nazi camps the Royal Air Force kept steadily at its task of smashing German-held coastal bases and barge fleets.

From Calais to Boulogne spouting fountains of flame glowing red against low-hanging clouds marked British bomb hits and observers on the Kent cliffs heard the roar of explosions.

The Air Ministry announced that other flights "carried out attacks on naval dockyards, industrial plants, and other important military objectives in Germany and enemy-occupied territory."

Cross in Groups of 30

The overnight alarm in London did not last as long as the previous night. Until midnight, however, observers in London said, the attack surpassed any the city has undergone previously in the early night. Raiders crossing the coast in groups of 30, fanned out over the Thames then dived through the London anti-aircraft barrage one at a time.

At times a dozen or more bombers were over the city simultaneously. Sometimes bombs screamed down four or five a minute. "Molotoff Breadbaskets" of incendiary bombs dumped in the suburbs started fires.

After midnight fewer and fewer planes were heard over Central London. The bombings finally eased off and the city was quiet before dawn.

A communique said damage was done to "a number of houses and industrial premises" in London, and added:

Casualties Unestimated

"Full reports of casualties are not yet available. It is feared that some may have been caused in one building in London which was struck by a high explosive bomb and partially demolished, but the indications are that casualties generally have not been heavy".

Casualties elsewhere in Britain were reported, but the number was unestimated.

Fires were started in London and its suburbs, where hundreds of bombs were reported to have fallen in the first hours of the attack. A child was killed and several other persons were injured when a single bomb wrecked a row of homes. A group of workers' apartment houses in another borough was hit.

Shop fronts were damaged by a bomb which fell in a London street and a number of customers in a bar were injured.

Casualties were reported in Essex and towns elsewhere in southeastern England where homes were smashed. The streets of one town were raked by machine-gun bullets. In a west country town a public shelter was hit.

CANADIAN COLONY BUSY AS USUAL

Tremendous Amount of Extra Work Caused by War Around Canada House in London

(By H. J. Fair)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Oct. 9.—(CP)—London's Canadian Colony carries on "with its tails up" despite Hitler's would-be aerial blitzkrieg and wherever Canadians gather in the heart of Empire the slogan remains "business as usual".

At Canada House, they fear the raiders so little that the most popular job during a day raid is that of roof-spotter. There's such a keen competition for the post a waiting list was compiled.

Frederick Hurd, Chief Trade Commissioner, had the first crack at it. L. B. Pearson, First Secretary and Jean Desy, former Consul at Brussels, were among the staff who served their turn.

Work Goes On

In Canadian Railways Offices around Trafalgar Square and in the London offices of leading Canadian banks, work goes on— with some delay due to raids, it is true. While the men work, their wives and daughters spend long hours toiling at the various clubs established for members of the Canadian forces.

The war has produced a tremendous amount of extra work around Canada House.

(Seven lines deleted by censor.)

On another occasion, Lieut. Alistair Buchan, son of the late Lord Tweedsmuir, former Governor General of Canada, and a group from military headquarters, helped extinguish some incendiaries which fell in the district.

No Interruption to Routine

Nothing is allowed to interferre with the general routine at Canada House. When sirens scream all the women workers go to the shelter. If the roof-watcher reports enemy planes in the neighborhood, High Commissioner Vincent Massey works in the basement room which was once a canteen. Sitting on a stove he dictates letters to a secretary whose desk is a boiler.

In order to keep work going, the key men never go out to lunch but have sandwiches brought in. As a further step to combat delays by raids, direct telephone lines have been installed so that business can continue even if the main switchboard does not operate.

R. B. Bennett, former Canadian Prime Minister, still finds it possible daily to come from his country home to his important post at the Ministry of Aircraft Production. He. J. P. Bickell of Toronto and Beverley Baxter, formerly of Toronto, constitute the trio of busy "B's" helping Canadian-born Lord Beaverbrook, Minister of Aircraft Production, give Britain more planes.

WILLKIE LEAVES

trance into the war that our citizens do not know about?" Willkie continued.

"After all, I represent in this campaign millions and millions of voters, and I think I have a right to ask Franklin D. Roosevelt about American participation in the involvements of Europe or Asia at this time."

Three hours later, addressing a crowd near the 125th Street railroad station in Manhattan, he said:

"If you elect me, this country won't go to war until the people say they want war."

Willkie's statement about appeasement was made during a broadcast interview with Oren Root, New York attorney, who organized Willkie-for-President clubs in the pre-convention campaign.

No Appeaser

"Under no circumstances would I appease the dictators," Willkie said in reply to a question. "The search for peace through appeasement has resulted in the destruction of the appeasers."

Contending that a "dagger in the back speech" does only harm, he expressed his belief "in the policy of the other Roosevelt, who said, 'Speak softly but carry a big stick'."

If he is elected, he added, his first job would be to speed up defence production by revitalizing industry.

"We can best aid Great Britain and at the same time serve our own interests by producing promptly and in large enough quantities supplies which we both need," he said.

"We are being edged toward war by an administration which is careless in speech and action. We cannot aid Great Britain by going to war right away."

Italian Hints U. S. Might Have British Territory in America If She Remains Out of War

Tremendous Amount of Extra Work Caused by War Around Canada House in London

Rome, Oct. 9—(AP) — Premier Mussolini's newspaper Il Popolo D'Italia claimed today that "new heavy bolws" against Britain with the intervention of fresh forces are imminent and added British territory in the western hemisphere could go to the United States if she remained out of the war.

The newspaper's military commentator, Mario Appelius, said the United States must choose among three decisions:

1. "To remain neutral until the destruction of the British Empire has been effected and to take its place among its natural heirs" with Canada, Newfoundland, the Bahamas, Bermuda and Jamaica as its "expectations."

2. To continue to aid Britain without intervening in the war and find herself in an "inferior diplomatic condition" when the British Empire is "split up" at a peace conference, as well as in future trade agreements.

3. To enter the war "knowing she is not militarily ready and meet all the consequences of defeat."

The final course, Appelius argued, would be "suicide."

If the United States remains neutral, the commentator went on, she might also get Australia and New Zealand, while British Honduras would go to Guatemala, British Guiana to Brazil and the Falkland Islands to Argentina.

The War Today

(By H. M. Peters)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Prime Minister Churchill has called upon a "great reservoir of domestic organization" to become the "counterpart of our military war effort" in ensuring that the home front stands firm against Nazism.

To do this and to ensure that the Briton who loses his possessions to an ill-directed explosive does not feel deserted and alone, the Prime Minister announced yesterday a new plan whereby owners of property will provide a fund by compulsory charge so that "at the end of the war, if not sooner, and where necessity arises means of carrying on will not be withheld."

So Britain moves along the path of welding all her people into a unit for what the Prime Minister repeatedly states will be a long and cruel war.

Reconstruction After War

Today Ernest Bevin, Labor Minister, told the Trades Union Congress that a Cabinet committee already has been established to handle the problem of the reconstruction of Britain itself after the war is over. Presumably Sir John Reith, newly-appointed First Commissioner of Works, plays a large part in this planning.

The necessity for civilian aid was pointed up afresh by a night of severe bombing that struck at points all over Britain, even while the Royal Air Force smashed at German sea bases, munitions factories and oil plants.

These attacks on Britain undoubtedly added to the figure of 8,500 killed and 13,000 wounded since raids began, and added to destruction in London, Liverpool, Manchester and Birmingham which the Prime Minister said yesterday "will rise from their ruins more healthy, and I hope more beautiful".

The new plans for civilian relief will be given "the utmost drive and capacity of which we are capable", Mr. Churchill said. "Nothing but the needs of the fighting services will stand in the way".

Shelters For Everyone in Menaced Areas

He outlined the plans in general but not in detail, saying shelters with sleeping bunks for everyone in the areas liable to attack will be provided, and care will be taken to prevent large gatherings of people in any shelter "which can only give illusory protection against the chances of a direct hit".

"Large schemes are already on foot for providing food and hot drinks . . . far-reaching measures are being taken to safeguard health under these novel and primordial conditions".

And all the while new methods are being devised "to make wholesale bombing of our civilian population by night more exciting to the enemy than at present".

In the wake of the Prime Minister's long review of the war, which gave so many nations so much to think about, actual war developments were at a minimum today.

Japanese Indications

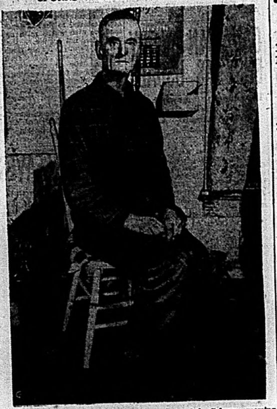
The Japanese indicated that the air bases the Vichy government gave them in Indo-China will be used to bomb the Burma Road when it reopens October 17.

The United States girded itself against a crisis in the Far East. The administration, which has advised its citizens there to prepare to return home, cancelled export bounties on wheat consigned to Far Eastern ports, and ruled that mail for Germany will go by way of the Atlantic.

Madrid presumably pondered Mr. Churchill's reminder that Britain defended her against one aggressor—Napoleon—and only desires for Spain peace and a chance to heal her wounds.

And Italy perhaps wondered what one sentence meant: "Mussolini has some experience ahead of him which he had not foreseen".

SPURNS WEALTHY INHERITANCE



Robert Grosvenor, 68-year-old bachelor kin of the Duke of Westminster, now living in Calgary, has fallen heir to an English estate that may be worth half a million dollars. Mr. Grosvenor, who lives in a crowded Calgary rooming house, declared, "I don't want it. I can't use all of it. I can't even spend the money I already have, and I don't care what becomes of the money as long as England wins the war."

PICKING PLANE PARTS FROM THEIR GARDEN

Mr. and Mrs. F. Fletcher of Surrey, pick up parts of the Nazi bomber, which landed in their garden, after being shot down by anti-aircraft fire. The bomber made a huge crater in the ground, demolished one house and missed a hospital, on its fateful plunge to earth. Unable to get to their shelter in time, the Fletchers crawled under the cellar stairs and luckily too, because the plane demolished their air raid shelter, which was situated under their garden.

Two More Divisions Of U. S. Destroyers Turned Over to Britain

An East Coast Canadian Port, Oct. 8 (CP)—Without ceremony or formality, the Royal Navy today took over two more divisions of United States destroyers turned over to Britain in exchange for naval and air bases in British possession in the western hemisphere.

A naval band led the way as British officers and ratings paraded to the pier at which the "overage" destroyers were tied up. They had been vacated previously by the United States sailors who had brought them to this port. High ranking officers stood by as they marched aboard.

A few minutes later the white ensign fluttered at their sterns. The United States flags had been taken down an hour before.

'Model German Army' For Rumania Say Nazi Spokesmen

Berlin, Oct. 8.—(CP) — "Model German troops are about to leave for Rumania", Nazi spokesman said today, "to act both as a living example to the Rumanian army and to give the Rumanian people absolute assurance of the security at home and abroad which is necessary for reconstruction of this severely shattered state".

The number of troops involved was not disclosed.

In contradition to yesterday's authorized statement, these spokesmen said that no German troops are yet on Rumanian soil.

The "model German army" in Rumania, it was said, will consist of officers for instruction of Rumanian troops and "soldiers who, by their own personal bearing, will be an example for Rumanians and able to demonstrate the method of using every form of German weapon".

CAPTURED AT HIS HOME

Orillia, Ont., Oct. 8 (CP)—Edward Pye, 25, who took the trouble to kick his way out of jail here late yesterday, was recaptured with little trouble today—at home in bed, asleep.

PAY VISIT TO HOME OF CORRESPONDENT

Hong Kong, Oct. 8—(CP)—Police paid a sudden visit last night to the home of S. Kumamoto, correspondent of the Tokyo newspaper Asahi, but said the call was for "wireless inspection" and should not be regarded as a raid.

Police also visited the premises of the Honk Kong Nippo, a Japanese language newspaper.

Another place visited was the Bank of Taiwan.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was smoking to himself in his private chair and ma said, Do you remember the dress that Maud Hews was wearing when she and Yewstace were here a couple of weeks ago, Willyum?

Why yes, it was an affair with a square neck and floopy folds, I remember, pop said, and ma said, Well I should think you would, you went out of your way to tell her how wonderful it was, and you even remarked about it after they'd left for land sakes.

Well, you agreed with me, didn't you? pop said, and ma said, Of course I did, but that's not the point.

Well what's the point for Peet sake? pop said, and ma said, The point is, we weren't even talking about clothes in generel and you changed a perfectly irrelevant subject to drag in the marvelousness of Maud Hews's dress in particular.

Yee gods, I dont recall waxing hysterical on the subject, pop said. I didn't say it was one of the 5 finest dresses since the invention of mercerized fig leaves. I cant see how my little remark merits all these delayed reverberations, he said, and ma said, Apparently there are many things that you dont see, and chief among them is the glaring fact that I've been wearing an exactly iddenical dress all evening, down to the exact shade that you professed so loudly to admire so much, although I'm relieved to say I wear a considerably smaller size than Maud Hews, but what's a use, and this just goes to prove it.

The dooce it does, pop said. If you had taken enough common ordinary intrist in me to notice that I'm wearing a beautiful new necktie chosen for your special benefit, I would of immeeditly reciprocated by announcing that I have been admiring that dress ever since I came home, he said, and ma said, Willyum Potts you're wearing that old weather beaten tie that I've vainly tried to throw out for 2 years and I think you're terrible.

The result being pop took her to a movie to apologize.

Japan Hit by Ban on Copper

Canadian Producers Forbidden to Export Copper Except to Empire and United States

Ottawa, Oct. 9 (CP)—Canadian copper producers were forbidden today to export any of the metal, except to Empire countries and perhaps the United States.

The ban was announced late yesterday in a statement issued after a meeting of the war cabinet. The announcement said it is now probable that all available Canadian copper will be needed to meet United Kingdom and Canadian needs, and added:-

"In these circumstances, since no copper will be available for export from Canada except to British Empire countries and possibly the United States where it may be needed in completing Allied munitions contract, no further (export) permits will be issued."

The stoppage on copper export permits followed by less than a fortnight United States action in banning shipments of scrap iron and steel to Japan, and a suggestion by Angus MacInnis (CCF-Vancouver East) that Canada should co-operate with the United States by banning shipment to Japan of scrap metals and other war materials.

However, last night's statement did not mention Japan by name.

Japs Use 240,000 Tons a year

A week ago, officials here said Japan used about 240,000 tons of copper annually, and Canada supplied about 18,000 tons of the amount, on the "definite understanding with the purchaser that the copper will be used for domestic consumption only." The copper was exported from British Columbia in the form of concentrates.

The statement said that no scrap iron or steel had been exported from Canada since October last year. No zinc or nickel had been exported since February, except to the United Kingdom, Allied countries and the United States, no aluminum had been exported since April, and no cobalt since August.

Shipments of other metals and minerals from Canada to destinations outside the Empire and the western hemisphere had been kept "within the limits of our normal peacetime trade with the other countries concerned."

The unexpected has occurred for these children after a night of German air raids. The pig-tailed, book-carrying young ladies had already reached the schoolhouse door when the building superintendent turned them away with a "No school today." The girls do not seem duly depressed. A few days later the bomb wreckage was cleared and school was resumed.

Two Small Children Burned About Mouth After Taking Pills

Trenton, Oct. 9—Two small children were rushed to the Belleville Hospital this morning suffering from poison they had taken when they found some black pills in the bathroom of their home. The two boys, Donald, age 4, and Carl, age 2, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Pitman, were severely burned about the mouth and internally by the poisoning.

Police were informed of the incident when Mrs. Bernice White, of Dundas Street West, telephoned to state that the two children had taken poisoning and that she had been unable to locate a doctor. Chief William Bain located Dr. E. A. McQuade and rushed him to the Pitman home.

After rendering first aid to the youngsters Dr. McQuade took the children to the hospital where a stomach pump was used. Their condition is reported as favorable today.

Charged With Car Theft

Arrested while walking on Dundas Street last night, Leonard Henry Burley of Trenton, was charged with the theft of an automobile owned by Melville Howe of Trenton. The car was stolen from a parking lot on Front Street late Saturday night. Police checked the district for the car and located it in the village of Colborne on Sunday, where the owner took possession of it.

Burley was arrested on the charge after a thorough investigation into the theft and was remanded in custody for one week.

Hollanders Wave Handkerchiefs As British Pilot Flies 50 Miles Across Fields

London, Oct. 10—(CP)—Increasing the scope of its counter blows against Germany to include daylight as well as night forays, The Royal Air Force today announced raids deep into Germany and occupied areas, and new setbacks to the functioning of the German war machine.

The Air Ministry said the R.A.F. successes included hits last night on enemy destroyers moored at Brest, important port at the tip of Brittany.

Again reported bombed were the big Krupp factories, supply depots, railway yards, barge concentrations and shipping.

In one daylight raid, said the Air Ministry news service, railway sidings 50 miles east of Munster were hit by bombs that "burst clean across the tracks."

Photographic Bomb Lights Five-Mile Area

Rochester, N.Y., Oct. 10—(AP)—At conclusion of a preview last night of a new high-powered photographic bomb, Major George W. Goodard, United States army observer, said "There have been times when an extra hour of daylight would have changed the history of the world. We have that daylight here!"

A dozen times the photographic bomb burst over Rochester, each time lighting a five-mile area "with the light of day." Each time, too, a synchronized aerial camera snapped the scene from 5,000 feet in the air.

Why The Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen
Science Service Meteorologist

World weather! Weather happenings are by no means the same the world over. It is only north and south of the great trade winds belts that haphazard changes of temperature and days of rain occur, caused by the comings and goings of cyclones and anticyclones, as in our own north temperate zone. In the trade wind belts, roughly the tropical regions, the weather is marked by rainy and dry seasons, with no marked temperature changes. The only interruptions are the occasional tropical hurricanes. The weather forecaster in the tropics has an easy time except during the hurricane season.

EAGER YOUTH BEGINS TRAINING

First Day Sees 750 Young Men Arrive to Undergo Compulsory Training

Brockville, Ont., Oct. 10 (CP)—Swelling the ranks of recruits who arrived Tuesday night from points in the Upper St. Lawrence and Upper Ottawa Valleys, several hundred young men marched into No. 30 Military Training centre here yesterday, ready to begin 30 days of compulsory training. By last night a strength of about 750 was attained.

Medical officers began examination of the recruits as soon as the men were settled in their hutments.

Brockville and Leeds County men were posted to No. 1 Company, in charge of Maj. J. Cummings, Kingston. Frontenac and Addington men went to No. 2 Company, under Capt. William Awbury and Lanark and Renfrew recruits to No. 3 Company under Maj. H. R. Starr, Brockville.

Taylor Young of Glasgow in Renfrew County, was reported to be the first recruit to arrive. He drove here in driving rain Tuesday. Officers said his eagerness was characteristic of the whole enrolment, who seemed to be anxious to get into uniform and get their training started.

Cornwall, Ont., Oct. 10 (CP)—Routine of registering, medically examining and outfitting recruits who arrived at the military training camp here yesterday went on "like clock-work," an officer on the Administrative Staff at the camp said last night. He reported that the camp's quota of 750 men had been exceeded by about 50, and that number likely would be transferred to other camps within the next few days.

Britain to Hold Reserve of Wool In United States

London, Oct. 10—(CP)—The British and United States Governments have agreed that Britain will hold a reserve of wool in the United States to be available for purchase by the United States "in the event of an emergency," the Ministry of Supply announced today.

The Ministry said the reserve could consist of 250,000,000 pounds from the Australian wool clip which has been purchased by Britain.

The arrangement will not interfere with ordinary commercial purchases of wool from Australia or elsewhere by American importers, it added.

Thousands of 'Missing' Men, Women In Unoccupied France Being Released

(Editor's note: After covering the war on the French-Italian front, Lloyd Lehrbas, Associated Press staff writer, spent three months studying the Petain government in action at Vichy and then visited almost every corner of Unoccupied France to see how Frenchmen are living under present conditions. He has just returned by Clipper to the United States.)

(By Lloyd Lehrbas)
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

New York, Oct. 10.—(AP)—After months of imprisonment some of the thousands of "missing" men and women of all nationalities in Unoccupied France are being released from concentration and internmet camps where they have lived hard and bitter lives during the agony and downfall of the French Republic.

Just before I left Unoccupied France the French authorities released 400 Belgians from the concentration camp at Du Vernet near Toulouse. They were presumably the last of the several thousand one-time Allies of the French who were thrown into concentration camps in the chaos following France's capitulation.

An estimated 20,000—and the figure may run much higher—are still held, however, at Du Vernet, San Cyprian near Perpignan, Gurs in the Basse Pyrenees and several smaller unpublicized camps. Their release depends on the direction the Petain-Laval government policies take and permission from Berlin after the Gestapo has checked names and records.

Most of the unfortunate prisoners of circumstances are men without a country as a result of Germany's invasions.

American investigators of the Red Cross and Friends Service Committee who have been able to enter some of the camps for relief work discovered, however—to their surprise—that several hundred South and Central Americans are also held.

BRITISH BREAK WITH RUMANIA NOW APPARENT

Legation Officials Begin Destroying Documents in Preparation for Leaving Bucharest

BRITONS LEAVE CAPITAL

German Language Press Opens Violent Anti-British Campaign

Bucharest, Oct. 10—(AP)—British legation officials began destroying documents today, apparently indicating a break in diplomatic relations with Rumania is near.

High ranking German officers arriving in Bucharest took over choice suites in the leading hotels and rushed from conference to conference making preparations for garrisoning Nazi soldiers soon to be stationed throughout the country.

British authorities said they had no new information concerning the arrival of German troops in Rumania, but one official said he had personally seen Italian army officers at Galatz on the Danube, 100 miles from the Black Sea.

The German language press opened a violent anti-British campaign. The Tageblatt, generally considered inspired by the German legation, devoted columns to the British-Rumanian "impasse."

Airmen Recount Story Of Battle Against Fire In Mid-Air to King

London, Oct. 10—(CP—Cble)—The King heard a thrilling story of a battle against fire in mid-air when he decorated Flying Officer Clare Connor of Toronto with the Distinguished Flying Cross and Wireless Operator John Hannah with the Victoria Cross at Buckingham Palace today.

His Majesty congratulated both the airmen. Connor was accompanied to the investiture by his wife and his sister.

The plane which Connor commanded and in which Hannah was a member of the crew was returning from a raid on Antwerp when fire broke out in the bomb compartment, burnt away the floor and exploded thousands of rounds of ammunition.

Two members of the crew were forced to bail out but Hannah, an 18-year-old Scot, stayed to fight the blaze while Connor remained at controls. The fire was extinguished eventually and the plane reached its base.

Sqdn.-Ldr. Ern. McNab, 2 Members of Squadron Awarded D. F. C. by King

By Sam Robertson Canadian Press Staff Writer.

London, Oct. 10 (CP Cable)—Sqdn.-Ldr. Ernest McNab of Regina and two members of the Royal Canadian Air Force squadron he commands have been awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross for the daring and skill with which they are helping beat back the German air attacks on Britain.

Flying Officer Rod MacGregor and Flying Officer Dahl Russell, both of Montreal, are the pilots who are honored with their "chief."

The Canadian formation which has destroyed 30 Nazi bombers and fighters in less than the seven weeks it has been in action thus wins its first awards for valor.

Add to the raiders known to have "hit the deck" those classed as probably destroyed or so badly damaged by the Canucks' accurate fire that it is doubtful they could have returned to their home stations and the squadron's bag borders on 75.

McNab, described by one of his men as a "helluva scrapper who is a handful for any three Germans he meets upstairs"—upstairs being air force jargon for the sky—shot down a Nazi bomber and its crew of four on his first battle in the clouds Aug. 15. The doughty veteran of the RCAF. was flying with an R.A.F. formation at the time to "get the feel of things."

When he led his squadron into its first engagement Aug. 24 they destroyed two raiders and have been going strong ever since.

ITALIANS DISPLAY SUDDEN ACTIVITY AT SIDI BARRANI

British Believe Graziani Preparing for Drive to East

BRITISH PREPARED

(By Edward Kennedy)
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

With the British Forces in Egypt, Oct. 10.—(AP)—Sudden activity of Italian desert patrols around Sidi Barrani after three weeks of quiet led British military men to believe today that the Italians are making final preparations for their expected drive to the East.

The British forces, reinforced by Australian, New Zealand and Free French troops, are confident they can throw back such an offensive. Five months of war with Italy, during which the position of Great Britain in Egypt has been vastly improved, have strengthened that confidence.

Despite predictions of the Fascist Press that Italy would oust Britain from the Mediterranean on her entrance into the war last June 10, Britain still holds both ends of what Italians call "mare nostrum" (our sea) and his disrupted communications between Italy and Libya.

Canadian Nurse Rescues 6 Women From Bombed House

London, Oct. 10.—(CP)—Gwen Davis, a nurse in the East Anglican Hospital, was credited today with rescuing single-handed six women from the wreckage of a home for refugees destroyed by a German bomb.

It was feared the death toll from the blast last night might reach twelve.

"I was walking past the home", the nurse said, "when I heard a bomb whistling down. Looking up I could see the bomb in the bright moonlight. The man with me tried to fling me to the ground and fell on the ground himself. I sprawled over him and there was a terrific crash. It seemed like the end of the world.

"Bricks and other debris fell on me and one of my legs was cut by glass.

"I got up and shook the dust and glass from me. I went into the wrecked house and dragged three women who were less seriously injured than the others out into the open.

"Then I went back and succeeded in getting another three out. After awhile some soldiers came and helped".

FRENCH SUB REPORTED LOST

New York, Oct. 10.—(AP)—The German radio, in a broadcast heard here, said today the French Admiralty at Vichy, France, had announced the loss of the French submarine Ajax.

It quoted British reports as saying the craft was sunk by British naval forces in the Gulf of Guinea, and the personnel of 63 landed at Free Town, Africa.

The Ajax, of 1,384 tons surface displacement, was one of the same type as the Persee which was sunk off Dakar, French West Africa.

CANADIAN PRESS CORRESPONDENTS IN LONDON LUCKY

Six Members of Bureau Living in Large Apartment Building Barely Escape Bomb

THROWN FROM BEDS

By Harold Fair Canadian Press Staff Writer.

London, Oct. 10 (CP Cable)—If the German raider who dived with his engines shut off early this morning had waited for another fraction of a second before releasing his bombs, six members of The Canadian Press London staff would have been homeless—to say the least.

Three eggs which tumbled from the belly of the bomber landed at either end and in the central courtyard of a big block of flats in which live the half dozen whose hair is still standing on end.

A high explosive bomb that tore up the courtyard smashed the main entrance, shattered hundreds of windows littered the hallway with debris and tore plaster from the walls of scores of apartments.

That one landed 25 feet from two "Canadian Press apartments," in one of which live Pat Ussher of King, Ont., and his wife, who is Secretary of the CP Bureau. The other is shared by D. E. Burritt, Toronto, Douglas Amaron, Montreal, Louis Hunter, Quebec, and the still jittery writer, from Arthur, Ont.

CASUALTY LIST 'SMALL' DESPITE RAIDS' INTENSITY

Raider Brought Down by A. A. Battery in View of Prime Minister Churchill

PROMENADE BOMBED

London, Oct 10 .(CP)—Waves of German warplanes dropped incendiary and high explosive bombs on London last night and early today in the longest and one of the worst all-night raids on this Capital.

More than 50 districts of the city were hit, but a government communique said first reports indicated the casualty list would be "small." Raids also were carried out against Wales and Southwestern, Northeastern and Northwestern England but they did not compare in violence with the attack on London.

British airplanes, the Ministry said, struck back by bombing "military objectives and communications in Germany and invasion ports in enemy-occupied territory" during the night.

German airplanes returned to the attack on London today soon after the dusk-to-dawn raiders had disappeared. The first alarm was brief.

ALTAR OF ST. PAUL'S CATHEDRAL DAMAGED BY BOMB

Missile Crashes Through Roof at Eastern End Missing Dome

LONDON LANDMARK

Choir Stalls in Cathedral Not Damaged — Thousands Worshipped at Altar

London, Oct. 10—(CP)—Destruction of the high altar of St. Paul's Cathedral by a German bomb was announced today.

St. Paul's, for centuries a London landmark, is the work of Sir Christopher Wren 17th Century architect, and contains the tombs of Wellington and Nelson.

A single German bomb, missing the great dome already menaced many times in the past two months, plunged through the roof at the eastern end and, with a terrific roar, smashed to fragments the altar where generations had worshipped. The choir stalls were undamaged.

No date was fixed for the destruction, but it was disclosed that a famous church was hit shortly before midnight last.

Menaced by nearby fires early in the massed air attacks on London, the cathedral was saved from possible damage Sept. 15 by a "suicide squad" which unearthed a 1,000-pound time bomb nearby.

The bomb was removed after four days and nights of digging, trundled away and exploded harmlessly in the Hackney marshes.

A Canadian, Lieut. Robert Davies, formerly, of St. Catharines, Ont. directed the crew. The Dean of St. Paul's, Very Rev. W. R. Matthews, declared "the whole nation owes a debt of gratitude" to the crew.

Lieut. Davies was decorated with the George Cross.

St. Paul's was bolstered in 1925 with steel bands and concrete pillars to enable the dome to withstand the vibration of heavy street traffic. The grimy church stands atop Ludgate Hill.

The bomb exploded actually on the double eastern roof, a little distance from the great dome which distinguishes the cathedral.

Liner Queen Elizabeth May Leave New York

New York, Oct. 10.—(AP)—Arrival of 190 British seamen gave rise to waterfront reports today that the Queen Elizabeth, largest and presumably the fastest ship in the world, will soon leave for troop transport service between Australia and Egypt.

The 85,000-ton liner was tied up here last March 7 after a secret maiden voyage from Britain.

Her sister ship, the Queen Mary, and the Mauretania left New York several months ago to serve as troopships.

Camera Shows Disease Germs Travel Mile-a-Minute as Result of Sneezing

(By Stephen J. McDonough, Associated Press Science Writer)

Detroit, Oct. 10—(AP)—The germs and viruses of the common cold, influenza, infantile paralysis and other diseases travel at mile-a-minute speed from one person to another.

For many years people have been taught to cover their mouths and noses when they cough or sneeze, but today for the first time three scientists of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Cambridge, Mass., demonstrated the actual necessity for it to prevent diseases of the nose and throat from leaping from one individual to another.

In a report before the American Public Health Association, Dr. Clair E. Turner, Dr. Marshall W. Jennison and Dr. Harold E. Edgerton demonstrated in pictures that the droplets of a sneeze or a cough speed through the air at the rate of more than a mile a minute and have a range of 30 feet or more.

A second hazard, in addition to the actual bombardment of germs and viruses from one person to another is the delayed action of tiny droplets which hang in the air for several minutes and become a hazard for anyone who walks into them with his mouth open or is drawing his breath.

The Massachusetts Institute scientists determined the speed and range of the disease bullets by photographing sneezes and coughs with a high-speed motion-picture camera capable of taking pictures at the rate of 6,000 per second or "still" pictures with an exposure of only one millionth of a second.

By having the high speed cameras ready, tickling the subject's nose or throat and photographing the resulting sneeze or cough, the public health workers were able by exact measurements to determine the size and number of droplets shot out by the person, their velocity, the distance they travelled and the time they hung suspended in the air.

Thus, they pointed out, one sneeze might infect an entire hospital ward or, with proper dispersion and minimum physical resistance of the recipients, half of a small audience at a play or motion picture.

General De Gaulle Wildly Acclaimed At Port of Duala

Cameroons Decided Some Time Ago to Continue War on The Side of Great Britain

Duala, Cameroons, With the De Gaulle Expedition, Oct. 9—(delayed)—(AP)—General Charles de Gaulle landed here today and raised his standard of the Free French forces on French soil for the first time since the German-French armistice.

Gen. de Gaulle stepped ashore at 12:30 p.m. from the gunboat Commandant Duboc which took part in the ill-starred attempt to land at Dakar.

He kissed Governor General Leclerc on both cheeks and then the two reviewed native soldiers and sailors and French troops of the Cameroons garrison on the pier.

The Cameroons decided some time ago to join De Gaulle's movement to carry on the war against Germany.

A great cheer went up from members of the De Gaulle expedition as an officer of the garrison shouted on their arrival:

U. S. OFFICIAL IS CALLED HOME

Washington, Oct. 10 (AP)—Alexander Kirk, United States charge d'affaires in Berlin, has been called back to Washington for consultation.

The State Department, announcing this, said Kirk might later assume the charge d'affaires post in Rome because William Phillips, Ambassador to Italy, was too ill to return immediately to his post.

Edward L. Reed, charge d'affaires at Rome, also has been ordered back to the State Department.

Kirk has been in charge of American affairs in Germany about two years since Ambassador Hugh Wilson was summoned home.

WELL KNOWN AUTHORESS DIES

Bedford Hills, N.Y., Oct. 10 (AP)—Miss Katherine Mayo, 72, author, best known for her book "Mother India", died at her home yesterday after a long illness.

She was engaged for more than forty years in literary activities designed to expose unwholesome social or political conditions and to bring about reforms. She was working on a volume on the narcotics traffic when she died.

Fascist Spokesmen Deny British Report

Rome, Oct. 10 (AP)—Fascist spokesmen described today as "ridiculous, absurd and erroneous" London Press reports Field Marshal William Keitel, Chief of the German High Cmmand, had replaced Marshal Rodolfo Graziani as Director of Military Operations in North Africa.

(The London Press today published the reports as originating in Cairo. The change was said to have been a result of last Friday's Brenner Pass Conference between Hitler and Mussolini).

Canadian Plants Helping Royal Navy

By FRANK FLAHERTY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Oct. 10, (CP)—Canadian plants are now turning out many of the things that help make the Royal Navy a fighting unit formidable enough to dominate the seas—and they soon will be producing more.

Vice-Admiral Alfred E. Evans of the Royal Navy has much to do with this development. He is chief of the British Admiralty Technical Mission in Canada and in cooperation with Canadian industry and Canadian Naval Headquarters he is encouraging industrial developments along lines never touched before in the Dominion.

Once the United Kingdom with its great shipyards, armament and ordnance plants supplied the needs of Navies of the British Empire, including the Canadian, as well as many non-empire fleets.

Now it is necessary to supplement British production and at the same time create alternative source of supply out of range of enemy bombers.

Few Canadians know it but thousands of miles of Degaussing cable have been made in Canadian factories. This was the Royal Navy's answer to the German magnetic mine. It takes many miles of cable to outfit a single ship.

"Every war produces new weapons and we have to find the antidote for them," Admiral Evans said today. "The magnetic mine is the only new naval weapon produced by the Germans so far in this war, and it didn't take the Navy long to find the answer."

Sirens Sound But 'Tis Only a Thunderstorm

London, Oct. 10—(CP)—Sirens sounded in London and thousands dashed for air raid shelters when several mysterious explosions rolled over London. It turned out to be a brief thunderstorm. Bomb-wearied Londoners had forgotten what real thunder sounded like. The ensuing all clear signal and the explanation produced many sheepish grins.

However, real fireworks soon mingled with the thunder. A plane flew low over a London shopping district, dropping a bomb and anti-aircraft guns opened up.

16 YOUNG MEN ENROL FOR COURSE

Sixteen young men from Belleville and immediate district have enrolled at the Belleville Collegiate in the Dominion-Provincial Youth Training Course in electric and oxy-acetylene welding and are now attending classes daily from 7:30 a.m. until 5:30 p.m. The classes were started Wednesday, October 9, and will be continued under much the same schedule as those held at the Collegiate during the months of July and August when approximately thirty-five young men took the course.

Of the sixteen already enrolled at the collegiate in this course, six come from some distance north of Belleville, it was learned with three making the trip daily to attend classes from Madoc. Men enrolled in this class will make much more favourable progress than students taking the same course at night school, where only two short periods are given weekly.

QUEEN ALEXANDRA H. & S. CLUB MEETS

The first meeting of the fall season of Queen Alexandra Home and School Club was held on Tuesday in the form of Open Night when the teachers were in their classrooms, and parents had the opportunity of visiting and consulting with them. There was a large attendance of mothers and fathers, who visited the classrooms from 7.30 to 8.30.

An interesting program took place in the auditorium, with the school band in attendance. Miss Ethel Smith sang a delightful solo. The business part of the meeting was presided over by Mrs. Ralph Morden, president. Mrs. Rankin won the autograph contest. The evening came to a happy conclusion with a social hour during which refreshments were served by mothers of children in Mr. Anderson's room.

Students of City Schools And O.S.D. Practise Fire Drill

Three thousand two hundred and forty-seven pupils, students of the five public schools, the Separate School and the Belleville Collegiate took an average time of one minute and three seconds to empty schools in fire drills held this week. The drills are part of the program in connection with Fire Prevention Week, which is being held October 6 to 12.

Queen Alexandra School with 475 pupils made the best time of all city schools taking exactly 45 seconds from the time the alarm was sounded until the school rooms were evacuated. King George School with 362 pupils was next in line taking just five seconds more before the all clear signal was sounded. Queen Mary School with an enrollment of 393 and St. Michael's Academy with 530 pupils took 55 seconds, while Queen Victoria School with 487 pupils went one minute and 10 seconds. The Belleville Collegiate with an enrollment of 1,000 students was emptied in one minute and 45 seconds from the alarm. Considering the fact that this is a three storey building the above time was exceptionally good, according to Fire Chief Lynch, under whose authority the tests were made.

Fire drill was also held at the O.S.D. and the time taken here for 200 pupils of the institution to march out of class rooms in the approved orderly fashion, compared very favorably with any of the city schools. Only 50 seconds were taken from the time the alarm was given until the school was empty.

To the fact that teachers are staging more fire drills in schools was attributed the splendid time made in each case where the tests were made, stated Chief Lynch.

Air Vice-Marshal Croil Visits Trenton Air Station on Wed.

Personnel of Air Base Inspected and Air Marshal Takes Salute in March Past

Trenton, Oct. 10.—Commending the officers and airmen for their fine appearance on parade, Air Vice-Marshal Croil made his first address to the personnel of the Trenton Air Station since he was appointed Inspector General of the Royal Canadian Air Force.

The Air Vice-Marshal paid a surprise visit to the Trenton Air Base yesterday afternoon, accompanied by Air Commodore E. Brooks. Arriving at the station shortly after noon, the whole personnel of the Air Force was lined up on the parade grounds for the inspection.

"There is no doubt that we will win the war," stated the Inspector-General, "but we still have a long struggle ahead of us. The Air Force is doing a wonderful job in the defence of England and it is up to us to build up huge reserves so that the Nazis will be routed from the skies."

The Inspector General called upon every man to do his best. Every man is an important cog in the Empire Air Training scheme and by doing his best he will aid the building of the largest Air Force in the world.

Following his short address to the personnel, the Air Vice-Marshal took his place in front of the Administration Building where he took the salute as nearly 2,000 officers and airmen marched past.

At the saluting base with the Inspector General were Air Commodore E. Brooks, Group Captain J. Sully, Wing Commander F. S. Duncan, Captain W. J. Province, Flight Lieutenant Denton Massey and Flying Officer A. E. Hammon, A.P.M.

Air Vice-Marshal Croil accompanied by the above officers made a thorough inspection of all parts and schools of the Trenton Air Station, during the remainder of the afternoon.

Accidental Death Is Verdict

"Accidental death" was the verdict of a coroner's jury investigating the death of nine-year-old Delbert Buck, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Buck of Leopold Street, at the inquest probing the death, last night. The driver of the truck, Herman Keetch of Nassau Street, Oshawa, was completely exonerated by the jury from any blame in the accident.

The young boy was killed on Saturday afternoon last, when he fell from his bicycle under the wheels of a heavy transport.

According to Miss Ann Bedore, a witness to the accident, the boy seemed to falter as the truck went past. "He seemed to try and grab the truck as he fell but he missed and fell directly in front of the rear wheels of the transport."

Mr. Richard Buck, father of the deceased boy, who was also a witness to the accident was parked on Francis Street waiting for a relative. "I noticed the boy riding east on Francis Street and at the same time the truck alongside of him. For some reason he just seemed to topple from the wheel under the truck. I immediately got out of the car and ran to the boy."

"The bicycle seemed to wobble quite a bit," Kenneth Cummings of Oshawa, another truck driver, who was following the Keetch truck, told the jury. "The boy seemed to be uncertain and looked as if he was just learning to ride the bicycle. As the truck drew alongside of the boy, the bicycle wavered a couple of times and the rider fell towards the truck."

Driver Saw Boy Riding

Herman Keetch, the driver of the truck, informed the jury that he saw the boy riding the bicycle on the side of the road and allowed a considerable distance between the truck and the curb for the boy. I didn't know anything was wrong until I felt a bump and heard a scream. I immediately stopped the truck and found the boy lying on the road."

Constable F. Lozo, who investigated the accident testified that the truck stopped approximately 45 feet from the body of the boy. "From my investigation, the truck travelled in a straight line after striking the boy, until it stopped and at no point was the right side of the truck nearer to the curb than nine feet, which would allow room for the bicycle. The truck stopped in 45 feet, so that it could not have been travelling very fast."

The jury was William Heaney, Samuel Jenners, John H. Kinney, James H. Reddick, Victor Ryan and Ralph Weaver.

HANSON ATTACKS WAR RECORD OF FEDERAL GOV'T

Conservative Leader States Canadians Should Not "Sell Our Souls for Theory of Monroe Doctrine"

Halifax, Oct. 10—(CP)—Rather than lean too heavily on the United States Conservative leader R. B. Hanson believes Canadians should throw their resources behind Britain, "our defender and the bulwark of our liberties."

While much good might come from the Canada-U.S. defence discussions, he told the Nova Scotia Conservative Association last night, Canadians should not "sell our souls for the theory of the Monroe Doctrine." They should preserve their "self-respect."

Lashing out at the Federal Government's war record, he declared a parliamentary committee inquiry was justified by the "indictment" of one of the U.S. newspapermen who recently made a tour of the eastern war activities. The writer, Hanson Baldwin of the New York Times, had declared "in effect, that Canada is just beginning to move and that it will be 1941 or 1942 before she is in full stride."

Called Qualified Observer

Describing Mr. Baldwin as a qualified and impartial observer, the party leader said the indictment in what he wrote was "sufficient to call for a committee of inquiry in to what the government has been doing since Parliament adjourned."

"We are still woefully inadequate," he asserted. The first division had gone overseas "less well-equipped than any we sent overseas in any war." Now, it was as well-equipped as any in the British army, but practically none of the equipping had been done by Canada.

The Opposition had had to drive the government from one step to another to help the Mother Country win the war. Prime Minister King claimed the first Canadian objective should be defence of Canada; the Conservative party claimed it should be "the defence of our defender."

Claims Plan Pigeon-Holed

He did not want to belittle the Ogdensburg, N.Y., talk between Mr. King and President Roosevelt. In fact, he said, the Conservative party had initiated similar conversations between 1932 and 1935. The outcome had been a "secret" plan for national defence, taking into account the proximity of the United States. Mr. King had pigeon-holed this plan.

Mr. Hanson laid alleged lack of enthusiasm for Canada's second war loan to two factors. The first was that "apparently the war is being conducted as a Liberal war." The second was "the tremendous amount of partisanship in war contracts."

"There must be a decided change in the manner in which this war is being carried on," Mr. Hanson asserted. It was up to the Conservative party to so build itself up that "the country can be saved for Canadians."

"UNCONQUERABLE STRENGTH OF BRITAIN"

A noble expression of the elements which make for the greatness of Britain and the continuity of her history was that of the British Prime Minister when he accepted the leadership of the Conservative party. Mr. Churchill also defined the high service which the citizen can render to the state when he said,

> 'I will venture most humbly to submit and also to declare because it springs from convictions of my heart, that at all times according to my lights and throughout the changing scenes through which we are all hurried, I have always faithfully served two public causes which I think stand supreme—maintenance of the enduring greatness of Britain and her Empire and the historic continuity of our island life.'

His words based on glories of the past are prophetic of the future for all can see how the nation which has endured through so many centuries with her idealism unshaken will continue.. .Truly... Mr. Churchill in these following words is also a prophet:—

> 'Alone among the nations of the world we have found means to combine empire and liberty. Alone among the peoples we have reconciled democracy and tradition. For long generations—nay over several centuries—no mortal clash or religious political gulf has opened in our midst, alone we have found the way to carry forward the glories of the past through all storms, domestic and foreign, that have surged about, and thus to bring the labors of our forbears as a splendid inheritance for a modern progressive democracy to enjoy.
> 'It is this interplay and interweaving of past and present which has in this terrible ordeal revealed to a wondering world the unconquerable strength of a united nation. It is that which has been the source of our strength in that achievement.'

He pleaded for the sacrifice of party interests and feelings in this cause of complete unity and then said,

> 'In no other way can we save our lives, and what is far more precious than life, the grand human cause which we in our generation have the supreme honor to defend.
> 'It is because I feel these deep conceptions lying far beneath the surface current of party politics . . . It is because I feel that these convictions have always been yours and have always been mine that I accept solemnly but also buoyantly the trust and duty you wish to confide in me.'

Therein he expressed the love and attitude of the people of Britain of various political parties towards the great task to which Britain is bound by her record among the nations and by her ideal of freedom. In her service to the world of modern progressive democracy in the Empire and the world and to those nations which, when this war ends, will then come the opportunity to love freedom and liberty as a result of Britain's war in their behalf for the cause of liberty and justice, truly will the glories of the past and present of Britain still shine upon mankind.

ADVICE ON HOW TO PREVENT FIRES

With the weather at hand when fires are necessary in dwellings and with colder weather probably but a month or more away when the heating of dwellings will be in full swing, it is well that on the occasion of fire prevention observance, the fact that the best place in which to train in fire prevention is in the home should receive notice. Here are some of the bits of advice which will be found of value:—

Periodic inspection of all heating and lighting equipment.

Chimneys and pipes kept clean of soot.

No smoke pipes permitted through combustible walls.

Disposition of ashes safeguarded.

All electric drop cords insulated and not supported on any conductive material.

Electric irons always detached when not in use and kept on metal stands.

Matches kept out of the reach of children.

Children should be told of the dangers of fire and not to play with matches.

The safety match which may be lighted only on the box is the safest type.

Closets kept clean.

All rubbish removed from the entire premises.

ADVANCE OF MOVIES

The movies have an anniversary. It is 29 years since at the old Blondeau Tavern in Los Angeles David and William Horsley set up their cameras and launched the great industry which has entertained the world, widened the scope of human interest and touched the whole fabric of life so that the world will never be the same as it was before the motion picture was developed. A bronze memorial tablet is to be unveiled at this spot.

In Hollywood studios are to be found the real monument to the farseeing enterprise of these brothers. Today Hollywood's products are valued at one fifth of a billion dollars and employment is afforded to more than thirty thousand persons.

It is fitting that William Horsley should live to this day to see the steady development of the art which he helped by his skill with the camera and by his vision. He is to be honored and the unveiling ceremonies will be broadcast and later will be seen and heard in theatres.

Did the Horsleys come on the scene at the appointed time? Would there have been the big development of the movie even if they had not caught time by the forelock and made it subservient to their artistry?

DICTATORS MUST BE GUARDED

How little safety there is in the lands of Hitler and Mussolini when both these champions of violence travel in highly armoured trains and are stoutly guarded.

In Britain the King and Queen walk among the evidences of the enemy's vandalism and destruction and talk with the people who have been victims of the German raids. They need no armoured car. But the Axis chiefs, who have earned the enmity and scorn of mankind, guard themselves in a way which proves how little faith they have in their own violent civilization or rather barbarism and how little faith they have in their own defenders of the air.

Our King and Queen are not protected by armour-plated trains but are shielded in the love and devotion of their people, while the dictators dare trust no one.

Bergen Adopts Girl, ToBecome Ventriloquist

Hollywood, Oct. 10 —(AP)— Dapper Charley McCarthy now has a new little adopted sister—in the flesh—who hopes some day to become as great a ventriloquist as his own famous mouthpiece, Edgar Bergen.

She is 12-year-old Thelma Jean Graham, whom Bergen adopted from a Nashville, Tenn., orphanage and placed under legal guardianship of his secretary, Mary Hannahan, for the purpose of educating and training her to become a ventriloquist.

"She is a great little actress and a natural-born entertainer," said Bergen in explaining that the adoption agreement at present is for one year. "If after that she does not progress satisfactorily, she will return to Nashville, but if she advances as I think she will, I hope to make a real little trouper out of her."

The adoption, schooling and training of Thelma Jean is only a part of the philanthropic work the radio and stage comedian is conducting under the "Edgar Bergen Foundation" he has established. Helping airplane pilots through advanced training schools so they may receive better jobs and financing girls' expenses through nursing courses are other projects.

Mussolini Reviews 20,000 Young Fascists

Padua, Italy, Oct. 10 (AP)— Premier Mussolini reviewed 20,000 young Fascist volunteers encamped on this historic Plain today in a military demonstration which some observers believed might be a prelude to some new thrust by the Axis armies.

This belief was supported by the newspaper Il Picolo which claimed the review was "a prologue" to undisclosed events to come.

Delegations from semi-military Fascist type organizations in Spain, Hungary, Rumania and Bulgaria participated in the review in addition to a group of German Nazis.

Diplomatic representatives of the same five countries also were assembled in Padua to greet Mussolini on his arrival from nearby Baona, where he inspected 22 battalions and 18-year-old recruits and then witnessed a sham battle for the second time in two days.

YOM KIPPUR or The Day of Atonement

(By Rabbi Louis Axelred, Rabbi of the Belleville Jewish Community)

Jews throughout the world will this friday at sundown usher in the most impressive of Jewish holidays —Yom Kippur—which will continue until Saturday evening.

In all parts of the world, wherever the Jew resides, this Holy Day will be received with a reverence which only the fear of God can imbue in the love of man and the Jew will observe the commandment of afflicting the soul by not partaking of food or drink during the period from sundown to nightfall.

No other Holy Day has undergone such a transformation since it was ordained. The Biblical scheme of atonement so elaborately set out in the Talnud was a grand spectacle in which the chief actor was the High Priest: Ritualism in Excelsis. Through the scene there passed bulls and goats, incense, oblation, ablutions and many sprinklings. Then the signal for the exchanging of the wisp of scarlet wool which fluttered over the Temple gate for one of fleecy white, a sign that pardon for transgressions had now been received. To mark the joyous event, throngs of young people flocked to the hills of Judea and engaged in dancing and merriment till the candles of the night were burned out and a new and jocund morn flushed the mountain tops.

By its nature, this day shares with the New Year the distinction of being everyman's day of spirit, for it has no specific national, or agricultural, association. But more than Yom Kippur makes the Jew—the Jew makes Yom Kippur. He brings with him to the Synagogue its solemnity, his historic conscience and a sense of solidarity with the whole community. Strongly avowed in his heart is the desire for recovered fellowship and "at-one-men" with his God and fellowmen.

Atonement! Forgiveness! These wonderful terms as understood by all civilized humans since man recognized his mission upon the earth, has always meant an automatic purification of the soul, and a mind made up to discard the folly of transgression, not to be indifferent to the welfare of our fellow citizens, but to follw in the path of progress and to elevate the standards of humanity. But, alas, for the Jew has already known for centuries that to some humans, beasts in the human form, not a thousand Yom Kippurs could atone for the atrocities they have suffered at the hands of these savages. And on this Yom Kippur, on this Day of Days, many Jews will be privileged to congregate, to assemble, to observe the services in Synagogues. But although the body of man may be shattered, his soul can never be broken, and in no matter what terrifying conditions the Jew exists today, in an atmosphere of ruin and devastation where the Houses of Worship have been desecrated by the cowardly brute force of Hitlerism, his heart and his soul will remain unscathed, and he will continue to offer up his prayers for the return of sanity to mankind — praying to God to atone and forgive.

But if the symbol of Yom Kippur means so much, not only to the Jew, but also to his fellow-citizens, Jew and non-Jew alike, linked together with the spirit of Democracy, it can, however, have no meaning whatsoever for Hitler and anything he stands for. Can that beast expect a pardon for the terrible sins he has committed; for the sin of torpedoing boats without warning, upon which innocent women and children are passengers; for the sin of cruel bombings of hospitals and the killing of helpless cripples; for the sin of losing tyranny upon peaceful communities in Poland, Czechoslovakia and elsewhere; for breaking up homes, for killing children—their eyes terror-stricken, stretching out their tiny feeble hands for a piece of bread—their parents brutally torn away from them and not understanding why this terrible tragedy has befallen them; for the sin and for the sins which cannot be counted? No! There shall never be atonement for this ruthless maniac. He will never be condoned.

Congregations will assemble in Synagogues, and with bowed heads will pray with zeal for a speedy victory for the British Empire —that Democracy shall rule this world. May this Yom Kippur bring an end to tyranny and may there emerge upon us a "new heart and a new spirit" in the confidence and belief that the dark clouds over civilization's sky will vanish and that humanity will rejoice in the triumph of Freedom and Right.

WEDDINGS

CANDON—MURPHY

St. Mary's Cathedral, Kingston, was the scene of a pretty Autumn wedding Saturday morning, September fourteenth, when Rev. Father O'Neil united in marriage Mary Edna, oldest daughter of Thomas Murphy and the late Mrs. Murphy, Sicco, and Vincent Joseph Candon, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Candon, Read, Ont.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was attractive in her wedding gown of white net over white slipper satin, made on long princess lines with buttons from the neck to waist. Her double tulle veil caught with orange blossoms and seed pearls, in a halo style, fell in a circular train. She carried an arm bouquet of Premier roses and maidenhair fern.

Her bridesmaid was Miss Margaret Styles, Hull, Quebec, who was gowned in shell pink chiffon over satin, with a matching shirred jacket. Her hat was of the same shade made in a bandeau style. She carried a bouquet of yellow mums and maidenhair fern.

Mr. Lorne Murphy, brother of the bride, was best man.

During the ceremony, Miss Noreen Murphy, sister of the bride, sang in her usual pleasing manner, "Soul of My Saviour".

Following the ceremony a wedding dinner was served in the Plaza Cafe to twenty relatives of the bride and groom. The three-storied wedding cake centred the table. During the dinner Mrs. Hugh Hickey, Godfrey, Ont., aunt of the bride, gave the toast, which was responded to by the groom.

Following the dinner Mr. and Mrs. Candon, left amidst showers of confetti and good wishes for Toronto, Hamilton, and Niagara Falls. The bride travelled in a navy blue pebble crepe dress, navy coat and wine accessories.

On their return Mr. and Mrs. Candon will take up residence in Kingston.

Out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Candon, Mrs. Frank McGurn Master A. McGurn and Mrs. Thos. V. Corrigan, Read, Ont.; Miss Margaret Styles, Hull, Quebec; Mr. Thos. Murphy and Mrs. Hugh Hickey, Godfrey, Ont.; Pte. Austin Murphy, Camp Borden; Mr. J. C. Murphy, Mrs. Hubert Dillon and Mrs. Stafford Murphy of Enterprise, Ont.

Here's How to Relieve MISERY of COLDS
Without Dosing

There's nothing to swallow. Massaged on throat, chest and back, Vicks VapoRub acts two ways at once to relieve misery of colds.

FIRST: VapoRub acts on the skin, stimulates like a warming poultice.

SECOND: At the same time, VapoRub gives off soothing medicated vapours that are breathed direct into irritated air passages.

THIS DIRECT, 2-WAY ACTION loosens phlegm, clears air passages, checks tendency to cough—also relieves muscular tightness and soreness.

Because it's external and safe, VapoRub can be used freely and as often as needed, for children and grown-ups. No wonder it's used in 1 out of 3 Canadian homes.

DR. DAFOE'S COLUMN on the Quintuplets and the Care of Your Children

Child Training

I read a dispatch about a boy of seven who was lost in the woods for seventeen hours. When he was finally found, he was on his feet, still unafraid. The terrors of the forest and the night hadn't dented his spunk for a moment. The feeling of being lost hadn't conquered him.

When I read the story, I wished I could have met the spunky young fellow and even more, I wished I could have talked with his mother and the father. I would like to get pointers from them on how to train a child. For giving the youngster all credit for having good stuff in him, he must have had a remarkable sensible training to enable him to come through such a trial unshaken.

I'll wager, for instance, that when he was "bad," his mother didn't threaten him with, "I'll give you to the policeman," or "The bogeyman will get you." No, I'm sure this boy was never threatened or never frightened by his parents in an effort to get him to do something he didnt want to do.

Some mothers never seem to realise that when they frighten a child into doing something, they probably are doing him more harm than good. They are sowing seeds of fear that may produce a life-long harvest.

Every child is born with a certain amount of natural courage, and parents should carefully nurture it. A child can be disciplined without the employment of fear. It can be made cautious without being made craven.

I believe that fear is more an acquired characteristic than an inherited one. Our children's courage is what we elders make it.

We have had some very interesting experiences with the Dionne Quintuplets. They have very little or no fear of anything, because we have never shown that we expect them to be afraid. When they were vaccinated, we told them that the needle would scratch them and hurt a little. They were prepared for it and they had confidence that we weren't going to let them be hurt badly.

When I call in other medical men to examine the children they always marvel at the nonchalant way each of the children lets her nose, or throat, or ears be explored. They just aren't afraid, because they have never had fear thrust upon them.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Cares For Another Man

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a married woman of 24, have a splendid husband, and a darling baby girl. However I'm unhappy.

I thought I loved my husband when I married him, but there was always a soft spot in my heart for another man, almost ten years older than myself. He left town when I married, and I didn't see him again until just recently. We were, all three of us, very good friends.

All of a sudden one day it happened. By accident we touched hands and discovered that this older man and I are madly in love. But I've always been true to my husband as his wife. Not even a kiss has passed between this other man and me.

We've discussed divorce and marriage, but that would mean a complete break with my family, friends and even my baby. Please, Miss Fairfax, what shall I do?

Martha

The fatal step has been taken by many men and women to their great sorrow and utter disillusionment. Have you thought what it would mean to give up your baby, an excellent husband and your family, just for a few thrills?

Life is indeed 'daily', as a very wise philosopher has told us, and thrills evaporate even as soap bubbles burst. In a few weeks or months, your life with this older man would become just as "daily" as your life with your husband plus all the losses you would have had to experience.

Better say goodbye to this older man who did not ask you to marry him when you were free to do so.

A Rolling Stone

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Our weekly date was to meet at a club dance on Saturday evenings, but when the season closed, my girl friend said it was up to me whether I'd see her any more.

I wasn't working then, and her father helped me to get a position which paid me about seven dollars a day. But I quit this job because I thought I could make more money elsewhere and because the boss and I didn't get along.

When I asked the girl if her father could help me get another position, she told me that she was sick and tired of getting jobs for her friends, and that three of them had written to her trying to get jobs. Now she wants me to get myself a job and save my money. How can I win this girl?

Jim.

The best way to win a girl these days is to prove you are thrifty and capable of maintaining a home, and also that you can stay put. A man who would give up a position which pays seven dollars a day creates neither the impression of thrifts nor good judgment.

If you can command such top-notch wages, you must have a good trade or profession. My advice is to get a job, as the young lady says, and hold it and save.

Would Like to be More Popular

Dear Miss Fairfax:

We are two high school girls in our 'teens and read your column every day. Now that school is in session again, we'd like to get a little advance information. We want to get acquainted with nice boys at school without appearing too bold. We're not exactly unpopular, but we just don't seem to be asked out very often. Our parents don't object to our going out.

We're both neat with pleasing personalities, good family backgrounds and good reputations. When we meet any of the boys in the halls or on the campus, we don't seem to be able to stop and carry on a conversation without feeling backward.

Help us in our problem so that we will know just how to act toward the boys.

Two Girls in Distress.

It's a truth as old as the hills that interest creates interest, and if these boys feel that you're interested in them and would like to know them better, that's the first move in the right direction.

There is no way in which the ice can be broken so easily and agreeable as by giving a party. Why don't you club in with several other girls and give a joint party? Also take an interest in the things these boys enjoy—dancing, athletics, even politics—everyone is interested in politics at the moment.

The Pot Luck supper will be postponed.

The Treasurer, Mrs. Brown, having resigned Mrs. Bird was appointed to take her place.

*Family vote endorses experts

"What ready-to-eat cereal is the favourite in your family?" This question was put to 2000 housewives right across Canada. Five times as many said Kellogg's as said any other brand of corn flakes! Why? It's their flavour! Mr. F. G. Baillie, Superintendent of Vernor's Ginger Ale, and developer of Cleco Flavours, says: "I was happy to join the distinguished group of flavour-experts who had already taste-tested corn flakes in an impartial blindfold test. You can certainly quote me as saying Kellogg's Corn Flakes are first for flavour!"

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Renew The Friendship

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

While spending a vacation at a resort about 300 miles from here, I met a man who generally spends week-ends most of the year at the hotel where we were staying. He took me to many dances and so forth both week-ends I was there. When I left he asked for my address, explaining that he would like to see me again but that he "never wrote letters." When I gave him my address, he gave me his card on which was his business address and telephone number.

Now I find that I am going back to this hotel, with my cousin, for a week-end. Do you think it would be proper for me to let him know that I will be there? I do not want him to feel that I expect him to take me out or to spend his time with me that week-end. On the other hand, I would very much like to have him know that I am too expecting to spend the week-end there. What would you advise?

Puzzled

My advice is that you do not write this young man..that you just appear at the hotel the week-end you intend to, and leave it to him how much of his time he wishes to give you, what parties he wishes to ask you to. Writing to him, to inform him of your arrival, would look forced, more than a bit too eager for his company and his invitations. You'll be there, he'll probably be there..and I hope good fortune will be there to ripen the friendship pleasantly!

Engaged Girl's Parents' Duty

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it proper for the engaged girl's parents to invite the young man's parents to luncheon or dinner after the engagement, or isn't this necessary?

V. T.

First, directly after the young man has told his parents of the engagement, they go to call on the girl and her mother, or her mother and father, to welcome her into their family and to tell them of their delight at the news of the engagement. This is the important social move, and after this has been done, any social gesture of either family to the other is proper and gracious.

Girl Speaks First

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When a girl meets a boy on the street, a boy whom she has met recently, and only one, who should speak first, the boy or the girl?

K.

The girl has the privilege of speaking or bowing first.

Hostess Does All Inviting

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it necessary for a hostess who is planning a shower for a bride-to-be to send a special invitation to the grandmother or aunt or other relatives of the prospective groom, or is it all right just to let the groom invite them?

D. R.

The invitation to the shower.... especially such important invitations as those to the relatives of the groom-elect.... should be sent by the hostess. The invitations should be direct ones from the hostess, not indirectly given, either through the groom-elect or anyone else.

CHATTERTON W. M. S.

Mitts; and reading by Mrs. F. Lough. Each member took part in the Missionary leaflet program. A hymn and benediction concluded the meeting.

Here's What the Champions say:
"Make Jams and Jellies with CERTO... it's quicker... it's easier and it's SURE!"
3 out of 4 Prizewinners in Jam and Jelly making contests USE CERTO
Mrs. J. S. Wardner of Belleville, Ont.—Prizewinner at both the Shannonville and Tweed Fairs, says: "I always keep a bottle of Certo on my pantry shelf. I can make perfect jams and jellies with so little trouble and effort. I appreciate the confidence Certo gives me in making prize-winning jams and jellies."
Why Certo Saves You Time, Work, Money—Yet Gives You BETTER Jams and Jellies.
So quick—so much less work
It's so quick and easy to make jams and jellies with Certo. For jam you need give only a one-minute to two-minute full rolling boil . . . for jellies only a half-minute to a minute. As Miss L. Miller, Prizewinner at Vermilion Fair (Alta.) says: "The Certo method is ever so much faster."
More Jam or Jelly
In this extremely short boil very little juice can boil away. So you get up to half again more jam or jelly. "You make more from the same amount of juice, as you do not need to boil it down," writes Mrs. T. O. Farnsworth, Prizewinner at Compton County Fair (Que.).
CERTO is concentrated FRUIT PECTIN . . . the natural jellifying substance extracted from fruit in which it is most abundant.
Fresher Taste and Colour
Owing to the short boil there is no loss of fresh taste or natural colour such as happens in the old-fashioned long boil. Mrs. Mabel Colwell, Prizewinner at Saskatoon Exhibition agrees: "The colour and flavour are much superior," she writes.
Results assured
With Certo you get a free book of tested Certo recipes. Only follow them exactly and you will have success. "I have never had a failure with Certo," writes Mrs. R. Clubb, Prizewinner of the Morris Fair (Man.).
FREE BOOK OF 72 RECIPES
Under the label of every bottle of Certo there is a book of 72 tested recipes for Jams and Jellies. Different fruits need different handling, so Certo gives you a separate recipe for each fruit. . . . Be sure to follow each recipe exactly.

Best Smoke of the Day

After prolonged silence Reeve Pugsley spoke what was in his mind.

"Do you know what I think?" asked he. "I think the last smoke before going to bed is the best smoke of the day."

Mr. Picobac savoured the flavour of the prime Canadian burley smouldering in the bowl of his pipe.

"No", replied he at last. "Not when you smoke Picobac."

"Well then", suggested Mr. Pugsley, "the first smoke after breakfast?"

"No", said Mr. Picobac.

"I guess you mean the first smoke after dinner, eh?"

"No", said Mr. Picobac again.

"What, then?" demanded Mr. Pugsley.

"There is no best smoke", replied the philosopher with a smile. "Picobac is ALWAYS a mild . . . cool . . . sweet smoke."

Canada's Warplanes in Air, H. & P. E. Regt. in March Past Gives Tweed Fair War Touch

More Than 4,000 Throng Grounds Under Ideal Weather to View Exhibits

GOOD RACING

Splendid Entertainment Provided by Directors of Well-Known Fair

Tweed, Oct. 10.—(Staff)—Canada's warplanes, brilliant October sunshine flashing from their wings as they wheeled, dived, rolled and swooped in formation and singly against the blue of an autumn sky, and the marching feet of a company of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment's N.P.A.M. battalion, gave the 1940 edition of the Tweed Fair a truly warlike touch on Wednesday. Upwards of four thousand people thrilled to the sight of the planes and militia, and enjoyed one of the best exhibitions staged by the fair directors in many a year.

The milling jostling thousands, that enjoyed an exceptionally high class program of entertainment, horse-races, exhibits and all the functions that go toward making a successful country fair, was a living tribute to the efforts of the directors to give the residents of their village and county the best obtainable. And in contrast to other years, when noticeable lapses tended to make the affair drag, there was not a dull moment. Perfect weather, conducive to good humor of massed crowds, was in evidence; the exhibits were outstanding; the entertainment was first class, and events ran off without a hitch.

Program of Dancing

On a raised dais opposite the grandstand, where that colorful microphone maestro, Tommy Mason, held forth, a high-class program of dancing and singing was given by the troupe of Miss Mary Forster, of Belleville. Sawyers of the north country and of other parts of Hastings vied for titular honors and prize money in the log-sawing contest. Ladies of the district and from far-flung parts of the province tested their skill with hammer and nails in a nail-driving competition. Gurgling babies, pride and joy of proud parents, were entered in the Baby Show in a nearby tent.

On the track some of the finest horses in the district gave lovers of this sport the thrill of their lives. According to Starter George Tice, the meet was one of the best he has officiated at this year. Running horses, afforded an additional thrill, while a novelty potato race by contestants on horseback provided a touch of comedy for the large crowd.

Smart in their summer battle dress, with rifles at the slope, "B" Company of the H. and P. E. Regt. N.P.A.M., marched down the track to the accompaniment of a bugle band. Halting in front of the grandstand they were inspected by Lieut. Colonel B. C. Donnan, Officer Commanding the Regiment, and the Company C.O. Major Newall Broad, M.C., M.M. Later they "marched past" the saluting base near the grandstand where Lt.-Col. Donnan took the salute. Cheers greeted the soldiers as they swung by the crowds.

Splendid Midway

The Midway was one of the best seen in Tweed in many a year. The space allotted to this part of the entertainment was literally filled with concessions and tents. Weight-lifting, age guessing, the baseball throw, the ubiquitous merry-go-round, fortune tellers, candy-sellers, mystery shows in tents, dancing girls and all the color and glamor that go to make this form of entertainment outstanding was present. Hot dog stands did a land-office business. Red Cross nurses, immaculate in their familiar caps and uniforms sold tags for their famous organization.

The exhibits, according to a director were not as numerous as those of other years, but this fact did not deteriorate from the fine quality shown. Holsteins, Ayrshires, Jerseys and beef strains of cattle were well represented, while swine and poultry exhibits were good. Proud Belgians, Percherons and other draft breeds of horses added to the color of the livestock while carriage horses, and other varieties also stood out. Draft teams in harness made a pretty picture as did single harness standard-breds. The whole took part in a colorful parade past the grandstand late in the afternoon.

Dairy Products Good

Dairy products were good if not plentiful. Ladies exhibits, and school-children's work, fruits and preserves, vegetables and flowers rounded out a fine display. High school athletes vied for competition at the end of the regular program. Step-dancing and old-time fiddling contests were cancelled through lack of musical instruments.

One of the best received items on the program was the dancing exhibition by pupils of Miss Mary Forster. Seven talented little dancers in smart and brilliant costumes were accorded prolonged applause. Mrs. Calvert acted as accompanist. Several of the acts included songs which were given in splendid style by the clever performers.

The variety of dances executed with grace and ease, the result of careful training and practice, included a military tap on drums, an Irish jig, an acrobatic number, a toe tap, Highland fling and sailors' hornpipe.

Those taking part were Madeline Walden, Mary Lou Pigden, Valerie Fleming, Doreen McKinnon, Emily Mae McCullough of Belleville, and Barbara and Pat Nicol.

Doll on Exhibition

On display yesterday was the beautiful doll from England by means of which the class is raising funds for refugee children.

78 EMPLOYEES RETURN TO WORK

Threatened Strike Vote at Oshawa Plant Did Not Materialize

Oshawa, Ont., Oct. 10—(CP)—A group of seventy-eight employees of the chassis division of the General Motors Plant here will return to work today, pending negotiations between company officials and representatives of the United Automobile Workers of America. The seventy-eight left their jobs last Friday and a strike of 3,000 plant employees threatened.

A threatened strike vote, authorized at a mass meeting of the union membership last Monday, did not take place at a mass meeting of approximately 1,500 workers last night. Instead, a statement issued over the signature of George Burt, regional director for Canada of the U.A.W., said the seventy-eight strikers would go back to work today and that the union's bargaining committee and company officials will meet Friday in an attempt to settle differences.

Statement Issued

The statement said in part that "after the grievance procedure has been complied with in this particular dispute, and if the answer from the management is not satisfactory to the union, any further action that is deemed necessary will be promptly taken and will receive the full support of the International Union."

The statement added that the policy of the U.A.W., "as laid down in convention is that all grievance procedure must be exhausted before strike action may be taken." The meeting last night decided not to take the strike vote for which the emergency session had been called.

The Grievance Committee of the union, an affiliate of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, met earlier yesterday with the executive of the plant, which is the major Dominion plant of General Motors. No statements were issued from this meeting.

Trio of Cormorants Seen at Pt. Traverse

South Bay, Oct. 10—A trio of cormorants are disporting about in Point Traverse waters. This paper's correspondent came upon these rare birds yesterday, and their appearance in local waters is quite unusual. The cormorant is a large, web-footed bird of the pelican family. The common species has the head and neck black; the coverts of the wings, the scapulars, and the back, of a deep green, edged with black, and glossed with blue. These birds occupy the cliffs by the sea, feed on fish, and are extremely voracious. They are also known by the name of searaven and coalgoose. It is not often that they find their way eastward from the coast but one was killed by a hunter at Point Petre a few years ago.

Speed Up Air Training, 40 Per Cent Increase In Students Planned

Intake of Recruits for Training Will be Stepped Up in Ratio of 5 to 7, Air Minister Power Announces—Training Period to be Cut From 16 to 14 Weeks but Operational Training Period Overseas May be Lengthened

(By Frank Flaherty, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Oct. 10—(CP) — A further acceleration of the Air Training program has been decided upon Air Minister Power announced today. The course for pilots in the service flying training schools, recently reduced from 16 weeks to 14 will be further reduced.

The intake of recruits for training as pilots, air observers and air gunners will be stepped up in the ratio of five to seven, said the Minister. That is, where the training program as it stands calls for five men, seven will be taken on and trained an increase of approximately 40 per cent.

The effect will be a larger number of men passing through the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan Schools in Canada but not necessarily an increase in the rate at which pilots trained here go into action overseas.

Likely Longer Training Overseas

Maj. Power said while the service flying training period in Canada would be shortened it was likely the operational training period overseas would be lengthened. Thus Canadian-trained pilots will spend more time on the actual battle-type planes before going into action than was contemplated up to the present.

The minister made the announcement at a press conference attended by some ten newspaper correspondents. With him were James J. Duncan, Deputy Minister, and Air Marshal W. A. Bishop, V.C., director of recruiting for the Royal Canadian Air Force who recently returned from a flying trip to England.

Other statements made at the conference were:

The percentage of accidents in Air Force training in Canada is "extremely low;"

Double the number of Australian and New Zealand aircrew men originally expected will come to Canada for advanced training within the next few months;

Air defences on the Pacific coast are being strengthened "right along;"

The air force wants about 1,000 men with a good all-round knowledge of modern radio equipment for immediate enlistment, some for almost immediate service overseas.

Discussing the acceleration of the pilot-training schedule, Maj. Power said the elementary flying training schools, all civilian-operated, would handle the increased number of student pilots which would be required to keep the service flying training schools working at capacity on the shortened course.

No further curtailment of the seven-weeks course in the elementary flying training schools is contemplated. That course was shortened by a week from the original eight-weeks course earlier this summer.

Home Air Defences

Canada's home air defences on the Pacific as well as on the Atlantic Coast are being strengthened "right along" said the Minister. On his recent trip to the Pacific Coast he said he visited many of the air stations nearing completion or under development. He was impressed with the fine spirits of the airmen on duty at isolated stations.

He said he didn't know whether the establishment of any joint facilities for Canadian and United States air forces on the Pacific Coast was contemplated.

"I don't want to fool anyone," he said. "It is a fact that we haven't got the aircraft nor the personnel for all our projected squadrons at both coasts."

Air Cadet Movement Succeeds

The Air Cadet movement, recently started, has taken on well, the Minister said. Many persons had offered their services as voluntary instructors and there is wide interest.

"Our difficulty may be the springing up of a lot of independent organizations hard to co-relate in a general plan," he remarked.

BRITISH GOV'T TO SPEED UP RAID SHELTERS

Home Secretary Says New Program to Shelter Population Now in Motion

MORE SMALL HAVENS

London, Oct. 10 (CP)—Britain's new home secretary, Herbert Morrison, told the House of Commons today the Government has in motion a big new program to shelter the populace from air raids, but he warned Britons ironically they should "sue for peace now" if they hoped for complete immunity.

In his outline of his air raid defence policies, he declared it unlikely whole populations ever could be protected from air raids in modern war.

"We knew what to expect when we entered the war," Mr. Morrison declared, "and we are now experiencing, as civilians, what was experienced by soldiers in the last war.

"Horrible as it is, we must go through with it or surrender.

"We are not going to surrender because it would mean for many years something much more terrible than our present experiences."

Mr. Morrison said it was "very doubtful" if deep shelters could be provided for the whole populations of such cities as London, Liverpool and Glasgow and urged dispersal in small shelters rather than in large, communal shelters as the best immediate remedy.

Speed Up Shelter Construction

He pledged:—

1. Quick speeding up of shelter construction.
2. A quick survey of underground railway accommodations to make the best use of the tubes.
3. An investigation of deep shelter possibilities with an "open mind."
4. Official control of supplies and prices of brick, cement and possibly other building materials.
5. More Anderson family-sized steel shelters.
6. A "code of behavior" for people using shelters.
7. First Aid equipment in all public shelters.
8. The Government to pay for sanitary arrangements.
9. The taking over of large houses as billets for the homeless.

Will Step Over Heads

"We shall accelerate to the fullest extent," he said, the work of "additional shelter construction".

"If local authorities do not do their jobs, I will step over their heads."

He denounced the cry for deep shelters, saying, "There are people who are demanding this, sometimes I am bound to say, for mischievous political reasons and sometimes doing it in ways which are almost Fifth Column in effect and I am not always sure they are not Fifth column in intention".

Commenting that he, the son of a London policemen, now is responsible for the Metropolitan Police "and to some extent for the police forces of the whole country", Mr. Morrison added—

"No one man could run this great city with its immense diversified interests—not even Hitler" The House roared with laughter.

Inspector Lougheed Given Important Job

Toronto, Oct. 10 (CP)—Provincial Police Inspector William H. Lougheed today was delegated by Attorney-General Conant to inquire into the policing of Barrie following the town's council request for aid. Inspector Lougheed will start his inquiries tomorrow.

Mr. Conant said there is now an extra personnel of Provincial Police in Barrie of seven men, with a total strength of nearly 15 officers.

"We've increased the detachment to meet needs of the rural area around Barrie," Mr. Conant said. "The question arises whether a similar situation exists in Barrie. But we don't police urban areas, unless in emergency such as a strike which would be a temporary measure. This situation may be permanent."

Inspector Lougheed recently completed an investigation into the Kitchener police force resulting in a general shakeup and appointment of a new chief.

Princess' Message To be Heard by Radio In Victoria Ave. Church

Worshippers at Victoria Avenue Baptist Church on Sunday, October 13th., at the morning service will hear the broadcast address by Her Royal Highness the Princess Elizabeth who will speak from the British Isles to the children of the Empire throughout the world.

As it was realized that everyone desires to hear message of the young Princess and that to permit the congregation to hear her it would be necessary either to receive the message from a radio in the church or to dismiss the Thanksgiving service before twelve o'clock in order to allow the members time to reach their homes, it was decided to have the broadcast brought to the church, so that everyone of the congregation would be able to hear and the Thanksgiving service could as well be carried out in its entirety.

Canadian Air Squadron Used as 'Shock Troops' Says Air Marshal Bishop

Ottawa, Oct. 10 (CP).—The Royal Canadian Air Force fighter squadron overseas, Flight No. 1, has built up an "amazing reputation" in battling the Hun over England, Air Marshal W. A. Bishop said today.

He said the squadron, commanded by Sqdn.-Ldr. Ernest McNab of Regina who has been awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross, is "used as shock troops".

To a group of newpapermen the Air Marshal, lately returned from England, graphically described an action in which they took part.

"I was biting my lips," he said. "They were sent up to intercept a raid of 175 machines. The orders were passed quietly around, "Tell No. 1 Canadians to take the air . . . tell them to rendezvous with the Polish squadron on such a line."

Then . . . "Tell them to move to another line" (that was the Maidstone line.)"

Then . . . "Canadians have sighted the enemy—tell Canadians and Poles to attack . . ."

The Air Marshal said the days when the pilot was the hero of an air fight were over and honors were shared by gunners and observers.

He paid tribute to Air Vice-Marshal Keith arke, McNab's chief. When asked to go to see Parke, Marshal Bishop was told "He's the man who fights with us."

Marshal Bishop thought this meant there was trouble between the Canadians and Parke, but he found out it merely meant that the Vice Marshal who is nearing 50 years of age, insisted on going up in a single seater Spitfire and fighting alongside his men.

THREE THOUSAND NEW TYPE TANKS WILL BE BUILT

Total Output of Cruiser Type Will Cost About $150,000,000

Ottawa, Oct. 10— (CP)—Designs of a new type of tank are being completed and preparations are underway to manufacture 3,000 in Canada, Supply Minister Howe told The Canadian Press today. The total output now planned will cost approximately $150,000,000.

It is understood the new machine will embody the best feature of British and United States tanks of a medium sized, cruiser type.

Mr. Howe said the tanks will be manufactured in a Canadian plant or plants but arrangements had not reached the stage where he could make a formal announcement.

It has been known for some time that departmental experts were engaged on designing a Canadian type tank to be manufactured here for the Canadian and British forces.

Tentative plans are for Canada to retain 1,200 of the new tanks while the remaining 1,800 are to be manufactured for the British government.

Question Discussed With U. S. Over Supplies to Japan

London, Oct. 10 (CP)—The question of withholding war supplies from Japan and possibilities of American-British co-operation on the Pacific Ocean are being discussed with the United States, Richard Butler, Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, told the House of Commons today.

Mr. Butler avoided giving direct replies to numerous questions concerning the United States and Japan in an exchange with Col. Josiah Wedgwood, Independent, who asked:

What progress had been made in ragard to British-American co-operation in the Pacific;

Whether the Russian, Chinese and Netherlands governments were co-operating or being consulted;

Whether there was possibility of American protection for the Netherlonds East Indies.

"The questioner may rest assured that the importance of contact with friendly governments on matters of common interest is fully appreciated by His Majesty's Government," Butler replied.

MOOSE BROUGHT HERE FOR COLD STORAGE

A moose from the woods of Northern Quebec made its way into the city a few days ago, but only a few people were privileged to see the "Monarch of the Canadian Woods." The big fellow was shot by an American tourist in the sister province and brought to the Graham Cold Storage plant where he lay in frigid comfort until called for by the owner.

Only a few wild ducks, brought down by local hunters have found their way to the plant thus far, but the ordinary quota will happen along in the near future, according to plant officials.

Service Losses 8,725 Killed and Fatally Wounded, 10,315 Missing, 1,057 Died and 1,770 Prisoners

RAF SUFFERS LEAST

Air Casualties 5,887, Army's 22,179, Navy's 10,011, Civilian Total of Dead is 8,500, Wounded 13,000

London, Oct. 10.— (CP)— The army, navy and air force have lost 21,867 men dead, missing or captured and 16,210 wounded—altogether 38,077 casualties—since the war began, according to official lists released today for publication.

Not one of the three services announced casualties so great as the civilian toll marked up in the German air siege.

Prime Minister Churchill announced October 8 that about 8,500 civilians had been killed and 13,000 wounded up to October fifth.

The service losses announced are a total of 8,725 killed and fatally wounded, 10,315 missing, 1,057 died, and 1,770 held prisoners by Germany and Italy, in addition to the names of 16,210 injured already announced, or a casualty total of 38,077.

The air force suffered least. Its total was 5,887. There were 22,179 army casualties and 10,011 in the navy.

Outbreak of Hog Cholera in Essex Now Under Control

Ottawa, Oct. 10.—(CP)—Officers of the Health of Animals branch, Department of Agriculture, have been battling since August an outbreak of hog cholera in Essex and Kent counties, Ontario, and are getting it under control it was learned today.

The disease has been depleting hog stocks in Western Ontario for the past year but it reached almost epidemic proportions the past two months in the counties concerned.

Dr. G. S. Barton, Deputy Minister of Agriculture, said every possible precaution was being taken to prevent spread of the highly contagious disease.

At this time of year in Western Ontario hogs are turned loose to feed in the fields, Dr. Barton said, and the Department is trying to encourage farmers to keep them in pens as much as possible as a means of lessening spread of the disease.

Hog cholera germs may be carried by human beings and by birds, which adds to the difficulty of controlling it when animals are allowed to run loose.

The disease is sometimes brought on among pigs fed on garbage which contains food not completely cooked.

It strikes quickly and is usually fatal but in the controlled areas the hogs are killed at once when the disease is discovered. Farmers are compensated by the government up to two-thirds the value of the animal with a maximum of $15 for grade hogs and $50 for purebred.

Chiang Kai-Shek Sends Inspiring Message to Comrades

Chungking, China, Oct. 10 (AP)—Gen. Chiang Kai-Shek, in a message to the Chinese people on the 29th anniversary of the Chinese Republic, declared today that "China is approaching the stage of final reckoning with Japan."

Making his first public reference to the German-Italian-Japanese alliance, he said:-

"China's determination not to submit to brute force—but to resist to the end—will dash Japan's fond hopes of quickly concluding the China campaign by enlisting the aid of Germany and Italy . . ."

Recent events, he said, confirmed his feeling that the International situation would change to the advantage of China.

"We are fighting an enemy who is confronted by many hostile powers and on the verge of collapse," he said.

Berton Churchill Toronto-Born Actor Dies in New York

New York, Oct. 10 (CP)—Berton Churchill, Toronto-born actor, who had expected to return to the Broadway stage next Monday after a long absence in Hollywood, died today in a hospital here.

The 64-year-old Canadian was found unconscious in his hotel room yesterday by a stage manager who called to see why he had failed to attend a rehearsal. He had been suffering from a kidney ailment.

Mr. Churchill had a leading role in the new Kaufman-Hart comedy, "George Washington Slept Here."

The play was to have opened last Monday, but Ernest Truex, noted comedian who is in the cast, sprained his knee and the opening was postponed.

Police Blotter

A new mantel radio was reported stolen from the home of George Duby, situated west of the Belleville Purification Plant along the shores of the Bay of Quinte. Mr. Duby told police he had several additional payments to make on the machine, as it had been purchased on the instalment plan. Efforts to locate the radio are being made by the authorities today.

While attempting a left hand turn into a driveway a few feet north of Donald street on the Foxboro Road, an automobile driven by W. G. Fraser of this city, was struck by a north bound motor car driven by Fred Ethier, R.R. 5, Belleville, early last evening. Mr. Ethier told Motorcycle Patrolman Siple, who investigated, that he had just broke over the brow of the North Front street hill when he came upon the Fraser car without warning. Damage amounting to $75 resulted to the Ethier car, who also is facing charges of careless driving, the officer added.

Two inebriates and five transients shared the cell block at the police station last night and activities in local police circles continued to be quiet and serene, except for the occasional infraction of the L.C.A.

Sharp Advance In Top-Grade Eggs

Toronto — Prices advanced 2 cents to 3 cents per dozen on top-quality graded eggs on the Toronto open produce market yesterday when receipts of these grades were on the scarce side for the continued keen demand. Other grades in the graded section of the egg market firmed in sympathy, but prices to the retail trade did not reflect these sharp gains during the day's trading. Graded eggs increased to range at 35c to 36c for grade A-large, 33c to 35c for medium, 24c to 26c for pullets, 26c to 27c for B's and 18c to 19c for C grades.

Demand from outside points added to the steady local buying cleared the light supply of current receipts without difficulty on the butter market. No. 1 grade Ontario solids rose to 26¼c per pound. Prints traded in retail channels at former quotations.

750 TRAINEES ENTER NEW LIFE AT PETERBOROUGH

Camp Well Supplied With Comfortable Beds, Blankets and New Equipment

LT.-COL. KEELER, O.C.

Some a bit nervous, others jaunty and ready for their new life in the army, the trainees of Hastings and Prince Edward counties in conjunction with those from Haliburton, Peterborough, Northumberland, Durham and Victoria, filed into the Peterborough Exhibition Park Wednesday preparatory to their thirty days' training as members of the Canadian army.

The recruits from Hastings and Prince Edward were assigned to the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment Company. Other district recruits were sent to the Midland and Prince of Wales Regiments. Each company will number about 250 men. Lieut. Col. O. E. Keeler, M.C., of Belleville, is the officer commanding the Peterborough Camp.

Veterans of the last war, serving as non-commissioned instructors, smile beneath their hands when they notice the elaborate layout of the camp and the comfort which was noticeable by its absence during the last war. The camp at present is a picture of cleanliness and is modern in every respect. The beds are equipped with sagless springs, new blankets, and mattresses and every bit of equipment handed out is new.

Over half of the 750 camp quota of recruits had reported in the morning, and it appeared as if the entire strength would be on hand well before the "deadline" at midnight.

One recruit who was not satisfied with affairs was Michael J. Peters, who lives on a farm near Bancroft. He said he had to leave his mother and young sister to operate a 140-acre farm on which were 9 cows, 4 horses and a number of pigs. The threshing had not been done and no start made on fall plowing. Asked why he had not made application to have his training period deferred, he said he had not known what steps to take.

"Mother wrote to a former member of Parliament, but got no reply," he said, "so I just had to come along. I don't know how mother will make out."

RUSSIANS HOLD WAR GAMES

Moscow, Oct 10.—(AP) — The Russian army and navy are holding war games along the Black Sea coastal region, vital in any development in the Near East.

Air raid defence exercises are being held by naval units in the strategic Crimean port of Sebastopol. In the nearby Odessa military district army manoeuvres were reviewed by Marshal Semeon Budenny, Vice-Commissar of Defence.

CANADIAN PRESS

It was a lusty welcome home for Burritt who had just completed a stay in hospital for a minor ailment. He was transferred from a London hospital to one outside the city and only left the hospital yesterday.

Early on Sept. 25 three German bombs straddled the building housing The Canadian Press just off Fleet Street. Only Hunter and Frank Backhouse, an office boy, were in the office at the time and neither was hurt though the closest bomb blasted a hole in the road in front of the building and blew in the front door.

The residential building hit today was one of the largest apartment houses in London.

Outside of a little plaster and dust in the hair and a few bruises marking where we hit the floor when he tumbled out of beds that swayed like ship berths, all hands are physically "in the pink."

While all of us are brimming with thanks, none is quite so thankful as Sam Robertson of Ottawa, the Bureau Chief. The flat he vacated only last night is in shambles. A bomb literally scraped its windows and blew shattered splinters of them across what was left of the bed that was so recently his. Robertson had moved as part of a general dispersal plan.

Far off in another part of the city three fire bombs landed on the roof of the club where J. F. Sanderson of St. Mary's Ont., another member of the staff, lives. After watching the alert air raid precautions squad extinguish the flames, "Long John" yawned and went back to bed.

I was slumbering peacefully when the blood-chilling whistle of the bombs shattered the quiet of the apartment building. There was no time to make up my sleep-fogged mind what to do before the crump, crump, crump of a stick of high explosives rocked the building. The bed did a heel and toe dance that tumbled me to the floor.

The blackout curtains were blown down. The fact the windows were open saved them from shattering and probably saved us from splinter injuries.

When we had collected ourselves the windows had to be hurriedly dropped. Dust was drifting in from what was left of a row of houses at one corner of an apartment block. Fumes were drifting in from a main that was shattered and fired by a bomb at the other end of the block.

A tour of the damaged quarters showed that only a handful of the hundreds living in the block suffered wounds, mostly from flying glass. Those in basement shelters were terrified but unhurt.

We spent the rest of the night drinking strong tea and talking of what might have been.

The Ushers did the same by the light of a 50-foot torch blazing from the gas main.

GENERAL

"Here you are at home and there's plenty of pinard!" (The latter refers to the ordinary red wine traditional to French soldiers).

As the Commandant Duboc touched the pier, three ranks of Negro troops snapped to attention. In front of them were grouped the Governor General and his staff.

For a moment there was silence.

Then the crowds surging on to the pier broke into a wild clamor.

While members of the expedition were debarking, Gen. de Gaulle, who has been administering the Free French fight against Germany from London, drove through the densely packed streets of the beflagged city to the Governor's palace.

Many From Senegal, Ivory Coast

There he was presented to local officials and native chieftains, many of whom had come from Senegal, Dahomey and the Ivory coast to join his fight.

In presenting Gen. De Gaulle, Leclerc said:

"I have not promised the people of the Cameroons an easy life but rather one of sacrifice. There are no weak hearts here. We are men of firm resolution. Cameroon is ready for all eventualities."

Gen. De Gaulle replied:

"Cameron has set a magnificent example already, followed by a number of colonies, and others will follow.

"I cite Hitler's words in 'Mein Kampf' that a people may be beaten but when a people and their leaders accept defeat then they are forever lost.

"On the contrary, if a handful of men do not accept defeat then everything is to be hoped for".

The Cameroons, he concluded, "will have a place in the history of this war and in the history of the nation".

Until his arrival in the Cameroons, Gen. De Gaule had not been reported since the failure of Sept. 23-25 of his British-supported expedition to Dakar to win over Senegal from the Vichy government.

Duala is about 2,000 miles southeast of Dakar and just east of the African Slave Coast. With a population of about 30,000, it is the largest town and the chief seaport of the French Cameroons.

Population of 2,500,000

The Cameroons, bounded on the south and east by French Equatorial Africa, consituted a German protectorate from 1884 to 1919. By the Treaty of Versailles, Germany relinquished sovereinty, and France and Great Britain were given mandates to administer the country.

The area under French mandate comprises about 160,000 square miles, with a population estimated at 2,500,000. It has been governed as a separate entity, with administrative and fiscal autonomy, by a commissioner, aided by a council, responsible to the French Government. The seat of Government is at Yaounde.

The countrys resources are mainly agricultural. There are neither minerals nor manufacturing.

The part under British mandate covers 33,705 square miles with a population of about 687,000.

Gen. De Gaulle announced on Aug. 29th that the French Cameroons and Congo had entered the war on Britain's side, opening a wide corridor from the South Atlantic to Italian Libya, and creating a land bridge from the Atlantic to the Red Sea and the Mediterranean.

Previously the De Gaulle headquarters in London had received the support of the French colonies of New Caledonia in the Pacific, Tahiti, the New Hebrides, and French Equatorial Africa, and of Frenchmen in Australia, Egypt and India.

ALTAR

It ripped a hole through the upper roof of lead and rafters and tore great blocks of masonry from the main roof beneath. These blocks crashed 90 feet onto the high altar.

Concussion buckled the heavy lead roofing away from the rafters as much as two feet. Showers of splintered wood and pieces of stone fell on other leaded roofs below.

Nothing was left of the high altar save a heap of stones. Thick dust lay everywhere. Furniture, carpets and cushions were thrown about and some of the chapter seats were smashed.

The bishop's chair was flung against one of the wrought-iron sanctuary gates, where it leaned crookedly with some of its carving badly scarred.

Two immense bronze candlesticks, copies of originals now in the cathedral at Ghent, stood upright, but one had shifted and lost its candle. The famous Gibbons choir stalls showed no sign of damage but were gray with dust.

Overhead, daylight showed through the jagged hole which extended to the edge of one of the three saucer-shaped domes and part of the Dome's mosaic decoration was broken away and bits lay in the rubble on the floor.

An Air Ministry and Ministry of Home Security communique said: "During a recent attack on London an enemy aircraft dropped a bomb on St. Paul's Cathedral, piercing the roof at the east end of the cathedral and destroying the high altar.

"The main fabric of the cathedral was not affected nor was the choir loft damaged and no one was injured."

St. Paul's is one of London's most historic landmarks. Designed by Sir Christopher Wren, the Cathedral was erected in 1675-1697 and is considered one of the finest specimens of renaissance architecture in England.

Canon Alexander was sleeping in the crypt, his bed almost exactly beneath the altar. The Canon escaped injury.

"The crash came suddenly", he said, "I hurried upstairs but the place was so thick with dust that for a time I could see nothing.

"I suppose the damage might have been worse, but it was quite bad enough.

"The cross and candlesticks went from the high altar. The cross was particularly beautiful".

BIG KRUPP WORKS.

er pilot flying very low over Holland noted several civilians waving at him.

"We were low enough," he said, "for them to distinguish our British markings and low enough to see them waving.

"A couple of men chatting in a countryroad apparently started this popular movement and for 50 miles as we flew across the fields men and women stopped working to wave their handkerchiefs."

The Air Ministry issued this communique:

"Royal Air Force bombers made daylight attacks on an oil plant at Homburg, on barges and bridges at the canal junction at Anna Paulowna south of Helder (in Holland), on railway sidings near Warendorf and Homburg and on the Texel aerodrome.

"A daylight attack also was made on shipping at Le Havre. One of our aircraft has not reported to its base.

Widespread Attack by R.A.F.

"During the night our bombers, although hampered by severe weather conditions, carried out attacks on widespread industrial and military objectives in Germany and enemy-occupied territory.

"The industrial targets included an oil plant and munitions factory at Cologne, the aluminum works at Grevenbroich, the Krupp works at Essen and an electric power station at Reisholz.

"Railway communications and goods yards at Gremberg, Cologne, Konigshofen, Dusseldorf, Wesel and Brussels and several enemy airdromes also were bombed.

"The Channel ports from Amsterdam to Le Havre were again attacked. Aircraft of the fleet air arm, operating with the coastal command, bombed shipping, naval quays and workshops at Brest. Hits were registered on enemy destroyers. One of our aircraft has not reported to base."

CASUALTY LIST

Most of the damage during the night raids on London, was inflicted before midnight. A famous church, one of the city's oldest hotels, a promenade known the world over, hospitals and several internationally known buildings were struck.

The government said fires in the city and in suburban areas "were promptly dealt with and all were brought under control. At several points houses were hit and some industrial premises were damaged.

". . . A number of people were injured, some fatally, in a building in London which was hit by high explosive bomb. No reports of any large number of persons killed or injured have been received from any quarter."

In one London district, during the early part of the night, anti-aircraft crews gave a display of accuracy by knocking down nine of 11 flares dropped by the Nazis.

A. A. Battery Bags Plane

In the Epping district of Essex, Prime Minister Churchill's constituency northeast of London, an anti-aircraft battery brought down a raider in full view of the Prime Minister. The plane was hit at great height but searchlights picked out three parachuting Nazi fliers and followed them to earth.

A high explosive bomb sliced off the corner of a London hotel but only two persons were injured, most of the occupants having sought safety in a basement shelter.

An undisclosed number of persons were killed when a bomb scored a direct hit on air raid shelter—situated in the only piece of open ground in a congested district. Houses in the surrounding area were undamaged.

A street surface shelter also was demolished, but it was unoccupied.

Several Employees Injured

Among the damaged buildings were a bank and another hotel, where several employees and a guest were injured.

A twin-engined Junkers 88 bomber was shot down by anti-aircraft fire at Primrose Hill.

In one residential area where houses were demolished by a salvo of bombs, a mother and her son were killed after leaving their garden shelter to make a cup of tea.

Three women were feared killed in an East Anglian town to which a number of persons had been removed from London. One bomb made a direct hit on the home where the women were staying.

In a southwest town, a bomb struck a Wesleyan chapel during an entertainment. The chapel stewards were among those killed. Two air raid wardens died in the wreckage of a London office building.

Three persons were killed in a south Wales town during the night. One bomb hit a hotel, where a barmaid was rescued after being trapped for an hour under debris.

"There was a terrific noise," she said, "and the building seemed to fall on top of me. My legs were pinned by heaps of bricks and I barely could move my head."

Three air wardens and a woman were killed in one London district where debris smashed a surface shelter.

A children's sanatorium in northwest England was set afire by incendiary bombs and a high explosive missile blasted a crater in the grounds but there were no casualties. The fires were extinguished quickly.

In a Welsh mining district bombs demolished the home of a woman and her three children. The children escaped with cuts and bruises but the mother was buried beneath the debris.

Incendiary bombs dropped in seven northwest England residential districts caused a number of casualties, two of which were fatal.

ITALIANS DISPLAY

The Italian fleet has shown little inclination to come to grips with the British. The British not only retain Malta, at Italy's very doorstep, but have moved ships through the centre of the 90-mile strip of water between Sicily and Tunisia.

Thus far Italy's only territorial gain in Africa has been British Somaliland and a narrow strip along the Egyptian coast 70 miles long.

The Italians were permitted to advance into Egypt as far as Sidi Barrani in line with the British decision to choose their own defence lines and the knowledge that the further east the Italians are extended the further they will be from their bases.

Materials as well as men have been arriving in Egypt and inspection of the British lines extending inland from the vicinity of Mersa Matruh, 80 miles east of Sidi Barrani on the Egyptian coast, indicates that preparations for a defence are complete.

If the Italians had attacked Egypt last June when Premier Mussolini declared war they would have found Egypt a much easier prey than they will find it now, British sources said.

At that time the defence of the Near East depended largely on General Maxime Weygand's French army in Syria and the collapse of France in July left Britain short of both men and equipment with which to defend her African front.

The lack, however, has been remedied during the past three months.

BRITISH

"One can be sure," the paper said, "that if England had enough planes she would not hesitate to attack Rumanian towns and attempt a landing at Constanta as she did at Dakar to seek revenge against the iron guard state. Britain already has started a campaign against Rumania, using a pretext co-operation of the German and Rumanian armies and the imminent marching in of German troops."

The German language press charged that Britain is considering setting up an opposition "Rumanian Government" in London.

Sources close to the British legation said departure of all British citizens from Rumania "appears to be only a matter of a few days."

Minister Remains at Post

Many Britons already have left the country.

Sir Reginald Hoare, British Minister to Rumania, remained at his post in Bucharest, but it appeared he had virtually exhausted all possibilities of obtaining some kind of official reassurance from Rumanian officials which would permit Great Britain to continue normal diplomatic relations with the new Iron Guard state.

(Informed British sources in London said Sir Reginald had "pretty much of a free hand" in dealing with the situation in Bucharest and declared it was possible—though not probable—he might sever relations with Rumania without asking counsel from London. These sources said little information is getting through from the British Legation, but they did not discount the possibility of an open break with the Bucharest government shortly.)

A 40-car train loaded with German troops was reported speeding into the interior of Rumania after crossing the Hungarian frontier near Timisoara. Reports also reached here of French Nazi military activity in the border towns of Sibiu and Sighisoara.

Cobourg "Collegians" Defeat Albert College in Opening C.O.S.S.A. Game by 4-1 Count

Winners Kick Placement Early in First Quarter to Give Them Lead

FUMBLES COSTLY

Albert Put On Rally But Ball is Badly Handled When is Scoring Position

If you can't hang on to the old pigskin, it not only means fumbles and the loss of the ball, but invariably results in the loss of a football game and that's exactly to what Coach Pete Beach's Albert College squad can attribute their losing of the opening game of the Bay of Quinte Senior Interscholastic grid game in Cobourg yesterday, when the gold and blue-clad Cobourg "collegians" won the season's inaugural district collegiate rugby game 4 to 1. A speedy placement in the early stages of the game and a rouge in the last few moments of play accounted for all of Cobourg's points, while Albert squeezed in a deadline point somewhere in between.

Only once during the game did the Albert powerhouse roll with any degree of success, that being early in the third quarter, when a wave of Albert "tri-color" marched with driving force to the Cobourg 20, where they committed the most costly fumble of a comedy of miscues, that cost them the day's honours.

Cobourg Score Early

Riding on the crest of their triple-threat quarterback Maher, Cobourg ran the ball to Albert's 25 soon after hostilities opened and without hestitation Hinman kicked a placement, that sailed between the uprights for three points. The most thrilling play of the game came in this quarter, however, when Bruce Wilson took a Cobourg punt 12 yards behind his own goal line and ran it to the 55 yard stripe, where he lateralled to Bob Ralph, who in turn rattled off another ten for a 77 yard advancement, but again Albert fumbled in their anxiety. The second frame saw little play outside the midfield, as both squads held strongly.

Albert Boys Rally

To open the second half Wilson faked a forward and galloped 15 yards and the Albert steam-roller moved into what appeared to be a formidable attack as Hayman, Brawley and Partridge all made yards in succession to put the sticks on Cobourg's 20, but again Albert fumbled and failed. Undaunted Coach Beach's gang rallied once again after Wilson intercepted a Cobourg pass and the visitors worked the ball to Cobourg's 25 where Wilson's attempted placement netted one point as the punt missed the uprights, but rolled to the deadline for a point. Cobourg took the initiative in the last quarter headed by Maher and Benson. On Albert's 15 Hinman punted and Wilson was roughed for another Cobourg point. With their back to the wall Albert rallied as Ridout snatched a Cobourg forward out of the ozone and Taylor accepted one of Albert's two completed forward passes, but the rally was too late as the final bell sounded.

Defensively both teams held well, as can be seen in the fact each squad made but six first downs. The Cobourg attack was paced by Maher and Benson, both strong broken field runners. Albert reverted to straight football with Wilson, Hayman, Brawley and Partridge gaining most yardage through the Cobourg wall. Cobourg meet the Belleville Collegiate squad in the season's opener here on Thanksgiving Day.

The lineups:

Albert College: Snap, Rankin; insides, Burros and Hankinson; middles, Carter and Partridge; ends, Francis and Taylor; quarter, Hayman; halves, Bob Ralph, Wilson and Brawley; flying wing, Ridout; alternates, Beck, Middleton, Watkin, Acal, Bailey, Donnan, Dobbin, Hager, Ralph, Smither and Wright.

Cobourg Collegiate: Snap, Riley; insides, Parkinson, Runciman; middles, Turpin and Moore; ends, Bennett and Jones; quarter, Maher; halves, Haines, Robertson and Benson; flying wing, Hinman; alternates, Murray and Seale.

Referee: McClelland of Cobourg. Umpire, McDonald of Albert College.

Claimed Horse Breaks Leg in the Race

Agua Caliente, Oct. 10 (CP)—It has been proven again that horse racing luck doesn't last long—especially if it's good.

Willie Alvardo, owner and trainer, had been making money around Agua Caliente race track by claiming horses and having them win.

But his luck suddenly went sour. Last Saturday he dropped $1,000 in the claiming box for Aces Wild and all he got was a carcass. Aces Wild broke a leg in the race and had to be destroyed.

FIGHTS LAST NIGHT

(By The Associated Press)

St. Paul—Lee Savold, 192, Des Moines, Ia., stopped Arne Anderson, 192, Sweden (7).

OUCH!

And it's the real McCoy, too. Richard Denning leading man in Paramount's "Golden Gloves", thriller of sportdom's amateur prize ring, current at the Capitol Theatre, would have no "double" in the big sequence. He traded punch for punch with Robert Ryan, Dartmouth College athlete, until Ryan connected with this "lulu" you see above. Denning didn't know until later that Ryan held the Dartmouth heavyweight championship four years straight running. For the sake of the happy ending, however, Denning comes back to win the fight and the hand of Jean Cagney, Jimmy's sister, incidentally.

Sports Roundup

(By Eddie Brietz)
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, Oct. 10.—(AP). —Did you know that Commissioner Landis gave Al Schacht (the Friend of Man) a bad half hour for that Tony Galento beer stunt in the last game of the World Series? . . . Well, he did and if you don't believe Schacht's ears are burning yet, ask him.

Today's guest star.

Tom Meany, New York P.M.: "Of all the Dodgers who had such high hopes in the Spring, Jimmy Ripple was the only one to get into the World's Series, except as a spectator . . .and he made it by way of Montreal".

Series aftermath

After all, it's asking a lot of any pitcher to win three games in a World's Series, but at that Newsom almost made it, didn't he? . . . You can have your choice of the heroes, but Paul Derringer will take Jimmy Ripple for hits . . . .Most amazed boy in the Reds' dressing room after the final was Young Mike McCormick. The kid couldn't bring himself to believe he was on a World's championship team. As the telegrams poured in, Mike could only mumble: "Gee, I'm getting wires from fellows I haven't seen or heard from in ten years. Say, this is a great life, ain't it?"

Hank Gowdy, the Reds' Coach, has a necktie he calls his power tie. . . He first wore it the days the Redlos put the crusher on the Dodgers for the National League napkin. . . He next wore it last Thursday when Bucky Walters hurled the Reds back into the series. . . Hank forgot to take it to Detroit, but he had it on Monday and you can bet your life he was strutting around in it Tuesday morning.

Senior "A" Circuit Of O. H. A. to Have Six Teams in Action

Hamilton, Ont., Oct. 10—(CP)—The senior "A" circuit of the Ontario Hockey Association will spring into action some time during the week of Nov. 4, it was decided Wednesday at a meeting attended by representatives of the six clubs who will compete.

The clubs represented were Port Colborne, St. Catharines, Toronto, Niagara Falls, Hamilton and London, a new entry this season. Oshawa did not have a representative present and were given until next Tuesday night to state their intentions. Last year, the London entry played in the Michigan-Ontario Hockey League.

Should Oshawa decide to enter, the teams will play a 36-game schedule, half of them on home ice. Otherwise, the six teams will play 18 games at home and as many away. Semi-finals and finals for the league title will be three-of-five games.

James Douglas of Brantford, President of the O.H.A., told the delegation that each senior club must sponsor a junior team.

NEWARK BEARS BEAT COLONELS TO WIN SERIES

Little World Series Title Brought Back to International Loop

SCORE IS 6-1

Six Hit Hurling of Steve Peek Too Much for Louisville to Overcome

Newark, N.J., Oct. 10 (AP)—Newark Bears of the International League were back on top of the Minor League baseball world today after defeating Louisville Colonels of the American Association four games to two in the 1940 Little World Series.

Putting on the pressure last night Newark trounced the Colonels, 6-1, behind the six hit pitching of Steve Peek to end the 22nd renewal of the annual best-of-seven series.

The Bears rapped out 10 base hits off the offerings of Charley Wagner and Forrest (Tot) Pressnell, both right handers, in dethroning the 1939 champions. Four of the blows were for extra bases and all but one figured in the scoring.

For Peek, who hurled a brilliant game, it was his 16th victory in 17 games. The lanky right hander will go to New York Yankees next spring for a tryout.

It was Newark's third triumph in the classic. Previous victories were scored in 1932 and 1937. The International League now has won 10 series of the Association's 12.

Bud Metheny, right fielder, started the Bears' victory last night with a third inning home run that tied the score. A couple of singles by Ed Levy and Leo Nonnenkamp put the Newarkers ahead in the fifth.

A rousing triple by centrefielder Tommy Holmes with two mates aboard in the seventh clinched the victory. He galloped home himself after Vince Sherlock threw wild to third on the relay from the outfield.

ST. CATHARINES ATHLETICS WHIP BURRARDS BY 15-5

Ontario Lacrosse Champions Completely Overwhelm Opponents From West

SERIES NOW TIED

Billy Fitzgerald Scores Six Tallies to Beat Burrards Almost Single Handed

(By Dick Sheridan, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Oct. 10—(CP)—It was a tossup today as to whether it was a reversal in form by St. Catharines or a collapse by Vancouver that produced the surprise victory for the Ontario champions in the second game of the Mann Cup lacrosse series here last night. Some generous critics might say it was a little of both.

Whatever the reason, there's no denying the veteran Athletics, playing their third national championship series in three years, completely overwhelmed their youthful opponents in scoring a 15-5 triumph. The result left the best-of-five series tied and wiped out, for the Athletics, the memory of a 14-9 defeat suffered in the first game.

Burrards scored in the first half minute of last night's contest and many of the 6,606 fans looked for a resumption of the scoring spree the Vancouver team produced in the final quarter of the series opener. Burrards whipped in six tallies in that memorable session.

They reckoned, however, without the sharp-shooting Bill Fitzgerald, St. Catharines' shifty wingman. Fitzgerald scored twice in 12 seconds to start the A's on their way. He pumped the ball into the net with such regularity thereafter he ran his total to six to beat the Burrards almost single handedly.

Fitzgerald's feat topped the good, all-round work of his teammates. At times St. Catharines' stickwork produced a series of attacks that hemmed Burrards back on the defence. On other occasions, the A's just roared through for goals, without missing a stride.

Aiding Fitzgerald in the scoring were Spark Urquhart and Punk Morton with two goals each, and Bun Barnard, Frank Madsen, Joe Cheevers, Wandy McMahon and Gus Madsen. Cheevers got five assists in addition to his tally.

Johnny McDonald was the only Vancouver player to match the Athletics in performance. The long striding rover cruised through for quick goals at the start of the first and second quarters and kept his club in the running up to that time.

Other Burrard goals were scored by Don Matheson, Roy Cavallin and Pat Theal.

The loss was the second suffered by the Pacific Coast team in 25 starts. Since coming east, Burrards beat Cornwall three straight before tangling with the aggressive Athletics.

HAYMAN MAY USE BILL STUKUS AS FORWARD PASSER

Argos' Ground Attack Has Failed and Hayman is Forced to the Air for Gains

PLAY HAMILTON

Montreal Team Will be Strengthened in Their Contest With Ottawa

(By The Canadian Press)

It may have been Lew Hayman's intentions to use Bill Stukus as a blocking and plunging back, but events have forced the Toronto Argonaut coach to do otherwise and have made for an interesting experiment between youth and experience in Saturday's meeting of Argonauts and Hamilton Tigers.

With a ground attack stalled and his defences giving in against Montreal last Saturday, Hayman called on Stukus, and "Little Stuke"—his brother Annis is "Big Stuke"—pitched them to a thrilling 9-8 victory. There are few better passers than Stukus in the football business.

A young fellow with a rifle arm and a dead-eye aim will match passes with Stukus this Saturday. It promises to be an aerial thriller for the Tigers, too, are not exactly of the best along the ground. The young man—Al Lenard from Windsor, Ont.,—is expected to carry the load—or in this case throw the passes for Tigers.

His pitching was one of the bright spots in Hamilton's loss to Ottawa last Saturday.

Stukus has been in the big leagues for five years. This is Lenard's first. Whether he can match the veteran under fire remains to be seen, but if he can the Tigers have a good chance.

New Recruits for Alerts

The Tigers' Coach, Art Massucci, got a couple of new recruits yesterday. Richard Baker and Leslie Dahl, two husky steel workers, turned out for practice and Massucci gave them a turn at quarter-back and on the line—his weak spot—where they probably will end up. Massucci put the Tigers through a hard drill.

Argos also went at it for several hours with Hayman concentrating attention on his line. He may let Earl Selkirk do a great deal more work this Saturday. The Argonaut kicking has been a disappointment so far this year and Selkirk a veteran may take over the major share of the punting from Young Jimmy Follwell.

Ross Trimble put Ottawa Rough Riders through a skull practice around the blackboard, then divided the squad into two sections for action. They worked out separately until the end of the drill when they scrimmaged against each other briefly.

Montreal's unnamed big four entry also went through a stiff scrimmage in preparation for the Ottawa game. The camp was cheered by the report that Alex Hamilton might start drilling with the team tonight. Hamilton, captain of McGill's squad last season, is a fair kicker, a strong lineman tackler.

Just when he was whipping his squad into championship fettle, Coach Eddie Schrieder was forced to relinquish his post as head coach of the Belleville Collegiate Institute senior Interscholastic rugby football team yesterday. Eddie nominated Morley Baker, well known Belleville veteran football player and a punter of the pigskin par excellence, as his successor. Eddie Schrieder has accepted a position with the Ontario Hydro Commission and was instructed to report for duty at Campbellford over the weekend. The "Collegians" will miss Eddie as their coach as he proved himself a capable leader and won the confidence of his players in his first year as coach at B.C.I. last season. However, Morley Baker was the ace kicker for the "collegians" when Eddie was their fleet-footed backfielder and Morley is well acquainted with the plays and system employed by Coach Schrieder. Unfortunately the change came just before the locals' opening game here versus Cobourg Collegiate on Thanksgiving.

Playing a strong defensive game Cobourg Collegiate took the measure of Coach Pete Beach's Albert College squad in the Bay of Quinte senior Interscholastic inaugural, when the Summer Town "collegians" won 4 to 1. Neither squad showed too much power or scoring punch, although Maher, the Cobourg quarter is a triple-threat man and coupled with Benson, this pair was always dangerous when in possession. The Alberts played the same style of football that has been in vogue ever since the "tri-color" entered the C.O.S.S.A. trying to wear the opposition down with powerhouse drives through the opposing line. That's the hard way and repeatedly terminates in injuries, as was the case when Partridge, Taylor and a couple of other Albert boys sustained injuries yesterday. Fumbles cost Albert many losses and actually a fumble cost the Beach-led crowd the game in the third quarter. It was in the third session that the Albert steamroller got under motion, headed by Wilson, Hayman, Partridge and Brawley.

The West Dundas Street college kids worked the ball to Cobourg's 20 and fumbled badly. Again they repeated this feat and as they had Cobourg sucked in for a placement, the Alberts went through with the attempted three-point boot, instead of taking the advantage and trying a forward pass, that would have surely clicked. (Monday morning quarterbacking!) Statistics of the game show that each squad made exactly six first downs, while Albert completed three forwards to Cobourg's two, however, along the line both held well, which was one redeeming feature. Although handicapped with only two alternates the Cobourg kids showed much determination and frequently broke through to smear the Albert ball-carriers for losses. Along the Albert line Ed. Carter, Des Partridge, Bob Taylor, Jack Burrows and Eli Hankinson came in for their share of cracking the Cobourg line. Coach Beach's charges vow vengeance in the return game here.

Do you remember when the post of coach of the Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League, left vacant by the drowning of Babe Siebert, was filled by Pete Lepine a year ago today, as coach and manager. Siebert took over the Canadiens in January of the previous season to bring them out of the cellar into the Stanley Cup playoffs.

What a surprise Bill Walshe and his Kingston associates must have received when they read of the demolishment of the Jock Harty arena in the Oshawa paper this week. Apparently Sport Columnist George Campbell received a terrific mental jolt when his softball team was eliminated by Guelph in the O.A.S.A. finals to publish such a fantastical story as the tearing down of the Jock Harty arena in Kingston. "Palsie, you're surely slipping, as a matter of fact the Jock Harty arena will be open for public skating within two weeks and the Van Horne Memorial series will open shortly after the N.H.L., Georgie." While ribbing the Oshawa scribe we might point out that—"Belleville beat Guelph for the intermediate O.A.S.A. championship in 1935," which leaves something for the Oshawa softballers to shoot at, now they failed in their 1940 effort.

Harry "Red" Doran, one of hockey's badmen and a former Belleville boy, was renewing old acquaintances in the city yesterday enroute to Montreal where he reports for pre-seasoning training promptly at 9.00 a.m. Monday, be it Thanksgiving or what have you. The firey "red-head" always calls in to see Don Roe when passing through Belleville and enquire as to the good health of his former companions. Red Doran is with the Providence club of the International League, but hopes to catch on with Les Canadiens this fall as the Reds and the Frenchmen have a player working agreement.

While digesting your Thanksgiving turkey next Monday the fans can drop down to the Hume arena for a holiday treat of professional wrestling. Mike Domerko, who put George Pavish out of circulation two weeks ago, will meet the Masked Marvel, a brand new hooded horror, who has been stamping up and down the country with success this season. George Pavish is returning to tame the self-styled badman, Tom George in a second main bout. The problem here will be—which unscrupulous villainous grappler will the fans be pulling for this trip. Jimmie Allen is on in the prelim. and it looks like a dainty holiday morsel for the fans to taper off on.

Sport Spice — Last year it was "Snoozin' Snoozler" Lombardi who was the world series goat—this year they call Dick Bartell's infield lapse the "$50,000 snooze" ....Some wisecracking fan will be carting a bed into some world series park one of these times.... Well, baseball isn't over after all —Leo "Lippy" Durocher has been resigned as manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers for 1941, so look for plenty of Dodger propaganda from the Dodgers' camp all winter....The Reds success is now heralded as a great thing for baseball and the statement that "pitching is 75 percent of the game" was once again upheld...

CHAPTER XI.

The following Saturday, Audrey received a telephone call soon after dinner. When she heard the voice at the other end of the wire she laughed merrily. It was Victor Quinn. "Don't tell me. Let me guess. It's the old smoothie himself!"

"How right you are, and how are you?"

"I'm fine. I was beginning to think you'd forgotten your threat."

"Not a chance. Just a little later in getting away than I figured. Checked in at the village inn, had my supper and everything. If you're not going to take your bath for a bit, how about coming up?"

"I can wait a while. I'll be very glad to see you."

"Right away?"

"Yes, if you're at the hotel. That means fifteen minutes to wash my face and get everything under control, I suppose."

"No more than that. Thanks. Good-by."

Audrey discovered that she was unexpectedly glad to see Vic when he sprang from his car and came hurrying up the steps. There was something reassuring in his rugged, smiling face—although she could not have told what she wished to be reassured about. But he was a substantial sort, and the conviction grew as he sat beside her on the couch, chatting impartially with the whole family. Martha and Anthony appeared to enjoy his company and Audrey secretly was glad they were present.

When the older people withdrew, Victor resumed his seat at Audrey's side, lighted a cigarette without offering her one, and remarked: "Now start in and tell me all about yourself. Everything."

"Well . . ." she mused, "it's been a long time since we've met, but to the best of my knowledge and belief I've been nowhere, done, seen, and heard nothing. Oh, I've eaten and slept and tried to be a good Girl Scout."

"Hmm . . . m. That sounds innocent enough. Almost vacuous. By the way, I dropped in at the Castle office this afternoon. I scarcely expected to see Jeff on a half holiday, so I wasn't disappointed. The busy elderly lady holding down the place told me he was out of town. I dare say I passed him on the road."

"Probably."

"That sounds the least bit resentful," he chuckled. "Was it?"

"Hardly." Audrey couldn't explain that she was resentful. It was not because Jeff had gone to the city. It was Miss Annie, working for Jeff.

"If I had seen him," Vic went on, watching Audrey's face through half closed eyes, "I was going to congratulate him, I think it would have been in order."

"About what?" Audrey wondered how he had found out about the engagement.

"Olive got her decree. Or perhaps you knew it."

"No, I didn't know. Then you assume . . ."

"More of that deduction I was telling you about. If they weren't engaged when he left for the city, I'll stake my reputation they are now. I'm wondering what it may do to old Jeff. His one big chance really to make something of himself lies here in the home pastures. You know that as well as I. And that girl will try to buy him off. On the other hand, if he turns out to be the sort of guy who lets his wife support him, I'll walk all the way from somewhere and back for the express pleasure of kicking him!"

Audrey pondered this in silence for a moment. "I guess they'll muddle through," she decided carelessly.

"Which is a deft way of reminding me that I should worry over my own affairs," Vic chuckled. "You're right. As a matter of fact I've plenty to worry about."

"Has the law business hit a new low?"

"No. I have." With that, he changed the subject and talked lightly of other matters.

"How I have been running on!" he exclaimed in dismay when the clock in the hall chimed eleven. "Audrey, you are too good a listener. Why didn't you tell me to toddle on long ago?"

"Because I have been having a good time," she answered honestly. "It isn't often I have a chance to sit at the feet of a man of the world and snatch pearls of wisdom. I suppose it's unmaidenly to ask, but how long do you plan to be in Parville?"

"It's a pleasant, restful spot. I had thought I might keep the Sabbath here. If Jeff shows up Monday, I shouldn't mind having a little visit with him. How's that for an excuse?"

"Perfectly satisfactory so far as I am concerned. I really was making the inquiry on mother's account. She suggested that if you were in town tomorrow I might ask you to have Sunday dinner with us."

"And what did you say?"

"That she'd better have Julia fry two chickens."

"Audrey, I love your mother! It's the most wonderful thing that has happened since I had breakfast. What time?"

"We usually dine at one or a little after."

"I'll be here on the stroke. Thanks, and good night."

When Victor strolled in at the appointed hour, Audrey thought he looked unusually attractive in his fresh white suit, a rose in the lapel of his double-breasted jacket. He carried a sheaf of newspapers under one arm and deposited them on the porch swing after greeting his host and family. Martha Swan disappeared almost at once to supervise the final details of the dinner and Anthony engaged the guest by plunging into an earnest discussion of foreign affairs.

"Don't mind me," Audrey encouraged, dropping into the swing. "I like comics. And I'll listen."

It was not until after dinner that Vic had an opportunity to speak to her alone. "Say, Audrey," he said, "did you finish the comic section?"

"No. Why?" she wanted to know.

"There's a release in the society news that may interest you . . . here we are." He held out an open page.

"Oh!"

It was a two-column portrait of Olive. Over it a caption: "Her Betrothal Announced." Audrey skimmed through the accompanying account. Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Harrison were announcing the engagement of their daughter to Mr. Jeffrey Langdon Castle. The wedding was scheduled for September. Other politely effusive paragraphs played up the social prominence of the contracting parties and their respective families.

"Seems I was right," Vic suggested.

"Quite. That's a very good likeness. Isn't she beautiful?"

"Well . . . yes."

"May I keep it?" She folded the sheet and laid it on a table. There was a mischievous twinkle in Victor's eyes, but he kept silent until Audrey remarked abruptly: "How would you like to go for a stroll?"

"Very much of a good idea, I'd say. Where away?"

"If it won't disturb you too much, I'd like to introduce you to a new colt that arrived the other day. He's too small to hurt you and if you don't say he's a darling I won't believe that you're quite human."

"Then he's a darling a couple of times over. Let's go to see him."

Vic's admiration when he saw the small stranger was genuine. He looked longest, however, at Audrey as she stood in the box feeding some bits of sugar to the proud, soft-eyed mare.

"Is that a stream over there?" Vic asked a few moments later as they stood out in front of the stable. "I mean where that clump of willows stands."

"Yes. That's Briar Creek. Would you like to walk across the pasture and look at it? It's rather pretty."

"Yes, if you don't mind."

Almost involuntarily Audrey directed their course to her favorite big tree. "I always liked this place when I was a youngster," she explained as they stood on the shady bank. "My idea of a real time was to come here with a good book and a couple of apples."

"I don't wonder. It's beautiful." Vic looked about soberly, then down at Audrey. "There's a story in the Bible . . . must have been Samson. Wasn't he the gentleman who pulled the temple down about his ears?"

"I remember something of the sort."

"Destroyed himself in the process, I believe."

"So they say. Why the flash back?"

"Just thinking that human nature hasn't changed so much. My temple was more beautiful than anything I ever dreamed of. And down it comes."

"I'm in love with you, little Audrey Swan. Deeply and truly. And there it is.

AT THE BELLE

"Four Sons"

Acclaimed at press previews as one of the great pictures of recent years, "Four Sons", 20th Century-Fox film is now on the Belle theatre screen.

Heading the powerful cast is Don Ameche who, fresh from his triumph in "Lillian Russell," is said to give the most stirring performance of his career. He reveals a dramatic power hitherto unsuspected, and delivers his role in a powerfully simple style.

Eugenie Leontovich was persuaded by 20th Century-Fox to play the role of the mother, and she is said to more than justify her selection. The famous actress brings to the screen the quality of greatness she has shown in the past in her stage performances in "Grand Hotel," and "20th Century."

Mary Beth Hughes has her strongest role to date, the blonde and beautiful actress having earned her chance to play her part in "Four Sons" by her outstanding performances in "Free, Blonde and 20," and "Star Dust."

Others prominent in the cast are Alan Curtis, George Ernest, Robert Lowery, Lionel Royce and Sig Rumann.

Darryl F. Zanuck produced "Four Sons."

"The Gay Caballero"

Back in a blaze of daring adventure, Cesar "Cisco Kid" Romero rides again in "The Gay Caballero" the 20th Century-Fox picture announced as the companion feature attraction.

Shooting swiftly and loving gaily, Cisco's latest adventure begins with the false rumor of his death. Badmen run wild and the old Southwest is in terror until the Cisco Kid puts in an appearance to match wits with his most dangerous adversary—a widow who owns a million acre ranch.

Featured in "The Gay Caballero" are Sheila Ryan, Robert Sterling, C. Martin, Janet Beecher, Edmund MacDonald and Jacqueline Dalya.

Picton and District

Picton.—The opening fall meeting of the Phi-Del-a-Tee Club of Picton United Church was held Tuesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clealan Blakely. Officers for the 1940-41 season are as follows: President, Donald Walters, vice-presidents, Jack Blakely, Kathleen Hicks, Dr. Fyffe; secretary, Ruby Lockyer; treasurer, Philip Dodds. During the devotional exercises conducted by last year's vice-president, Philip Dodds, in the absence of the president, Helen Macdonald, the responsive reading was led by Pat Hodgson. The meeting was then turned over to the new presidet, D. Walters, the program including a reading by Mrs. Reycroft, vocal solo by Alice Wiggins, talk on parliamentary procedure by Rev. J. F. Reycroft, a "can" contest which was won by Dr. McDougall. Plans were made to hold a rummage sale with Kathleen Hicks and Maizie Carson as conveners. It was decided to produce the play started last year, Mrs. C. Blakely and Vernon Lockwood to take charge. Members will attend the County Y. P. Raly at Demorestville next Thursday and will conduct the evening devotional service. It was decided to leave the membership fee at fifty cents and each member was asked to bring a prospective member to the next meeting. A program committee is to meet this week to prepare programs for the season, a convener to be responsible for a month's programs.

Several visitos were introduced and welcomed. Mrs. Blakely served candy and a vote of thanks was given Mr. and Mrs. Blakely by Anne Waring and Pat Hodgson.

Little Benny's Note Book

My cousin Artie stayed at my house for supper, being swell fried chickin, and we kept on conterdicting each other all during the meal just for the sake of the argument, and finely there was only one piece of fried chickin left on the platter, making me feel all the more like having it, only I knew as soon as Artie heard me ask for it he would ask for it too and proberly get it on account of being my guest so it wouldn't be right for me to argue him out of it, and I had a idea, saying, Well, I see there's still one piece of chickin left, but I dont want it, I know when I had enough, I dont care who gets it.

Neither do I, I know when I had enough, too, and not only that, I know when I had too much, and that's already, Artie said, and I said, O well, I guess I think maybe I'll have too much too. Maybe I'll just take that last piece and that will make just about too much, I said.

Well come to think of it, I think I'll change my mind and have much too much, and that last piece will certainly be much too much, Artie said, and I said, Okay, go ahead and take it, I've decided I'd rather be a gentleman than stuff myself out of shape.

Well my goodness I'm glad to hear you say so for land sakes, ma said, and Artie said, You can hear me say so too, because that's just a way I feel only more so.

That's just where the plot began, pop said. As a matter of fact I think I'll have to take that last piece myself, because I cant seem to make up my mind whether I've had a shade too much or a shade too little, so I'd better make sure instead of worrying about it till it spoils my night's rest, he said.

And he took the last piece and ate it with such a enjoyable expression it made me and Artie feel worse instead of better just to watch him.

The Stars Say

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Thursday, October 10

While there are excellent prospects of promotion, preferment, dignities with various tokens of favoritism and esteem from those in power yet these splendid promises may be beset by signs of opposition, obstruction and other unfriendly gestures, possibly at the hands of elders or old-established institutions, judging by the lunar transits of this day. From all directions there may arise difficult situations to test the endurance, sagacity and good judgment in well-nigh hopeless circumstances. But precaution, persistence and being able to convince superiors of merit, stability and high purpose should win.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves launched into a year in which they may have to break down stubborn resistance, difficult situations as well as hostility from elders and old organizations, by proving stability of character, soundness of judgment and patient resolve to win out against all odds by the merit and practicability of projects and proposals. Employers and those in standing and financial power may be convinced by proper approach and tactics, with resulting progress, advancement and signs of preferment and favors as well. Be alert to all duplicity and sign papers with especial precaution.

Four German Air Thrusts on England Repulsed

Fifth Raid Turned Into Twisting Sky Battle Over Coast

Five Nazi Planes Shot Down and Casualty List "Not Very High" In London

London, Oct. 11 (CP)—This Capital's defenders aground and aloft hurled back four separate German air thrusts today and turned the fifth into a great twisting sky battle over the southeast coast.

The fifth alarm of the day came at tea time when German planes swept in over Kent, dodging in and out of cloudbanks to escape the withering fire of coastal anti-aircraft batteries.

Suddenly a large force of Royal Air Force fighters appeared and the scream of planes in combat in the fleecy clouds could be heard. One of the raiders was shot down in the vicinity of Kingston Hill.

A swift succession of air raid alarms and all-clear signals, the trumble of anti-aircraft fire and the drone of protecting planes told Londoners the story of attack and defence.

Reports came from the Kent coast that 40 German fighters flying at great height crossed the channel during the morning and proceeded inland.

Reports received up to 5 p.m. (noon EDT), the Air Ministry said, showed that Germany and Britain each had lost four planes in today's air fighting but that all the fliers of the downed British planes were saved.

The Air Ministry said five Ger-

Why The Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen
Science Service Meteorologist

Double standard! Physical comfort, especially indoors, is obtained mostly by agreeable temperatures. But women demand generally higher temperatures than men, due it is thought, to differences in clothing and constitutions. Men dress too warm in summer, women too cool in winter. While a temperature 70 degrees suits men very well, with their wool suits, women require a higher temperature for comfort. The heating engineer, then, has an almost unsolvable problem. The heating expense in all homes and places of assembly would be lessened if women wore heavier clothes in winter.

PORT OF HAMBURG SUFFERS DAMAGE, NAZIS ADMIT

Devastation Over Radius of Five-Eighths of Mile Caused by R.A.F.

OTHER R.A.F. ATTACKS

Berlin, Oct. 11 (AP)—The great north German port of Hamburg suffered considerably last night at the hands of the Royal Air Force, the German News Agency admitted today.

"Devastation visible over a radius of one kilometre (five-eighths of a mile)" was done by the R.A.F. in a central section of Hamburg, the News Agency reported. Another section was left "a shambles of ashes."

Attacks on Amsterdam and northwestern and central Germany also were acknowledged.

(The duration of the heavy raid on Hamburg was not announced by the Germans in accordance with a new regulation of the military authorities that this detail must not be reported in connection with raids on Berlin and other German cities. But it was noted that the Hamburg radio station closed down early in the night, indicating that the R. A. F. was away to an early start.

(The regulation is regarded as part of the new German censorship practice of tying down foreign correspondents to rigid rules, as compared with the previous practice of allowing anything that was not displeasing to the Nazi authorities.)

Boy of 15 Held In Kidnapping of Taxi Driver

Boston, Oct. 11 —(AP)— Charged with kidnapping in connection with the abduction of a taxi driver, a 15-year-old boy was held in $2,500 bail today and two teen-age alleged accomplices are sought by authorities. The youth, already under $2,700 bail on robbery charges, pleaded not guilty to the kidnapping charge.

Los Angees, Oct. 11 (AP)—Mrs. Jimmie Durante filed suit against the movie comedian today for $300-a-week separate maintenance. Charging cruelty during the last two years, she alleged Durante "abused and swore" at her and "struck and kicked" her on "occasions too numercus to mention." The couple married in 1921 and separated last December, the complaint added.

9 Planes Daily Made in U. S. For Great Britain

Britain is Manufacturing Over 50 Planes Per Day, Says Lord Marley at New York

New York, Oct. 11 (AP). — Lord Marley, Labor member in the British parliament, said last night that the United States is sending Great Britain an average of nine airplanes a day as compared with less than one plane a day a few months ago. "We ourselves are making over 50 planes a day," he said at a dinner for the benefit of the British-American Ambulance Corps. "Our loss has been about one to six enemy planes."

PORTS BOMBED

London, Oct. 11 (CP).) — Far-ranging bombers of the Royal Air Force slashed at the German naval base of Wilhelmshaven and the great Krupp shipyards at Kiel last night despite intense anti-aircraft fire, the Air Ministry announced today.

Several sticks of bombs were dropped across the Wilhelmshaven Harbor, frequent target of the R.A.F. in recent days, the ministry said.

Continuing their daily smashing of the invasion ports along the channel coast, R.A.F. bombers thrust far into Germany to bomb several airdromes in Bavaria.

The seaplane base at Norderney, on Germany's North Sea coast, shipping in the channel ports of Calais, Boulogne, Le Havre and Brest and coastal batteries at Cherbourg also were attacked.

Ten Strikes, Lockouts Involving 2,668 Workers In Month of September

Ottawa, Oct. 11 (CP)—There were 10 strikes and lockouts in September, involving 2,668 workers and resulting in time loss of 6,053 man working days, compared with 18 in August, involving 8,712 workers with a time loss of 15,953 days, the Labor Department reported today.

In September, 1939, there were 17 disputes, involving 8,190 workers with time loss of 17,546 days.

All but one of September's strikes were terminated during the month. Three resulted in favor of the employers, one in favor of the workers involved, while in another the strikers were partially successful. Compromise settlements were reached in two cases and the results of two were indefinite.

One strike of approximately 50 workers was unterminated at the end of the month.

Nearly $100,000,000 in Meats To be Bought From Argentine by U.K.

Buenos Aires, Oct. 11—(AP)—Argentina and Great Britain have reached a satisfactory basis for the largest meat contract in the history of the Argentine packing industry, amounting to nearly $100,000,000 for one year, it was reported authoritatively today.

While details of the agreement still are not settled, informed sources close to both governments said that the negotiators agreed on means and terms of payment and other important factors, clearing the way for final approval of the contracts in a short time.

The Minister of Agriculture, Daniel Amadeo Y Videla, told meat men that Argentina "is sparing no effort" to bring the agreement into being.

If the meat contract follows the form of preliminary discussions, Britain will buy in 12 months about 450,000 tons of fresh meat for about $70,000,000 plus 70,000 tons of corned beef costing more than $20,000,000.

These figures would represent great increases over the past year's shipments to Britain, particularly in canned meat Hitherto, Argentina's total exports of canned beef have ranged from 70,000 to 80,000 tons annually.

Because of this country's pressing financial situation, it was said, Argentina prefers to receive payment in Argentine bonds held in Britain rather than have her trade balances with Britain blocked until the end of the war. Britain is said to be agreeable to this form of payment.

BRITISH WARSHIPS SHELL CHERBOURG, FIRES STARTED

Blaze is Seen 40 Miles Away, Admiralty Announcement Says R.A.F. ASSISTS NAVY

RAF ASSISTS NAVY

Warships Meet No Opposition Except From Nazi Shore Batteries on Way Home

London, Oct. 11 (CP).—Light and heavy forces of the home fleet blasted German-held Cherbourg into flames during the night, it was announced today ,while the far ranging Royal Air Force slashed anew at warships in the German naval base of Wilhelmshaven and the great Krupp shipyards at Kiel.

Conflagrations started at Cherbourg, on the German-held "invasion coast" of France, by the cannonading warships and co-operating bombing planes could be seen for 40 miles, the Admiralty said—or about halfway across the English Channel opposite Portsmouth.

The assault on Cherbourg was unchallenged except for the firing of German shore batteries when the British vessels were en route home. The R.A.F.'s raids, however, were carried out in the face of heavy anti-aircraft fire.

The Admiralty, commenting on German unwillingness to send their ships out to fight, said that "it was known that enemy light forces were at Cherbourg."

No Damage To Fleet.

The fleet suffered no damage or casualties in the sortie.

Cherbourg, one of France's great pre-war seaports, a naval station and fortified town, had a peacetime population of about 33,000.

During the night there were indications that the R.A.F. had struck deep into the German Reich when radio stations at Berlin, Hamburg, Cologne and other points went off the air.

Much of the offensive was directed against German shipping and dock facilities, the Air Ministry said.

Kiel Docks Afire.

At Kiel the Krupp shipyards were bombed heavily and docks set ablaze.

NAPANEE C. I. TIME IS RE-SET

Schools Reopen Half Hour Later Owing to Complications Over Daylight and Standard Times

Napanee, Ont., Oct. 11—(CP)—In an effort to lessen the complications that have developed with regard school attendance at the Collegiate Institute when Napanee was obliged to remain on daylight saving time, the Board of Education last night decided that school hours for both collegiate and public schools beginning Oct. 15, be 9.30 a.m. to 4.30 p.m., with the usual 12 noon to 1.30 noon hour.

About 45 per cent of the Collegiate enrollment are from rural points and with the country areas all observing standard time some of the students using bus transportation had to leave their homes as early as 6.30 a.m.

Trustee Dr. H. J. Beattie moved that owing to Napanee not being an industrial centre the school board request the Town Council to make representation to the Federal Government to exempt Napanee from continuing on daylight saving time.

Croix De Guerre Awarded Hospital By Vichy Government

Vichy, France, Oct. 11—(AP)—The Petain-Laval Government today awarded the American Hospital at Neuilly, near Paris, the Croix De Guerre and cited the staff for its "magnificent effort" during the conflict with Germany.

The citation said the staff had "worked night and day" during the hostilities, "benevolently caring for wounded arriving from all directions and thus saving a great number of human lives."

British Press Demands Recall Of British Minister to Rumania After German Troops March in

Hungarian Students Demonstrate Against Rumania After Commission Suspends Meetings

Budapest, Oct. 11 (AP).—The official Hungarian news agency announced today that Hungary has asked axis intervention to settle differences with Rumania over complaints of both countries that their minorities are being maltreated.

This action followed upon reports that Rumania was sending Michael Manoilescu, former foreign minister, to Rome, and a representative to Berlin, with pleas that the Vienna award, by which Transylvania was divided, be modified.

Anti-Rumanian demonstrations by students here coincided with the break-up of a commission which has been attempting to settle some of the details of Hungary's occupation of Northern Transylvania.

At the same time German military penetration of Rumania and other moves in the Balkins aroused fears all southeastern Europe may be drawn into the axis war front before long.

A strongly organised Axis diplomatic campaign to draw Greece and Turkey away from Britain and to secure the obedience of other southeastern European countries was awaited by observers as the next logical step.

If this campaign fails, Balkan observers predicted, military action hardly can be avoided.

Demonstrations today by several thousand Hungarian students against Rumania coincided with announcement that a Hungarian-Rumanian commission engaged in settling details of Rumania's transfer of Northern Transylvania to Hungary had suspended meetings.

Rumania was said to have appealed to the Axis to settle some of the disputes.

Yugoslavia is regarded as the next in line to feel Axis diplomatic pressure. Observers noted attacks in the Italian and German Press on Yugoslav policy, and Belgrade political circles expressed belief the Axis now is seeking an open pro-Axis declaration.

German Propaganda Machine Working Overtime in Balkans

Bucharest, Oct. 11 (AP).—A formation of 150 planes, some bearing German markings and others Rumanian insignia, flew back and forth over Bucharest and the oil towns of Ploesti and Giurgiu today.

They swooped low over the British Legation in Bucharest where the staff was speeding its packing up.

They patrolled east and west and north and south methodically. At one time 68 planes were over the capital.

At the same time German aviators arrived at their hotel opposite the Royal Palace where two floors had been reserved for 45 German officers.

The display of the German Air Force was made as German official circles charged through their mouthpiece in Rumania, the Tageblatt, that Turkey had been assigned by Great Britain the task of attacking Rumanian oil wells from the air and that the British minister, Sir Reginald Hoare, was an accomplice in the plan.

Apparently groping for excuses the stationing of German forces in Rumania, the newspaper declared the new Rumanian regime under Gen. Ion Antonescu, "knows what enemies are and backed by the axis, will be powerful enough to reply."

The anti-Turkish outburst came as more Nazi troops, guns and other war equipment entered the country by rail and on Danube River barges through Yugoslavia.

Tageblatt charged that under the original Turkish-British treaty the Allied army which Gen. Maxime Weygand assembled last winter in the middle east was to have "spread the war into the Balkans" and that Rumania's natural wealth "was to have been destroyed without mercy."

(This story is an old favorite with the German propaganda machine in the Balkans.)

"British terror was particularly devastating in the economic field," it continued. "Rumania lost millions of dollars because of Britih

Rumanian Credits Blocked in England By Gov't-Same Action Taken by United States

By J. F. SANDERSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Oct. 11 (CP).—The government today blocked all Rumanian credits in this country.

It was not known whether Rumanian ships in British ports were included in the seizure order.

The order was made presumably because German troops are entering Rumania and because the Rumanians have arrested and allegedly maltreated British subjects, including a Canadian mining engineer, John Treacey, formerly of Chatham, Ont., and his wife.

Similar action freezing Rumanian credits in that country was taken last night by the United States.

Authoritative sources said information on the Rumanian situation which "cannot be regarded as satisfactory" has been received from Sir Reginald Hoare, British Minister in Bucharest.

Today's order was not tantamount to a break of diplomatic relations but it was interpreted in diplomatic circles as still another indication that a rupture between the two countries is merely a matter of time, perhaps hours.

Sir Reginald has full power to withdraw from Bucharest and it was generally agreed here that unless the situation improves quickly he will evacuate himself and the elgation staff very shortly.

There still are long delays in communications between the legation at Bucharest and the Foreign Office at London. A batch of messages was received yesterday and last night but they were three days out of date.

For instance, the British Government is unable to confirm the presence of German troops in Rumania, although there is apparently no doubt about it.

A spokesman refused to comment on the possibility of a rupture in relations with Rumania but sections of the press demanded that the British Minister be recalled forthwith.

A number of reports have been received from Sir Reginald since communications have been "somewhat improved," the spokesman said, declaring, "these show he has seen and interviewed responsible ministers of the Rumanian Government"

Previously it was reported communications were difficult with Sir Reginald getting through only one message in the past few days.

Informed sources which previously had refused to comment on the German penetration of Rumania said today "There can be little doubt as to the fact that armed Germans with a certain amount of equipment are in Rumania."

Grant of $1.75 a Day For Charity Cases Inadequate Says Pres.

Toronto, Oct 11. (CP)—Legislation to enable hospitals to charge and collect from municipalities for extra costs incurred by public patients was suggested before the Ontario Hospital Association convention here today by Dr. L. C. Fallis, London, President.

"The grant of $1.75 a day for charity cases is entirely inadequate," he said.

"Increased hospital expenditures are amply justified by decreased mortality rates. There is an investment of $4,000,000,000 in hospitals on the American continent today and philanthorpists are growing tired of their supporting role. The time is coming when the earned income of hospitals must be increased."

Dr. Robert C. Wallace, Principal of Queen's University, declared that one-fourth of Canada's population could not pay at all for the cost of sickness.

"Many others could not face a long illness without fear of bankruptcy of years of serious indebtedness," he said. "Illness is one of the few expenses for which man cannot budget and we will not come to a satisfactory solution of the problem until a man knows how much he must pay each year for sickness on behalf of himself and his family."

THANKS C. W. L. FOR LARGE GIFT

Requests Women of Kingston Diocese to Advance Interests of Country and Empire

REPORTS GIVEN

Brockville, Ont., Oct. 11.—(CP)—Archbishop M. J. O'Brien, of Kingston, speaking before the Catholic Women's League of the Kingston Diocese at their 20th annual convention dinner here last night, commended them for their gift of $25,000 to the Federal Government for war purposes. His Grace urged his hearers to promote the sale of War Savings stamps and certificates as a means of aiding the Government in prosecuting the war.

The Archbishop commended the members of the League for their unswerving loyalty to God and country through their devotion to church and their work in behalf of the various war endeavours in which the women of Canada, of all faiths, are engaged. He spoke of the "awful crucifixion" of the people in Great Britain, as death and destruction is rained down upon them, and said that should such a condition ever come to Canada all men and women must be prepared to do their full part in bearing the trials and tribulations of actual war.

Monsignor Nicholson Heard

Genuine love and devotion to the British flag, the emblem of liberty, is characteristic of all true Christian Canadians, Archbishop O'Brien said. He asked the Catholic women of the diocese to do all in their power to advance the interests of the country and the empire at all times and particularly in such times of stress as the empire is now experiencing.

Mrs. J. A. McCabe, Ottawa, National President of the Catholic Women's League, reported on the Dominion-wide work of the organization. Other speakers were Very Rev. A. J. Hanley, Rev. Walter Healey, Brockville; Rt. Rev. J. F Nicholson, V.G, Belleville; Mrs. M. P. McGlade, Smiths Falls, Mrs. W. H. Raney, Prescott, the retiring Diocesan President and Miss Hattie Fraser, President of the Brockville sub-division.

At a delegates luncheon Thursday, Mrs. E. H. Swift, convener of the Red Cross War Work Committee in Brockville and district, was the guest speaker.

District sub-division reports were received during the afternoon session when resolutions passed included pledges of loyalty to their Majesties and the empire. It was decided that masses be offered throughout the Archdiocese during October in supplication for victory and an honorable peace.

Italian Positions In East Africa Attacked by British

Rome, Oct. 11.—(AP) — Two British land attacks on Italian positions in Eritrea and Kenya Colony, launched in one case with mechanized equipment and supported in the other by aircraft, were reported today.

The attack on the Eritrean frontier, the Italian High Command said was launched from the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan at a point between the border towns of Abu Gamel and Tessenei. Mechanized equipment formed the spearhead of the assault.

Two British columns, backed by aircraft, were said to have participated in the other attack, directed at Italian advance positions near Buna, inside the border of Kenya Colony.

The communique claimed that both attacks were unsuccessful.

(The British account of these operations has not yet been issued.)

Picton and District

Picton, Oct. 11 (Special)—Pupils of Picton Public Schools are giving splendid support to the drive to increase the sale of War Saving Stamps. In the past three weeks they have purchased stamps valued at $70, and continue to make weekly purchasings. Some are using their savings deposited in the schools' penny bank account. Prince Edward County Council gave each pupil a booklet to hold sixteen stamps and placed the first stamp on each one. This started many new collections. Previous to the holiday, before there was any organized campaign, many stamps were purchased by the pupils.

Prince Edward County Boys' Clubs were well represented at Picton Fair this year despite the busy season with tomatoes and silo filling. Eighteen boys brought Holstein calves out in the ring in excellent condition to make an outstanding feature of the fair. Ten foals shown in the foal club made a keen competition for this class. Grain, swine and poultry clubs were laso well represented

THIRD DIVISION IS ASSIGNED TO EAST COMMAND

Canada Girds Self for Defence From East to West of Dominion

A NEW COMMAND

Ottawa Oct. 11 CP)—Canada girded herself today for defence from east to west, responsibility for a large share of her coastal protection placed with similar army commands in Atlantic and Pacific zones.

Last August the sprawling eastern seaboard, facing war-torn Europe, was grouped into an Atlantic command under Maj.-Gen. W. H. P. Elkins.

Yesterday the same defence principles were extended to British Columbia and Alberta, facing the tense Far East. Defence Minister Ralston announced a Pacific command has been set up in the two provinces under Maj.-Gen. R. O. Alexander.

The new Pacific command covers a much larger land area than the Atlantic command, but is more concentrated. The only coastline for Gen Alexander to protect is in British Columbia. Gen. Elkins, on the other hand, must protect Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island and also provide the military defence of Newfoundland and the approaches to the St. Lawrence River.

Commands Identical

In many other respects the Atlantic and Pacific commands are identical. The coastlines are deeply indented, there are large areas with sparse population, mountainous territory and districts where facilities for transportation and communication are poor, or non-existent.

Each command has jurisdiction over coastal defence troops, fortress troops and all mobile forces assigned within its area. Each will maintain close co-operation with headquarters of the Royal Canadian navy and Royal Canadian air force.

The 3rd division of the Canadian Active Service Force has been assigned to the Atlantic command. While no allotment of troops has been made for the Pacific command it is expected some C.A.S.F. units will be stationed there also—probably at least part of the 4th division and perhaps some western infantry units of the 5th.

Gen. Elkins and Gen. Alexander are in charge of strictly operational activities, as distinct from training operations. Their duties interfere little with the work of existing district military authorities.

SEVEN KILLED

The victims, all closely related and residents of the nearby village of Pierreville, were:

Henri Paul Cayer, 28, his wife, 24, and their three-months-old baby, Jacques;

Jean Marie Cayer, 26-year-old brother of Henri Paul, and his wife, 24;

Yvon Cafer, 19, another brother;

Leo Morvan, 18-year-old brother of Mrs. Jean Marie Cayer.

They were identified by Georges Laramee, a Sorel painter and brother of Mrs. Henri Paul Cayer, who heard of the accident some time after it occurred and visited the scene from curiosity.

Car Dragged 300 Feet

All passengers of the automobile except Paul Henri Cayer were killed almost instantly as the car was dragged 300 feet from the crossing by the heavy train. The occupants were spilled out all along the right of way and the machine was crushed.

Paul Henri Cayer, still conscious when a doctor and a priest reached the scene, was given the last rites of the Roman Catholic Church and rushed to hospital. He died shortly after admission.

A squad of Provincial Police, sent here to investigate, sought witnesses of the crash which occurred at a level crossing of the Canadian National Railways on the outskirts of this town, 40 miles below Montreal on the south bank of the St. Lawrence River. Several hours after it occurred, nobody who actually saw the accident had been located.

German Officers Now Less Confident Of Ultimate Nazi Victory Than They Were When Forces Marched into Paris

By FRANK FLAHERTY

Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, Oct. 11 —(CP)— German army officers now are less confident of an ultimate Nazi victory than they were when their forces marched into Paris, Brig.-Gen. Horace H. Fuller of the United States Army said today.

Gen. Fuller only recently returned to this continent from his post as military attache at the American embassy in France.

"German officers are pretty confident, but they're not so happy as they were at first," he said during an interview. "They are a bit puzzled now. Germany's losses in the air aren't making them feel better."

Gen. Fuller said he believes the Germans were surprised when they defeated France so quickly. He has the impression their plans for an attack on Britain and the occupation of France did not envisage any such collapse of French resistance.

"They certainly weren't ready for the civil administration of occupied France, although the military occupation went ahead very smoothly," he said.

Gen. Fuller said Germany had not completed preparations for an attempted invasion of the United Kingdom when France fell. As a result, the Nazis couldn't make use of any strategic advantage they gained through Britain's loss of much military equipment in the evacuation from Flanders.

Visiting General LaFleche

In the meantime Britain had been able to make replacements and put her defences on a better footing

Gen. Fuller is visiting Maj.-Gen. L. R. LaFleche, former Canadian military attache in Paris who is now Associate Deputy Minister of National War Services. The two worked together in France keeping abreast of the rapidly-changing military situation for their respective governments.

Gen. Fuller expressed "great admiration" for the work the Canadian General did overseas. It was through their friendship that Gen. Fuller developed a keen interest in Canada's military and air activities.

He said the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan seemed to be a "Fine system" for training air crews.

Since he has just returned from France, Gen. Fuller said he knew little of the plan for compulsory military training in the United States, but he thought Canada's scheme was a good one.

"It is the simplest draft I have ever seen," he remarked. "The way you Canadians have succeeded in cutting red tape surprised me."

Body is Exhumed For Post-Mortem

Brockville, Ont., Oct. 11 (CP)—Body of Morris Mallory of Gananoque, Ont., was exhumed Thursday for post-mortem examination by Dr. W. D. Hay of Queen's University at Kingston. Dr. Hay will report his findings at an inquest ordered by the Ontario Attorney-General's Department.

Mallory's body was found in the water at nearby Morton Dam Aug. 1. A physician who examined the body then concluded death had been due to drowning. Mallory's relatives asked the Attorney-General's Department to order an inquest.

SCOTTISH PATRIOTIC EFFORT

Gordon B. Johnson, Canadiah Trade Commissioner at Glasgow, a native of Belleville and a son of the late J. W. Johnson, ex-M.P., tells in a report to the Department of Trade and Commerce of the patriotism of Scotland in this war.

"Production in Scottish heavy industries," he says, "especially in shipping tonnage and armaments, has been enormously accelerated in the last few months to meet war demands." He notes two factors for the increase, introduction of the seven-day week in certain trades, and a transfer of labor from less essential industries. With non-stop production in the steelworks for seven days a week, the flow of materials to the shipyards has vastly increased to meet the Government's huge shipbuilding program, Mr. Johnson says.

"The increased output in this and other vital industries has been made possible by the patriotic spirit animating the workers. They have sacrificed holidays and for the time being certain customs of their crafts established over many years, in order to maintain maximum output." For instance Mr. Johnson cites how agreement has been reached in the shipbuilding and ship-repairing industries for the dilution of labor and for the exchange of labor between different classes of craftsmen. "In this country where trade unions are so strong and hard-won privileges so jealously guarded, such concessions illustrate the attitude of the ordinary working man towards the war." Staggered holidays have been arranged to enable the men to protect their health by rest without diminishing output.

Mr. Johnson says that at no time in its history has the Scottish steel trade been more fully organized and equipped for large outputs than it is at present.

This is how the workers make the steel and ships which will bear down with their effectiveness and weight to smother Hitlerism. This is how Scotland carries on the war.

NAZI VANDALS

Sacred edifices do not escape the anger and desecration of members of the German air force. Westminster Abbey, the centre of the British-speaking world where her Kings have been crowned and many of her great buried, has been severely damaged by a large German bomb which however did not make a direct hit. Now the high altar of St. Paul's Cathedral has been struck.

A missile fell behind the statue of Richard Coeur-de-Lion, of the Lion-Heart, hero of Crusade romances and one of the great early figures of British history. The statue, which is beside the Abbey, escaped damage as if the figure of the giant king had defended himself against the Hun bomb. But his sword was bent and his horse slightly damaged.

One of the tragedies of the damage is the desecration of the noble chapel of King Henry Seventh where the knights of the Garter are installed with ritual dating from the dim past and where their banners are hung.

A statue of another man well known in English history, Oliver Cromwell, the Lord Protector of England in the trying days during and after the English Civil War, suffered scars from the enemy bomb.

Not so long ago the statue of the blind poet Milton in St. Giles Church was knocked down in a Nazi raid but his grave was untouched.

These are neither military nor economic targets but they have sustained damage from the raiders whose vandalisms are not restrained but hit at the shrines of the nation and of civilization. That is what the barbarous Hun aims to accomplish.

The world which is democratic and not Nazi and not Fascist is grateful that these shrines have not been wiped out, no thanks to the enemy and that so much of the riches of English and British life are yet untouched and undefiled by the enemy's hands.

FIRE DESTROYS INDIVIDUAL AND NATIONAL WEALTH

Carefulness should be the watchword in regard to fire hazards. Today the war is destroying wealth and fire too is a great destroyer. Much of the fire loss is preventable, a careful study of records showing that at least eighty per cent of fires are preventable.

Careless smokers in 1939 caused nearly 14,000 fires, involving a loss of over $2,000,000, the report of the Dominion Fire Commissioner indicates. Most of these fires originated in dwellings, but frequently they occur in factories, stores, warehouses and other mercantile occupancies. The loss in such cases is often very high. To the careless disposal of a cigarette there was attributed two years ago a loss of $770,000.

Attention of the smoker in bed is called to this dangerous habit. Numerous reports are read of the results. Drowsiness is likely to overcome the smoker and he falls asleep and yet the lighted cigarette does not go out. There are chances it may start a smouldering of the bed covers and the sleeper lies in danger of asphyxiation or of being burned to death. It is better to do one's smoking before retiring and so live much longer.

The disposal of the cigarette butt, match, cigar and pipe tobacco should receive much attention. Evidence of the loss which they may cause is indicated in numerous fires caused by careless campers. Blame is attached to motorists who are indifferent about the disposition of these, though every make of car today has receptacles for used matches and cigarettes. In the summertime particularly when the roadsides may be parched, the cigarette butt or match may start a fire which sweeps across fields, destroys fences, wipes out standing or harvested crops and endangers buildings and lives. In the woods, too, there is the same need for precaution.

WHY BRITAIN WILL WIN

It must be and will be victory.

A Calgary man, Robert Grosvenor, 68, claims he is heir to an estate in England which may be worth half a million dollars but he "doesn't care what becomes of the money so long as England wins the war." He is the last living representative of the second branch of the family headed by the Duke of Westminster. His two remaining brothers were killed in September in a German air raid over Chelsea. Grosvenor, who homesteaded near Leedale, Alberta, says he has a steady income in Canada and he did not want the fortune.

"As long as England wins the war." That is the paramount thought of all, it is the one object and it is the reason why Britain will win the war. Never has the world seen a finer exhibition of the unity of the British people than in this time when fortunes and so many other things are poured into the crucible to mould weapons for the maintainance of liberty against the destructive foe.

All that is cherished in life by the democratic peoples would pass under a cloud if by any unthinkable turn of events the aggressor should achieve his aim. It is the realization of this fact that fires the soul of Britain and earns the applause of the non-belligerent nations as Britain in her power carries on.

To yield a fortune for victory would be only giving something of secondary value for the pearl of true price, freedom.

The Bully Squeals

The bully is squealing. A few Germans have been killed in the raids on Berlin, and the official bulletins scream about the "assassins" and "pirates" of the R.A.F. There were no such cries when the Germans bombarded Almeria from the sea without warning and killed Spanish women and children in their beds. This, the only "victory" won by a pocket-battleship, was written off as a "successful operation." There were no protests from Berlin when the German air force methodically wiped out Guernica, national shrine of the Basques, with whom they were not at war. This was regarded as good practice for German airmen. But now the bully squeals. He is up against someone his own size.—London Daily Mail.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

Symptoms Due to Lack of Vitamin B1

Just a few years ago vitamins were unknown. Then came knowledge of the original five vitamins A, B, C, D, and E. Each of these vitamins was known to have one special use in the body:

A prevented eye ailments and night blindness.
B increased appetite,
C prevented scurvy,
D prevented rickets, and
E was an important factor in reproduction.

At one time C was the vitamin most commonly known, then D, then A. To-day the most discussed vitamin is B1, a division of the original vitamin B.

Why is vitamin B1 so important to health? Perhaps the oldest disease known to man is rheumatism and arthritis which affect the muscles and ligaments about joints and the joints themselves. While infection from teeth and tonsils, coldness and dampness, mental and physical strain, are all causes or partial causes of arthritis, it is now known that many cases are due to an insufficient amount of vitamin B1. The nerves, covered as they are with a sheath or protection similar to the insulation of electric wires, require oxygen in definite amounts. It is vitamin B1 taken in the food or directly, that enables the oxygen to penetrate this sheath or covering. With sufficient oxygen reaching these nerves, the pain disappears. This is but one of the uses of vitamin B1 in the body.

An interesting investigation of the effect of a deficient amount of vitamin B1 is reported by Drs. R. D. Williams, H. L. Mason and B. F. Smith, Mayo Clinic. They selected four healthy state hospital patients and fed them plenty of food but left out foods containing vitamin B1.

What happened? There was loss of appetite, loss of weight, insufficient hydrochloric acid in stomach digestive juice, constipation, pain in calf muscles, and electro-cardiograph showed changes in the strength and rhythm of the heart.

It can thus be seen how lack of vitamin B1 could gradually cause various symptoms throughout the body—pain in muscles and joints, lack of appetite, poor digestion, constipation, weakness and irregularity of the heart without the individual ever suspecting that his food had anything to do with these symptoms.

It would be well to remember the foods rich in vitamin B1, whether or not symptoms are present. These foods are bacon, ham, beef liver, malted milk, green vegetables, buttermilk and yeast.

Japan Has Designs On Britain

(By "SINOCAN")

"Sinocan" is the pseudonym of a man who has lived for thirty years in China and Japan, during which time he was in continuous contact with a number of the Japanese secret service and with the Japanese military and naval officers of senior and junior rank, consular officials, etc.

A correct understanding of the Japanese problem of today is impossible without some previous knowledge of the history and psychology of the Japanese people themselves.

It is fundamentally wrong to judge them by Western standards, to expect from them the same processes of thought and sequences of action that we normally expect from European peoples. Their entire civilization has grown of its own volition, a thing apart, unaffected by internal influences. They have merely appropriated to themselves, with acute selectivity, such individual features of occidental life as are directly helpful in the intensification of their own cultural and material progress. The idea of "Europeanizing" themselves as a whole of abandoning their own civilization in favour of any other, is not entertained, for, in their view, theirs is superior to all others; being divinely conceived, and divinely directed, it must be so. That is the keynote of the Japanese character, the ultimate explanation of their amazing audacity. They are possessed of a firm conviction of their direct physical connection with divinity.

Hence the perfect faith of the nation in personal and collective superiority of the Japanese over all other peoples, in their conception of the national destiny, which is to rule all others, and in the invincibility of their armed forces. It is fruitless to point out to them that so far they have never tested themselves against first-class troops or ships; to them the result, whatever the circumstances, is inevitable, pre-ordained victory.

Sometimes Japanese statesmen apologize to foreign powers for Japanese actions, if such a course seems at the moment to be most convenient. But the Samurai—the warriors—responsible for that action in the first place do not apologise to Europeans. They smile with silent disdain.

Any one who has lived in Japan knows that an apology there does not necessarily imply regret or an intention of future restraint; it is merely a passing phrase dispersed profusely throughout their entire intercourse. It begins and ends every conversation—almost every sentence. A policeman apologises when making an arrest, an assassin with each twist of the knife, but he gives it another twist all the same. The nation apologizes collectively at times, to the animals and fish killed during the year, even to the oysters destroyed in the production of artificial pearls.

The character of the Japanese people is, to many, a complete paradox. We see on the one hand a people unsurpassed in the world of things beautiful, artistic and poetical; their love of cleanliness, neatness, the highest standards of domesticity, amount almost to fastidiousness at times Yet in war, or in personal conflict, they suddenly become inflamed with a ferocious passion in which the picture of the flower-loving poet, dreaming by his lily pond, is unrecognizable.

The explanation probably lies in the dual character of his racial origin. The progenitors of the modern Japanese were mostly Mongol-Chinese and Malays—types as far apart, ethnologically, as could be imagined. The Chinese strain undoubtedly contributes the cultural element in the Japanese character as the scripts and the artistic accomplishments of Japan testify, while the Malay is the source of the savagery which has been so terribly evident lately.

• • •

Now what are the ultimate intentions of this very extraordinary and—let me admit—very gallant, efficient and sometimes charming people; or rather, of those who lead them? That is the most vital question of the day and, beside it, all others fade to parish-pump significance.

The intentions of the Japanese military leaders are these, and have been these for at least thirty years: To displace the British Empire and put it under Japanese control and then to dominate the world by force of numbers and by economic pressure.

I first heard of this plan in Japan during the autumn of 1905 when I was present where three officers of the imperial guard were celebrating the recent victory over Russia. The toast of the evening was: "And now for America, and finally the British Empire."

Should we accept—though, of course, we don't—the Japanese contention that Singapore must fall to them, there is no point east of the Mediterranean at which we can challenge them seriously. We could harass them from Ceylon and Aden, but they would have little difficulty in isolating these points. Nowhere could we establish a barrier to resist the fleet and army of Asia, which would then be based on Singapore.

Having no navy to speak of, Australia could do little outside her own borders beyond assisting in the defence of Singapore by aircraft. Her shipping across the Indian and Pacific Oceans, being defended only by a few cruisers and torpedo boats, would be at the mercy of the Asiatic fleets and it would only be a question of time before she would have to accept the Japanese terms. Thereafter, the routing of the wool and grain ships and the importation of manufactured goods from Japan only, would be very effectively controlled by a gentleman at the end of the telephone wire in Tokio.

Japan would like to possess the whole Empire's supply of rubber, tin and copra from Malaya; wool, hides and grain from Australia; cotton, jute, iron and other ores from India; coal, iron, antimony and foodstuffs of all kinds from China, and all the products of East Africa. These, and numerous other essential materials, would then be routed to Osaka and Yokohama, instead of London, and the long-dreamt-of monopoly of world trade would have been established.

London Council Has a Job

(By JOHN FULLER)

London, the world's greatest city, has an annual budget far greater than many countries in Europe — Greece, Portugal and Turkey to mention only three. Roughly, £67,000,000 is the amount expended each year on the day-to-day upkeep of London. And London is democratically governed by the elected representatives of the 29 districts into which it has been divided for convenience of voting.

The London County Council is the body responsible for the health, education and well-being of nearly five million people; a bigger population than Switzerland, and all of that population is crammed into 117 or so square miles of land. It controls over a thousand schools. Half a million boys and girls learn to read and write and to be good citizens there. Another quarter million other children are trained by the L.C.C. for careers in technical schools. It owns 87,000 houses and 381,000 people live in them and pay rent.

If a fire breaks out in one of these houses, or in any other house in the 117 square miles, fire engines sent from the nearest one of the London County Council's stations come and put it out. And in peacetime no house in London was more than four minutes away from a fire station. In war-time main and auxiliary stations are round every street corner. Ten thousand fires a year are put out by the L.C.C.'s Fire Brigades.

The L.C.C. annually looks after 60,000 patients in the hospitals it maintains. If you are knocked down by a bus in Piccadilly an ambulance from one of the 22 stations, scattered through London, will come and pick you up. Every phase of the Londoner's life is touched by the L.C.C. The Council makes it its business to protect the interests of all London's citizens from the cradle to the grave. It keeps up the river walls on the Thames Embankment, maintains ten bridges over the Thames, and four tunnels under it. It looks after the safety of its public at over 800 theatres and cinemas. It gives employment to nearly 77,000 men and women.

More than a fifth of all the people of England and Wales live in London. The amazing organization which cares for them and which does all and more of the things I have mentioned is only 51 years old. It has no history such as other British institutions have. Some of the people who work for it to-day can remember its being founded. But within the space of 50 years it has altered the face of the world's greatest city. For example, the acreage of parks it controls has risen from 2,630 to 6,679. And the green parks and gardens, most of which would have been built on long ago, but for the L.C.C., are one of London's most precious assets.

The Council maintains 36 football pitches, three full-sized golf courses and nearly 1,000 tennis courts. There are now 17 open-air swimming pools, all of them with filtration plants and terraces for sun-bathing. It is possible to live a healthy, open-air life in the greatest city in the world.

It is literally true to-day that the L. C. C. is concerned with the welfare of every one of London's inhabitants. More than ever, since this was started, has this huge organization shown the ease with which it can adapt itself to an emergency.

When London is bombed the L.C.C. is the Government's instrument for maintaining the life of the capital. And the L.C.C. is prepared, and well prepared, for this enormous responsibility. It is carrying on with this emergency job, and you can depend on it that its normal work is not suffering either.

Candidate for Position Of Picton Constable Full of Confidence

George C. Carter wants to be a Picton constable. And if George can do all he says he can in his official application, then the war is won, and Picton will be Utopia.

In his letter to the Town Council George described himself as being "as strong as a horse and as fearless as a lion; sound in wind and limb." The letter was read at a recent meeting of the town fathers.

"There is one thing I would like to tell you and it is this," George wrote, "that if I save you the cost of one fire in Picton, I will save my salary. I am a specialist on fires and you can rest assured there will be no fires in Picton if I am appointed."

"I have lots of experience directing traffic," George told the council in his letter. "I will look after this so well there will be no cars on the street at all. I will drive them off the streets entirely if you see fit. If you want any references you can apply to Reeve Horace Colliver, because he knows me and can tell you what kind of a man I am."

"If I am given this appointment, you will get 100 per cent efficiency and I would say 150 per and then some."

It was not ascertained today whether George will be the new policeman.

The Stars Say

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Friday, October 11

A sudden and surprising event bursting into a rather routine or humdrum state of affairs may have rather startling and far reaching results of a wholly unpredictable nature, according to lunar transits. This may precipitate an abrupt change of plans with a radical uprooting of our current circumstances. New associations and environs not entirely welcome or pleasant may be looked for but these should not be decided upon with impetuosity or tumult.

Those whose birthday it is may encounter a year of a sharp and surprising turn of events, which may have a radical and uprooting effect on prevailing plans and projects. Change of envorons, contacts and objectives may be enforced although not welcomed, but enter into such rearrangements with calmness.

A child born on this day may have a restless nervous and at times erratic nature, with sudden impulses and "escapes" difficult to fathom.

Awkward Children Need Atmosphere of Calmness at Home

By Garry C. Myers, Ph.D.

During a form I was conducting in a school assembly, a very tall eighth grade boy rose and said: "It seems I'm always dropping and breaking things. My mother and father scold me and tell me I don't care. I do care. I try hard and get discouraged. Is there any hope for me to get better?"

"You see," I replied, "your father and mother want to help you get over this awkwardness and they are worried about the cost of the things you break. They suppose they will help you by their methods. You and I don't believe they will. If I could talk to your parents, I think I could help them see that when a boy grows fast as you do, at your age, he is very awkward. By and by he gets better control of himself. If I were you I would make myself move slowly when handling things easily dropped and broken. At some quiet time when you feel calm and your father and mother seem most kindly, I would sit down by them and say: 'Mother and Dad, I'm sorry I'm so awkward, I'm sorry I drop and break so many things. I do try hard to be careful. Please won't you be patient with me?'"

Awkward Children

It is early adolescene when extreme awkardness is most common. Awkwardness may, however, appear at any age. The other day a mother told me of a child of eight "always dropping and spilling things." Teachers complain of some children in the lower grades who are "so messy with everything." Usually their penmanship is atrocious. As a rule they are very fidgety, hardly able to sit still. Perhaps they chew their nails, even their clothing. Obviously such children are nervous and excitable.

A mother writes:

"I should like you to tell me what I should do about my five-year-old son's careless awkwardness. He spills everything he gets his hands on, stumbles over everything, and is in general quite a trial. He has always been this way—walks over anything on the floor without even glancing around to see what it is or even putting anything up and out of the way. He can't carry a cup half full of water across the floor without watching it. The minute he takes his eyes off it, it turns up and spills."

Need of Calmness

I entreated this mother to seek the advice of a physician about her child and to work with this doctor to build him up physically and cultivate in him more calmness and poise.

"Treat him as a sick child," I wrote her. "Get him out of doors for short periods of play but not exciting play, and don't let him get overtired. Have him lie down every afternoon for an hour. Also have him lie down for 15 minutes right before lunch and dinner. Give him tools and encourage him to draw, color, cut, paste and build.

"Keep your voice soft and low. Try to create a serene family atmosphere. Try to win his co-operation. Please don't scold him for hir 'apparent carelessness.' He is not careless, he is sick. Praise him when he shows calm and carefulness. You and Dad should show this lad more affection. Put your arm about him now and then and don't hesitate to hold him on your knees or rock him or even to kiss and cuddle him.

Show Affection

"In your letter you refer to a baby one year old. This older child's nervous disorder might be traceable wholly or in part to jealousy of the baby. Certainly you can do no harm by striving to make this lad feel more secure and worth while as a member of the family group. Anyway, don't look for miracles. Don't expect the lad to change all at once. Be happy if you see gradual improvement after a few months or weeks."

15th Annual Meeting of Belleville Section of the Women's Missionary Society

The Belleville Sectional Rally held at Cannifton, morning and afternoon, of Thursday, Oct. 10th, opened in a spirit of quiet devotion. A sense of God's presence rested upon the women present, who had come in sufficient numbers to almost fill the church auditorium when the service opened at nine o'clock.

The church had been beautifully decorated with autumn fruits, flowers and vegetables which added much to the gathering. This labour of love had been shared by all members of the Cannifton W.M.S. family.

The singing of the Doxology was followed by quiet music and the call to worship. The Lord is good and His mercy endureth forever.

The worship service was in charge of Mrs. E. C. Sills and Mrs. W. Hodgen of Foxboro. The lesson from Math. 25 was read by Mrs. Sills with emphasis on the verse, "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto the least of these." Mrs. Hodgen with quiet sympathetic voice told a part of the story of Ben Hur and his meeting with the young man Jesus, when Jesus administered a cup of cold water to the fainting prisoner, Ben Hur. "Unto the least of these was made the thought of the service," Mrs. Hodgen then led in prayer that all might have strength and vision to minister to all in need.

Extends Welcome

A sincere welcome was extended to all by Mrs. Armstrong, of Cannifton, who mentioned the changes that have taken place during the past year that our country has been at war. Until that time we appeared to be living in a chaos of fear, as on top of a volcano which was ready to burst. Now she said, that has developed into a definite fear, as freedom is at stake. Freedom is not won, reminded Mrs. Armstrong—not by might nor power, but by My spirit saith the Lord. Mrs. Armstrong wished that all might feel at home and comfortable in every way.

Mrs. Harry Coutts of Grace Church Trenton, graciously responded to this welcome.

Story of the Year

The Story of the Year was given by Mrs. Harry Harrison. There are 35 auxiliaries and 2 evening auxiliaries in this section with a membership of 1016 members; showing an increase of 85. $4996.47 was raised, a decrease of $197. Only 60 percent of the women of our congregation are members of our W.M.S. Over 600 are not in our work. "The woman who creates an interest in the uninterested woman lights a taper whose beams may reach eternity." Systematic giving is stressed in nearly all societies, 8 auxiliaries reached their allocation last year. We at the Home Base ought not to hide behind the war as our reason for slipping back. Let us carry on to better things with renewed hope and vigour. "The tasks before us are never greater than the power behind us." All but 3 societies reported using the Study Book. 344 Missionary. Monthly's were taken by members. It was suggested that highlights of the magazine be given by the secretary at each meeting. Nearly all societies show interest in Temperance by having items given at each meeting. Many societies report peace programs given.

All auxiliaries are interested in supply work. Quilts, new clothing, good used clothing, material for sewing, toys and candy were all included in bales. All societies report having a Press Secretary. New interest is reported in the Department of Community Friendship. The field work in the Associate Helpers is almost unlimited when we realize that over 600 women not members of the W.M.S.. It is the work of the department to get new W.M. S. members. Many reported Miss Claire's visit and her interesting lecture on Japan.

Four Mission Circles

There are four Mission Circles in this section with 77 members contributing $163.18. There are four affiliated C.G.I.T. groups with 123 members, giving to missions $9.78. There are 26 Mission Bands of 458 members sending in $362.34. There was an increase of 134 members and $22.04 increase in givings. In Mission Band work we have a task second to none. There are 11 Baby Bands with 128 members and $18.55 sent in. An auxiliary that has no Baby Band has no vision for the future.

Mrs. Stanley Spafford as Presbyterial Secretary of Community Friendship gave a ten minute talk not only to the secretaries she said, in her department, but to all members of all auxiliaries; urging each to be good neighbors to all with whom they came in contact, and thus realize the aim of the department, to make your community Christian.

Mrs. Spafford stressed the using of removal slips whenever citizens, young or old, were moving to another community town or city.

Reviews Books

Mrs. H. D. Williams of Picton, Literature Secretary, said a church to be a living church must have the knowledge which is available in the books from the Missionary Book Shelf some of which she briefly reviewed.

Interesting and modern books may be had for the tiny tots, the younger child, teen-aged boys and girls, as well as the adult who is searching for knowledge in all phases of world conditions at the present time.

A small book prepared as a gift for soldiers was highly commended as well as two new publications on Temperance. Books were on display and sold during the noon hour.

"Good Stewards"

"Good Stewards" was the subject of an address by Mrs. W. F. Osborne who stated that in Stewardship many think only of money. Money is necessary, she said, but if money alone were given there would be little missionary work done. Human brotherliness she felt, was a quality of being a good steward also faithfulness, honouring God, being able to serve, the giving of our time, and using our influence all are needed, in the ultimate success of a good steward which is estimated in terms of work to His Kingdom.

Miss Grace Sykes of Honan, China, was then introduced by Mrs. F. L. Hooper, President of Belleville Presbyterial.

Miss Sykes has been a missionary evangelist since 1912.

The quiet half hour followed.

The quiet half hour and Memorable service was conducted by Mrs. G. McKenzie, of Plainfield, assisted by members of the Plainfield Auxiliary. Mrs. McKenzie said that as the greatest works of love are usually done unconsciously, so Christ may touch people through the unconscious influence of Christian character. Our departed friends are still with us, in the memory of their Christ-like lives. Mrs. Harrison read the names of the members of the auxiliaries, who had passed to higher service during the year and Mrs. Arthur Hall sang most feelingly "The City Four Square." Prayer concluded this touching service, and the morning session was quietly dismissed.

Names of deceased members of 1940: Mrs. R. A. Morton, Mrs. E. W. Brown, Miss M. Miller, Mrs. B. A. Frederick, Mrs. A. E. Bailey, Mrs. C. J. Rose, Mrs. M. J. Hallett, Mrs. I. J. Brough, Mrs. Albert Gibson, Miss Lottie Goodman, Mrs. Chas. Chisholm, Mrs. Ed. Spencer, Mrs. J. H. Ketcheson, Miss Janet Deacon, Mrs. M. Paul, Mrs. M. Alyea, Mrs. Rowe Hunt, Mrs. Frank Wilson, Mrs. Earl Outwater, Mrs. Harriett Woods, Mrs. Alex Martin, Mrs. C. F. Walt, Mrs. Mary Park, Mrs. Ferguson York.

Dinner Hour

At the noon hour the ladies of Cannifton served an appetizing dinner with a bountiful array of tempting dishes, the delegates doing ample justice to the good things provided.

Honored Guests

Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Smith of Cannifton, were guests of honor, it being the occasion of their sixty-fifth wedding anniversary and Mr. Smith's eighty-eighth birthday.

Rev. W. J. Davis and Mrs. Chas. Mills paid tribute to this well-honored couple and the delegation sang "Happy Birthday" and "Silver Threads Among the Gold."

Afternoon Service

The afternoon meeting opened with a worship service in charge of Chatterton Auxiliary with the president, Mrs. Bert Finkle, in charge. Prayer was offered by Mrs. Walter Lindenfield. The Bible lesson was read by Mrs. Berson Mitts and Mrs. Howard Dafoe based her message on "Brotherly Love" telling of many instances of tests of God's love. Truly the world needs people today who will give themselves universally to the cause of Christ and His missionary enterprize.

Miss Aleita Horton and Mrs. Gerald Frederick rendered a vocal duet "There Is No Other", with Mrs. Fred Campbell at the piano.

Mrs. J. R. Pickering

Mrs. Pickering's address on Temperance began with an illustrated comparison of two plants that had been purchased two weeks ago from the florist, each watered and well taken care of. One plant was given pure, clear water, as was the other, but with alcohol added, resulting in a sickly plant.

Mrs. Pickering stated it was with regret she had to feed this plant poison for the demonstration, but she felt she could buy another for 25c, but she added, you cannot buy another boy or girl that had been ruined by alcohol.

Mrs. Pickering urged a more tolerant attitude towards other races. A heart full of love for God has no place for hatred and prejudice. To understand others better means to know and love them.

Mission Bands

Mrs. A. McCreary, Eldorado, delivered an interesting address on the "Value of the Child in Times Like These." She brought greetings from Madoc section whose annual meeting is being held in Eldorado Friday. Basing her words on the theme "Bridge Building for Youth" she showed how the Mission Band is one of the bridges to be built. It is most necessary at this time to train children in Christian outlook because in the period of reconstruction which will follow after the war they will share in building up peace in the world. Hitler and Mussolini are placing the training of children in a place of importance that Christian people are not doing.

The everyday tasks and special endeavors today should not claim time from the training of children. When that special task is over they may no longer be children.

Intelligent friendliness must be fostered, based on the fact that all are children of God. Children should learn what the Christian Church is doing in the world and children need to be trained to be active followers of Jesus as they are taught arithmetic by being presented with a definite occasion of practising the things learned. The Mission Band does this with its emphasis on worship, study, fellowship and service.

Mrs. McCreary asked for more cooperation with the Mission Band leaders on the part of Auxiliary members. The statement has been made that to be a leader of a Mission Band demands more than being president of an auxiliary. It is the biggest job in all W.M.S. work. The delegates were urged to see that a Mission Band was organized in their Auxiliary. Some one in their community could be a mission band leader or bridge builder.

A vocal solo by Mrs. S. P. Hagerman of Holloway Street United Church, Belleville, was thoroughly enjoyed by the gathering.

China Missions

An enlightened knowledge and better understanding of the problems before China today, the difficulties confronting her Christian people and their missionary friends were gained yesterday afternoon by those attending the meeting when Miss Grace Sykes, missionary on furlough from Honan, China, delivered the special address of the program. Miss Sykes pointed out that it was especially fitting that she should speak on that subject today since today is a day of celebration in China, the anniversary of the birth of the Chinese Republic in 1911.

In many parts of China, at present, however, there is no celebration, just warfare, or rather a continuation of the "incident" which Japan began in July, 1937. Bombings have been going on since that time, although Honan at first did not get much of it. The missionary had seen much of the ravages and tragedies of the victims of bombings. As the "incident" progressed, the young girls of the community were taken into the compound for safety. Today the Chinese guerilla forces are offering much opposition to the advance of the Japanese, worrying and constantly harassing them continually.

Miss Sykes told of the first effects of Japanese inspired anti-British movement in the district in which she was stationed in July 1939. The missionary hospital was picketted by day so that patients dare not enter. Staff and Chinese servants were forced to leave. When the main gates were burned and a few hand grenades were tossed in the missionaries decided to leave from the three centres of Chantge, Weihwei, and Hwaiking. Some workers went to the University in West China, others remained in Peking, while many assisted in the flood relief projects. Others began their furlough year, and all found service.

Chinese Optimistic

Peking today is controlled by the Japanese. The most amazing thing about Peking, however, is the optimism of the Chinese people from the intelligent to the poorest taught. Their optimism is unconquerable. China has become united as never before, the provinces becoming one against a common enemy. General Chang-Kai-Chek and Madame Chang-Kai-Chek have been the means, under God, of uniting the people.

Receptive to Gospel

China is an open door to the gospel. No other country has been more receptive of the gospel and the Christians in China have a greater influence for their numbers than seems natural. Many missionaries and Christians have united under the Church of Christ in China and while today it cannot work as a synod or a presbytery, the individual churches carry on. Chinese are taking the leadership and women are entering the theological classes. The work continues in evangelism, medical activities, school, home, among the children, and in overcoming illiteracy.

The young people are identifying themselves with Christianity with the same enthusiasm as their elders displayed in past decades. Under God, they are doing all they can for God and country. They need and want all we can do for them.

Mrs. George Avery of Centenary dedicated the afternoon's offering.

Mrs. Harry Farnham acted as church pianist during the day.

"Canada For Us"

An exercise was given by four boys members of Cannifton Mission Band who impersonated an Eskimo, Indian Chief, a Korean gentleman and a Chinese Coolie. Those taking part were Donald Williams, Robert Latchford, Ernest Lywood and Geo. Lywood.

It was announced that next year's rally would be held at Shannonville.

Mrs. Ralph Sills of Zion, convener of Courtesy Committee, expressed appreciation to all who had contributed in any way to the success of the convention assembled. The hymn "Day is Dying in the West" was sung and the Benediction was pronounced by Rev. Sterling of Shannonville.

ALBERT COLLEGE PROGRESS SHOWN

Board of Governors Told of Increased Student Registration in Spite of World Conditions

The annual meeting of Albert College Board of Governors took place at the College on Thursday afternoon. Members gathered from Toronto, Oshawa, Cobourg, Kingston, Napanee and other points along with Belleville members to hear encouraging reports of progress and learn of increased student registration in spite of troubled world conditions of today. Mr. W. J. Morrison, principal of the Ontario School for the Deaf and vice-chairman of the College Board, conducted the meeting.

Special mention was made of the new chapel furnishings, the gift of Mrs. E. N. Baker in memory of her husband, the Rev. Dr. Baker, late principal emeritus of Albert College.

Dr. Peter Bryce, former moderator of the United Church on behalf of the Board complimented Principal Howard and his staff on the excellent showing and the splendid progress made as revealed in the tabled reports.

Passing of Cheese Factories in North Deploded by Warden

The passing of the cheese factories in the northern parts of the county was lamented by Warden John L. Churcher Reeve of Dungannon Township, as he spoke briefly to the members of the Belleville Cheese Board in Belleville on Thursday evening.

"Even today, as you pass through the northern part of the county and see farm buildings that are in good state of repair and boasting of a coat of paint, you will be told that this evidence of prosperity, came as the result of the cheese factories which once operated there. At one time there was a cheese factory at practically every crossroad," stated Warden Churcher, "but today these landmarks have passed away, and I, for one, was sorry to see them go."

It being his first visit to the Belleville Cheese Board Warden Churcher said that he was surprised at the volume of business done in such a few minutes, and that it was with a feeling of pride that he realized that Hastings county farmers were taking such an interest in the cheese industry. "You could not find a body of men anywhere who are doing more for their country because cheese, after all, is our first line of defence," claimed the speaker, "and by supporting this industry our farmers are doing splendid work for their country, for the Province of Ontario and for the Dominion."

Mr. Churcher said that the cream separator coming into popular use was responsible for the decline of the cheese factories in the north country but he was delighted that farmers in the south were sticking to the factory and hoped that they would continue their splendid work.

VEHICLES SIDESWIPE DURING HEAVY FOG

Damage to the extent of over $400 resulted to two automobiles that were in collision on Highway No. 2, four miles west of Belleville shortly after 6.30 a.m. today. There was a dense fog over-hanging the highway, when cars driven in the opposite direction by Henry T. Plummer, of Trenton, and Robert W. Sherman of Belleville sideswiped in the centre of the highway. The visibility was very poor at the time, Motorcycle Patrolman J. J. Hatch revealed after completing an investigation. Charges are pending. While reporting the accident Motorcycle Patrolman Hatch told The Ontario-Intelligencer that a rigid check-up of defective lights on motor vehicles had recently been ordered by the Department of Highways and motorists found driving automobiles equipped with faulty lights would be summoned into court without exception.

Episcopalians in U. S. And Anglicans Drawn More Closely Together

Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 11 (CP).—Most Rev. Derwyn T. Owen, Anglican Archbishop of Toronto and primate of all Canada, in a speech prepared for delivery here today at the 53rd triennial general convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church here, tendered the warm greetings of the Church of England in Canada.

He said the Anglican Church in Canada and the Episcopal Church in the United States were one in origin, sacraments and ideals and that possibly that unity of origin and purpose was drawing them closer together in the face of the "terrible strain and danger of the times".

Both churches in the past had faced danger, hardships and privations with determination and they would not shrink today.

The Canadian Primate described work of the church throughout the wide territory under his jurisdiction.

Marmora Man Shoots Two Bears Out of a Group of Five With a 22

Marmora, (Special)—About noon on Tuesday Sanford Lawrence saw five bears near the Burnt Lake hunting camp. Some years ago he spotted five wolves in the same district and despatched the whole number. This week he did not get his full quota as he only had his .22 rifle with him and three got away. Few hunters would care to go after a bear with so small a gun, but Sanford knows no fear where there is a quarry to get and on Wednesday evening he brought the bears to town, a large one and a small one to prove his claim. Sanford reports that partridge are quite numerous in that section. On Thursday Sanford had a day's fishing at Crows Lake, while guiding for a couple of Cleveland visitors; the day's catch was three muskies, one weighing seventeen pounds, another twelve pounds and the third eight pounds.

The War Today

(By H. M. Peters, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

German troops penetrating farther and farther into the Balkans today brought the Nazis closer to military domination of that troubled area where, since the fall of France, Germany's political grip has been widely extended.

Rumania's position has been untenable since the downfall of Czecho-Slovakia broke up the little entente and the defeat of France removed the last major army on the continent to oppose the axis, and now the shrunken kingdom, dominated by Fascists is giving up its last shreds of independence to the Nazis.

Rupture of British-Rumanian relations was expected hourly with Britain believed on the point of declaring Rumania to be an enemy-occupied country. Yugoslavia's position, squeezed between the axis powers, and with swastika-flying troopships steaming through her down the Danube, was not much happier. There were unexplained reports of Nazi military movements in Hungary and Bulgaria.

All this, with its threat ultimately to the Black Sea coast and Turkey's Dardanelles, and the probability of a major extension of the war all around the shores of the Mediterranean, was foreseen by Winston Churchill and Britain's long-range plans have been prepared in accordance with these temporary successes for the axis.

As far back as Aug. 20, Mr. Churchill said:

"Even if the Nazi legions stood triumphant on the Black Sea, or indeed upon the Caspian; even if Hitler was at the gates of India, it would profit him nothing if at the same time the entire economic and scientific apparatus of German war power lay shattered and pulverized at home."

The pulverising of Hitler's war power at home has developed a hundredfold since that speech. Two hundred German military objectives have been bombed by the Royal Air Force, some of them, like the big railway yards at Hamm, more than forty times.

The Churchill reference to the Caspian has been interpreted as another of his series of warnings to Russia that Hitler's ambitions must of necessity carry him across the path where Russia's vital interests lay. The only paths to the Caspian lie through Russia itself or through Turkey and Iran, two nations which Stalin cannot see dominated by Germany.

Mr. Churchill gave a similar warning last week in stating that the German-Italian- Japanese military pact while aimed primarily at the United States had Russia as its secondary target. In yet another speech he indicated the fear of Russia's air force was keeping Hitler from any all-out thrust at the British Isles.

Many military observers believed the first sign that the Mediterranean campaign is really under way will be a combined German-Italian attempt to cripple the British Mediterranean fleet severely by means of aerial bombs, attacking both the fleet itself and its bases, such as Alexandria.

It is understood that in preparation for this, the Royal Air Force and the Fleet Air Arm in the Mediterranean have been greatly strengthened this autumn, while troopships ply their unannounced way to the great assembly points of Gen. Wavell's Middle East Command.

Body of C. F. Speck, Actinolite, Found Floating in Lake

Believed to have drowned while duck-hunting, the body of Charles Frederick Speck, 66-year-old resident of Actinolite, was found floating in a small lake a mile east of that village late Thursday afternoon.

Edward Speck, brother of the dead man, found the body after he had been notified by the Actinolite postmaster, that his brother had not called for his mail for several days. It is believed by Chief of Police Clare Hayes, of Tweed, and other officials that the body had been in the water for nearly a week. It was badly decomposed and showed other signs of exposure. Chief Coroner Dr. J. J. Robertson stated today that a post-mortem would be held to determine if an inquest would be necessary.

The loaded gun belonging to Speck was found on a rock bordering the lake. Nearby lay two poles spliced with a handkerchief while the dead body of a duck floated in the water a few yards from the shore. It is thought Speck had endeavoured to retrieve the duck and fell into the water and drowned.

The deceased lived alone and daily called for his mail at the Actinolite post-office. His failure to show up for several days resulted in the postmaster notifying his brother, and a search resulted.

COCKNEY HUMOR

London, Oct. 11—(CP)—Cockney humor continues to make light of traffic troubles born of war bombing.

NORWAY UNDER BERLIN'S HEEL

All Gov't. Officials Not in Sympathy With Nazi Rule to be Ousted

Oslo, Norway, (via Berlin), Oct. 11 (AP)—A decree today ordered the ousting wtihin six months of all government officials whose personal or political status fails to offer a guarantee for "wholehearted cooperation" in effecting the new political system of German-occupied Norway.

The legation added that "unemployed" Norwegians will be transferred to Germany, thus sharing the fate that has already come to Polish laborers."

PUPPET REGIMES SOLDIERS NEAR SHANGHAI CLAIM

14,000 Chinese Soldiers Ready to Seize International Settlement or French Concession Oct. 18th., is Report

JAPAN DENIES STORY

Shanghai, Oct. 11.— (AP)—Despite Japanese denials usally well-informed sources insisted tonight that 14,000 Chinese soldiers of the Japanese-dominated Nanking Puppet government are concentrated outside Shanghai while rumor has it that Japan plans to take over the International Settlement or the French Concession October 18.

The Puppet Regime's troops are said to have been moved yesterday to new positions between Shanghai and the Woosung Forts, at the mouth of the Whangpoo river, about 12 miles below the city.

Rumors of impending action against Foreign areas in this otherwise Japanese-controlled city were linked with the impending re-opening October 17 by Britain of the Burma Road to supplies for the Central Chinese government.

Japanese authorities sought to stem the excited rumors circulating since the United States State Department suggested Tuesday that Americans leave the Orient.

Excitement Accentuated

The excitement was accentuated by the assassination early this morning of the Chinese Puppet Mayor of Japanese-occupied Shanghai, Fu Siao-en, and energetic Japanese attempts to find the cleaver-wielding assassin.

Navy and army spokesmen officially denied the rumor that Japanese forces "are planning to take over the settlement or the French concession by force October 18, after the Burma Road re-opens".

The army spokesman admitted there might have been some troop movements but declared no troops were "concentrated with the idea of moving against foreign areas".

Also denied were rumors that "the Japanese are building concentration camps in which we intend to intern foreigners".

Distinctive Costumes Of Escaped Prisoners Should Warn Public

The Canadian public is either becoming gullible or extremely liberal in its views on wearing apparel.

When a costume for war prisoners was designed, every effort was made to turn out a garment that could be spotted for city blocks by the naked eye. The costumes were made of black or blue denim with a large circle of scarlet on the back of the smock and a four-inch stripe down the outer side of the right trouser leg.

Yet, in spite of this glaring colour combination on their clothing, escaped prisoners have on several occasions been given lifts by obliging motorists. One recaptured prisoner said he had been deeply impressed by the generosity and assistance of the Canadian public while attempting his flight from an internment camp. Between Mimico and Burlington he was given three rides and his third benefactor even offered him a job. The stripe on his trouser leg was covered by a pair of overalls, but the circle on his back stood out like a beacon light.

Internment authorities now suggest that any one seeing a man wearing blue or black clothing with a red circle or stripe should immediately notify the police. It is also advised that motorists should ask to see registration cards before giving hitchhikers a life, particularly after announcement of an escape has been made.

POET'S MOTHER DIES

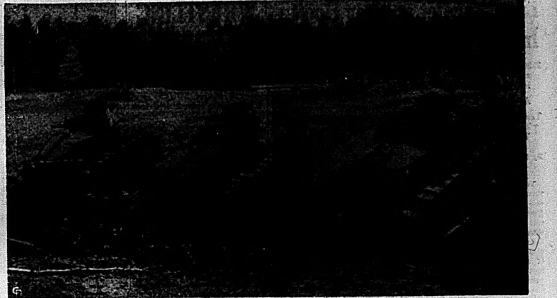
Two other sons, Robert J., manager of the Nova Scotia Apple Marketing Board at whose home she lived, and Eric, and two daughters, Mrs. Stuart Eaton and Marjorie, also survive.

U.S. TANKS UNDERGO TEST RUN AT CAMP BORDEN



Eager to try out their lumbering steeds just arrived from the United States, tank troopers at Camp Borden took some of them on a trial run as soon as they had been put into working order. The body of an abandoned automobile was a temptation that couldn't be resisted as the tank men rolled the heavy machines over Camp Borden's rough terrain.

BOLSTERING BRITISH DEFENCES IN THE NEAR EAST

With German troops now in Rumania, the situation in the Balkans is nearing the breaking point, and it is thought that Germany and Italy may make an attempt to strike at the Near East through this point. Britain, however, has been quietly and steadily strengthening her position in the Near East, and is preparing to meet any attempt by Germany to send troops down through the Balkans to aid Italy in a drive at the Suez Canal and Britain's Near East oil fields. British troops are shown here disembarking at an unnamed port in the threatened trouble spot.

Absolute Divorce Granted Speed-King Malcolm Campbell

London, Oct. 11 —(CP)— A conditional divorce granted Sir Malcolm Campbell last April 29 was made absolute today. Noted auto racer and holder of the world speedboat record, Sir Malcolm won the decree on the ground that his wife committed misconduct with Brian Edmund Lewis, 36-year-old son and heir of shipping magnate Baron Essenjon and the speed king's former business associate. The Campbells were married in 1920 and have a son and a daughter.

Sarnia Soldier Boys Look Like Best Bet as They Hook Into Hamilton Alerts Sat.

2-26 Battery Run Roughshod Over Camp Borden in First Start Last Week

ARGOS SHOULD WIN

Team Plays Hamilton Tigers While Montreal Tackles Ottawa

By Sydney Gruson Canadian Press Staff Writer.

You bet your money and take your choice but there seems to be only one game of the three senior football clashes scheduled in the east tomorrow in which there's anything like a sure thing. On the basis of early performance — the only thing to go on at this time of the young season—the Sarnia boys look like the day's best bet.

Sarnia's 2-26 Battery team, which prevented a clean sweep in calling the season's openers last Saturday by trouncing Camp Borden, go up against the young and willing but hardly formidable Alerts of Hamilton. That's the Ontario Union's only contribution to Saturday's program which is saved by two Interprovincial Union clashes promising fierce assault.

The champion Ottawa Rough Riders, one victory to the good, open at home against the Montreal club which should have beaten Toronto Argonauts but didn't. Argonauts make their Toronto league debut against Hamilton Tigers who have used a week of practice to good advantage in ironing out the mistakes they made against Ottawa,

Victory Misleading

The 20-point victory margin for Ottawa over Hamilton last week was misleading. They looked like the champions they are for only the first quarter and a bit of the second and it was Hamilton fumbles, and the inability of the Hamilton receivers to hold Al Lenard's pitching that made the wide edge possible.

They'll have to maintain their attack against Bill Hughes' team a steady club geared in the fundamentals of kicking and plunging and lacking only a passing attack to make it at least an even choice against the Rough Riders. Bill Stukus passed them silly and Ottawa's Orville Burke and Murray Griffin are almost as good as Stukus.

Team Has Power on Ground

Montreal has power on the ground and Gord Noseworthy to match Sammy Sward's kicking, if not overshadow it, but the Riders get the call because of the more diversified attack of their flashier backfield. But this one is liable to be closer than most people think. No matter who wins, it should be a good game with two powerful lines standing each other off.

It will be young Lenard, a graduate of Windsor College who promises to be the freshman performer of the season, versus Stukus, the veteran, in the Hamilton-Argo clash. Argos should win it because Stukus has better catchers and Lew Hayman has a flock of good reserves which enable him to keep a fairly fresh team on the field.

HOODED HORROR

Behind this mask lies the face of an individual who always attracts the interest of the wrestling fraternity, if for no other reason than curiosity to see his countenance. The Masked Marvel will wrestle at the Hume Arena in Belleville versus Mike Domerko the former Syracuse football star, on Thanksgiving night as the chief attraction on a three-bout holiday card.

Tigers Bound to Improve

The Tigers are bound to have improved. But they apparently lack the backfield strength to roll up many points and it's hardly likely they can get enough on Scotty Wright's kicking to offset the Argo razzle-dazzle offensive. This should be a wide-open passing spree and a picnic for the fans who like it that way.

Stan Wilnonis, Odie Gibb and Hardy Awrie probably will work their hearts out for Alerts, but they haven't the support to hold Hank Galloway, Joe Woodcock and the other Sarnians. This should go to Sarnia by two touchdowns.

The Ontario Union's other teams, Camp Borden and Balmy Beach, meet in Toronto Thanksgiving Day. Beaches won't have Bobby Porter or Jack Prizzelle for their backfield but they still have enough to beat the Flyers.

Red Dutton's Team Whips Fort William

Port Arthur, Oct. 11 — (CP) — With Chuck Rayner playing a sparkling game in goal for the winners, Red Dutton's New York American amateur hockey school team whipped Fort William Hurricanes 6-1 in an exhibition game here last night. The school squad will play Port Arthur Bearcats, senior amateur club, Saturday night.

While Rayner kicked out 30 shots most of them from close in, Bus Wycherley and Art Shoquist of Saskatoon, Squee Allan, North Battleford, Sask. Red Hunter and Herbie Burron of Winnipeg and Hal Haldorson of Yorkton, Sask., scored for Dutton's professional prospects.

Don Eaton scored the lone Fort William goal, unassisted, early in the third period.

52 TEAMS OPERATE AT RECREATION BOWLING ALLEYS

With 52 individual teams already affiliated in the various leagues functioning at the Recreation Alleys, Manager Leo Barrett today announced the newly-conditioned bowling alleys on Bridge Street would be opened to the public on Thanksgiving Day, with several of the city bowling leagues swinging into action the very next evening.

The Recreation Alleys have been completely renovated and redecorated during the summer vacation months in tones that prove inviting to the eye. The alleys have been resurfaced and new approaches constructed to assure the very best in bowling facilities. The alleys are in exceptionally fine condition and ready for play.

Some of the leagues to operate at the Recreation Alleys this season will be the Major "A" league with six teams; Major "B"—six teams; C.N.R. League—six teams; Mixed League—six teams, while 18 ladies' teams will operate in sections. A new league composed of ten teams from the Reliance Aircraft Company, operating six teams at night and four in the afternoons, is also included in the Recreation Alley program. Manager Leo Barrett is preparing for a boom season of bowling in Belleville this year, as is the case at the Y.M.C.A. bowling alleys, which are now open.

Game Fishing Closes Tuesday; Past Season Considered Just Fair Although 'Lunge Catch Increases

The boys will hang up their fishing gear next Tuesday, October 15th, when the season officially closes, and look back over a season with mingled emotions.

It all depends on what kind of fish the particular fisherman angled for, as to what kind of a season it was.

The "muskie" laddies had no complaints. The big "deep-water submarines of the finny navy," graciously complied with a lot of requests for personal appearance. The near and far habitats of this fighting specimen gave up some fine fish which ranged between twelve and forty pounds each.

Lovers of the bass-fishing had their off-and-on days. The black beauties of the bays and lakes at times adopted a lackadaisical attitude when tempting bait dangled in front of their noses. At times, it was believed, this variety had gone in for strict diets. At other periods, especially during the latter part of the season, they went on a feeding rampage, and took everything that was offered from dew-worms to promises of pardon.

The pickerel "bucanneers" scratch ruminative chins when asked what luck they had during the past season. The favorite fish of the majority of lovers of this edible, did well in the opening stages and several fine catches were reported. In the warmer summer months, maybe it was the war, and maybe just pure cussedness, the "Picks" laid off bait like the Italian Navy off a British rowboat. Intermittent good catches were reported but the hauls were anything but consistent.

The northern haunts of the famous grey trout were not the 1940 locales of any fish conventions, addicts of this form of fishing report. The grey beauties did not take part in any organized fishkrieg on the bait of the boys who patrolled their haunts untiringly but with a feeling of futility. True some good-sized trout "turned sucker" and went for the fancy-colored mechanical baits, but generally speaking the season was anything but productive of consistently good fishing.

And so, with sighs of regret, the Izaak Waltons, will lay aside their fishing gear next Wednesday. Some of them, in fact the majority will exchange a pole for a gun, and avail themselves of the ducks that are now luring hunters to their haunts.

Sports Roundup

(By Eddie Brietz)

(Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, Oct. 11 (AP)—Opinion around here is if the Yanks had been in there instead of Detroit, the Red pitching would have stopped 'em . . . From Miami, Mike Jacobs is trying to cook up a Tony Galento-Arturo Godoy fight for the Garden and may the Saints preserve us of he makes it.

Every footballer has his own way to warm up before a game, but Don Greenwood of Missouri U. takes the cake by walking around the field on his hands . . . . Family co-operation may be making that Mississippi U. team click this year. Two sets of brothers are seeing active service and a half-dozen other guys are following in the footsteps of older brothers.

Of course we haven't been around here much lately, but the only expert we saw who came right out and picked Fritzie Zivic to wham the daylights out of Armstrong was old Joe Donovan of the Newark Star-Eagle . . . The Florida-Auburn football game will be played at Columbia, Ga., which reminds us that not so many years ago the Alabama State Golf Tournament was held at Pensacola, Fla.

BURRARDS READY FOR ST. KITTS IN THIRD GAME

C.L.A. Buys New Set of Crimson Sweaters and Athletics Will Wear Them

WEST HOPEFUL

Coach Dickinson Sure His Team Will Return to Form of First Game

Toronto, Oct. 11 (CP)—The question of who-will-wear-what settled, Vancouver Burrard Blue Bombers and St. Catharines Athletics go about the more serious business tonight of playing some lacrosse.

In between two games of their best of five series for the Canadian Senior Box Lacrosse championship, the clubs battled over sweaters. Color of both teams' jerseys is blue and each team blamed a change of sweaters for losing a game.

Athletics donned white sweaters, after a bit of an argument, for the first game—and lost it 14-9. The Bombers consented to wear the white jersey after much arguing before the second tilt and lost it 15-5. A few of the players claimed the white sweaters were a jinx, while others said they were a handicap because they weren't used to passing the ball to any but blue-clad men.

Now the Canadian Lacrosse Association has stepped in and purchased a set of crimson sweaters. The Association ruled that the teams will wear them alternately for the rest of the series and St. Catharines are scheduled to don them in the game tonight.

Determined to take the Mann Cup won last year by New Westminster Adanacs in a series against St. Catharines, Burrards are confident of victory tonight and confident of taking the series clincher here Monday.

Coach Les Dickinson of the Burrards says that his team "won't be as bad again" as they were in the second match Wednesday.

"We'll go ahead tonight," he said. "Wait and see."

St. Catharines, Mann Cup champions two years ago, are equally as confident. They feel they got a "rotten game" out of their systems in the series opener and that they now have the measure of the Pacific coastmen.

Chicago Blackhawks Train at Hibbing

Chicago, Oct. 11 (AP)—Chicago Blackhawks of the National Hockey League will open training tomorrow at Hibbing, Minn.

Manager Paul Thompson and Trainer Ed Froelich will head a contingent leaving Chicago tonight for the Minnesota camp site.

The Hawks are scheduled to work out at Hibbing until Oct. 27, when they will head for St. Paul, Minn., and a series of exhibition games with the championship St. Paul club of the American Association. The team will return to Chicago Nov. 4 and open the National League season at the Chicago Stadium Nov. 7, against New York Americans.

New York, Oct. 11.—(CP)—The New York Times said editorially today that Gen. Charles De Gaulle's "dramatic appearance" in the Cameroons "should have a political and moral value far greater than the intrinsic importance of this territory in the heart of tropical Africa".

It added: "The real importance of General de Gaulle's seizure of the Cameroons is that it will help to offset the recent fiasco at Dakar and may rally other French colonies to the Free French cause".

If experience on the bench means anything toward winning, the Belleville Collegiate senior interscholastic squad should be headed towards a senior C.O.S.S.A. rugby football title. Tutoring the "Collegians" today are Eddie Schrieder, Morley Baker and Wally Hilton, the latter being the former star backfielder with the champion Western University Senior Intercollegiate squad. Hilton is now employed at the Deloro Refinery and comes into Belleville evenings to give the B.C.I. squad blackboard talks on the intricates of the fall classic. "Wally showed us more plays than I ever thought were possible in football," admitted one member of Coach Baker's squad today after listening to Hilton's initial chalk talk last night. The B. C. I. squad get their first test of the season here on Monday when they meet the group-leading Cobourg kids and no doubt Hilton will be on the bench with Coach Baker, as Eddie Schrieder is leaving the city to accept a post with the Hydro tomorrow. Not only will the B.C.I. squad be outfitted with new uniforms for Monday, but the school band will be on hand to add to the Collegiate spirit.

Before they could play at the Fair Grounds, the B.C.I. squad had to purchase lumber to construct uprights for goal posts, which set them ten bucks on the red side of the ledger, to say nothing of the expense of new jerseys, which were designed by Les Shiels, their former coach. It seems some person had designs on the football goal posts at the Fair Grounds and dismantled them for firewood last winter. Coach Baker is impressed with the work of Bruce Cronk in the Collegians' backfield and Bruce may get a spot alongside Bill Pigden, Ross Clare and one of the McBride boys for a start. Jim Zufelt is back at snap, while two new outsiders will have the job of stopping Maher and Benson, the fleet-footed Cobourg broken field runners, who can really plough once they skirt the ends. Cobourg plays a balanced line formation of straight football but the local "Collegians" use the more modern unbalanced line and resort to open play tempered with speed personified, which should prove an inducement to the fans to watch while digesting their Thanksgiving turkey.

We've always respected "Al" Wickerson for his judgment in the selection of Canadian football winners. Actually his choices at times border on the uncanny, therefore we asked "Al" to give us his selections of the various Eastern Canadian rugby title winners. Quoting him along these lines he says—"In the Big Four, I think Ottawa "Rough Riders" will eventually win but that tough Argo squad will provide plenty of opposition and might make it interesting for those tough "Rough Riders." In the O.R.F.U., however, Balmy Beach, those veterans of the Canadian gridiron, should come out on top with only opposition provided by that newly organized 2-26th Battery squad from Sarnia, which by the way may prove a stumbling block, but as for the best in the east—take it from me, the team that beats Ottawa will be the champions of all they survey", predicts Al, and we'll string along with his prognostications.

Do you remember when Jake Gaudaur, one of Canada's greatest scullers 50 years ago, died at his home near Orillia, Ont., four years ago today. He was world champion for five years and winner of scores of races. He was 79 years old.

There have been several Masked Marvels in the wrestling business and many of these hooded horrors have appeared in a local ring. For instance, there was Al Getzowitch, the original grappler with the mask and he was a credit to the pastime. Then along came Johnnie Marvin, the Georgia football player, who was unmasked for the first time in Belleville. Both of these boys wrestled locally and then Bulldog Cox donned the mask to all but became the world champion. Now we find a new hidden face grappler coming out of the Southland to take on Mike Domerko in the main bout of the Thanksgiving night wrestling show at the Belleville Arena. As in former cases we're looking for a young agile grappler, who asks and gives no quarter, but he's battling his way alone to the top of the business. Along with this bout George Pavish is coming back to town to give Tom George, that ruffian Macedonian, a real lesson in pugnacious ring ethics, while Jimmie Allen will open the show versus a newcomer named MacLachlan to round out a perfect holiday attraction.

Old time baseball players must have chuckled to themselves when Jimmie Wilson, a baseball product of two decades ago, stole the only base in the entire seven games of the fall classic. Wonder what's the matter—has base stealing become a lost art? However Mrs. Jimmy Wilson, wife of the 40-year-old Cincinnati catcher, sought out Business Manager Warren Giles of the Reds after Tuesday's world series final.. she asked him for the canvas bag that covered second base ... Hubby Jim stole second against Buck Newsom in the second inning of the final game, the only stolen base of the series...she got the bag... now she's going to frame it as a souvenir.

Seems as though tomatoes come rather costly in Cleveland. In court the other day Carmen Guerra, 25-year-old Cleveland iceman received the maximum disorder conduct sentence when he was sentenced to 30 days and fined $50.00 for throwing tomatoes at Hank Greenberg last Sept. 27th during that hectic Tiger-Indian series. Guerra says those tomatoes come rather expensive.

Sport Spice — Red Kress, who was riding on the crest of American League pennant honours a week ago was released by the Detroit Tigers yesterday....Some time ago it was announced that Steve O'Neill would return to the major — to take Kress's pob? .... The champion Cincinnati Reds received less money for winning the world series this year than they did in losing in four straight to the Yankees in 1939....

Duce's Silence At Padua Intrigues Writer

(By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

Washington, Oct. 11 (AP)—Except for daylight bombing over German-held territory, which accented the expanding British counter-offensive, a negative and oddly worded item from Italy most intrigues this observer in the day's grist of war news.

It comes from Padua. There Mussolini closed a significant inspection of his shock divisions with a personal appearance before 200,000 roaring Italians, gathered in tense expectancy, and—"refrained from addressing" the crowd.

That was a striking let-down from a great build-up. It could conceivably signify that something has gone awry in the Axis planning.

The controlled Fascist press built up great expectation in Italy of war developments to follow the meeting of Hitler and Mussolini in Brenner Pass. It visioned Padua as the place where some glimpse of what impended might be revealed. Yet he "refrained" from speech, although Rome had previously advised of arrangements for an international radio hookup to broadcast it.

Perhaps it was Axis disappointment over British and United States reaction to the German-Italian-Japanese pact that changed the Padua program and held Mussolini silent. There is ample evidence that more, not less, Anglo-American co-operation is flowing from that political flank attack.

Possibly increasing doubt as to which way Moscow will jump in a new war crisis in the Near East muffled Mussolini's voice. Again, it might be Japan that influenced him to silence. First reactions there to the British decision to reopen the Burma Road have been far from warlike. Doubt as to how far Japan really would go under that nebulous pact of Berlin may hamper Axis action.

Whatever the reason for Mussolini's reticence, it is plain that the time, the place and the man were at Padua for the sort of blustering speech dear to his heart. All the trappings of high drama were there and he is a greater showman than Hitler. He needs a vast audience, and its thunderous applause, to reach his peak in verbal pyrotechnics. He had that at Padua.

He needs, to preserve prestige, an opportunity to display himself as Hitler's equal in Axis leadership, not Hitler's yes-man shadow. That, too, was offered him at Padua.

With all that to urge him as he watched thousands of young Black Shirts march past in review, he said nothing.

U. S. Diplomatic Chiefs In Rome and Berlin Recalled to Washington

Washington, Oct. 11 (AP).—Chiefs of American diplomatic missions in Berlin and Rome were ordered back to the United States today in what was described as merely a personal shift, while the danger of an immediate crisis in the Far East appeared to be subsiding.

It was disclosed that Rome, like Berlin, would be left indefinitely without an American ambassador because of the illness of Ambassador William Phillips, who is now in the United States.

State Department officials said that Alexander Kirk, who has been charge d'affaires in Berlin for two years since Ambassador Hugh Wilson was brought back, will return here for consultation and probably go later to Rome as charge d'affaires. The British Embassy will be left in charge of Leland Morris, a veteran consular official.

Edward L. Reed, charge d'affaires in Rome since Ambassador Phillips returned two months ago, has been called back to the State Department. Whether intended or not, the simultaneous recall of Kirk and Reed will enable Washington officials to obtain first-hand information and impressions on the new triple alliance of Japan, Germany and Italy.

Meanwhile, interest was shown here in Ambassador Joseph C. Grew's long conferences in Tokyo yesterday with the Japanese Foreign Minister and Vice-Foreign Minister.

What he reported to the State Department was not disclosed, but it was regarded as significant that he was invited to the Foreign Office after the United States had advised Americans, as a precautionary measure, to leave the Far East.

It was taken for granted here that Grew used the opportunity to make clear again the United States Government's attitude toward Japanese policies and the meaning of various restrictions imposed on American-Japanese trade, as well as the significance of the advice to Americans to get out of the Far East.

An apparently less belligerent attitude toward the United States by Japanese officials and press indicated to some officials here that the American measures had had a sobering effect in Tokyo.

State Secretary Cordell Hull, however, would not comment when asked at his press conference whether he considered that Japan now is American policies.

Questioned again about Anglo-American conversations on the Far East, Hull reiterated that there had been no suggestions, requests or decisions.

AT THE BELLE

"Boom Town"

Presenting one of the greatest all-star casts in the history of motion pictures, and utilizing this billion dollar talent in a story that is built or fast action and thrills, "Boom Town," is the next attraction at the Belle with a special after Sunday midnight 12.05 performance and is one of the most thrilling and spectacular productions to come out of Hollywood in some time.

With Clark Gable, Spencer Tracy, Claudette Colbert and Hedy Lamarr in stellar roles, "Boom Town" surpasses in star names even that former "greatest of thrill pictures," the air epic "Test Pilot," which had Gable, Tracy, Myrna Loy and Lionel Barrymore at the head of the cast.

The supporting cast of the picture is as distinguished as its star, including such well-known names as Frank Morgan, Lionel Atwill, Chill Wills, Marion Martin and Minna Gombell, with lesser roles played by Joe Yule, Horace Murphy, Ray Gordon, Richard Lane, Casey Johnson, Baby Quintanilla of "Forty Little Mothers" fame, George Lessey, Sara Haden, Frank Orth, Frank McGlynn, Sr., and Curt Bois.

Thrill-packed Action

These players join hands in presenting a thrill-packed human-interest story which shows Gable and Tracey in a total of five fights, one of which is a terrific battle between themselves the frantic fight to blast out a roaring oil well fire, gushers tearing upward with mighty roars, a spouting water geyser, Gable on a bucking mule, a dive into a sea of mud by Gable and Tracy in a total of five fights, two gun fighters, a fight between two dance hall girls, a dramatic hold-up of a load of oil equipment, in addition to comedy by Morgan, Wills and Miss Gombell and even the songs of the men who spud in for oil.

Through a heart-tugging story of two men who are friends through all the heartaches and victories of oilmen runs a cavalcade of the oil business, with a brief history of its intense thrills. In the picture, Gable and Tracy form a partnership which exists even after Gable marries Miss Colbert, Tracy's sweetheart. It breaks dramatically and is reunited just as dynamically when Tracy evolved a startling plan to break up Gable's affair with lovely Hedy Lamarr and send him back to Miss Colbert.

The picture, which was three months in the making and took filming units to more than thirty location sites, was directed by Jack Conway, maker of such thrill pictures as "Too Hot to Handle," "Libeled Lady" and "Viva Villa!"

The popular Belle news reel and a funny comicolor cartoon "Papa Gets the Bird" will also be exhibited. On Saturday matinee the next to closing chapter of "Oregon Trail," with its abundance of western thrills is announced for exhibition.

Splendid Show Tonight

A timely and deeply moving film "Four Sons" at the Belle tonight only is an emotional masterpiece of compelling powers and featured in the outstanding cast are Don Ameche, Eugenie Leontovich, lovely Mary Beth Hughes, Alan Curtis and Robert Lowery.

If it's exciting entertainment you want then take a tip from "The Cisco Kid" and see his newest film "The Gay Caballero," the second feature attraction. Cesar Romero again portrays O'Henry's colorful desperado in this western thriller. Charming Sheila Ryan is the romantic interest in the story. Vivien Donier's latest fashion forecast in technicolor is a special added attraction.

Nazis Bomb and Machine Gun London Hospital

ARP workers are pictured searching the ruins for killed and injured after this large London hospital was hit time and again by Nazi bombs. There were 108 patients among the casualties which are not yet complete. The hospital was reduced to complete ruin and rescue workers were machine-gunned by diving Nazi planes.

LONDON CLEANS UP AFTER NAZI RAID

This building was left a mere shattered shell of walls after raid of Nazi bombing planes. It was condemned as unsafe to passers-by. So down it comes. A clean-up demolition squad of British ARP workers brings down the tottering wreckage.

Duncan Renaldo, Robert Livingston, and Raymond Hatton, the three Mesquiteers, in a scene from Republic's action hit, "Rocky Mountain Rangers," now showing at the Capitol. On the same program "Golden Gloves," starring Richard Denning, Jean Cagney, J.

THIRTEEN AND OUT FOR THIS NAZI PLANE

A member of the British Royal Air Force is shown examining the tail of a German plane brought down during a raid on England. According to the marks that correspond to notches on the tail, the airman had bagged 13 enemy planes. It seems that his unlucky number actually was 14, for the man he had picked for the 14th victim got him.

R.A.F. EXPERTS LEARN GERMAN AIR SECRETS

Many of the German planes shot down in the Battle of Britain have not been total losses. This one, LEFT, was repaired by Royal Air Force experts and flown by R.A.F. test pilots to get valuable data on the performance of these planes. This one is a Messerschmitt 110, Germany's best fighting plane. It mounts four machine-guns in the nose and a cannon under the cockpit. The British Spitfire, mounting eight machine-guns in the wings which deliver deadly cross-fire, are said to be more than a match for the Messerschmitt in sky fighting. A Royal Air Force expert is shown, RIGHT, examining the gas tank from a German JU-88 bombing plane brought down in a raid on England. The tank is of the self-sealing kind that may be shot through with bullets and still retain the fuel. Various layers of vulcanized rubber, self-sealing rubber, chrome leather and fibre make up the tank. R.A.F. experts declared this one is a complicated affair and less efficient than the self-sealers used by the R.A.F.

CHEERFUL CHURCHILL ENCOURAGES LONDON DOCKSIDERS

Planes Built for Sweden May be Shipped To Great Britain

New York, Oct. 11.—(CP)—The New York York Mirror says today it has learned that 100 Republic guardsman dive-bombers "reputedly the world's heaviest-armed, fastest and most versatile two-place fighting planes", constructed on order of the Swedish government, will be shipped to Great Britain as soon as President Roosevelt signs the enabling Faddis Bill.

"Seventy-five of the planes . . . are crated and ready to be placed aboard Britain-bound ships", said the Mirror. "For the last several months they have been stored in a circus tent at the Republic Corporation's East Farmingdale, L.I., plant, reliable sources said."

Shipment of the planes to Sweden was halted when the United States State Deparment revoked the export permit after the German invasion of Denmark and Norway. Previously, between 50 and 60 similar planes had been delivered to Sweden by way of Petsamo, Finland.

Surgeons Told How to Treat Soldier's Heart

Short Circuiting of System Controlling Human Energy Used in Treatment

Cleveland, Oct. 10.—(AP)—Soldier's heart —a disease producing a condition akin to stage fright—has been treated successfully by "short circuiting" the system controlling human energy, the association of United States Military Surgeons was told today as it opened a three-day convention.

The treatment was described in a paper prepared by Brig. Gen. George Crile, noted surgeon who helped found the Cleveland Clinic, and Dr. E. P. McCullagh, Clinic colleague.

Soldier's heart, so called because of its prevalence in the military forces during the First Great War, actually is a disease found only in man in his most civilized state, the surgeons reported. Its symptoms were described as "palpitations", nervousness, restlessness, flushing and pallor, sweating and coldness of hands and feet.

Concluding that the disease was an abnormality of the system controlling energy—the brain, thyroid and adrenal glands and the sympathetic nervous system—Dr. Crile reasoned that breaking the circuit of the system might effect a cure.

He cut a nerve centre of the sympathetic nervous system located near the adrenal glands. The effect, he said, was to enervate the adrenals. He reported cure or improvement in 107 out of 114 cases treated.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was starting to [illegible] able in his private chair and ma said. The Hewses [illegible] for a little bridge tonight, Willyum.

It's too bad we have to disappoint them, pop said, and ma said, Now Willyum dont be difficult, I promised Maud Hews we'd be over, and a promise is a promise

That's right, and some of the most useful promises, are broken ones, ask any dictator, pop said, and ma said, I'll do nothing of the kind and you'll go to the Hewses with me, the idea.

Okay, I've been itching to try out the new Stutz system of slam bidding, pop said, and ma said, Well you cant depend on me to try it out with you, whatever it is, because I never heard of it.

I'll explain it to you and then we'll be all set, pop said. I understand it's taking the place of the Blackwood system, he said, and ma said, But Willyum, how gassly, I mean the Blackwood system has just started to take the place of the Culbertson system.

We're living in an age of rapid advancement, pop said. I'll tell you the high lights of the Stutz system and we'll see how it goes tonight. Now when I bid 4 no trumps, naturelly that means I'm inquiring about your aces if any, so if you have one ace and a jack, you bid 5 clubs, unless it's a major ace with a queen, when you bid 5 diamonds, unless the suit in wich you hold the ace queen has already been bid, in wich case you bid 5 harts, the only exception to the being if you also hold the 3 other queens as well as the jack nine eight of a lower suit, when you jump to 6 clubs. That's the first step, pop said, and ma said, The it's the first and last as far as I'm concerned, the idea for land sakes and oh keep quiet, I might of known it was some more of your utter nonsense.

Meening on account of pop laughing all his might, making him feel so much better he went to the Hewses with ma without saying any more against it.

WALL STREET

New York, Oct. 11 —(AP)— Advancing tendencies were displayed by leading stocks in today's market after an early colorless performance.

The better action of prices was unaccompanied by any broadening of dealings. While gains of fractions to a point or so were well distributed near the fourth hour, dealings were even slower than yesterday.

Bid up moderately were U.S. Steel, Bethlehem, Sears Roebuck, Montgomery Ward, American Airlines, Dow Chemical, Kennecott, Westinghouse, Du Pont, Chrysler, Sperry, Tex. Corp. and Great Northern.

Canadian issues were mixed. McIntyre and Distillers Seagram advanced fractions while Lake Shore Mines dipped as much. Canadian Pacific and Hiram Walker held unchanged. Canada 4s, in the Bond Market, were inactive.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Oct. 11 —(CP)— Trading was in the doldrums on the Toronto Exchange today. Volume was down to 50,000 shares. Price tone remained firm.

Jack Waite gained a few cents. Other Base Metals were firm. Strong Golds included San Antonio, Leitch, Macassa and Pickle Crow.

SEVERE QUAKE SHOCK IS FELT IN LOS ANGELES

Santa Monica Bears Brunt of Last Night's Shock in Metropolitan Area

LITTLE DAMAGE

Los Angeles, Oct. 11 (AP)—A severe earthquake shock was felt in Los Angeles and adjacent cities last night. The shock lasted about 10 seconds and was the heaviest experienced in several years. The shock was felt at 9.57 p.m. P.S.T. (1.57 a.m. E.D.T. Friday).

Santa Monica took the brunt of the quake, confined to the metropolitan Los Angeles area. A checkup showed the shock was felt strongly in Redondo Beach, Inglewood, lightly in San Pedro, Long Beach, Anaheim and in the San Fernando Valley.

The quake was not felt north, south or east of this immediate area.

Sheriffs officers reported there was no damage of consequence to property and no loss of life.

Audiences Rush Out of Theatres

Movie-goers in several theatres fled for exit doors and in one of them the entire crowd filed out in orderly fashion.

Telephones were out of service for half an hour in Manhattan Beach, where goods fell from shelves in some stores.

In suburban Westwood Village, one movie audience remained unaffected. The shock came near the climax of a preview. On the screen, a blast was breaking a log jam.

Just as it exploded, the structure rocked. But by the time the watchers realised it was an earthquake and not the repercussion from the dynamiting, the shock was over.

Dr. Beno Gutenberg of California Institute of Technology Seismological Laboratory said records would not be available until later today, but that the fact two shocks were felt a few seconds apart indicated Los Angeles was near the epicentre.

"Happy Gang" Here on Oct. 18th

The "Happy Gang," radio's sensational musical and singing troupe which has gained international repute during the past year, will be in Belleville in person on Friday, October 18th, under the auspices of the Belleville Rotary Club.

The artists, all of whom are well known to rural and urban residents alike through the medium of their loud-speakers, have arranged a special two and one-half hour program for their appearance in the Hume Arena next week. Such popular "Gang" favorites as Kathleen Stokes, organ virtuoso; Blaine Massey and his popular violin, the versatile Bob Farnham, Eddie Allan and his accordeon and last but not least, the inimitable Jack Pearl, pianist and master-of-ceremonies whose consistent line of humorous chatter has installed him as a favorite with all, will be here in person.

The Belleville Rotary Club, whose work with underprivileged children of this city and district has made their name a household one, are sponsoring the show and have left no stone unturned to bring this popular troupe to Belleville. Many requests for tickets have already been received and they are going like hot cakes. The Rotarians have established an office in the old Eaton Groceteria shop at 276 Front street where tickets may be had at all times. They are going fast and potential purchasers are urged to get their pasteboards at once if they desire a choice of seats.

The opportunity presented by the clubmen will be the last for residents of this city to see these radio favorites in action. Already many parties have been arranged and all indications point toward Friday, Oct. 18th, being a gala evening in the entertainment history of the city.

1¼ Cents Advance Made by Butter

Toronto, — The reported sharp drop of 3.5 million pounds in Canadian September production sent butter 1 1-4 cents a pound higher during yesterday's session of the Toronto market. Sales of the first grade Ontario product ranged all the way from 26 1-2 cents in early morning to 27 1-4 cents near the close of the day.

Holders did not offer freely as increased prices were anticipated, with light current receipts reflecting declining production. Trading was not heavy because of the lack of offerings and also because many members of the butter trade awaited release of the final cold storage stock figures, which Ottawa issued late yesterday afternoon. These figures revealed 59,354,695 pounds of creamery butter on hand in Canada on October 1, an increase of 2.3 million pounds on the year ago holdings of 57,013,155 pounds. The increase a month ago was 2.5 million pounds.

Butter consumption continued heavy last month, another reason for the strong market here. Domestic disappearance for September approximated 25.5 million pounds, which compared with 27.3 million pounds a year ago. This is a decline of 1.8 million pounds, but as previously pointed out, butter distribution in September last year was abnormally large owing to the hoarding of supplies by consumers in the opening weeks of the war.

Light offerings and good demand combined to give further improvement to prices on the egg market. Receipts of top grades were reported as scarce.

JAPANESE POLICE SEEKING SLAYER OF PUPPET MAYOR

Kongkew Section of Shanghai Turned Upside Down to Uncover Plot

SERVANT SUSPECTED

Shanghai, Oct. 11 —(AP)— Japanese military authorities turned the Hongkew section of Shanghai upside down today in a hunt for an unidentified assassin who killed their Chinese puppet mayor, Fu Siao-en, as he slept in his closely guarded home early this morning.

The mysterious slaying, characterized by the Japanese as an "inside job," climaxed a series of acts of violence which have taken the lives of several prominent pro-Japanese Chinese in recent months.

Shanghai municipal police said the Japanese had asked them to help locate a trusted personal servant of Fu's. The servant, Zung Tsu-en, was reported missing after the killing.

Throat is Slashed

The 70-year-old mayor's throat was slashed while his wife slept in an adjoining bed and 20 armed guards patrolled the grounds of his home. Madame Fu awakened in time to hear footsteps retreating from the room but could give no clue to the killer's identity.

A Japanese officer was shot and killed by unknown persons just outside Hongkew about the same time Fu was slain but there was no immediate evidence the two events were connected.

Elaborate precautions had been taken in an effort to ensure the safety of the mayor, who narrowly escaped assassination in November, 1938.

Streets Barricaded

He considered his residence in the Japanese-controlled stronghold of Hongkew the safest of the several homes between which he divided his time, never sleeping two consecutive nights in the same bed.

Japanese barricaded all streets leading from Hongkew to the non-Japanese side of the International Settlement.

Fu, born in Ningpo of humble parents, rose to a leading place in the business life of Shanghai through native shrewdness and became mayor of the Japanese-captured parts of the city in October, 1937, during the first year of the undeclared war between China and Japan.

A year later he was appointed mayor of "the Shanghai special municipality," which included all districts outside the International Settlement and the French Concession.

He became an enemy of Gen Chiang Kai-Shek, head of the present Chung King government, in 1927 when he furnished supplies to the northern armies unsuccessfully opposing the rising Chiang.

Microbes Found Destroyers of Iron, Zinc and Lead Pipes

Atlantic City, N.J., Oct. 11. —(AP)— The American Gas Association learned today of a tiny microbe that eats cast iron pipe—millions of dollars' worth every year.

This microbe is called sporovibrio desulfuricans. It has a little whiplash tail, spins like a whirling dervish and can destroy the thickest pipe in eight years.

Raymond F. Hadley of Philadelphia, electrical engineer for the Susquehanna Pipe Line Company, discovered the damage being done by this "bug".

Sporovibrios eat the hydrogen atoms out of organic compounds. There is usually an abundance of hydrogen on the surface of an underground pipe.

The little creatures are clever. When they want to get from one place to another in a hurry they whirl around in one spot until they get up high speed, and then fly off on a tangent. They are fast in other ways, too. By growth and division one becomes a great-great-grandparent in one minute and twenty seconds.

Hadley reported the microbes destroy lead, zinc, iron, tin and steel, but stay away from copper because it is "bad for their digestion".

Akaline compounds are bad for them, too and Hadley recommended that hereafter all underground pipes be coated with them.

BRITISH WARSHIPS

"Attacked in force," said the Air Ministry, was shipping in the ports of Boulogne, Calais, Le Havre and Bresh in France and Flushing and Amsterdam in the Netherlands.

The much-bombed Fokker airplane factory at Amsterdam again was attacked. The Air Ministry also announced a series of attacks on factories and railway sthroughout the Netherlands designed to prevent those commandeered industries from adding to Germany's war sinews.

Landing fields and a sea plane base in German territory also came in for attention from R.A.F. bombers who flew on their night raids throughout a stiff gale lashing the channel.

All the bembers returned, said the Air Ministry, and moreover reported they had downed two German planes enroute.

FIFTH RAID

man bombers were shot down yesterday and five British planes were lost. Two of the British pilots were reported safe, however.

During last night's raids Nazi bombs fell on four houses in the working district of a Welsh town, killing two women. Other districts of Wales which were under attack escaped with slight damages and few casualties.

The Nazi raiders returned anew after breaking off their regular night attack earlier than usual. They were believed to have dropped many time bombs during the dusk to dawn assaults. Fewer bomb explosions were heard.

Liverpool dispatches said 40 high explosive bombs dropped on its port and shipyards in the longest raid of the war in that area, resulting in several casualties. Three bombs narrowly missed a movie theatre.

Narrow Escapes Reported

Several narrow escapes were reported in the London night raids.

One hundred employees of a London club escaped injury when a bomb fell near their basement shelter. Barricaded windows were blown in.

A watchman in a one-man "cylinder" shelter was uninjured, although a building was demolished above his refuge.

Scores of persons sleeping in a shelter under a seven-storey office building were unhurt although buildings on three sides were wrecked.

Night Attacks Less Severe

Observers said the night attack was much less severe than previous raids. Anti-aircraft gunners were reported to have potted Nazi flares as fast as the raiders dropped them.

The Press Association said the Archies shot down at least two night raiders.

Royal Air Force airplanes, meanwhile, flew across the Channel in heavy force, the Ministry raid, to attack "oil and other military targets and communications in Germany" as well as the "invasion ports" on the German-held French coast, including big gun positions at Calais and Cap Gris Nez.

Radio stations in Berlin, Hamburg, Cologne and other parts of Germany went off the air during the early part of the night, indicating the R.A.F. was striking deep into the Reich.

Entire Coast Lighted

Observers on the Kent coast said illumination from British bombs crashing on French ports across the narrow Channel was the most brilliant yet. The entire coast for miles was silhouetted in the glare.

More than 50 districts of London were hit during the all-night attack. Twenty areas in the provinces, from the Thames Estuary to the west country, in Wales, the midlands and the northeast, also were attacked.

The government reported incendiary bombs caused some fires in London and the suburbs, but added that none of these were extensive and all were brought under control swiftly.

"Some persons have been killed or injured," a communique said, "but having regard to the scale and the widespread and indiscriminate nature of the attacks, the number of casualties is not heavy, according to the information at present available"

R.A.F. Dares Ripping Gale

Both the R.A.F. and Nazi planes, criss-crossing over the Channel, dared a ripping gale to make attacks.

One German raider jettisoned his bombs at sea and then flew inland over a northern holiday resort, diving down to fire bursts from his machine guns. The populace ran for shelter as bullets spattered on the rooftops.

The Ministry of Home Security said military and industrial damage caused by air raids in the last week had been "relatively slight" and that casualties showed a sharp reduction over previous weeks.

RUMANIAN

Ban Gas Shipments

Rumania's reported action in banning gasoline shipments to Greece and Turkey, two pro-British countries, shortly after the German military penetration of Rumania began was regarded by observers as part of the Axis-engineered pressure on these countries.

Yugoslav political circles noted that Hrvatski Onevnik, the newspaper of Dr. Vladimir Macek, Croatian peasant leader and Vice Premier, emphasized the need for a 'real foreign policy in Yugoslavia in accord with the international situation'. Neutrality, it argued, no longer is possible.

The Hungarian Press carried articles declaring Rumania has not fulfilled her obligations as regards the handing over of railroad rolling stock and other equipment in Northern Transylvania and reported the "languid" talks had ended following a Rumanian appeal to the Axis on the matter.

Denounce Rumania

The Budapest students assembled on the university grounds and in public squares denounced alleged Rumanian "atrocities" against Hungarians and shouted "down with Bucharest", in demanding reprisals.

In both the Press and radio a bitter controversy continued between Hungary and Rumania, both sides claiming documentary and photographic evidence their respective Nationals were being mistreated.

DEMOCRACY IS MEANS TO END NOT END ITSELF

Lt.-Col. George Drew Makes Statement in Addressing U.S. Audience

PRAISES CO-OPERATION

Chicago, Oct. 11. (CP)—Lt.-Col. George A. Drew, Ontario Conservative leader, told a convention of United States Life Insurance agents here that if there is one lesson which stands out above all others from the 20 years of "so-called peace" between 1920-1940, it is that democracy itself is not enough.

"If we have learned any lesson from those disordered years, it surely is that democracy is the means to an end and not the end itself", Col. Drew said.

"The dictators make sure that the doctrines of the government in power will be taught to those upon whose support that power depends. That, it seems to me, is a lesson we must learn.

"We must teach our people, and particularly the youth, that the mere existence of the democratic form of government does not assure happiness and security, but that it is merely the means by which happiness, freedom and security can be preserved for the greatest number of those who rule, do, in fact, understand the principles and delicate mechanism of this extremely difficult form of government. . . . . .

"In the struggle for the preservation of the ideals of democracy our future will be bound very closely with yours. We in Canada welcome that close association. We welcomed the recent creation of a joint defence board.

"As a people we will welcome every evidence of practical co-operation at home of democratic principles. We welcome this increasingly close association particularly because we Canadians are so intensely British and are pleased that you have seen fit to extend this measure of co-operation to that part of the British Empire which lies across your northern boundary."

W. J. Ford, Pres., A. & N. Veterans

W. J. Ford, 29 1-2 Station Street well known Hydro employee and war veteran was elected to the presidency of the Army and Navy Veterans in Canada, Belleville Branch No. 201 last night at the annual meeting. Other officers elected were Thomas York, 1st Vice President; George Hammett, 2nd Vice President; James Lazenby, Secretary; and Harry Ransome, Treasurer. The executive of the Club for the forthcoming year will be composed of Messrs. Art. Newman, Archie Jordan, Arthur Galbraith, T. C. Hyland, Harold Revell and Jack Hatfield. George Smith is Sergt.-Major and Bob Browning, sergt-at-arms.

President Ford, will occupy the chair for the second time in the history of the club, having been elected head of the organization three years ago. He served overseas with the 4th Canadian Mounted Rifles and since the inception of the club has taken a whole-hearted interest in its development. He is popular with the members, and with other returned soldiers' organization of the city. His election was a popular one inasmuch as he received a 43 majority over all of three other nominees for the position.

Treasurer Harry Ransome, another popular member of the club, and its new treasurer succeeds Herbert Willerton, who held the position for the past five years and who resigned through pressure of business and other activities. Mr. Willerton also enjoyed the respect and esteem of his fellow club-members and his resignation from a position of trust was met with expressions of regret.

Messrs. York, Hammett, Hyland and other members of the new officiating body are well-known to city and district war veterans and are well-fitted for their new positions.

JAPAN TAKING

sult of the failure of a "trial balloon" by Premier Prince Fumimaro Konoye to produce the desired reaction in the United States.

Foreign Minister Yosuke Matsuoka's repetition of the decuaration that the Japanese-German-Italian Pact was not directed against the United States was interpreted as evidence of such a change.

Prince Konoye a week ago had invited the United States to cooperate with the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo Axis but declared on the other hand that any United States challenge to Axis division of world leadership would bring a "fight to the finish."

The source analysing the trend of Japanese utterances said he interpreted the Premier's statement as an attempt to arouse Pacifists in the United States to demand a slackening pressure, lest an armed conflict result.

When the United States Government subsequently advised United States nationals to leave the Japanese empire, among other places in the Orient, this source said, it destroyed the psychological advantages of any future sabre-rattling by the Japanese.

Yakichiro Suma, Foreign Office spokesman, told a press conference today that "responsible people on both sides of the Pacific should be very calm."

GERMAN

sabotage ordered by London."

Relations Quite Strained

Severance of Rumanian-British diplomatic relations appeared closer hourly. Officials of the British legation were saying goodbye to Rumanian friends and interviewing Britons who still remain regarding transportation out of the country.

The Bucharest Press, announcing for the first time the arrival of German troops "to act as instructors," said: "The war is not yet finished. By next spring we will have Axis military technique and new enthusiasm."

The commissioner of the Bucharest Stock Exchange issued a statement on "the unjustified drop in value of many stocks." He warned stockholders against "believing rumors of threats and malevolence."

Industrialist Leaves

Among the Britons who left the country today by airplane was Fornhill Cooper prominent industrialist who came here some months ago as manager of the Ford Company in a reported attempt to prevent the company from falling into German hands.

Official reaction to the announcement that President Roosevelt had ordered Rumanian funds in the United States frozen was lacking.

Foreign diplomatic circles, however, accepted the announcement as reflecting a United States decision that Rumania no longer is in position to maintain free international trade.

Meanwhile, British officials are convinced that the Axis program to "oust the British from the Balkans" is being fully revealed and continued preparations to quit Rumania if London orders. Members of the British colony numbering 300 to 400 are departing steadily.

Axis Presses on Yugoslavia

Reports of increasing Axis pressure against Yugoslavia and new munitions shipments to Bulgaria were held to be a logical development of an Axis putsch in southeastern Europe.

Rumanian and Turkish relations also were growing strained as a result of reports not yet confirmed that gasoline shipments to Turkey would be prohibited, placing the latter under a distinct military disadvantage.

Turkey, non-belligerent ally of Great Britain, already had begun economic retaliation by requiring payment in advance from Rumania, in dollars, for shipment of Turkish cotton. Previously, the two countries were to exchange these products.

The Turkish press is concerned over the possibility that the Axis may be planning "military pincers" against Turkey and Greece. The Turks are hopeful, however, that Soviet policy will intervene to block any German ambitions toward the Dardanelles.

HUNGARIAN

Press Very Vehement

"Introduction of German troops onto Rumanian soil makes it impossible for us any longer to maintain diplomatic relations with (Premier Ion) Antonescu and the discredited rabble who have hoisted him to power.

"Sir Reginald Hoare should not be allowed to waste his time and the public money in sending telegrams that do not arrive. He should be withdrawn."

Despatches from Belgrade said six Danube River steamships crowded with German troops passed the Yugoslav capital late yesterday, presumably headed for Giurgu, Rumania's big oil port. Several barges loaded with German trucks marked with red crosses also passed Belgrade.

Axis Pressure Active

(Attacks by the Italian and German Press on Yugoslav policies were interpreted by neutral observers in Belgrade as indications of Axis pressure to keep Yugoslavia in line.

(The Belgrade correspondent of the Rome newspaper Il Giornale D'Italia wrote that the passage of German troops through Belgrade should convince the Yugoslavs of "the genuineness" of the Axis quaranty to "protect" Rumania.)

(From Bucharest came word that Britain's non-belligerent ally, Turkey, had accused the Rumanian government of not living up to an agreement last fall whereby it was to exchange oil for Turkish cotton. Turkish trade representatives informed Rumania payment in cash must hereafter be made for cotton shipments.)

The News Chronicle took the lead in demanding Sir Reginald's recall, declaring:

84TH ANNIVERSARY STIRLING CHURCH IS CELEBRATED

Presbyterians Hear Message From Pastor of Church Twenty Seven Years Ago

SPECIAL MUSIC

Stirling, Oct. 10 (Special)—Large congregations attended both Sunday services at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Stirling, when Rev. J. A. Hilts of Davenport Rd. Presbyterian Church, Toronto, returned after twenty-seven years to his former pastoral charge and delivered two most inspiring messages. Generally acknowledge as one of the church's foremost ministers, Mr. Hilts added personal zeal and force to his timely messages in which he urged all Christians to give greater display of loyalty to the church which is the foundation of the democracy for which we fight.

Twenty-two members of the choir under the capable direction of Miss Grace Pitman, A.T.C.M., offered special music, which added much interest to the fine services. The organ at which Miss Pitman presided, was augmented by the use of the piano in duet work throughout the services with Mrs. R. H. Williams at the latter instrument. At the morning worship special musical features were as follows: Piano and organ prelude, "Meditation at the Cross," "Hail the Victor," by Ellen Jane Lorenz and Herbert Henderson respectively. As an offertory number the duet played, "Erster Teil Parti," by J. S. Bach and their postlude was the Processional March by Reginald Martin. The choir offered two anthems, "I Heard the Voice," E. S. Lorenz and "Thy Will Be Done," C. Harold Lowden. Mr. Clayton Tummon was the tenor soloist of the day. Mrs. Roy Eggleton and Arthur Duncan combined in vocal duet work, offering Stainer's "Love Divine."

Continuing the fine musical contributions to the worship at the evening service Miss Pitman and Mrs. Williams included the following numbers: Melodie Pastoral, E. L. Ashford, "March from the Fifth Symphony," Beethoven; Minuet, Ira B. Wilson, "The Son of God Goes Forth," R. M. Stults, "Nature's Anthem of Praise," Lost Chord, by Sir Arthur Sullivan and "Soldiers of the King," R. M. Stults. The anthem in the evening was "Crown Him Lord of All," E. S. Lorenz. A vocal trio featuring Mrs. W. H. Walker, Mrs. Roy Eggleton and Mr. Arthur Duncan sang "Trust in His Mercy," Gabriel Leprevost, and with Mr. Roy Eggleton added to complete the quartette sang "Yes Jesus Cares." Combined with pleasure given many of the older members of the congregation at hearing Rev. J. A. Hilts, former pastor, after an absence of twenty-seven years and all others who heard his forceful delivery for the first time, each phase of the service added to the success and inspiration of the event.

Supper is Held Monday

Over three hundred attended the special anniversary chicken supper provided by the ladies on the following evening and the fine program presented later in the auditorium. Rev. W. H. V. Walker was chairman for the evening and numbers included brief addresses by Rev. L. Harding of St. John's Anglican Church and Rev. James E. Beckel of Rawdon United Church. Instrumental duet by Miss Pitman and Mrs. Williams, vocal duets by Miss Leta Horton and Mrs. Frederick of Sidney. Appearing in Stirling for the first time, Miss Anna Hogle, talented elocutionist of Belleville, won the hearts of the large Stirling audience with her splendid numbers.

Misses Olive, Bernice and Grace Blue, Miss Gertrude Anderson, Miss Osborne and Miss Anna Hogle, all of Belleville, visited friends in Stirling on Monday evening and attended the anniversary dinner at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, where Miss Hogle assisted with elocutionary renditions on the program of the evening.

Miss Mary Brownson has returned to Stirling after spending a few days nursing in Marmora.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Rosebush were Sunday guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Hulin.

Mr. and Mrs. John Holmes enjoyed a trip last week-end through the northern part of the province, coming home by way of Algonquin Park.

Miss Flossie Hulin has returned to Stirling after spending the past month visiting relatives in Madoc.

The sympathy of many Stirling friends is extended to Mrs. B. Emmons in the loss of her mother, the late Mrs. William Henry Scott of Rawdon township.

Miss Betty Hulin of Wellman's Corners was a week-end guest at the home of her aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hulin.

St. Paul's W.M.S.

The October meeting of St. Paul's W.M.S. took place in the church parlours on Tuesday, Oct. 8th, under the direction of the President, Mrs. Pidgeon. Following the thanksgiving theme the service began with a harvest hymn followed by a prayer of general thanksgiving in unison. During the business part of the meeting Mrs. E. G. Bailey read the secretary's report along with the various department secretaries. A missionary talk on the work in Africa as described in the Blue Book, was given by Mrs. C. Macklin; she also directed the remaining portion of the program assisted by the members of her group. The devotional period was conducted in a unique fashion with a verse of Scripture and a verse of hymn being used throughout the lesson which was read by the programme convener. The topic of the meeting: "Comrades in the World's Church Mission Work in Africa," was ably dealt with by Mrs. Macklin assisted by Mrs. F. Jackman, Mrs. R. A. Patterson, Mrs. F. N. McKee and Mrs. E. G. Bailey. Mrs. Girdwood led in the closing prayer and the meeting closed with another hymn and the closing benediction.

Small Talk......

Grade X-A has started a class newspaper, calling it 'The X-A Blitzkrieg'....editor is Gordon Bankier.... must run in the family .. Some talk of a school weekly ...as far as is known, this is still just talk, to date....First meeting of the Art Club is called for Thursday.... We understand that this year's Art Club will handle all or most of the Art work for the Elevator this year ....This school's Red Cross units expect to take part in the big Red Cross' drive coming soon .... A second Rugby Tea Dance is called for today (Friday).... proceeds to go, as before, to rugby team for travelling expenses, etc.....Pardon the 'I-told-you-so' look in our eye.. Time for military drill is fluctuating between the noon-hour and after school hours....probably end up in a compromise....Third meeting of the Cheering Section, the last before the game next Monday, was called for last Thursday....Understand that this is going over well ....In case you haven't heard.... there's a rugby game between B. C. I. and Cobourg on Monday, Thanksgiving Day, at the Fair Grounds....

Call For Crabapples

A call for crabapples was issued lately here. Any donations of such should go to the Home Economics Room, where they will be used for jelly for the boys overseas. Thus, crabapples join the ranks of tinfoil, leather and woolen goods as well as money being collected by the Red Cross units here. If you have any pure wool articles which are of no further use, they can be handed to Miss Brown, who is sending away 12 pounds or more to make a blanket. Leather goods is also being collected to make seamen's jackets. All contributions will be appreciated greatly.

Hit and Miss....

Those fire drills the other day gave us plenty of exercise.... two in about five minutes.... and then the bell rang....perhaps they are trying to wear us down....Everyone would like to know what that blonde Grade-niner carries in her suitcase, which is creating quite a sensation in the corridors.... The Red Cross Groups in the school are all accomplishing a great deal of work....This week the Dextras quilted a quilt at Miss Sweeney's apartment and in the near future the John White Group is to hold one of its famous home-made candy sales....you had better start saving your nickels for that event because the candy is good! The Library Club's mending committee is in full swing so if you have any books to mend they will be done well in the Library for a very small sum....Everyone has been praising the display cases outside the Library and we agree that they do look nice....The 11th Graders are making the 13th Graders feel their age by asking them to chaperon their parties, so we hear.... Our student band leader is Gordon Spafford, who wields the baton and expends considerable energy every Thursday at Assembly. M. C.

New Sweaters For Team

Out into the bright sunshine at the Fair Grounds on Monday afternoon our brave lads will trot, clad in their new sweaters of scarlet and black. Now these sweaters are quite the rage of the fashionable football world. The game promises to be a thriller as the Cobourg team had proved its worth by its victory over Albert College. However 'Bart' Warren, the MacBrides (big and little), Bill Pigden, Buck Zufelt and all the boys are in fine shape; 'Big Jim' (by request) Mulholland expressed their sentiments as he beat his massive chest and howled "We'll moider dem."

When I was given the rather doubtful honour of being appointed reporter for Special Commercial, it occurred to me that I might, at one time or another, find myself at loss for words, but never at a loss for a topic to write on, yet such is the case. As far as I can see nothing has happened in our form this week worth informing the general public about, and yet the space must be filled up, so therefore, I'll tell you what X11 D has not done lately.

First of all, we haven't had that outing which every other form in the school seems to have enjoyed, namely a wiener roast (I don't like hot-dogs, anyway), secondly, our form is not represented on the senior rugby team, mainly because we have only one boy in the class, and he is daily becoming more hard to locate. This last fact also explains why we haven't had any form parties, no doubt, nine girls withone boy had not yet been solved.

The one contribution Special had made worthy of being mentioned here, is their sale of War Savings Stamps, approximately $90.00 worth of stamps have been sold, without the sudden boost given to many other forms by the sale of a large certificate. Also a great deal of tin-foil and cotton goods have been handed in to Miss Brown, our hard working form mistress.

Much credit for the success of our war efforts to date is due Miss Brown and Mable Adams, honorary president and secretary-treasurer, respectively of X11 D's War Saving Stamp Committee. With them at the helm and the continued co-operation of the form, we hope to be well over the $100 mark by the end of the month.

Cherbourg Attacked By British Cruiser, German Circles Say

Berlin, Oct. 11—(CP)—German circles said today that a British cruiser attacked Cherbourg, German-occupied French port, early this morning.

No indication was given as to the immediate objective of the warship or the degree of success attained. The Germans claimed it was driven off by shore batteries, but it was not stated whether the cruiser had first carried out its mission.

(There was no comment on the incident in London).

Cherbourg lies almost due south of Portsmouth, the British naval base across the English Channel.

DISARMING PARADES

Lahore, India (CP)—A new government proclamation says that no person forming part of a procession of 10 or more persons shall carry arms or any article capable of being used as arms.

How To Overcome Piles And Rectal Soreness

If you are annoyed with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not neglect the same or run the risk of an operation. Any itching, soreness or painful passage of stool, is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once. For this purpose get from J. S. McKeown or any druggist, a package of Hemroid and use as directed. This formula which is used internally, quickly relieves the itching and soreness and aids in healing the sore, tender spots. Hemroid is highly recommended, is easy to use and it seems the height of folly for anyone to risk an operation when a simple remedy, which is so pleasant to use may be had at such a reasonable cost.

Cary Grant, Martha Scott and Richard Carlson featured in the magnificent screen production "The Howards of Virginia," which will have its Canadian premiere showing at the McCarthy Theatre Sunday midnight.

Checkerboard Love

A FIRST-RUN McCLURE SERIAL.

CHAPTER XII.

When Jeffrey Castle felt impelled to confide in Audrey how deeply he had been affected by his conference with Miss Annie Dodds, his mind was in something of a turmoil. He had foreseen that he was headed for trouble; Olive had made it clear on several occasions that she didn't take seriously his adventuring in the law. She assumed the Castles were wealthy. Money, to her, had always been merely something to spend, nothing to worry about. Had there been any suggestion that she might have to support her husband in his life of ease, she would have taken it as a matter of course. Been generous about it. As with Phil Cooper—only he hadn't appreciated it.

On his side, Jeffrey had never given any serious thought to an income. There always had been one, and he fancied in a vague way there always would be. His father's veiled suggestion that any future subsidy from the family bank account would be for services rendered, was something of a blow. Unjust, somehow. Ordinarily, his mother could be counted upon to take his part, but this was different. Judge Castle had the whip hand this time. It would be more than serious if he carried out his implied threat. It went without saying that Jeff Castle never would let a woman support him. Hardly. He'd dig ditches first! His father was smart enough to take advantage of that, too.

That little trait Jeff had of ignoring issues if they could be passed over pleasantly showed itself in his intimate talk with Audrey. He neglected to tell her that he had received a jubilant note from Olive. Her decree had been granted, nothing remaining but the signing of a few papers, or something. Jeffrey would know what they were. Olive didn't, neither was she concerned. He must come up as quickly as possible for a little celebration. There was much to talk over, plans to make.

Jeffrey did not analyze his reasons for not telling Audrey about the letter. She had been deeply touched by his story of Miss Annie, had sympathized frankly with him, and encouraged him. To have told her that the barrier to his marriage had been removed would somehow have struck a jarring note. All this concern persisted in keeping him company as he drove to the city for what otherwise would have been a hilarious week-end. He had called Olive on the phone and explained that he would not be able to leave until Friday night, or possibly Saturday morning. A matter of business had come up that would require his presence.

When he reached the Harrison home Saturday afternoon Olive chided him for his loitering, but gaily. She had spent the morning shopping for her trousseau, had picked out the engagement ring she desired, and was still in the throes of the pleasurable experience.

"Looks as if you were not taking any chances," Jeffrey teased, pleased to find that the reason for his tardy arrival was not occupying the limelight.

"There is more to this business of getting married than you seem to think," was her retort. "You will have plenty to attend to on your own account before the dress rehearsals begin, Boy Friend. It won't be long before you find it out. That is, if you can tear yourself away from Parville. What is this spasm of diligence you were trying to tell me about?"

"Oh, that!" He made a show of indifference. "Just giving a helping hand to the old gentleman to lift him over a spot."

"Really? It must have been something serious. He seems to have managed pretty well without you for some time."

"Sure. This is a trifle different." Jeff realized that he must exercise care in his account, not tell too much or too little. "I'm not sure that I ever happened to mention it, but since Father has been on the circuit he has turned all of his local stuff over to his secretary. She would pick a week like this to have a breakdown or something—anyway, she's quitting for an indefinite time. Father happens to be pretty well tied up, so there's nothing for Little Rollo to do but step into the breach, so to speak. Fine way to put in the hot weather, but someone has to carry on the Castle torch until a substitute can be broken in."

"Do you mean that you intend to spent these next two months in that horrible place? I'll be needing you for a heap of things before very long."

"Tough break," he admitted ruefully. "But we'll work it out some way."

"I suppose you'll be telling me next that you have to report at eight Monday morning," she pouted. "Do you carry a lunch basket?"

"No I don't . . . carry lunch, I mean. I have a session Monday morning with the County Clerk at his office, worse luck. How's the old ankle? Pretty fit?"

"It doesn't trouble me."

"Fine. In that event, why don't you figure out some particularly scrumptious place where we can have a celebration dinner Champagne and everything. I'd even like to dance with you."

He was humming a little tune when a servant handed him his hat and opened the heavy street door for him to go to his club to dress.

The perfection of it all lingered throughout the long evening. In the foyer of the club that Olive had chosen they encountered Becky and Lee Warren who likewise were in pursuit of gayety. Greetings were followed by a burst of congratulations that left Jeffrey almost incoherent in the matter of acknowledgment.

"Don't look so self-conscious, old man," Lee drawled comfortingly. "The bride's supposed to do the blushing, you know . . . even before the cataclysm. It's all in the day's work, anyway."

It was not until they were seated at their table that Jeffrey had an opportunity to voice the matter that was uppermost in his mind.

"Olive," he began in a cautious tone, "how the devil did Becky and Lee know? Just putting two and two together? I suppose the decree announcement made the paper. It sort of took me off my feet for the moment."

"Oh, you know how the papers are about anything concerning Daddy. He's always front page stuff."

"You mean . . . did you give it to the papers?"

"Naturally. They didn't do much with it today, but there will be plenty tomorrow. I hope. They've pestered me enough, I'm sure. Two women reporters were here this morning long before I was up. And I don't now how many photographers. I wouldn't let them take any pictures of me, though. I told them they could use that last one that Adam posed. You have it. I think that's my best, don't you?"

"It's a beauty. But, Olive, I didn't know . . ."

She smiled in amusement at his bewilderment. "My dear! You're not going rustic, I hope. Surely you're not averse to letting the dear public know I'm planning to marry you."

"Hardly. Did . . . did you spot any date for the big show?"

"September. Nothing more definite. But I was starting to tell you . . ." she broke off suddenly as the waiter came to the table.

"Your health, darling." Jeff lifted his glass gallantly. "You were saying?"

"Thank you. I was about to say that Daddy sort of wet-blanketed things by serving notice that he wanted nothing in the papers about my divorce. And not a great deal of anything else. He also called his secretary and told him to notify the editors direct. I can't imagine why he acted that way, but you know the papers will do petty much as he wants."

"I suppose so." Jeffrey hoped he sounded sympathetic, but there was no disguising the gratitude that welled in his heart and that was directed at his future father-in-law. No amount of logic had served to kill a certain sensitiveness at the recollection that Olive had been the wife of another man. It would have been very distasteful to him to have that story player up in the same article that announced his bethothal.

"I'm curious to see what they print," Olive remarked pensively, turning the stem of her glass between her slim white fingers.

"So am I. I'll make it a point to get a bale of papers tomorrow, provided that they do you credit. Are you ready to order, dear?"

"You do it," she smiled. "I want to get used to the idea of being dependent upon you."

Olive must have known that this club was a favorite with her friends, Jeffery concluded. For it seemed to him that there was an unending stream of visitors to their table, most of them couples passing to and from the dance floor and most of them strangers to him. With each arrival he was forced to stand for introductions and felicitations. To make matters worse, Olive decided that her ankle was paining her slightly and that it would be foolish to attempt dancing.

It was after three when he reached his club, and the Sunday papers were out. Once again he was surrounded by convivial nighthawks, who pawed and congratulated him.

"Oughta got here sooner," one of them informed owlishly. "Phil Cooper was here. Ships 'at pass in the night, you know. Fine fella, Phil."

NAZI TROOPS MARCH INTO RUMANIAN CAPITAL

Conservative Leader Hanson Claims Air Training Scheme Expanded

War of Guns Added to Battle of Bombs

Uncounted Dead Feared Buried in Hotel Wreckage

London Undergoes 199th Alarm of War After Night of Scattered Attacks

London, Oct. 12 (CP)—Nazi warplanes soaring beyond sight in the autumnal mists made four daylight raids on London today after a night of scattered attacks on Britain.

Some houses and business establishments in London were smashed today, but the ministries of air and home security said casualties and damage were comparatively light. Bombs also dropped in Kent and Essex.

At least four German planes were destroyed and one British fighter was lost, with the pilot safe.

An air battle was fought 20,000 feet over the southeast coast and the Germans were forced to withdraw. One raider damaged an hotel in a southeast coast town. There were no casualties.

In Liverpool, however, a number of persons were feared buried in the wreckage of an hotel which was hit during the night.

Rescue crews found several persons alive in the Liverpool hotel, struck by a big bomb. But the rest of the staff and guests were somewhere beneath the heap of rubble.

To the battle of bombs was added the war of guns. Long range British and German batteries on opposite sides of the English Channel thundered for more than three hours last night and early today in their longest bombardment.

Why The Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen
Science Service Meteorologist

Singapore and Batavia! These much discussed places have abundant rains every month. They both lie close to the equator, and the seasonal changes in temperature are very small. The annual temperature range (that is, from the average of the coolest to the warmest month) is only about 3 degrees at Singapore and 2 at Batavia. Singapore has 173 rainy days, with an average of 93 inches of rain a year, and Batavia has 73 inches of rain. While the temperature never rises above 94 degrees, the dampness causes the heat to be much more oppressive than higher temperatures in drier regions. Hurricanes may occur any month, but the season of their greatest frequency is from July to October.

16 HOLLANDERS, MEMBERS OF CREW, TAKEN TO JAIL

Refused to Resail Vessel Back Across Atlantic Ocean

MUTINY IS CHARGE

An Ontario Port, Oct. 12.—(CP)—Sixteen Hollanders, members of the original crew of the Prins Willem III, who are said to have refused to resail the vessel back across the Atlantic, were removed from the boat to jail Friday by R.C.M.P. officers.

They had been in custody beneath decks when the Prins Willem III was docked here two days ago after a trip from Chicago here. Since then they have been kept aboard the boat while advice was sought from Ottawa on what action could be taken.

Yesterday warrants for their arrest charging mutiny were received by officials here. Then the R.C.M.P. officers transferred the crew members to jail in motor cars. The prisoners will remain in jail pending official disposition of their cases.

Rid of his former crew, Capt. W. P. Helsingen, Netherlands' Master of the ship owned by the Orange Lines of Holland, prepared to leave port with his Canadian crew of 16 and four other Hollanders, who are willing to stay with their captain.

Resume Normal Trade

It is reported the ship will then resume its normal trade.

The Captain of the Prins Willem III ran into difficulties after he had brought a cargo into the Great Lakes and taken on cargo at Chicago. It was reported members of the crew refused to make an ocean crossing in an unarmed merchant ship. The ship is chartered by the British Government.

United States Immigration authorities refused to let the Hollanders land there because they were aliens without entry papers. To move his ship the Captain obtained permission from Canadian authorities to get a Canadian crew. They were sent from Montreal and were taken on to operate the ship from Chicago.

To ensure that the Hollanders did not leave the ship, 10 Pinkerton Agency men were placed as an armed guard over the crew of Hollanders and guarded them until R.C.M.P. officers took over the guard in port.

SEA ENGAGEMENT FOUGHT SAY NAZIS

Berlin, Oct. 12.—(AP)—German circles said today that a German torpedo boat flotilla sailed out of a continental port and fought a sea engagement off the Isle of Wight with British Light Naval forces. These sources claimed the flotilla had encountered British submarines, destroyers and torpedo boats. The result of the engagement was not known. (There was no comment on the incident from British quarters.)

Body of Judge, Sought for Murder, Found Floating in Detroit River

Detroit, Oct. 12 (AP)—Two duck hunters found the body of Judge Robert E. Sage, sought for murder in connection with the fatal shooting of two business associates, on an island in the Detroit River today. Judge Sage had drowned and the body had washed ashore.

Identification was made through a key found in Sage's pocket and through a tailor's label in the suit he wore. The key was to the hotel room of a friend of Sage from which the gun used in the double killing was taken. The tailoring company said Sage had been a customer for six years.

Judge Sage had been sought since Oct. 1 on a murder warrant in connection with the deaths of Ralph and Alfred Nadell.

Maurice D. Smilay, an Attorney, was wounded in the shooting fray.

It was learned that Premier Refik Saydam had received the new Soviet ambassador, Sergei Vinogradoff, yesterday several hours before the Turkish radio broadcast a warning that 2,000,000 Turkish troops are ready to meet any attempted German invasion at Egypt by way of the Near East.

AIRMEN KILLED AS PLANE CRASHES

Flying Instructor and His Pupil Victims of Accident Near Sudbury

Sudbury, Ont., 12 (CP)—A 21-year-old flying instructor and his pupil, who was learning to fly before entering the Royal Canadian Air Force, were killed late yesterday when an Austin Airways training plane crashed into Lake Ramsay, four miles east of Sudbury.

The victims were: Baden Brownlee of Toronto, flying instructor for the Airways Company since last June, and Ted Perron, 28, of Timagami, nephew of Alex Perron, President of Perron Gold Mines, and son of Mrs. Cecilia Perron and the late Oderic Perron, pioneers of the Timigami district.

The plane was circling low over the lake when it suddenly nosed down, hit the water, bounced and then struck the water again. The pontoons were ripped from the fuselage on the second bounce and the plane quickly sank.

When it was raised three hours later the bodies of Brownlee and Perron were found slumped over the controls, strapped to their seats with safety belts.

The plane was raised from 25 feet of water after Douglas Speedy, Copper Cliff policeman dove to it and fastened a rope to the tail. When brought to the surface, the plane was found to be completely wrecked with one wing ripped off and the propellor and front parts badly damaged.

DECORATION RESTORED

New York, (AP)—The German radio broadcast a dispatch from Vichy today saying the Petain-Laval regime has restored the order of the French Legion of Honor to King Leopold of the Belgians. The French wartime government of Premier Paul Reynaud had removed the King's name when the Belgian army capitulated.

Machines Not Manpower Needed by Great Britain Says Bishop of Paris

Kansas City, Oct. 12 (AP).—The war is coming at the United States so fast that there is no choice in the matter, Rt. Rev. Frederick W. Beekman, Episcopal Bishop of Paris, said in an interview here today. "The axis powers will have us in it, whether we like it or not."

Bishop Beekman, who fled from Paris just before the entry of German forces, said his concern was not fear of actual axis invasion of America, but that defeat of Great Britain would bring economic disaster to the United States.

"It isn't a question of England needing us, we need Engand. If England should fall to Hitler, Americans would see the most terrible panic in its history. There wouldn't be a market for new motor cars at $50 each."

He said Britain does not need United States troops.

"They've got all the manpower they need," he said. "What they need is more of every mechanical device possible. Britain needs ten times the number of airplanes, destroyers, tanks, munitions and arms we are supplying them now.

"There is no sense in keeping everything here for our own army. We must keep Britain fighting. She is our first line of defence."

R. C. A. Gunners in Britain Ready To Unloose Death Barrage on Enemy

By ROSS MUNRO
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Somewhere in England, Oct. 12, (CP).—In strategic British defence line positions, Royal Canadian Artillery Gunners manning super-heavy coastal defence batteries and in cooperation with similar British batteries are ready to unloose a death barrage if German troops attempt to land on the shores of Great Britain.

This is a new and vital job for the R.C.A. The unit is composed of officers and men chosen from artillery regiments of the 1st Division and given special instruction on handling these British guns of the heaviest calibre. Nearly every section of Canada is represented in the new unit.

The new job for the R.C.A. was disclosed when newspapermen visited a Canadian battery commanded by Major W. C. Thackeray, Ottawa. They watched the gun crews work on a massive artillery piece.

Between air raid alarms Capt. P. S. C. McMillan of Kingston and Lieut. D. D. Harper of Saint John, N.B., ordered the men to "uncover our baby."

Grimy gunners with clock-work precision threw off a huge tarpaulin, peeled back the camouflage and revealed one of the most potent guns in the United Kingdom.

A 12-man gun crew stripped it for action, elevated the huge barrel into firing position and carried out the intricate movements involved in firing cumbersome shells which defend Britain's coasts and beaches.

Ready At All Times

The Canadians haven't fired at a real objective yet, but are ready at all times for any threat.

The gun is "mighty accurate," said Lieut. McMillan.

Troop Sgt.-Maj. J. A. Whitaker who said he is from "Vancouver, sir, God's country," declared "It is simple to operate and as easy to handle as a field gun."

The Canadians have been working on the guns for a month. Some of the best gunners in the 1st Division were selected for the job. The R. C. A. will contribute more gunners later to this unit. The move emphasizes the reliance the British army is placing on Canadian military efficiency and the competent manner in which the two are co-ordinating their efforts.

Exceptional camouflage has been developed to conceal the guns, Sgt. Earl T. McLeod, Charlottetown, claiming that it is better than that used by Imperial batteries.

The guns have not been spotted by enemy aircraft despite numerous raids over the sea.

The brightest spot to the men who are keen about their work is the food. They call the cook, Pte. Stan Pont of Toronto, who used to cook in a restaurant near the Maple Leaf Gardens, "the best kitchen man in the army."

20,000 Tons Shipping Sunk by Enemy In Week Ending Oct. 11

(By The Canadian Press)

One British, one Swedish, one Italian and two neutral ships, totalling some 20,000 tons, were reported from neutral sources as sunk due to war action in the week ending Oct. 11.

Most sinkings are not made public individually, however, in accordance with the British Admiralty's policy of publishing only weekly totals. In addition to the week's known sinkings, the 6,472-ton British vessel British General was reported torpedoed, but it is not known whether she subsequently sank.

The Admiralty's summary for the week ending Sept. 30 showed 10 British, one neutral and four Allied vessels sunk during the period, the tonnage totalling 72,337 tons, which is about 20,000 tons above the weekly average since the start of the war.

Effects of Bombings Felt in Hollywood

Hollywood, Oct. 12 —(AP) The effect of German bombings over Great Britain is being felt in the movie colony.

Ida Lupino received word from her father, Stanley, well-known on the English stage, that the family home is one of two in their block remaining standing and that he had suffered a hand injury while serving as an air raid warden.

Actor John Loder learned by cable of the death of his sister, Mrs. Redmond McGrath, during a German raid at Kent.

Madeleine Carroll's sister, Marguerite, was killed earlier this week.

PAMPHLET SAYS WILLKIE IS OF GERMAN ORIGIN

Director of Democrats-for-Willkie Terms Pamphlet "False and Malicious"

SERVED IN ARMY

New York, Oct. 12 (AP).—Alan Valentine, director of the National Committee of Democrats-for-Willkie, charged today that a pamphlet headed "Democratic Campaign Facts—1940" is being circulated to call attention to Wendell Willkie's "German ancestry".

The document issued under the further heading of "Speakers Bureau, Colored Division., Hotel Biltmore, New York," Valentine charged, is being furnished "to Roosevelt campaign workers for the purpose of circulation . . . false and malicious charges."

When his attention was directed to the material yesterday, Gregory Coleman, press representative of Democratic National Chairman Edward J. Flynn, said he had not seen it. Later he confirmed that it was being distributed by the colored division of the Democratic National Committee.

In a statement, Valentine quoted from the pamphlet in part as follows:

"Wendell Willkie's father was born in Germany. Willkie's grandfather was born in Germany. Willkie's mother's parents were born in Germany. Willkie's wife was born in Kentucky of German parentage. His whole background is German."

Valentine quoted another paragraph which said:

HANSON CHARGES DIRECT REVERSAL BY PREMIER KING

Conservative Leader Says Prime Minister Changed Mind on Air Training Scheme

NOTHING IN PAPERS

Air Minister Power in Statement Charges Mr. Hanson Betrayed 'a Secret'

Charlottetown, Oct. 12 (CP)—Charging Prime Minister Mackenzie King with a direct reversal of his 1938 "refusal" to have 10,000 British airmen trained in Canada, Conservative leader R. B. Hanson claims Canada is now accepting this number of trainees wholly apart from the Commonwealth Air Training scheme.

In making the purported disclosure to a Conservative meeting last night, Mr. Hanson said he did so at the risk of internment. "I may be interned for it, but I know it is true," he told the Queen's County Conservative Association at its annual meeting.

"Three hundred of these young British trainees are in Kingston (Ont.) now," he declared. But the newspapers, in a censorship directive, had been warned "not to mention this fact."

SAYS PLAN FOILED IN FRENCH GUIANA

Gen. de Gaulle's Headquarters Reports That Official Averted Attempt by Vichy Frenchmen

London, Oct. 12.—(CP)— Gen. Charles De Gaulle's headquarters broadcast today an announcement than an official in French Guiana had averted an attempt by Vichy Frenchmen to seize the Government of the South American Colony.

The Broadcast said the French steamship Quercy arrived at Cayenne, the capital, from nearby Martinique, September 29, at the same time a German mission was reported to have reached the Brazil-Guiana border.

"The men of Vichy drew up a list of charges and announced their intention of deporting patriots (soldiers and officials) to Devil's Island", the broadcast said.

"Courageous action of a councillor—today menaced by reprisals—seems to have prevented this reprehensible action. But for how long? . . . Germans are always at the gates of the colony."

PRODUCTION OF HELMETS TO BE LIMITED

London, (CP)—The Ministry of Supply today prohibited the production of steel helméts except under licence. The armed forces and defence industry workers are to be supplied before the helmets may be offered for sale to the public.

Collision Between Fire Trucks Also Damages Three Other Cars

Welland, Ont., Oct. 12 (CP)—Fire prevention week in Welland ended last night with two fires causing approximately $18,000 damage and a collision between two fire department trucks which put them out of commission and damaged three privately-owned automobiles.

While racing to a garage blaze the hook and ladder truck was rammed by the pumper truck, coming out of a side street. The hook and ladder vehicle crashed into a car owned by T. E. Eaves. Eaves' car landed against the auto of T. E. Blacklock which in turn rammed a machine owned by R. E. Slaughter. Both fire trucks were damaged and were towed back to the fire hall. Truck drivers Cutler and MacDonald were badly shaken and firemen George Shook suffered a torn arm ligaments and shock.

Fire which broke out in the garage and adjacent dwelling owned by John Bubanko caused estimated damage of $2,000. The dwelling, occupied by the Worden family and others was badly scorched. The Worden children were led to safety by a relative who was attending the family in the parents' absence.

A baby sleeping upstairs, was forgotten. When some one recalled its presence in the building a quick trip was made to rescue the child.

Earlier fire broke out at a ladies' wear shop owned by William Kassirer, where smoke and water ruined stock valued at $16,000. The fire was thought to have started in the office at the rear. Firemen had to don masks to enter. The stock was not insured.

British Subjects Hastily Preparing To Leave City

Nazis' Coming Draws Attention to Possible New Moves by Axis Powers in Balkans

Bucharest, Oct. 12—(AP)—Germany's drive to the east took form today with the arrival of truckloads of German soldiers with fixed bayonets, giving observers the impression of Nazi occupation of this Rumanian capital.

These packed vehicles, escorted by smaller cars containing officers carried Hitler's swastika banners through Bucharest streets at noon while squadrons of planes, some with German markings, swept back and forth above the city.

British subjects who had remained here despite worsening relations between London and Bucharest were busily engaged in packing and leaving.

German flags were unfurled at hotels to honor the arrival of the German troops, which made German military penetration of Rumania an established fact after a week of conflicting reports.

The Nazis' coming drew attention to possible new moves by the Rome-Berlin axis in southeastern Europe.

The sight of German bayonets flashing in the sun followed Turkey's declaration that 2,000,000 of her own bayonets would block any axis attempt to advance in her direction into the near east.

A final diplomatic break between Great Britain and Rumania was considered inevitable.

Formal Break Near

London's action in ordering British Nationals to leave Rumania and the freezing of Rumanian credits in the United Kingdom strengthened the belief that a formal break was near.

(It was announced in London that relations have reached a "critical point.")

The exodus of British subjects—ordered by London after at least 150 airplanes marked with German, Italian and Rumanian insignia flew low over the British Legation—continues apace. The British Colony numbered about 400 a week ago. All the Britons, except five, including a Canadian, held on oil field sabotage charges, and a handful of the Legation staff, are expected to be gone by Monday night.

The Canadian held is John R. Treacy, native of Chatham, Ont. His wife, also detained, was released last week end.

PRODUCTION DELAYED

Toronto, (CP)—Production of 1941 Ontario motor markers is being slightly delayed due to a shortage of sheet steel, officials of the Provincial Secretary's Department said today. The markers, however, will be ready for issuance about Dec. 1. Steel mills are giving priority to the material to war orders, resulting in the work at the Ontario Reformatory being delayed but officials insist there will be sufficient material provided to complete the markers on time.

The Georgia Nut Shop, 229 Front Street, advertised a Saturday special in yesterday's paper and the price in the advertisement appeared in error. The advertisement should have read mixed fancy nuts 29 cents per half pound.

TWO OBJECTORS IN DIVISION "C"

Two conscientious objectors were among the 2,250 men of the 21-age group who were called up for military training in Division "C" the divisional offices reported, according to a story in the Kingston Whig Standard.

The men, who were both members of the outlawed Jehovah's Witnesses, informed military authorities at Brockville and Peterboro that they would not undergo military training. It was not known in Kingston what disposition was made of their cases. According to National War Services regulations, objections to military training should have been made within twelve days after the proclamation was issued last September 13.

The largest number of postponements of training were granted farm boys who asked for a month's delay so they could assist in the fall farm work.

TRAINED MEN WANTED BY ARMY

Local young men with training will be afforded an opportunity to get into the C.A.S.F. immediately with a possible chance of action overseas according to the announcement that the 1st Canadian Survey Regiment, Royal Canadian Artillery, C.A.S.F. were, looking for recruits.

All applicants must be between the ages of 19 and 45 and physically fit. Applicants should have had a good mathematical education with a working knowledge of trigonometry and logarithms. The largest demand is for surveyors and while practical experience in computing and draughting would be an advantage it is not altogether essential. Radio, telephone and power line experience is also desirable.

There is also an opening for trained mechanics, motorcyclists, cooks, cabinet makers and stenographers.

All interested should apply at the 34th Field Battery Headquarters at Belleville at 1:00 p.m. on Tuesday, Oct. 15, when Lieut. E. E. Campbell of the 1st Canadian Survey Regiment, R.C.A., C.A.S.F., will be on hand to interview possible recruits.

FARMER INJURED WHILE REPAIRING ENSILAGE CUTTER

John McGrath, 54-year-old Marlbank farmer is in hospital in a serious condition following an accident while cutting corn at his home. He suffered fractured ribs, facial lacerations and internal injuries. McGrath is believed to have unlocked the hood of an ensilage cutter to free a blocked blower pipe. As he unfastened the bolt, with the machine still running, the cutter and blower head flew out striking him. Hospital authorities stated his condition was slightly improved.

NEW BAND MARCH COMPOSITION BY REG. HINCHEY HEARD ON AIR

The stirring tempos of the "Argyll Light Infantry" March, dedicated to the officers and men of Belleville's infantry militia unit, by its composer, Mr. E. Reg. Hinchey, thrilled a number of radio enthusiasts here Friday night as the melodic strains came over the air for the first time from Station CBL.

The new composition was launched on its musical career by the Toronto Symphony Band, famous Toronto organisation, which under the baton of Conductor Laidlaw Addison is rapidly making a name for itself in music circles of the Dominion. Mr. Addison is well known in Belleville and surrounding districts as a conductor of outstanding merit. He is an ex-member of the famous Belleville Kilties Band.

Mr. Hinchey composed the new march at his home. It is one of the many compositions and arrangements that have come from the pen of Belleville's outstanding composer who established a record this year with a large number of scores played on the air.

BASS AND PICKEREL REPORTED BITING WELL

Disappointed, perhaps, in newspaper and other reports that they have more or less let the boys down during the regular fishing season, bass and pickerel in district waters are showing a marked tendency to take the bait of eleventh-hour sportsmen.

A group of Church Street fishermen tried their luck in the waters of the bay near here Friday and came back with glowing reports of the ravenous appetites of the black bass. And to substantiate their stories, they brought with them a "bagful" of the fighting fish. "Never saw 'em bite before like they did Friday" was the party's comment.

Meanwhile in the Trent River, old man pickerel went on a bait-biting spree. Edgar Foster, of this city tried his luck and the catch consisted of two fine specimens that tipped the scales at 4 3-4 pounds each.

COUNTY PURCHASES CARLOAD SNOWFENCE

First signs of winter—the Roads and Bridges Committee of Hastings County Council Friday authorized the purchase of one carload of snow fence, and 800 steel posts. This amount will augment that already owned by the committee and it is felt will be sufficient for the needs of the county.

A carload approximates 12,000 feet of fence. Last winter severe snowstorms, which filled county and township roads, made traffic well nigh impassable in some districts, and members of the committee at their regular meeting yesterday decided to be forearmed as well as forewarned.

Fresh Hope in The Dying Forest

October and the falling leaves,
  My refuge and my peace.
Into the forest I must flee
  For there I can release
The sorrows in my breast that lie
  Unto the loving trees.

Around, above me, and beneath,
  And rustling where I tread,
Two kinds of leaves encompass me—
  The living and the dead.
In death's domain I free my soul
  And can escape from grief?

Let not these words perplex the mind,
  The answer I will give—
In darkest dungeons of distress
  The soul resolves to live.
So in the tumult of a war
  The heart a peace can find.

School Children Given Practical Demonstration of Extinguishing Fires

Prizes Are Also Awarded to Winners of Essay-Writing Contest

LECTURES GIVEN

"Belleville is practically free of fire hazards. We found everything in splendid condition and in very few instances was it necessary to recommend the removal of any condition which might be considered as a fire hazard," reported the Belleville Fire Department at the conclusion of an extensive seven-day general inspection of business blocks, factories, residences and public buildings. The inspection, just concluded, entailed a complete checkup on all fire escapes, emergency fire-fighting equipment as well as a general inspection of attics, basements and other premises, and was one of the items on the program for the observance of Fire Prevention Week, held during the past six days.

In addition to the general inspection of premises which only was completed this morning, the observance of Fire Prevention Week in Belleville included practice and test runs through the city streets by the Fire Department, the showing of trailers on fire prevention at all local theatres and also, the staging of fire drills and lessons in actual fire-fighting in all public schools.

All children in public schools were given a first-hand opportunity to learn the approved methods of fire-fighting when actual fires were built on the school premises and the children, under the guidance of firemen, were requested to extinguish the flames. Old boxes, barrels and paper were piled in open school yards and set ablaze, then a boy and girl from each of the schools were chosen and shown the proper method of using the regulation fire extinguisher, which is hung in all schools, to put out the blaze.

Cash Prizes

Talks on the prevention of fire by teachers and visiting firemen also served to bring the observance of Fire Prevention Week more vividly into the minds of the children, while, to add to their interest, each child was invited to enter an essay-writing contest, the subject being "Fire Prevention". Substantial cash prizes were offered for the best essays in both the Senior and Junior grades in each of the five public schools and so popular did the contest prove that over 600 pupils wrote essays.

The prizes for the children were made possible by the donation of $25 from the Kiwanis Club, $10 from the City of Belleville and a small donation from Mr. L. G. Fozard, who acted as one of the judges. Additional prizes of theatre passes to the McCarthy Theatre were presented by Mr. J. C. McCarthy. A few of the prize-winning essays proved so interesting and were so exceptionally well done that they will be forwarded to the Ontario Fire Marshal, Mr. W. J. Scott, for his approval.

The interest shown in the observance of Fire Prevention Week by local school children was especially encouraging stated Fire Chief Wm. Lynch, Friday evening, and such interest was only made possible through the fine work of the teachers. We wish to thank the principals as well as the teachers for their splendid co-operation which was reflected in the interest of the children in Fire Prevention Week," stated Mr. Lynch.

Winners of Contest

Winners of the essay-writing contest staged in the public schools are as follows: Queen Victoria School—Senior, Violet Noakes, Rose McCaw; Junior, Mary Ann Ristow, Gerald Mumby. Queen Alexandra School—Senior, Mary Locke, Fay Campbell; Junior, Grace Graham, Betty Snare. Queen Mary School—Senior, Norah Ellis, Betty Buker; Junior, Everett Rushnell, Katherine Mills. Prince of Wales' School—Senior, Gloria Morris and Ethel Hedger (tied).

The judges of the essays were, Mr. L. G. Fozard and Mr. H. C. Argue, Fire Adjusters.

Police Blotter

Leaving his automobile parked at the upper end of Front Street for a matter of moments, Cecil Jones, of this city, returned to the scene of his previously parked vehicle to find the machine had been stolen shortly after 1.00 a.m. today. Jones notified the police and four hours later P.O. Evans found the vehicle abandoned on West Moira Street. Joy riders are believed to have been responsible.

Detective Fred Izard recovered a number of decoy ducks, the property of Charles Hilton, Catherine Street, which had been stolen from his summer cottage on the Trent Road earlier in the week. The wooden decoys were found in the possession of two juvenile lads, who insisted they had "found" them abandoned along the bay shore.

James Benham, Trenton, sustained minor injuries in a motor accident on Highway No. 2 eight miles west of Belleville early today. Benham was taken to the Belleville General Hospital, where X-rays disclosed no fractures had resulted. Dr. G. S. Cronk was in attendance.

A lone inebriate shared the cell block along with three transients at the police station last night.

TRENT RD. RESIDENT INJURED BY CAR

Hastening across Highway No. 2 near the Ontario School for the Deaf, Charles Bonisteel, 57, of Trenton R. R. No. 7, ran in front of an automobile driven by Lester Cox, Trenton and was knocked down sustaining leg and facial injuries Friday evening. Mr. Bonisteel was taken to the Belleville General Hospital where he was treated by Dr. R. A. Flynn. Bonisteel's car was parked on the south side of the highway as the result of a flat tire. He crossed the road to procure an automobile jack from William Vassau and was returning to fix the tire when he walked into the path of Mr Cox.'s east bound motor car. Motorcycle Patrolman J. J. Hatch investigated.

EVERY CONQUEST BRINGS HITLER'S DEFEAT NEARER

This Message Given to British People by Member of Parliament

REASONS GIVEN

London, Oct. 12 (CP)—Hitler's conquest of Europe is only serving to make his ultimate downfall more certain, Philip Noel Baker, member of parliament and writer and lecturer on foreign affairs, said Friday in a talk on the British Broadcasting Corporation's "Britain Speaks" feature.

"Every conquest brings Hitler's defeat nearer, because of the feeling aroused among once-free people whom he has conquered," he said. "Now we have 100,000,000 Allies in Europe who are only waiting for their time to come."

Baker quoted sources from the continent as saying that German soldiers' morale is low. The sources say the soldiers have lost the brief elation which followed their victory over France, and now have become almost defeatist in attitude since they do not believe an invasion of Britain is possible.

"We have often been alone in this titanic struggle but we have never been dismayed," Baker said, recalling Prime Minister Churchill's determination to fight on alone after France collapsed.

He added that being alone in the war has even proved good for Britain at times since tempo of production and other phases of the war effort has been speeded up since the loss of France as an ally.

REINDEER HERDS ALMOST DOUBLED

Eskimos Adapt Themselves to Staying in One Place to Look After Animals

Ottawa, Oct. 12—(CP)—The most disturbing question of the past five years in Canada's western Arctic—whether Eskimos would settle down to be reindeer herders—has been happily answered in the affirmative.

When the Dominion Government first decided to start a reindeer herd in the Mackenzie delta, on the Arctic coast line near Aklavik, it gambled on whether Eskimos accustomed to roaming about from place to place in search of good hunting and fishing would adapt themselves to staying on one district to care for reindeer.

In 1935 after a hazardous three-year trek from Alaska a herd of 2,370 reindeer reached the delta. Since then the herd, under government supervision has more than doubled. Object of the undertaking was to provide food and clothing for the natives when hunting and fishing was poor.

The Mines and Resources Department, responsible for management of the Northwest Territories and care of the natives, appreciated that if the reindeer plan was to be an economic success, the natives themselves would have to look after herds as it was too expensive keeping white herders and administrators in the northland.

Trained as Herder

In December, 1938, a herd of 950 deer was handed over to Charlie Rufus, a full-blooded native whose father is a responsible man, owning a schooner. After almost two years word reached the department this week telling how Charlie got on with his herd. He now has 1,559 deer including 448 fawns. They were counted in a round-up just completed.

Charlie had been trained as a herder with the main herd so he was well acquainted with his duties. In the meantime several other natives have been trained and a second herd will be turned over to them.

Charlie had the assistance of his father and other relatives in watching his herd. The watch has to be constant so the deer will not become lost or run away with caribou. Charlie's range is 150 miles east of Aklavik and the new herd will be given a range far enough away that the herds will not become mixed.

CANADA MUST BUILD, MAINTAIN ADEQUATE FORCES

Navy Minister Macdonald Says They Should be 'Commensurate With Our Dignity as Nation'

Vancouver, Oct. 12 (CP)—Canada must build and maintain land, sea and air forces "commensurate with our dignity as a nation," Navy Minister Macdonald said here Thur. night in an impromptu address to members of the Army and Navy Veterans of Canada Association.

Mr. Macdonald, who arrived here by plane for a tour of west coast naval defences, was presented with a life membership in the veterans' group, and made an address to group of 150 members.

"While the new Canadian-United States Defence Board is an excellent thing, we all know that the United States is not going to defend us unless we do our part," he said. "We must build and maintain land, sea and air forces commensurate with our dignity as a nation."

"I don't predict a short war," he added. "Rather I look to a long war, but I foresee victory. As for the Italian navy, we'll whip it too—when we catch it."

District Potato Crop Compares Favorably With Other Years

The potato crop in this district will compare favorably if not better than those of the immediately preceding seasons, according to Mr. C. F. Bishop, who recently completed a survey of the fields in preparation for Spring buying.

"The quality of the potatoes is exceptionally good this year, with specimens being smooth and firm and so far devoid of any signs of blight," he said.

Yields per acre are exceptionally high in the districts he visited, Mr. Bishop stated. Substantiating reports of a good harvest is the fact that a large number of farmers and growers have large stocks of potatoes for sale.

The signs of blight which affected crops in the low-lying distrits earlier in the season have disappeared and thus far no indications of the disease affecting the late varieties have been noticed.

Indications that a heavy yield is being experienced in Peterborough county are seen in the crop of W. J. Arthur Fair, in North Monaghan township, whose 25 acres of "Katahdins" are averaging 150 bags each. Twenty-two of the twenty-five acres have been approved by government officials as certified seed. Mr. Fair used 500 pounds of fertilizer.

An open invitation is extended to all dairymen, including proprietors of cheese factories and creameries, cheese makers and butter makers, farmers, and the dairy industry in general to attend the school on this date.

Further announcement will be made near the time for the opening ceremonies, the officials stated.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Harmful poisons go into the body, and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't always get at the cause. You need something that works on the liver as well. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile fl[illegible] freely and make you feel "up and up". [illegible]less and gentle, they make the bile f[illegible]ly. They do the work of calomel but ha[illegible] calomel or mercury in them. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name! Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

NURSE HEROINE WENT TO DEATH OCT. 12, 1915

Edith Cavell Faced German Firing Squad 25 Years Ago After Trial by Military Court in Brussels

By H. H. GORDON

Canadian Press Staff Writer

On the scroll of the world's heroines the story of Edith Louisa Cavell adds a golden lustre to the record of British womanhood's bravery and sacrifice. Twenty-five years ago today the gracious English nurse died a martyr's death at Brussels—shot by a German firing squad.

Today Nazi bombs rain on the countryside where Edith Cavell's body lies enshrined in Norwich Cathedral. It was brought back from Belgium in 1919 and interred there after a memorial service in Westminster Abbey. Near London's Trafalgar Square a statue stands as an enduring memorial and, at the same time, a reminder of one of the world-shocking incidents of the First Great War.

Edith Cavell, then 50 years old, went unflinchingly to her death Oct. 12, 1915, after being found guilty by a German military court of aiding more than 100 British, French and Belgian soldiers to escape from Belgian in the first year of the war.

In no sense was she a spy and all her activities sprang from a desire to help the distressed and injured. Her execution has been described in many quarters as "julicial murder" and, even if legally justifiable according to German military standards, it was nevertheless a blunder.

Political considerations may have figured in the German court's decision. Against deference to her sex and allowance for humane motives, her judges may have weighed a demand for a severe sentence to assure obedience of the Belgian population.

Cared For Wounded

As head of the Birkendael medical institute in Brussels, Miss Cavell led a band of nurses and others in caring for German wounded as well as soldiers of the Allies. Included were a number of British and French soldiers stranded in Belgium when they were cut off from their units in the 1914 retreat.

Suspicion fastened on the Englishwoman when Allied soldiers were successfully spirited out of the country into Holland. On Aug. 5, 1915, she was arrested and placed in solitary confinement in St. Gilles prison.

Nine weeks later Miss Cavell was one of 36 prisoners arraigned before a military tribunal. The proceedings were conducted in German though a French interpreter was provided. The English nurse was defended by Sadi Kirschen of the Brussels bar. His defence was hindered by the fact that he had not been able to see Miss Cavell before the trial and was not allowed to inspect documents.

The prosecution appears to have had no evidence that she had succeeded in enabling military refugees to reach Britain, but her admission at the trial that she had received letters of thanks from repatriated men was made much of.

The interval between the imposition of the death sentence, Oct. 11, and her execution the following morning found United States Minister Brand Whitlock and the Spanish minister active in Miss Cavell's behalf. They pleaded vigorously for her life before German officials.

Baron von Lancken, civil governor of Belgium, and General von Sauberzweig, military governor of Brussels, proved adamant. It was General von Sauberzweig who gave the order that "in the interests of the state" the execution of the death penalty should be carried out immediately.

Visited by Clergyman

The United States minister succeeded in obtaining permission for Rev. H. S. T. Gahan, chaplain of Christ Church, Brussels, to visit Miss Cavell before the end. It was in a talk with her after he had given her Holy Communion that the brave woman made the remark, "patriotism is not enough"—words that rang around the world. She faced the firing squad with the same dignity and fortitude that marked her deportment throughout the long imprisonment and trial.

Reared in the quiet atmosphere of a Norfolk vicarage, there was nothing in her early life to portend the event that only intensified previous reports of German ruthlessness. Edith Cavell was the daughter of Rev. Frederick Cavell, vicar of Swardeston and his wife, Louisa Sophia Walming.

After graduating as a nurse she held various positions in England and in 1906 went to Brussels to assist in establishing a modern training school for nurses. A year later she was appointed the first matron of the Birkendael institute, the success of which soon made it of national importance. Miss Cavell was in charge of the institute when the Germans overran Belgium. They gave her permission to continue her work and the institute became a Red Cross Hospital.

MAY HAVE TO AMPUTATE

Brockville, Ont., Oct. 12 (CP)—Gnr. W. W. Marshall, serving overseas with a Canadian artillery unit in Engaind, was admitted to Military Hospital in England recently suffering from severe leg injuries, according to a letter he sent his mother, Mrs. William Marshall. The letter said one leg may have to be amputated, Mrs. Marshall said yesterday.

"Hitler Can't Frighten us; We'll Smash Him to Pieces"

Skipper of Naval Drifter Writes Letter of Appreciation to Bonarlaw Resident

The young Scottish skipper of His Majesty's Drifter. . . . . .on duty has written a letter of appreciation to Mrs. Kenneth Bain, Bonarlaw, Ontario, for several pairs of socks knit by her. Mrs. Bain enclosed a note in one of the articles and the letter below is the reply.

Dear Mrs. Bain:

I now take the pleasure of thanking you for the lovely socks I received from you yesterday. We were in only 2 hours when the parcel came aboard. I shared it with my crew of 8 and looking mine over I found the note you put in; It being the only note received, I felt proud at it being in mine, so I feel it my duty to reply. I wonder if you are Scottish the same as myself. There are quite a few names the same as yours around my home town in the North East of Scotland.

I belong to the fishing town of . . . . .and am skipper on one of the drifters now on Admiralty Service.

I expect you will be wondering how we are getting on in the Old Country. In the first place we are all getting plenty of food and there isn't a shortage of anything so far. As a precaution we are rationed in some things but with careful handling our ration is enough.

There has been quite a lot of air raids lately over a wide area but mainly on the big cities.

I admit he has done some damage in London but very little elsewhere of any consequence. In one of the raids in the North East of Scotland two bombs were dropped only a stones throw from my own home.

If Hitler thinks that is going to frighten the people of this country he is far mistaken. Every bomb he drops on helpless women and children only makes us all the more determined to see him smashed to pieces.

I honestly believe that will not be long as he is getting desperate of getting a lightning victory which is on the wane. He is losing far too many planes and men for him to stand out any length of time and his food problem must be getting serious.

I sincerely hope it will soon be over to let us all back home to our loved ones and friends. I will now close hoping to hear from you in the near future.

Inquest Ordered In Pickering Death

Toronto, Oct. 12 (CP)—Attorney-General Conant Friday ordered an inquest to be held by Dr. Smirle Lawson, supervising coroner for Ontario, into the death of Miss Vida McMurtry, 33, of Pickering, on Oct. 2nd.

The order followed a conference of Senior Law officers call Friday by Mr. Conant. The conference considered a report on the case by Inspector W. H. Lougheed of the Ontario Provincial Police. The fact that the body had been cremated in Toronto was disclosed after it was proposed by the authorities to exhume it.

In announcing the order for an inquest, Mr. Conant said that the facts disclosed in Inspector Lougheed's report were not considered to "indicate criminal responsibility on the part of any person."

There were, however, some circumstances which should be explained to clear up any possible doubt in connection with the death, he added.

Canadian Wheat Will Not be Sent To Conquered Countries

London, Oct. 12.—(CP)—Hon. James G. Gardiner, Canadian Minister of Agriculture, said in a broadcast interview last night that Canada cannot let conquered European countries have Canadian wheat while Hitler is in control of Europe. He was interviewed by J. B. McGeachy, Canadian newspaperman, on the British Broadcasting Corporation's "Radio Newsreel" feature.

"In addition to Britain, other markets need our wheat," the Minister said, "but we cannot let them have it while Hitler is in control of Europe". He said the countries affected are France, Holland, Belgium and Norway.

"However, when we have driven Hitler out of the channel ports and the conquered countsies, and Britain can lift the blockade, Canada will be able to dispose of her carry over and normal production in a few seasons", he predicted.

Speaking of the problem of disposal of Canadian Wheat, Mr. Gardiner said Britain, Canada's Chief wheat buyer, had bought an increasing amount of Canadian wheat in the past few months.

"We are concerned that Britain gets enough wheat for her people', he declared, "but we are not asking her to buy more than she needs".

The Canadian wheat problem at present was one of financing, he said. Canada was not asking Britain to help with that, but discussions were under way on a suggestion that Britain should undertake to buy future supplies from Canada as needed, at a price level fair to the farmer as well as to Britain.

Dr. J. W. Dafoe to Speak On 'Let's Face the Facts'

Next Sunday night's speaker on the Director of Public Information's radio programme, "Let's Face The Facts" will be John W. Dafoe, Editor-in-Chief of the Winnipeg Free Press. Dr. Dafoe will be heard over a national network of the C.B.C. at 8:30 o'clock, Eastern Daylight Saving Time.

Dr. Dafoe is Canada's most distinguished newspaperman. He has grown up with the Dominion and he has been a leader in its progress. He was born in a log cabin on the shore of Lake Madawaska, midway between the Ottawa Valley and the Bay of Quinte in 1866. His parents were United Empire Loyalists who had trekked to Madawaska by ox cart and hewed a home out of the wilderness. When he was ten years old, the little log school-house had given him all it could teach and he took his first job in Renfrew. A few years later he began his journalistic career on the Montreal Star. In 1884 he was a member of the Parliamentary Press Gallery in Ottawa and five years later he was editing the Ottawa Journal. He went to Winnipeg in 1902 to edit the Winnipeg Free Press and to build both the reputation of that paper and his own.

During the ensuing 38 years Dr. Dafoe has played an ever greater part in Canadian and world affairs. He is regarded as one of the foremost authorities in the English-speaking world on international affairs.

THANKSGIVING IN TIME OF WAR

Thanksgiving which is a settled official holiday in the New World, satisfies a human sense which has been felt all through the ages and which has been demonstrated in the harvest festivals and church services in many parts of the world for centuries. It is the natural expression of the human heart in gratitude for blessings which man's labor using the gifts of nature through a beneficent Providence has been able to harvest and to reap for the year.

The harvest festival, the thanksgiving for the bounty of the growing season which has come to an end, is particularly fitting at this hour. Back beyond the produce and the riches of the granaries man sees the benediction of Providence on the Dominion in its rich resources, which furnish the materials out of which man can by his labor and enterprise develop the spirit that makes the individual and the race great. He sees the guiding hand which has bestowed all these blessings and he desires to pay his gratitude to the Giver of all for the wondrous heritage which is that of his native land. At this hour this is realized as the people of Canada see how a sturdy people and a goodly heritage work for the benefit of mankind. As he enjoys the fruits of his labors, he does not forget those other labors, those sacrifices which many young men and older of the Empire and of the Dominion have made and which maintain this heritage and preserve it for the future against the tyranny of the evil forces of German Nazism. So man praises God for the land he lives in, for the possibilities it possesses, for the noble character of the people who under Heaven's guidance have all these gifts and make these sacrifices for the benefit of mankind by the preservation of liberty.

At this hour if there were no official thanksgiving, there would still be thanksgiving in the hearts of Canadians as there is in the Motherland that the autumn has come and that Britain in her island fortress, the centre of the British race, has resisted the German forces with such success.

Through unity and devotion, through sacrifice and leadership, and through the ability to endure and fight the sinister powers which are arrayed against her by Hitler and Mussolini, she has, in the opinion of many, for this season or year successfully beaten back the enemy and so achieved one of the greatest victories—that of the Battle of Britain. At this time Britons everywhere are pouring out the gratitude of their hearts for the confidence in their strength and powers to fight evil.

All these elements merge at this season in the spirit of thanksgiving, though there have been sacrifices which we in Canada do not know because war has not directly touched this country.

As the Dominion sings praise and thanksgiving the nation is stronger as it feels its support in the kindly and beneficent Power which guides life. The people realize that there is a world spirit of good in mankind and that petty dictators and tyrants rise but to fall. Safe are democratic ideals and impulses with man doing his full share as the agent of Heaven to see justice done on the earth.

HIS NAME WILL LIVE AND INSPIRE

Sir Wilfred Grenfell of Labrador has left an imperishable name which has been written in the hearts of men and women, fishermen, Eskimos and Indians on the shores of Labrador. His was the service of medical missions and his training as a physician opened the door to one of the finest humanitarian efforts in history. He was honored for his work and his memorials stand in nursing stations, schools, industries and hospitals.

He possessed the spirit of the lover of his fellowmen. In the far places he found his calling for if ever a man was born to a task it was Dr. Wilfred Grenfell. His work was a great adventure of the human spirit. He found more in the service of the people of the Labrador coasts than others find in so many of the amenities and comforts of life. These latter he surrendered to be with those to whom he could render the greatest service.

The truly good man is never a weak man. Sir Wilfred Grenfell was a good man and a great man.

The rewards which came his way are the rewards which many more should know but unfortunately so many set their gaze on other objectives, other ideals which weigh lightly as compared with those of the man who sacrafices himself in the cause of others. He has won a rich reward in human hearts and satisfaction in his soul that doing what he did he best carried out the ideals of human life and the Christian teaching of brotherly love.

He blazed new trails, opened up new territory but his service for his fellowmen was the greatest pioneering work of which he or any other man can be capable.

GENERAL DE GAULLE WELCOMED

General de Gaulle, leader of the Free French forces, is now in the Cameroons, where he has been welcomed by the people who have expressed their allegiance to the Free French cause.

The place of the French African colonies is of the greatest importance and Gen. de Gaulle has been privileged to play one of the greatest roles any soldier could wish to play—to redeem France from the grip of the Germans and to weld its empire.

The Free French cause was one of the inspirations of the war after the collapse of France. Upon the French General has descended a task calling for the greatest tact and diplomacy and the rarest gifts. Britain has accepted his cause. He has inspired a large following and his efforts will undoubtedly bring vast results.

As the future of the war unfolds, it seems clear there will be the greatest possibilities before the leader who aims to bring back France to her free condition and to drive Nazism into the ground.

The empires of the nations are playing a great role. What the British Empire is doing the people have some conception of. The French Empire is capable of vast developments as are the Dutch and Belgian empires. These will be prominent factors as the war progresses.

Letter to Berlin

People of Berlin,

You, like us, are getting used to being up half the night. According to your official communique yesterday, our bombs in one raid killed ten of you, including some women and little children. Ghastly for you, just as it is ghastly for us when our children are killed. War is a devilish business.

Have you noticed what a different thing human suffering is when it comes to your own doorstep? After all, you didn't seem to worry very much about the Polish children who were blown to bits in Warsaw. You had no qualms about the unoffending Dutch, upon whose heads your fire and steel rained in Rotterdam. You had no compassion for the weary, homeless refugees whom you machine-gunned in Belgium and France. You lost no sleep over the guiltless civilians who went down when your torpedo struck the Athenia. You had no pity—some of you, at any rate—for the Jews who were tortured in your concentration camps. You just shrugged your shoulders and said, "The Fuehrer is right," as you have said over and over again in your blindness. The wretchedness of all these people did not move you. It was remote from you.

• • •

Now things are different. The same hideous suffering that came to your victims—such a long line of victims—is coming to you; and in the weeks and months ahead will grow and grow until at last you find it unbearable. No bombs are aimed deliberately at civilians, but civilians are bound to suffer. It gives us no joy to inflict that suffering. We have never believed, as your Fuehrer believes, that war is a great adventure and the natural goal of human effort. We are not hypocritical when we say that we loathe it in our souls—as, indeed, many of you must do as well.

Yet there it is—you chose war, by acquiescence if not by positive desire, and you must now take the consequences. The bombing, which you ordained, must go on. It must get worse, too—far, far worse for you, as the limitless resources of the British Empire and America are turned into hundreds, thousands, tens of thousands of bombers in factories which are out of your reach.

• • •

But remember, Berliners, as you watch your homes and families being destroyed and the light of your life going out—YOU have the power to end the agony at any moment that you choose. Not by accepting the dishonorable servitude which is the only thing your Fuehrer offers us. Simply by renouncing a Government which has trampled on freedom and decency and human happiness over half the Continent of Europe, and has enthroned tyranny and cruelty as gods.

One day you must come to that decision—as you came to it once before. How long, we wonder, must the world be martyred before your eyes are opened?—From the London News Chronicle.

Nazis Take All French Holdings

This is the first of a series of articles written in the occupied zone of France, by a citizen of a non-belligerent country. Since the writer's home is in France, he We are glad to vouch for his reasks that his name be withheld. sponsibility.—Ed.

Rouen, Oct. 12—(by messenger)—Money is a good subject with which to introduce what is actually happening in France. What people are using for money, what is its purchasing power, its foreign exchange value, its probable future acrobatics? Money is the facet of public policy which most intimately touches the civilian.

Two Kinds

In occupied France we carry two kinds of currency in our jeans: French francs and "occupation" marks. The occupation mark is neither a Reichsmark nor a tourist mark, and is legal tender only in the occupied zone. It has no metal coverage and no worth other than the power of the military authority to impose its acceptance.

Lumbering along with the army of occupation came printing presses on wheels. Notices upon the walls and the voice of the broadcaster informed merchants and hotel keepers that the two-toned brown notes, on stiff crackly paper, were to be accepted at the ratio of one mark to twenty francs. The ambulant presses operate in the provincial cities, grinding out small denomination notes by the million. A finance commissioner regulates their output, so that they shall not drown the market.

I have said that the occupation mark has no metal backing, but, as a matter of reality, neither has the French franc. Since the governor of the Banque de France has become a German, and the gold reserve has been sequestered, the value of the franc is more than shadowy. The above statements apply to currency within the occupied zone, but, before this letter arrives in New York the distribution between "free" and "occupied" France may have disappeared, and all France be on the occupied footing. Already gualeiters (supervisors) function in cities of the free zone, and the frontier between the free zone and Spain is guarded by German troops.

Worthless Notes

With occupation marks, the military who control France pay themselves the equivalent of 40 francs a day, which is exactly 50 times what French soldiers on active duty receive. With occupation marks, supplies are purchased for the upkeep of the garrisons. With these worthless notes, the shelves of stores are being stripped. Merchants of antiques, jewelry, kodaks, radios, linen and women's costumes, shoes, are obliged to keep their shops open for business, even though the stocks disappear and no replacements are in sight. On an average, one store in three is empty, and stands with shutters closed. Butter, eggs, meat, grain are purchased in carload lots, before the stuff can arrive at the Paris market. Trains are re-routed direct to beyond the Rhine.

To print money in any volume desired, to be under no obligation to redeem it, and to oblige venders to accept this currency for merchandise of intrinsic value is an invisible form of confiscation. One can call it velvet-glove looting.

The business areas of Tours, Poitiers, Bordeaux, as well as of Paris, are dotted with trucks and trailers bearing the insignia of transport companies of Dresden, Munich, Stuttgart, Hamburg and Berlin. Loaded to the roof, they are transferring the contents of French stores, hotels and civilian households into Germany. Yesterday I saw two trucks backed up before Robert Rothschild's home—the famous Richelieu Palace, at the corner of Place de la Concorde and Rue St. Florentine. Men in field-gray uniforms, like a swarm of bees, were packing the priceless collections. I asked what was going forward. "We are carting this junk away, because we need the place for a soldiers' dormitory." The sides of the trucks were marked Bremen.

Sneaking Way

But it has been the opening of the safe-deposit boxes, and particularly the sneaking way it was done, that has killed the last spark of courage in many a French heart. One of the first acts of the invaders was the announcement that there would be no interference with bank deposits nor with the contents of safe-deposit boxes. The promise was printed in the papers and repeated over the radio in French, English and German. Citizens were urged to leave their cash and valuables undisturbed. People breathed a sigh of reassurance and accepted the promise at its face value. But it was an anesthetic.

The experience of the present writer may be multiplied by tens of thousands. My wife and I had railway bonds, the coupons of which were payable on August 1. On visiting the bank we were told, without warning that access to our deposit box could be allowed only in the presence of a finance comptroller. Three weeks later we were advised to be at the vault the next morning with our keys.

Pasted on the door of my box was a certificate, signed and sealed by the legation of my country, which, though small, has a heroic history and is not at war with Germany. The certificates stated in German and French that the contents of the box were the property of a citizen of a non-belligerent nation, temporarily domiciled in France for purpose of trade. This information did not cause a second's pause on the part of the comptroller. Neither did he know, nor would it have affected him to know, that the contents of that box represented the lifetime savings of the owner, upon which he depended for the education of his children and the support of his old age.

From my box the German removed everything which can be marketed in a foreign currency; stock certificates of Royal Dutch, Rand Mines, Crown Mines, General Motors, General Electric. A jeweler, who weighed and appraised the stones and the gold and platinum in my wife's jewelry, accompanied the examiner. The items were placed in the custody of the bank management until such date as the Reich requires delivery.

Speech Made

The seance finished, and all the boxes rifled, the examiner made a speech. I did not hear well, because of the noise of a Belgian woman who had lost $3,700, everything she possessed.

"What is taking place here today," said the representative of the Reich, "is happening in every banking and safe deposit institution in occupied France. Here is the reason for it. Germany at present is administering France upon the basis of an armistice. Eventually the peace terms will be arranged. Among those terms it is certain that there will be one requiring the vanquished to pay the victor a cash indemnity.

"After the war of 1914-18 there was delay and complaint, both in the fixing and in the collecting of the indemnity which the Allies solicited of Germany. There was a Dawes plan, a Young plan. No plan was successful, Germany could not be made to pay.

"At the close of the actual war," continued the treasury man acidly, "we do not propose to be hampered by delay, excuse-making or concealment of assets. The contents of safety boxes and of the bank deposits in foreign currencies, are being added up. We shall have a pretty clear notion of the liquid capital of this country. It will be safe in our hands before we begin to discuss peace terms. That total sum will be the initial cash payment on the war indemnity which we shall demand of France."

'Call From the Spirit Of a Free People'

(From the Atlanta (Georgia) Constitution of September 22)

Every evening, for five or six hours, programs broadcast by the British Broadcasting Corporation may be heard on the short wave band of the radio.

On those programs all sorts and conditions of Britishers talk across the ether waves to the American continent. J. B. Priestley, noted novelist, has become, through these programs, perhaps the finest war commentator of all. Then there are Leslie Howard, Wickham Steed and various high officers of the air, army and navy services and members of Parliament. There are, too, the simple average people of London and of England. A taxi driver, a gentle-voiced woman from a tiny village, a farmer and a Cockney air raid warden. Just casual people, brought in to describe for Canada and the United States their own experiences, their reactions and their life under bombardment.

There is something vastly reassuring about these broadcasts, to all Americans whose hearts sympathize with Britain and whose spirits strain to help in the great battle for human freedom.

Not that they do not tell the same facts we read in our own newspapers, or hear from the lips of our own radio commentators. Those Britishers are astonishingly frank. They tell of the fearful destruction in London. They describe the discomforts, the nerve strain and the agonies of life in a city-target for blitzkrieg.

But it is more than the words they speak that comes over the ether. It is, perhaps, in the tones of their voices, in the personality that, for good or for evil, most always be heard behind the spoken words of any speaker.

They tell, perhaps unconsciously far more than words can say. For in every breath, in every syllable, is the echo of a spirit, the spirit of Britain. And you know, if you catch that spirit of an unconquered and unconquerable Britain.

Britain Speaks! We tune in our radios and listen. Sometimes there is distortion to the music of their songs or the tone of their words. But there is never distortion to the inner voice that speaks so clarionlike to the inner spirit of us all.

Distance may distort the song but we rejoice as we hear they still can sing. The words of the commentator may, at times, fade, but the courage and the morale that fills all British hearts does not fade, it grows steadily clearer and stronger until, trumpetlike, it calls in challenging tones to us of British blood on this side of the Atlantic.

Britain has spoken many times before to all the world. It has been her voice, through centuries of advancing civilization, that has so often led the way to man. It has been her voice that has called to the marching legions along the difficult road to universal brotherhood and freedom.

But never, in all man's history, has the voice of a nation spoken so compellingly, so gloriously, as now speaks the voice of Britain.

It is a still, small voice that uses no lips nor tongue. It is a voice that sounds clear to all the world. It is a voice that comes on the broadcast of a free spirit. It is the voice that all men worthy of manhood, know. Sometimes it is called the voice of conscience. Sometimes it is the voice of Idealism. Sometimes it is simply the voice of human courage, crying out in the darkness.

From Britain today it is the voice of all these, and more.

It is the voice of indomitable will. It is the voice of freedom. It is the voice of sacrifice. It is, perhaps more than all these, the voice of challenge.

It is the call from the noble spirit of a free people to kindred souls the world over.

Britain Speaks! And he who cannot hear must possess the craven spirit of a slave, can know nothing of the eternal aspiration to freedom that has identified brave men, of all ages, everywhere.

WHY THANKSGIVING?

From the Montrealer.

We felt it was about time we did a topical piece again so we went out to check up on this Thanksgiving business. We discovered nothing new and nothing blue but we stole a little and borrowed a little and here is what we found out.

We found out three facts about why Thanksgiving. The first is that the early Pilgrims (you know, the Mayflower group) didn't like Christmas, or at any rate all the frivolities that went with it. The second is that back in England they had, along with everyone else, celebrated the harvest home festival whenever the harvest was in. And the third was that crops were bad in 1621 and canny Governor Bradford, noticing that people were going around looking pretty down in the mouth, decided that a good party wouldn't hurt anyone and sent four men out to shoot some wild fowl for a feast so that they all might "after a more special manner rejoice together". So now you know how Thanksgiving came about, why it is held in the Fall and why turkey plays such a traditionally prominent part.

Celebrating the feast of Thanksgiving was confined pretty well to the descendants of those Pilgrims and the New England States until Abraham Lincoln, in 1863 or 1864 recommended that it be celebrated each year on the last Thursday in November, all over the States. Since that time it has been celebrated on that date until That Man in the White House juggled the dates around last year, leading the New Yorker to print a cartoon showing a highly enthusiastic poultryman, his store overflowing with turkeys, putting up a sign, "Support the President! Honor Your Forefathers! Observe Both Thanksgivings!"

Thanksgiving came to Canada around 1763, when the United Empire Loyalists, who had been fairly settled around Halifax by that time, decided to give thanks for the conclusion of peace and the ceding of Canada to Great Britain. They took the celebration along to Lower Canada where it was held spasmodically. The first formal proclamation of it reading "In signal victory over our enemy and for the manifold and inestimable blessings which our Kingdoms and Provinces have received and daily continue to receive", was dated January 10, 1799. Upper Canada was even slower about accepting the custom and didn't hold its first Thanksgiving Day until the 18th of June, 1816, with thanks for the end of the war between Great Britain and France.

All Canada gave thanks together for the first time on March 1, 1872, the occasion being the restoration of good health to the Prince of Wales. In 1879 they gave thanks again on the 6th of November (the cause being obscure at the present) and from then on were thankful by proclamation every year.

For a long time Canadian Thanksgiving was proclaimed to coincide with the American day but gradually Canadians anticipating President Roosevelt, began to feel the American day was too late in the year and too near to Christmas for proper celebration. Consequently we decided to be thankful earlier — in October — usually on a Thursday. This, however, proved disruptive to industry and the day was moved to a Monday, where it would give less trouble and incidentally, give a nice week-end to employes.

After the Great War, Canadians decided to be thankful on Armistice Day and officially celebrated the Monday of the week of November 11. In 1935, under R. B. Bennett, we went back to a Thursday Thanksgiving for a while, to oblige the clergy who felt that the spiritual side of the celebration was being ignored for the gastronomic side and that the week-end angle was being promoted too much for the spiritual welfare of their flocks. Thursday didn't stay long, though, because big business, with the approval of week-end-loving employes, was positive it was possible to be as spiritual on Monday as on Thursday, with considerably less trouble.

This year, which is what we started out to remind you, Thanksgiving Day will be held on October 14, a Monday. Now that the day has been separated from Armistice Day, you are at liberty to decide for yourself what you have to be thankful about. Just being able to live in Canada these days, seems as good a reason as any.

Diamonds for Britain's War

By CHRISTOPHER CONGREVE

Diamonds are not only valuable as a commodity for export; they are essential to war industry. Before the war, the supply of diamonds was largely controlled by Great Britain, while the technical work of cutting and preparing them for use was a practical monopoly of Holland.

In this article, Mr. Congreve tells the story of how the Dutch technical processes were wrested from the advancing Germans and brought to Britain to play their vital part in winning the war.

One of the most exciting stories of this war is the story of the evacuation of a complete industry across the North Sea to Britain, with German troops so close behind in the latter stages that the evacuation became a desperate race.

The race was won by the newly-allied British and Dutch, and the Germans were left on the docks at Antwerp with a few cases of machinery. The diamond trade is one of the most valuable in the world, and incidentally one of the most useful to any country's war effort—has crossed the sea. It was a man from Birmingham, chief city of Britain's midlands, who, with some Government help, organized this flight.

Four weeks before the Germans invaded the Lowlands this Birmingham man, was busy in Holland. He could see that an invasion was imminent, and he flew at once to Holland, got into touch with the chiefs of the Dutch diamond industry, persuaded them to prepare to move, and, up to the time of the invasion, was so busy that he flew over the North Sea no fewer than eighteen times.

Britain has for a long time had the monopoly of the rough diamond trade; directly or indirectly, British interests control the great South African diamond mines and the Indian mines. But for hundreds of years it has been the lapidarists of Amsterdam who have fashioned the rough stones into the finished and beautiful jewels.

If the Germans had been able to take control of the Dutch industry they would have captured not only scores of thousands of pounds' worth of uncut stones, but they would also have been able to press into their service skilled technicians whose secret methods of cutting and polishing would have been invaluable to them. For diamonds are not only used in jewelry; but also — and this is far more important in time of war — as cutting and grinding agents in industrial production.

The special alloy pistons which drive Goering's Messerschmidts through the sky are turned, polished and trimmed by diamonds. Precision turning, such as is used in the manufacture of heavy artillery, and precision cutting necessary for making the delicate mechanism of time fuses in shells, are all dependent on diamonds.

It will not be long before the Nazis have used up the few diamond drills and cutters which the Dutch had to leave, and when that happens, deterioration in their aircraft, guns and other war material becomes inevitable. So diamonds are of first-class importance to Britain at war.

There is also the normal diamond export trade to be considered. Last year, for example, the United States imported more than six million pounds' worth of fine diamonds. That will mean this year that the British and Dutch will be able to share at least six million pounds' worth of credit in America with which to buy aeroplanes and tanks.

Ten factories are to be set up in England; one of them is already in full production. These factories will be capable of turning out decorative diamonds or industrial diamonds to the value of roughly two million pounds per annum.

It was not only the foresight and hard work of the Birmingham leader which made all this possible; other factors came into play. It was impossible, so rapid was the German advance, to move over to England all the intricate machinery for cutting and polishing diamonds. Some of it was left on the docks at Antwerp when the Germans marched in.

Among the tools left there was a diamond-cutting saw. This saw, a thousandth of an inch thick operates at five thousand revolutions per minute. It is made of phosphor-bronze, but the secret of the allow from which it was made is lost. All that was brought to Britain was a fragment of this blade. Scientists in the laboratories of Birmingham University and the Chemical Research laboratories in London took this small fragment of blade, analysed it, discovered its mineral composition and nature and made possible its manufacture here in unlimited quantities.

Further, British draughtsmen and engineers, with no more than photographs of some diamond polishing machinery to go on reconstructed complete blue-prints of this machinery, and this, too, has now been duplicated.

There are in England now sufficient numbers of Dutch refugee diamond workers to staff the ten projected factories. Those workers who remained in Holland are unable to carry on their trade because the sources of supply for rough diamonds are controlled by Great Britain. It is impossible for the Germans to press them into the service.

NO FOOD SHORTAGE THREATENS CANADA ON THANKSGIVING DAY

With war raging in all corners of the earth, this Thanksgiving Day should have a special significance for the Empire, for at least the countries in this great commonwealth of nations do not have to face the grim spectre of famine during the coming winter as do the millions now living under the Nazi yoke in Europe. We also owe a prayer of thanks on this day to those heroes in England—both civil and military—whose heroic resistance has baffled the iron legions of the Nazis. Typical of the bounty of foodstuffs available to the Empire are the giant marrow, LEFT; turkeys, CENTRE, and pumpkin, RIGHT. The little lad, ABOVE, seems to have cornered his Thanksgiving dinner in a strategic spot.

DR. DAFOE'S COLUMN on the Quintuplets and the Care of Your Children

Training Children

Some mothers come to think that some babies are born into the world with good habits and manners and some are not, and training doesn't have much to do with it.

A few days ago I got a letter from a mother in a mid-western city. I began: "I can't understand why my child is so stubborn and hard to train. He is five years old, and even now I have to drag him away from his toys bodily, when it's time to eat. He is always upsetting the flower pots off the window, and pulling the books out of the book case. A neighbr of mine has a little boy the same age and he is a model of behaviour..".

Here is a mother, blaming her child because it isn't disciplined and well-behaved. She is annoyed because he doesn't obey like the little boy next door.

When a baby is born his character is like a lump of clay, ready to be moulded into whatever shape his parents and his experiences influence it. If a child grows up disobedient, if he is undisciplined, if he refuses to let anyone tell him what to do ,then you can be sure, that his training hasn't been what it should be. You can't blame it on heredity.

On the other hand, if you see a well-behaved child who eats what is given him, goes to bed when he should and goes right to sleep, obeys his mother, then you know that this isn't any accident either. This is a child that has been carefully trained. No hit or miss methods were used in his upbringing. Good habits were implanted within him early.

Of course, this doesn't mean that as soon as a mother has taught her child a few good habits that her work is over. It's only starting, in fact. Children, like adults, are always being beset with temptations. Their active little minds are busy with new ideas, and new things they want to try out. They may, at any moment, rebel against discipline, they may have flare-ups of temper, just when you think they have outgrown these things.

Now, if a modern ,educated mother is to learn to handle these crises, she must learn first of all, not to lose her temper and "fly off the handle" at the child. As soon as a parent loses his or her temper with a child, then it is impossible for her or him to think clearly or act sanely or fairly.

One of the faults with young children being given physical punishment, is that they often aren't sure what they are being punished for. For physical punishments are usually given when the parent is angry. In such cases the child's resentment is intensified.

There are other trustworthy means of implanting obedience and respect for authority. We will discuss some of these in a later column.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Considering Returning His Diamond Ring

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I've been going "steady" for five years with a man of 30, and I am 21. His father is dead and he does many little things for his mother and doesnt arrive sometimes until as late as 9.30. My mother doesn't approve of it, as she thinks I should not be out so late when we go to shows.

He has given me my engagement ring, and although we have not set the date, he suggests we live with his mother when we do marry. He doesn't want me to go out to work, but if I had to stay at home and work her way and not be able to feel I could change the furniture and all that sort of thing, I'd rather stay single.

His mother is a fine woman. She would cook his meals. But I want our own place. On top of all this, he has lost his job now. I have even thought of returning my diamond, but not because he lost his job. Everything seems to be against me. I'll leave it to you, Miss Fairfax.

M. H.

You tell me this young man's mother is a fine woman. Then why do you imagine living with her to be such a hardship? Personally I do not take the usual view concerning mothers-in-law. I've known too many of them that have kept the good ship matrimony from going on the rocks.

The real obstacle to your marriage doesn't seem to me this young man's mother but the fact that at the moment he's jobless. To send back his ring while he is unemployed would certainly create the wrong impression. Don't forget the old proverb that a good son makes a good husband.

Sure He Has Turned Over New Leaf

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm a girl not yet 16. I love a good time, sports and pretty clothes. My brother plays on the school football team and through him I met a man of 29, who had been in the service four years ago and had made quite a bad record there. However, he has turned over a new leaf and we are both very much in love with each other.

My father doesn't approve of this match and has forbidden me to see him. He said I could have all the school friends I want, but they don't appeal to me.

Should I wait until I become of age and then go back to the man I was forced to give up, or should I do as my father says and forget him entirely.

Bewildered.

All things considered in this case, the difference of thirteen years seems a good deal. You're only 16, and while you'll probably hate me for saying so, you really ought to be in school getting some sort of an education rather than falling in love seriously.

In the present economic upheaval of the world, marriage no longer furnishes security to women, and the girl who has some special training to fall back on fares better than the unskilled woman who must take what she can get. If you really care about this man and he proves that he has really turned over a new leaf and made good, there's no telling what the future may hold—but not the near future, I hope.

His Dad Won't Let Him Take Out Girls

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm almost 18 years old, and my father thinks that a boy of my age has no business taking out girls. My mother is dead and I have been taking care of myself, more or less, for a couple of years. I have a job now and earn a small salary.

I took one girl to the movies several times, but when my father found out about it he forbade me to go with her. I thought it was this one girl, but it seems he refers to all of them. His reason is that I don't earn enough to support a wife. But who wants a wife? I just want to go with the girls for companionship and good times.

Has my father any right to forbid me the society of nice girls? Shall I go with them on the sly

Brewster.

I can't understand why your father objects to your going with nice girls. The best way for young people to avoid that phase of adolescence called girl or boy "crazy" as the case may be, is to know plenty of boys and girls.

While I never advise a boy in his 'teens to go against his parents' wishes, I think your father should really be brought around to a more normal point of view. Isn't there someone among your friends, or in the family, who would reason with him? Of course it would have to be someone whose judgment he respects.

A dramatic triangle, with Clark Gable and Spencer Tracy both in love with Claudette Colbert, the dramatic triangle is all set in the action-packed drama, "Boom Town," featuring Hedy Lamarr, at the Belle, also Sunday after midnight 12.05.

A letter of thanks from Mrs. Damon Hinchey for the card sent her by this society when she was in the hospital was read by Mrs. F. Doxtator also a letter from the Supply secretary, Mrs. E. Liddle urging the Group leaders to collect the money for the work.

Plans for the annual fowl supper were completed.

Library Corner

The Fall season finds Belleville readers settling down in earnest to enjoy some of the outstanding new books. The season promises to be an outstanding one with such stimulating fare offered for their enjoyment and information. The list following will give some indication of the trends for the current season. The first three books listed are at present leading in reader interest in the libraries and book stores of Canada and the States.

Tolischus, Otto. They wanted war.

The winner of the Pulitzer prize for distinguished Foreign Correspondence for 1940, has written a powerful indictment of Germany, based on his dispatches to the New York Times, which won him distinction.

Zinsser, Hans. As I remember him: the biography of R. S.

A stimulating biography of a physician, one R. S. reputed to be a friend of the author but believed to be the author himself. This book-of-the-month Club choice is one of the leading books of the season.

Hough, H. B. Country editor.

The flavour of the small town newspaper office, with its humours and its tragedies is captured by the author in his reminiscences as editor of the Vineyard Gazette for twenty years.

MacCormac, John. Canada; America's problem.

The book all America is discussing, by a former Ottawa correspondent for the New York Times. Born in Canada and married to an English life, Mr. MacCormac presents many sides of a timely question.

Adler, Mortimer. How to read a book.

An invitation to the enrichment of personal life is admirably given by Dr. Adler in his best-seller book about books. Those readers who do not master the technique suggested will at least be challenged by its list of best books for a liberal education.

Gill, R. C. White water and black magic.

This is something more than another jungle travel book. The account of Mr. and Mrs. Gill's exploring for medicine in Ecuador and the life on their jungle ranch is written by one who knows and loves jungle country. Many photographs add to the charm of the story.

K. G.

AIKENS' W.M.S.

Aikens W. M. S. held their October meeting at the home of Mrs. Wilmot Bailey on Wednesday afternoon, with the president, Mrs. Fred Westover presiding, and Mrs. (Rev.) L. W. Scott at the piano.

The second part of the Study Book, "Men of Africa" was given in the form of a broadcast, by Mrs. S. Spafford, assisted by Mrs. Sam Marshall, Mrs. Leon McMullen and Mrs. Fred Moon, presenting the life and work of Dr. J. T. Tucker, another "Comrade in the World Church" that W. M. S. groups are studying. If there are any members who still think that missionaries are presumptuous in going to other lands to foist, as it were, our Christian religion upon other peoples, they were advised to become acquainted with one of our greatest missionaries, Rev. J. T. Tucker, D. D., of Angola, Africa.

African people who have been privileged to come under the influence of such a Christian ambassador as Dr. Tucker, regard him as a great-souled, understanding friend.

To few men is it given to see such transformations as Dr. Tucker has seen in twenty-five years service in Angola. The life story of Pastor Lumbo Sanambelo was told as typical of the transformations in character which Dr. Tucker has witnessed.

The roll call was answered with verses on Thanksgiving. Plans were made for a supper to be held in November when Mrs. Thompson of Toronto will be present.

Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting.

THE OLDEST YOUNG MAN IN B.C.
GOES FOR A WALK

C. C. Reynolds

Mr. C. C. Reynolds, 81 years of age, set out at 3.30 last Sunday morning to walk from Chilliwack to his farm in Matsqui, 16 miles away. He covered the distance in five hours without a stop, and felt fresh enough at the end of the journey to have gone another five miles. Feeling so fit and vigorous, which causes his many friends to marvel, instead of taking the train or bus he could not resist the pioneer urge to walk, in order to get a better view of the beautiful agricultural district he knows so well. Five years ago, at the age of 76, Mr. Reynolds was in such a critical state of health he could not walk up stairs, nor attempt even the mildest kind of exertion, due to a combination of the most serious ailments common to humanity. Here are Mr. Reynolds' own words a few weeks ago:—

"While three score years and ten is the allotted span of life for man, I have entered upon my five score period—still enjoying the blessing of health and vigor, and feel like a man many years younger. I can safely say that I owe the last five years of my life, health and happiness to LANG'S MINERAL REMEDY. I was in such a critical state of health my condition was pronounced hopeless. Like a drowning man grasping at a straw I fortunately decided to try Lang's Mineral on the advice of some friends, which has meant a new lease of life to me—with new hope and sound health taking the place of misery and despair."

Mr. Reynolds is one of those fine old Canadian pioneers whose word is as good as his bond, who as a young man was foreman in charge of some of the largest lumber camps in the Algoma district, and during later years farmer and pure-bred stock breeder in the Fraser Valley in which he is still interested.

ARTHRITIS
In Its Worst Form

Mrs. Richard Irvin writes:—"I was afflicted with Arthritis for over ten years which became so chronic I was in bed for over two years, unable to walk and could do nothing to help myself. My hands were so crippled I could not move a finger, and my body was like a marble slab. For over five years I was unable to come down stairs, all treatments having failed. A friend told me about LANG'S MINERAL REMEDY, and it was a fortunate day for me as it gave me back my health. I now walk anywhere and have regained the full normal use of my hands and legs, also do my own housework. I do thank God for the day I heard of this Mineral Remedy and how I wish others who suffer as I did could know about it. I am 78 years of age."

While many ordinary cases of Arthritis have fully responded to the healing qualities of Lang's Mineral we believe this is a record case where any man or woman of such advanced age who was so completely incapacitated with Arthritis for years finally got rid of the affliction and regained the normal use of hands and limbs, with renewed health and vitality. We will mail this woman's full statement giving her address to any interested parties. We do not pretend to claim that Lang's Mineral Remedy is any miracle worker or cure-all. It is simply a product of nature from the earth, and the only claim we make for it is that the Minerals it contains assists nature through the blood stream in eliminating weakness and disease and building new health, vigor and vitality as the blood stream is the basis of all health.

Lang's Mineral has been used for over half a century, and thousands of men and women gladly tell the same happy story today, who also found the blessing of renewed health and relief from physical suffering through the efficacy of this genuine blood and body builder—simple to use and inexpensive. Six months' treatment only $6.00, four months treatment for $5.00 and one month $1.50. Several months' treatment is necessary to get complete results, as you cannot force or hurry nature. For those afflicted with Arthritis, Rheumatism, Stomach troubles, Kidneys, Nerves, Piles, Colitis, Eczema, Female Ailments, Weakness, Run-down, etc., we will gladly refer you to responsible men and women in all walks of life who have proven the remarkable merit of Lang's Mineral Remedy. As shown above it adds both comfort and years to human life. It may prove more valuable to you than any amount of dollars. Write us for free information.

NAVY MINISTER INSPECTS BASE

Accompanied at Western Port by Rear Admiral Percy W. Nelles, Chief of Staff

By HERBERT L. JONES
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

A West Coast Canadian Port, Oct. 12 (CP).—Canada's defence minister for naval services, Angus L. Macdonald, dropped his executive mantle momentarily yesterday and became an interested spectator for a look behind the scenes of the great naval expansion program he directs from Ottawa.

Visiting this base with the chief of Canada's naval staff, Rear Admiral Percy M. Nelles, the minister walked through great shipyards buzzing with wartime activity. He saw ships of war in various stages of construction, some already launched and being fitted, others in the "skeleton" stage, and still others just being laid down.

In keeping with Canada's quickened wartime tempo, naval construction work did not stop at the plants as the minister and his party made an inspection.

Overalled workmen demonstrated for the minister how the great blast furnaces are used to bend steel fittings for the ships that soon will become part of Canada's growing naval fleet. Mr. Macdonald saw great presses bending steel plates, and walked through workshops where sparks flew from emery wheels and the noise of the riveters' drills was deafening.

The whole party climbed a rough cradle to the neck of a vessel under construction for a look into her depths where engines soon will be installed. The clatter of the riveters' drills vibrated the deck on which the minister stood.

September Report of St. Julien Chapter I. O. D. E. Activities

The regular monthly business meeting of the St. Julien Chapter, I.O.D.E., held this week at the regular quarters in the Oddfellow's Temple, was a lengthy and busy one. Plans had to be made ahead for two weeks as Thanksgiving interrupts the regular scheduled meeting on Monday next. There was almost a full attendance of members at this meeting, and the following reports were read:

The Treasurer's report was most satisfactory, showing a balance in both chapter and war accounts to satisfy immediate needs, and all debts liquidated. The chapter had voted $5.00 to the Institute for the Blind, and $25 to the Red Cross campaign out of the chapter funds.

The War Convener reported 151 pairs socks, 7 sweaters, 7 scarfs and 1 pair mitts turned in by knitters during the month. 14 pairs socks (2 pairs each) and 1 sweater had been given to individual Belleville boys in the army, either in camp here or going overseas. 27 sweaters and 18 pairs socks to Capt. J. H. McLeod for Belleville troops 32-34th Field Battery R.C.A., C.A.S.F.

Plans were made to pack a large box of comforts and cigarettes to be sent in care of a Canadian officer in England to be distributed among Canadian boys over there at Christmas; also a box of comforts to be sent overseas addressed to a well known lady in Britain for distribution among soldiers in her vicinity.

The Convener of Tea Committee for tea and homecooking sale at Mrs. J. B. Ives, reported that up to date $80.95 had been received. The knitting bag donated by Mrs. Swartz had been won by Mrs. Bert Boyce Albert St., ticket No. 57.

The Sewing Committee reported finishing and delivering six suits of pyjamas and working an afternoon at the local Red Cross rooms.

Donations to the chapter are as follows: Beautiful hand-made purse by Mrs. Fred Mcoun and a very pretty hooked rag rug by Mrs. Young of Weller's Bay, through Mrs. W. C. Mikel. Tickets will be sold on these in the near future. Five lovely quilts from Melrose W. I. and two equally as nice from Mrs. Geo. Naylor's group of "Willing War Workers;" one quilt from Mrs. Dowsett's Sunday School class; quilt and clothing from Wallbridge W. I.; clothing for adults and children from local Red Cross and individual citizens of Belleville; a silver medal from Mrs. Brockway to be disposed of for the work.

The chapter received four applications for membership and two new volunteers for the sewing committee.

Several donations of money for war work here and a substantial cheque for the war victims in Britain were received.

Those who were patriotic enough to attend the dance at the Hume Arena Gardens Oct. 4th, held under the auspices of the chapter, expressed the evening well spent, and the officers and members of the chapter wish to express their appreciation to all who made this dance a success.

Plans are being completed for a R.C.A.F. band concert in the very near future. The band will be assisted by a soloist from Trenton and eight boys of Christ Church choir under the able leadership of Mr. George Maybee.

The Trianon ballroom management have also offered their premises for a dance early in December. All receipts from above go to help war work.

The St. Julien Chapter feels very grateful for the past assistance of citizens and respectfully solicit future help.

The handpainted bowl on which tickets are now being sold will be drawn for at the next meeting, if not before.

Parents Agree To Conditions of Suspended Sentence

Kitchener, Ont., Oct. 12—(CP)—Parents of children who would not take part in patriotic exercises in school and self-admitted members of the outlawed Jehovah's Witnesses sect, Lambro Gakeff and Mrs. Mary Schmellovich, both of Kitchener, were given suspended sentences in court here yesterday on charges against them under the Defence of Canada regulations.

The sentences were suspended after Terrence Flahiff, representing the Ontario Attorney-General's department, submitted a brief suggesting such action if the accused would agree to give up their affiliation with the Jehovah's Witnesses, stop advocating the policies of the sect and "refrain from making any statements to their children intended or likely to dissuade them from singing 'God Save the King.'"

Mrs. Schmellovich and Rakeff, through their lawyer, agreed to the conditions suggested. They explained that they had not intended anything disloyal by their membership in the outlawed sect.

German Flier Captured After Night-Long Hunt

London, Oct. 12 (CP).—A German sergeant who bailed out from his damaged plane was taken into custody by police early today in a wild part of the Welsh mountains after a night-long manhunt in which more than 600 persons, the police and military, participated.

The Nazi airman was seen parachuting from his plane as Spitfires attacked the machine. The hunt followed.

The fight was watched by 4,000 residents of an historic Welsh village. The Spitfires encircled the raider, pouring machine-gun bullets into it from all angles.

Then the raider headed inland over Snowdon Range with British fighters pursuing.

SOME AMERICANS ON WAY HOME

U.S. Citizens Waste No Time When Told to Leave Japan by U.S. Gov't.

Tokyo, Oct. 12 (AP).—The first Americans to heed the United States Department advice to leave Japan boarded the homeward-bound Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Russia today and newspaper want ad columns did a booming business as others disposed of household goods.

Wives and children of United States business men were the first to depart. Inquiries continued to flood in to the United States consulate about facilities for leaving. Bookings were reported to be full on all ships scheduled to leave soon for the United States and officials worked to break the jam and clear the way for speedier exodus.

There were many, however, who indicated they expected to wait and watch further developments before giving up homes and work in Japan.

Although the first excitement of the withdrawals lessened activity on the stock market, the trading remained dull with most dealers watching for further developments.

The Japanese press reviewed what it termed America's "oppressive measures" against Japan, but the articles lacked the pyrotechnics of some earlier attacks. Washington was urged to reconsider its policies. The need for calmness was stressed.

The Tokyo newspaper Yomiuri claimed the administration of President Roosevelt had closed its ears to "righteous public opinion in the United States and instead has been following an intimidatory policy liable to aggravate the international situation."

Liners May Again Be Used.

Washington, Oct. 11 (AP). — The liners Manhattan and Washington, which brought hundreds of United States war refugees home from Europe in early summer, may be given similar rescue assignments in the Far East this autumn.

Officials of the Maritime Commission and United States State Department were reported to be awaiting reports on the number of citizens seeking speedy departure from the Orient before making a decision on use of the two big passenger vessels.

The government warned United States nationals throughout the Far East this week that they should consider coming home while they can.

Consuls were asked to report the response to this advice. Use of the Manhattan, Washington and possibly other United States lines vessels is considered likely if reports should indicate demands for passage in excess of scheduled capacities.

CHICAGO GAMBLER IS CONVICTED

Eight Co-Defendants With Accused Also Convicted of Evading Income Taxes

Chicago, Oct. 12 (AP)—William R. Johnson, pictured by Federal prosecutors as the overlord of Chicago's organized gambling, was convicted today on charges of evading income taxes.

Five of eight co-defendants were convicted on charges of aiding Johnson in his efforts to defraud the government of $1,867,864 in taxes on a 1936-1939 income of $3,377,815.

The jury deliberated 12 hours. Johnson was convicted on all five counts lodged against him, as were Jack Sommers, James A. Hartigan, John M. Flanagan and William P. Kelly.

Conviction on five counts makes them liable to a maximum prison term of 22 years and a $10,000 fine. Stuart Brown, another defendant, was convicted on two counts while Edward Wait, Andrew J. Creighton, and Reginald MacKay were acquitted.

8 Co-defendants Convicted

The eight co-defendants of Johnson were accused of being fronts for him in the operation of gambling resorts, prosecutors charged they endeavoured to cover up Johnson's sources of income.

Judge John P. Barnes set Oct. 17 for arguments on a motion for a new trial and allowed the defendants to remain at liberty under bond.

Before taking the case yesterday the jury heard five weeks of testimony which opened the lid on the city's gambling industry.

Prosecutors stated that Johnson started out 20 years ago as a small-time gambler and finally wound up as "czar of Chicago gambling with a system rivaling the Federal Reserve Bank."

Johnson testified that he was a crap shooter by profession, admitting owning the real estate under some of the gambling spots, but denied ownership of the establishments. His activities, he said, were profitable. For example, they permitted him to invest $365,000—in cash—for a half interest in the Bon Air Country Club as well as $350,000 cash for a country estate.

Steel plates covered on their under sides with rubber that can be attached to ordinary shoes quickly have been invented to prevent men's feet slipping on ladders.

Picton and District

Picton, Oct. 12.—The armouries was the scene of a largely attended dance last night when "C" Company Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, N.P.A.M., were the sponsors. Patriotic decorations, together with uniforms of the Army and Air Force and lovely gowns of the ladies made a colorful scene. Music was furnished by Jack Rennie and his orchestra of Kingston. Proceeds will be used to provide recreation equipment for the Company.

No Action Taken

Prince Edward County Chamber of Commerce met on Thursday evening with a large attendance and President Fred Stafford was in charge. Motion pictures which gave a vivid picture of the trip across the Atlantic and life in England, of Hastings and Prince Edward regiment, were shown by Capt. W. C. Hicks. There was a discussion regarding the observance of half holidays the year around but no action was taken. An industrial fair and an apple festival are being considered and the matter of having houses in town numbered is to be investigated.

There was a discussion regarding the bus service between Picton and Belleville. This was the result of complaints that the present service did not meet the later trains or operate on Sundays. Frank Smith, the present operator, stated he was willing to inaugurate such a service if guaranteed four dollars a day. This matter was left in the hands of the executive.

James deC. Hepburn spoke regarding the Bombing and Gunnery School here, pointing out the necessity of a better road from the site to the town and also thought there should be some action taken to have housing facilities available for families of airmen when they come here.

Capt. E. G. Hudgin of Camp Borden is spending a few days with his parents, Capt. and Mrs. Nelson Hudgin.

Malcolm Boulter of Montreal and Frank Boulter of Toronto are guests for the holiday of their parents, Dr. and Mrs. J. H. Boulter.

Automatic Heating Is Geared To Weather

Automatic heating, being cleaner in operation, permits the use of basement space for extra living room or recreational purposes.

How to maintain an even comfortable heat indoors while outside temperatures range from twenty below to thirty above, has always been one of the chief problems of the Canadian householder, says the Canadian Institute of Plumbing and Heating. Anyone who tends a hand-fired boiler knows that it would be necessary to camp beside the furnace twenty-four hours a day, regulating drafts, shaking down the fire and adding fuel to keep in tune with the whims of the weather.

Heating engineers and manufacturers, ever on the alert to provide the maximum in heating comfort and efficiency, have now made it possible for a heating plant to take care of itself—one that is automatically geared to the weather, delivers heat to order, when and as much as desired. By the addition of a few devices, easily installed, householders may be relieved of practically all the labour and worry of providing comfortable even heat for the family points out the Institute.

Oil and gas burning boilers require only the addition of a thermostat and the necessary safety controls. With a coal fired boiler, a stoker and draft regulators will also have to be added.

The thermostat—a small instrument like a thermometer, is usually placed in the livingroom, and can be set to the room temperature desired. When the room temperature begins to drop below that set on the thermostat, the latter automatically operates the draft regulator, which in turn opens the drafts to speed up the fire. When the correct room temperature is reached again, the thermostat automatically operates to close the drafts.

If a lower room temperature is desired during sleeping hours, an electric clock switch will automatically reset the thermometer to a higher temperature at whatever hour desired.

Automatic heating also takes care of sudden changes in outdoor temperature, points out the Institute. When the temperature goes down several degrees, it usually takes some time for the cold air to penetrate indoors, and under ordinary circumstances, the heat would not be increased until the cold is felt indoors. With an automatic thermostat, however, the boiler is given advance warning so that by the time the lower temperature from outside penetrates into the house, it has already been compensated.

The thermostat will keep an even steady heat as long as there is fuel in the furnace or boiler. The job of providing the fuel is automatically taken care of by the coal stoker, or the gas or oil burner, depending on the type of fuel used. Any of these may be easily added to an existing heating plane by an experienced plumbing contractor, although if the present boiler or furnace has outlived its usefulness, one of the new boilers, especially designed for economical fuel consumption is recommended.

As the health and comfort of the entire family are dependent on the heating system during the long winter months, any improvements to the plant may be considered a wise investment, suggests the Institute, and easy financing terms are still available under the government's Home Improvement Plan from any neighbourhood branch bank.

Rival Goalies Standout in Lacrosse Finals as St. Kitts Takes Two Wins From B. C.

Score is 17-10 and Athletics Need Only One Game to Take Mann Cup

TOO MUCH POWER

Athletics Put Game on Ice in Second Period With Four-Goal Outburst

By DICK SHERIDAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Oct. 12 (CP)—St. Catharines' Athletics are just about the best lacrosse team in the land and all but the youthful Vancouver Burrards were ready to admit it today. Even these courageous youngsters may have a few misgivings after the 17-10 licking they absorbed in the third game of the Mann Cup series here last night.

With a 2-1 margin in the best-of-five series for the Canadian senior title, the veteran A's were expected to end the games by winning the fourth contest here Monday night. Only the raw courage of Burrards will stop them.

The cagey St. Catharines' crew, using every bit of experience picked up in two previous Mann Cup playoffs, systematically beat the Burrards into submission last night. In all but one period—the third when each club scored three times—the A's had a margin in goals and on the play.

At the end of the first quarter the score was 4-1 and at half time 8-3. For the first few minutes of the fourth quarter, the game developed into a rout when St. Catharines scored five times without a reply from their rivals.

Four-Goal Outburst

The answer, when it did come, was a four-goal outburst that put Vancouver again within shouting distance. Too much valuable time had elapsed, however, and Burrards were forced to bow to a better team.

Aside from the heavy scoring the work of the rival goalies, Bill Whittaker of St. Catharines and Walt Lee of Vancouver, was a bright spot of the game. Some of their stops were sensational and in no instance were there any unearned goals.

St. Catharines wore bright crimson sweaters that were purchased only yesterday by the Canadian Lacrosse Association and their victory is expected to end the controversy over jerseys. For the first two games, the teams were forced to alternate in white, borrowed sweaters because of the similarity in color of their respective outfits.

When the team wearing white lost in each case, a cry of jinx arose and the clubs vowed they wouldn't switch again. New sweaters were ordered and from last night's result officials hope to have solved the question. Burrards will wear the sweaters next Monday by agreement.

Jimmy Ward Retires As Playing Coach Of New Haven Eagles

Montreal, Oct. 12 (CP)—Retirement of Jimmy Ward, New Haven Eagles playing coach and former National Hockey League winger with the old Montreal Maroons, left open today the coaching berth on the Eagles, minor league team of the Montreal Canadiens.

The curly-haired veteran, who announced his retirement last night, tried his hand at coaching with the International League Eagles last year after 11 seasons with the Maroons. He wanted to resume the job this year but business reasons prevented him leaving Montreal.

"It's tough to give up hockey after all these years," said Jimmy. "This would have been my 14th season as a professional, and I guess I've played hockey since I was knee-high to a grasshopper. But my firm has treated me squarely so it's only fair that I give all my time to the job."

The decision left Canadiens shopping for a coach for the Eagles. Two men in the Montreal organization already have been mentioned as candidates. They are Armand Mondou, veteran Canadien centre, and Earl Robinson, former Maroon and Canadien right winger.

Sports Roundup

New York, Oct. 12.—(AP) —They say Michigan's Mr. Harmon will single-handed pack the big Harvard Stadium today . . . .

Auburn has a pair of backs named Lloyd Cheatham and Rufus Deal . . . .So Col. Elmer Salter, the Demon Press agent, never fails to crack, 'We deal 'em and Cheatham".

Perhaps the first to turn down an offer to manage the Indians was Larry Gilbert of Nashville, who used to pilot the Cleveland farm at New Orleans . . . Hirsch Jacobs, for seven years in a row the No. 1 trainer, seems to be on the skids. During the aqueduct and Belmont sessions and the first four days of the Jamaica meeting, he has sent out 55 starters with only six winners. . . . . It just missed being three years to a day since Bill McKechnie signed a Cincinnati contract that he delivered a World's series intact.

MASKED MARVEL MEETS DOMERKO

In Second Bout Pavish and George, Both Badmen, Will Hook Up

Doubtless the Greeks had a word for it, that is this vigorous, colorful, exciting sport known as modern wrestling. At least they should have because there is seldom a wrestling show billed on the continent that does not include at least one Greek on the night's program.

Monday night's gala holiday wrestling program at the Hume Arena is no exception to the rule when George Pavish, the pugnacious Greek grappler, returns to the local grappling wars humiliated after his defeat at the hands of Mike Domerko and hatred in his heart towards his opponent, Tom George, the Cacedonian badman who has tried to usurp Pavish's villain title.

The above bout will doubtless prove a dainty morsel for the grappling clients, but there's still another go which should prove more interesting to the public as the main scrap brings to Belleville a new Masked Marvel versus Mike Domerko, the former Syracuse football player. Just who the "Hooded Horror" is will remain a deep dark secret, that is unless Domerko wins forcing the Marvel to unmask. The last masked grappler to appear in Belleville was defeated and when his countenance was exposed it was none other than Johnnie Marvin, the star Georgia halfback.

For good measure on a holiday card Jimmie Allan meets Don MacLachan of Windsor in the curtain-raiser.

N. Y. RANGERS OPEN AT TORONTO ON NOVEMBER 2

N.H.L. Schedule Released and Leafs Will Not Meet Canadians Till Nov. 14

ALL TEAMS READY

Maple Leafs Given Twenty Saturday Nights in the Coming Season

Montreal, Oct. 12 (CP).—Toronto Maple Leafs, humbled by New York Rangers in the final of last season's Stanley Cup playoffs, stood first today in the line of National Hockey League clubs jostling for a return bout with the cup-holding blueshirts.

That the schedule-makers should give the Leafs first chance at wiping out memories of their final game last spring seemed fitting. That it should be staged in Toronto, where a roaring Saturday night crowd watched the Rangers lift the cup in that game, portended a fiery inaugural to the N.H.L. season.

According to the schedule released last night by President Frank Calder, Toronto Saturday night fans will watch the Leafs and the Rangers duel Nov. 2 in the first glimpse of N.H.L. play. Four other teams will open their season the next night while the fifth, Chicago Black Hawks, starts the following Thursday.

In Montreal, the season will be opened on Sunday—one of two such dates the Canadiens have scheduled—by Boston Bruins. New York Americans play at Detroit meanwhile and then the Americans start the season in Chicago against the Black Hawks on Nov. 7.

First Game in New York Nov. 14.

Not until nearly two weeks after the opening date when Chicago visits Americans on Nov. 14 will New York see its first game. The Rangers will open at home two days later against Detroit while the Bruins, N.H.L. champions, will entertain Chicago in Boston on Nov. 12.

The schedule, calling for a 48-game program for each team, is slated to close on Mar. 18, one day later than last season. It holds pretty well to the usual Saturday, Sunday, Tuesday and Thursday dates, although every day except Monday will see play at some time during the season.

In Detroit, the Friday night games that were innovated there last year will be continued on five occasions. On Christmas night—a Wednesday—three games will be played and two also will be staged on New Year's night.

Toronto, a hockey hotbed on a Saturday night, has been granted twenty such dates while Montreal has thirteen Saturday night games. Only New York Rangers of the United States teams has Saturday games, with three scheduled.

The first meeting of the two Canadian clubs is scheduled for Nov. 14 when the Leafs visit Montreal.

CALLING 'EM

Between the Lines

with Ken J. Colling

If Coach Morley Baker's B.C.I. senior interscholastic gridders get a little oomph into their season's work they have a better than average chance of getting into the senior C.O.S.S.A. rugby finals this year, but it will be a merry old battle. Peterborough C. I. has its lightest and weakest squad in years and according to rumors from the Lake Shore group Bowmanville High School is the top-ranking squad in that loop. The local "collegians" get their season's initial test on Monday when they meet the group-leading Cobourg C. I. at the Fair Grounds, where a holiday sports attraction should attract the largest crowd to attend a rugby football game in some years.

After taking in the Albert College at Cobourg game last Wednesday we wonder if the Interscholastic gridders have forgotten the first rule of rugby, namely—"Every play is a potential touchdown". Nowadays a line plunger seems to think if he cracks the opposing for four or five yards he's done his duty by our little Nell and down he flops for a Lombardi snoose or a "Paychek". It is the player who keeps his head up and his eyes open when cracking the line, who is the most value to his team, as he'll reel off an additional three or four yards by means of the slightest pivot to throw the opposition off just a mite. Another thing we observed faulty with the Albert squad, their decoys do not cover-up sufficiently to protect the ball carrier. A fake plunger must appear as though he's in possession or else his efforts are wanted. However, with the local "collegians" style of wide open razzle dazzle football the fans will see more wide open play on Monday.

Do you remember when Harry Wills, negro, who unsuccessfully challenged Champion Jack Dempsey, lost on a foul in the 13th round against Jack Sharkey, 14 years ago tonight. Wills was a hopelessly beaten battler when he was disqualified for a foul blow.

Veteran hockey fans will remember Bill Simons, who played defence for Belleville in 1916 when the local seven were eliminated in the intermediate O.H.A. finals by Sarnia. Bill's older son, Cullen Simons, has been signed by the Detroit Redwings and reports for fall training next week. Cullen played defence for Verdun in the Quebec Provincial League last year. His younger brother Jack hopes to play junior hockey in the Ottawa Valley this winter, Poppa Bill informed us recently. If Cullen Simons is as good a hockey player as his father was 24 years ago, he'll catch on with Adams' gang.

Reminiscing in his sport column of the Peterboro' Examiner, Fred Craig reminds his readers it was just 20 years ago this week that the Petes beat the Hamilton Plowites 2 to 1 in the senior O.B.A. playdowns at Peterboro. Hamilton eventually won the series, however. Fred relates as to how the late Roy Cherrett scored the winning run, when he raced from second and slid safely home on Mickey Murray's hard infield smash. Fred says Cherrett's effort was "as daring a piece of baserunning as has ever settled a senior Ontario ball battle." True enough, Fred, Cherrett was a speed merchant, but that play had nothing on Wicky Ross' race from first base to slide home with the winning run for Belleville over the mighty Hillcrest team in 1922 in a ninth inning rally right in Peterboro. Wicky ran from first to slide beneath Duke Hennessy on Mills' Texas leaguer back of first base and it was the most thrilling play ever made by a Belleville player and carries more color than Cherrett's because the Hillcrests of 1922 were a hand-picked nine and boasted of the best team ever garnered together in Toronto.

Only five years ago, the Detroit Tigers captured the world's championship by downing the Chicago Cubs four out of six battles, but from that mighty team, led by Mickey Cochrane, the only remaining Tigers are Hank Greenberg, Charley Gehringer, Ervin (Pete) Fox, Tommy Bridges and Lyn (Schoolboy) Rowe. Gone were Jo Jo White, Gerald Walker, Goose Goslin, Elden Auker, Marvin Owen, Ray Hayworth, Flea Clifton, Billy Rogell, Vic. Sorrell, Elon Hogsett, Joe Sullivan, Heinie Schuble, Alvin Crowder and Roxie Lawson. A few of the group remain in the Big Time. Auker and Lawson are with the St. Louis Browns, Sullivan with the Boston Bees, Owen with the Boston Red Sox and Walker with the Washington Senators.

A wrestling crowd is perhaps the most cosmopolitan of any gathering of sports fans. Doctors and lawyers rub elbows with the poor man, beggarman and . . . well even the merchant. Belleville grappling audiences are no different from those in New York or Chicago, they want to see action and blood whenever possible. It's human nature. All of this will be seen at the Hume Arena on Thanksgiving night when the Masked Marvel meets Mike Domerko in the main scrap on a card that is supported by a go between Tom George and George Pavish. This scrap is for the pugnacious and villain title of the local squared circle. A preliminary leads up to these two attractions.

SPORT SPICE—Elsewhere on today's sport pages will be found the composite National Hockey League schedule, published for the benefit of the readers of The Ontario Intelligencer. It might be a good idea to clip the same and save it for future reference. . . . If the Oshawa ballsters give "Steamer" Lucas any support today the Motor City nine should win their first senior O.B.A. flag. . . . The sympathy of the sporting fraternity of Central Ontario is extended to "Peg" Hurst, who lost his best friend in the death of his mother this week. . . . If the R.C.A.F. does not enter a team in the O.H.A. race this winter, it is quite possible that an intermediate "A" team may be forthcoming from Belleville. . . . A good sound "A" loop could be formed with Kingston, Peterboro, Oshawa and Belleville. . . . We'll call Argos, Ottawa, Sarnia Battery and Balmy Beach for today's football winners.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Convoy"

A picture such as "Convoy" which opens at the Capitol theatre Sunday night, and continues through Thursday, could not have been produced at any other moment in the history of the world. Primarily, it must be seen, because it is the story of today, and of the problems and aspirations of us and our country. Its central theme,—the heroism of the British in this crisis,—is told in thrilling epic style, is given lavish production, and above all it is authentic.

Motion pictures that were timely, have been made before, but never have the times contained such thrilling material for a picture. "Convoy" tells the story of a group of people who represent a cross-section of humanity,—thrown together by the war. They are average humans who live normal, peaceful lives until the war suddenly catapults them into amazing, exciting adventure. This is our story. This is a story of courage,—the courage of mankind in the most terrifying period of history. It is as stirring as a history of the present,—since that is exactly what it is.

The stars were selected carefully to recreate the thought and actions of their fellow men. "Convoy's" players are all distinguished actors—Clive Brook, the star of "Cavalcade", John Clements of Four feathers, Judy Campbell a beautiful new actress who reaches the top in this her first picture, and Chas. Farrell, the only American in the cast. There are also three of England's great stage stars, Penelope Dudley Ward, Hay Petrie and Seymour Hicks. See "Convoy" if you want to appreciate the full meaning of our times. At any rate see it if you want superlative entertainment.

AT THE McCARTHY

"The Howards of Virginia"

Acclaimed the best motion picture released in September and winner of the Blue Ribbon Award, given by the National Screen Council, whose selection is governed by outstanding merit and suitability of the film to whole-family entertainment, "The Howards of Virginia' co-starring Cary Grant and Martha Scott, opens it's Dominion of Canada premiere at the McCarthy Theatre Sunday midnight. Two weeks from the time it commenced its outstanding engagement in Radio City Music Hall, New York City.

"The Howards of Virginia" was gloriously filmed by Frank Lloyd who gave you memorable "Cavalcade" and "Mutiny on The Bounty" and it was brought to the screen by Sidney Buchman who was also responsible for "Mr. Smith Goes To Washington," "Theodora Goes Wild" and "Holiday."

The story of "The Howards of Virginia" is from the great book "The Tree of Liberty" by Elizabeth Page.

Sir Harry Lauder

Sir Harry Lauder in his first motion picture "Song of the Road" a picture packed with the kind of entertainment that will creep into your heart to live forever, is now showing at the McCarthy Theatre for the last time, in addition to a splendid co-feature attraction "The Long Shot" one of the most exciting race-track dramas ever filmed.

AT THE BELLE

"Boom Town"

When a motion picture company takes a great human-interest story, more thrills than the screen has seen in years, and a group of stars comprising Clark Gable, Spencer Tracy, Claudette Colbert and Hedy Lamarr, and put all that into one picture, it can't go wrong. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer did that and more with "Boom Town", which is the next attraction at the Belle Theatre with a special showing after midnight Sunday 12.05 a.m. The recipe cooked up what can truthfully be termed the greatest screen entertainment of the year.

"Boom Town" is one of those pictures that defies description. It surpasses imagination and has to be seen to be appreciated. It has more action than a Golden Gloves tournament. The simile is not far-fetched. There are two swell fights, one in which Gable and Tracy take on three husky bruisers, and a spine-tingling fist fight between the two stars, not to mention a few other fisticuffs and a scrap between two gorgeous dance-hall girls.

But "Boom Town" goes farther in action. It sends Gable and Tracy diving ahead first into a sea of mud and then puts them into a long "underwear" scene, two bits of action that are hilarious. It then produces startling scenes of gushers booming in, of Gable riding a bucking mule, of Gable and Tracy battling an oil well fire that will leave you limp at the finish, and of a funny hi-jacking scene. It also has its share of romance, with Claudette Colbert and Hedy Lamarr as the faithful wife and adventurous siren respectively. It adds comedy to Frank Morgan and Chill Wills. And there's that cute infant Baby Quintanilla.

The popular Belle newsreel and 'Papa Gets the Bird" a funny comicolor cartoon precedes the feature attraction.

Performances start daily at 2.30; 7.00 and 9.10 p.m.

Man's Seven Greatest Mistakes

Man's imperfections lead him to make many mistakes in life, and the pointing out of these frailties has engaged the attention of philosophers and reformers in all ages. A writer recently enumerated what he considers the seven greatest mistakes of man. Here they are

1. The delusion that individual advancement is made by crushing others down.
2. The tendency to worry about things that cannot be changed or corrected.
3. Insisting that a thing is impossible because we ourselves cannot accomplish it.
4. Refusing to set aside trivial preferences in order that important things may be accomplished.
5. Neglecting development and refinement of the mind by not acquiring the habit of reading.
6. Attempting to compel other persons to believe and live as we do.
7. The failure to establish the habit of saving money.

FRACTURES ARM

Hawkesbury, Ont., Oct. 12 (CP)—Harry Reid, veteran Ottawa conductor of the Canadian National Railways, fractured his left arm when he fell from a slowly moving freight train here. Some years ago he fractured his right arm in a similar accident.

LAWRENCE REECE IS RECAPTURED

Serving Three-Year Term, Man Escapes From Burwash Reformatory

Sudbury, Ont., Oct. 12.—(CP)—Lawrence Reece, 23, of Toronto, who escaped from Burwash prison farm last Sunday, was recaptured early today. Reece, serving a total sentence of three years and nine months imposed at Welland last March, got away by sawing through a bar on his cell window and lowering himself by a rope of blankets.

Reece was recaptured by prison guards seven miles north of the Burwash Canadian Pacific Railway station about daybreak.

He had been spotted yesterday for the first time since his getaway. The wife of a settler who lives within a mile of the station discovered an intruder in her home Friday when she returned after spending the night with a neighbor while her own husband was away. She gave the alarm which led to his capture. Hunger is believed to have forced Reece out of the bush where he had been hiding for five days.

This was Reece's third attempt at escaping from custody. With two other prisoners he was involved in an attempted break at Mimico Reformatory five years ago in which one guard and one prisoner were killed. The other two prisoners were given heavy terms at Burwash and Reece got away after serving 10 months but was shortly recaptured.

The man's sentence at Welland was for automobile theft and breaking, and entering.

The Stars Say

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Saturday, October 12

RAPID developments of an exciting and drastic force may be looked for on this day under the impetus of a high acceleration of planetary operations. Especially does all relating to writing, publishing, advertising and promotional enterprises move with swift and far reaching effect on perhaps lagging or static situations.

Those whose birthday it is are assured of a lively year with much swift action if not drastic events in business, new contracts, and all manner of promotions. Particularly under high stimuli will be mental work, fresh plans.

A child born on this day should be exceedingly talented and versatile, with brilliant intellect, fitting it for a professional career.

"You Need Not Worry; We Will be All Right"

Stoical Courage of the English Seen in Letter Written to Belleville Resident

The fine spirit of the British people is again exemplified in a letter written to Mrs. Albert Newman, 325 Dufferin Avenue, by a relative somewhere in England. The missive tells of the writer's emotions while watching a "dogfight" high in the battle-scarred skies of Britain.

Monday 9-8-40.

Dear Brother and Sis,—

Letting you know we are still alive and laughing. It will take all his planes and more and still he won't break our spirits. We are getting used to them now. He always waits till night time before he comes. We sometimes don't get to bed before the sirens go, giving us the warning and then other times he waits till we are in bed and it is the kiddies who have to brought out of their warm beds into the shelters. Willie and John have got bers in the Anderson's shelter, so sometimes they sleep in all night.

We brought one down here and Cissie you should have heard me when they were fighting him. I got excited. I thought he was going to get away. It was just in front of our house and when I saw their was no danger of splinters I went up in the attic unknown to mother, as she gets windy when we go near the window. My it was a lovely fight. I was banging away on the roof too and shouting away "get him". Now you have him and you know some strong words when he came down into the sea then I realised I was talking to myself, what a fool, but when our lads came sailing over after he dropped, I gave them a cheer. Nancy missed the fun. I saw more than she did. He lost ninety-nine in one day and we only 22 and some of our pilots saved.

You need not worry we will be all right. You know the old song, "There'll always be an England", so cheer up. Write soon. Love to Joan and Fred.

Love from all, mother and Nancy too,

Your affectionate Sis,
Chris.

The War This Week

By DON GILBERT
Canadian Press Cable Editor

The way to victory in the west blocked by the Royal Air Force, Nazi Germany began a march to the east in the 58th week of the war. German troops sailed down the Danube into Rumania and German airmen took over Rumanian airports in what appeared to be the first moves in a drive to smash Britain's position in the Near East.

The grand strategy of the Axis, decided upon at the meeting of Hitler and Mussolini in the Brenner Pass the previous week, would be to strike at Turkey from Rumanian bases, seize control of the Dardanelles, occupy Syria and Palestine, and threaten Egypt from the east. While German forces attempt to achieve this formidable task, the Italians would attack Greece and Marshal Graziani would resume his drive on Egypt from the west.

The Axis press gave some encouragement to speculation that this was the course charted by the dictators at Brennero by opening a campaign against the Turks, but official Germany stuck to the original version that the German forces are in Rumania to "instruct" the Rumanians in the arts of war.

In undertaking an Eastern campaign the Germans would hope to keep Britain occupied by constant attack from the air. The assault on London was maintained steadily through the week, and Liverpool and other centres were heavily bombed, but the best information was that the damage caused tends to diminish as the days go by. Reliable data showed that during the week only two factories were really seriously incapacitated.

There has been a corresponding decline in casualties. Prime Minister Churchill, in his speech in the House of Commons on Tuesday, placed air raid casualties since the war began at 8,500 killed and 13,000 wounded, but said the number decreases week by week from the peak of a month ago.

The R.A.F.'s own raids on Germany and German-occupied territories showed increasing effect during the week, reaching an intensity that brought from the Nazi propaganda Minister an admission of "devastation" in the great German port of Hamburg. The Krupp factories at Essen, centre of German heavy industry were frequently attacked. The Royal Navy had a taste of offensive action, too, bombarding the occupied port of Cherbourg with shells that started large fires.

The strong language directed at the United States by prominent Japanese following the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo pact signing failed if its purpose was to intimidate Washington. So did the warnings to Britain that war would result if the Burma Road were re-opened. Britain answered them by announcing the road would be re-opened Oct. 17 and Japan has since been less boisterous. The United States answered Japan by taking steps to strengthen its fleet in the Pacific and advising its Nationals in the Far East to return home.

Glancing back 25 years:

Strong Austro-German forces invaded Serbia Oct. 6, 1915, as developments in the Balkans rapidly approached a crisis. Six days later Bulgaria entered the war on the side of Austria and Germany. In the meantime French forces on the western front repulsed heavy German attacks in the Champagne and Artois sectors and in the east the German drive slowed up at all points except in the Dvinsk area.

PAMPHLET SAYS

"The floor leader and spokesman for Willkie at the Republican National Convention was Governor Stassen, Governor of the 'German' State of the Union—Minnesota."

Valentine said Willkie enlisted in the army the day of United States entry into the last war.

Criticizes Administration

En route with Willkie to Albany, N.Y., Oct. 12—(AP)—Wendell L. Willkie criticized the Roosevelt administration today as "defeatist" and argued that such a government "can never win any battle against unemployment or against any foreign foe."

Winding up his four-day campaign into New England, the Republican presidential nominee declared that new dealers believe "the era of expansion is over."

"The government that does not believe that its people can be employed will never see to it that they are employed," he said in a speech prepared for delivery at Lawrence, Mass.

Willkie moved westward through Massachusetts today after calling the new deal "an irresponsible government."

He said in Boston last night that President Roosevelt "says that Hitler and Mussolini would like to see him defeated this November. He does not say this directly . . . He insinuates it.

"Dragging the European war into our domestic elections is not a responsible act. It is a reckless one."

Rail Grading Available Since 1938

In 1922 the first staff of swine graders took up their positions at the stock yards and abattoirs across Canada. The Danes had already found the system of live grading inaccurate and had established a system of dressed weight and dressed grade.

There are many reasons why the rail grade system was not practical in Canada in 1922 but during the last number of years these difficulties have been overcome and equipment for rail grading has been available since 1938.

Under the voluntary rail grading 62½ per cent. of the hogs graded in Canada this year have been rail graded and this is some indication that producers with good market hogs are getting a fair deal under this method of selling. The discontinuing of live grading by the government is just one more step in the system of improving the quality of Canadian bacon. The two systems of grading have caused the grade to be considered as an end in itself rather than a means to an end

Some good lots of hogs marketed out of the Belleville district during the week of October 11, 1940, are as follows:

Butter Rises 2½ c During Week

Toronto — Butter rose 2½ cents a pound to the best level since last April in the fourth week of advances on the Toronto market. Fresh receipts remained small as current production continued to decline to a point more in line with the heavy domestic consumption, and sellers experienced no difficulty in clearing daily supplies as they arrived. So far the fair trading has been in fresh make only, although a little butter did move out of storage during the week.

The market on No. 1 grade Ontario creamery solids closed at 27½ cents. Prices to the retail trade mirrored the higher wholesale market and churning cream likewise reflected the advance.

The egg market showed price gains of 4 to 5 cents on top grades during the week when receipts became scarce for the keen demand. Diversion from this market to the stronger Montreal market of some of the Western Ontario shipments helped to minimize local offerings. Exports to Northern Ontario points remained light, but the movement overseas continued brisk. Four cars went forward to the seaboard this week. Lower grade eggs held a steady tone. Arrivals of pullets exceeded demand, but there was some improvement noticed in yesterday's trading.

Thanksgiving day requirements helped quicken the pace on the poultry market. Arrivals of chickens showed good size and better quality and heavy birds were clearing under good demand. A few small lots of capons were in evidence yesterday. These cost dealers 22½c for 6-pound birds and 24½c for 6½ to 8 pound.

Montreal Produce.

Montreal, Oct. 12 — Produce market prices here as reported by the Dominion Department of Agriculture, follow:

Butter: First grade creamery prints, jobbing price, 28½c; first grade solids, jobbing price, 28c.

Eggs: Graded shipments in used free cases, selling price, A-large, 37½c to 38c; A-medium, 35½c to 36c; A-pullets, 26c; B, 27c; C, 18½ to 19½ c. Receipts: 430 cases.

Toronto, Oct. 12—(CP)—Prices were unchanged at Hull and Stratford, Bacon-Hog Markets reporting early today.

London and Chatham later reported unchanged prices: London, dressedweight $11.50 plus transportation, Chatham $8.25 liveweight and $11.15 dressedweight.

Terribly Mangled In Fall Under Train

St. Catharines, Ont., Oct. 12 (CP)—Terribly mangled when he fell beneath a Canadian National Railways freight train at Grimsby Station yesterday afternoon, Theodore Malls, 53, Crowland, died in St. Catharines General Hospital.

According to the information received by police, Malls was attempting to obtain a lift aboard a freight train travelling east. He slipped and fell and the wheels of the train passed over him.

Held as a witness is a transient known as "Scotty." He is lodged in the Grimsby Jail.

Malls is survived by his widow and a son, both of Crowland.

TURKISH TROOPS

The subject of the conference between the two statesmen was not disclosed. Neutral observers, however, speculated on the significance of a statement in the subsequent broadcast that "it seems the Balkans and even Soviet Russia are on the brink of unexpected war."

The clear-cut warning that Turkish bayonets will stand athwart any Axis drive from the Balkans was made in a military commentary prepared for the government radio by the Turkish general staff.

The broadcast, first official Turkish comment on the dispatch of German forces into Rumania, gave three possible explanations of the German advance into its neighboring kingdom:—

"One, to protect Rumania's oil fields from all possible attacks by neighbors or by the British Mediterranean Air Force.

"Two, to assist in the occupation of Egypt . . . Maybe Germany has judged it necessary to advance across the Balkans through Anatolia into Syria and Egypt.

"Three, to assist in the occupation of Egypt by occupying Greece, which would bring Germany to the Mediterranean."

The first reason, Germany's explanation, is "not sufficient," the broadcast said, "to explain such drastic action." As to the third, the raido commented that a land force still would be unable to reach Egypt "because the axis does not dominate the Mediterranean."

Turkey also was depicted as keeping close watch on development of the United States foreign policy, especially as it affects Great Britain.

Turkish officials and the diplomatic corps were entertained at the German Embassy in Istanbul last night with a showing of Nazi war films.

Some diplomats recalled privately that the Germans showed a similar film record of the Polish campaign at Oslo a few days before the Norwegian invasion.

The semi-official Anatolian News Agency, commenting on reports that Rumania has banned oil exports to Turkey since the Nazi military infiltration, said the "Turkish-Rumanian trade agreement continues to be operative and no obstacles are seen to its continuance."

The Gallup Poll Predicts Roosevelt Will be Elected

By CHARLES BRUCE

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, Oct. 12 (CP).—United States voters are still almost a month away from the ballot boxes, but this presidential election has developed into a "battle of the polls" already.

Heat began to generate when the last state-by-state survey of the American Institute of Public Opinion — the Gallup poll — showed the Democrats out in front in 42 states and the Republicans in only six, or a 499-32 score in the electoral college.

Joseph Martin, Republican national chairman, called that poll of opinion "preposterous." Dr. George Gallup, in his report of the survey said it covered the Sept. 20-Oct. 2 period. Mr. Martin said he had later figures showing increases for the Republican candidate.

Then the Dunn survey, directed by statistical analyst Rogers C. Dunn, claiming to have overcome handicaps encountered by Dr. Gallup, came out with a forecast of Wendell Willkie's election with not less than 334 electoral votes.

The columnists got into it when Gen. Hugh Johnson, once chief of the National Industrial Recovery Administration, but no friend of Franklin Roosevelt now, wrote a couple of columns headed "Dopester Polls and Sampling Polls" in which he roasted the samplers, banking his hottest verbal embers around Dr. Gallup.

UNCOUNTED DEAD

Flashes Light Coastlines

Big shells exploding at three-minute intervals shook the coasts of southeastern England and Nazi-held France. Flashes of gunfire lighted both sides of the strait of Dover. From bases back of the smoking guns the Royal Air Force roared eastward for new blows at concentration points along the coast. Bombs were dropped near Calais and Cape Gris Nez lighthouse, where two big German coastal batteries were firing.

The Air Ministry reported that despite fog and unfavorable flying conditions over Germany "some military objectives" there were bombed in addition to "heavy attacks" on the coastal bases.

London Times Hit

A bomb dropped in a recent raid smashed into the building of The London Times, which won the praise of Prime Minister Churchill for carrying on its editions without interruption despite severe damage.

Two big explosives fell yesterday near the grounds of a country home where United States Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy is staying. Cottages were wrecked and 11 persons injured. The Ambassador was unhurt.

Near damaged Canterbury Cathedral, 40 miles southeast of London, a bomb yesterday killed Lydia Cecil Hill, 27-year-old showgirl upon whom the wealthy Sultan of Johore showered gifts inscribed "with all my love".

The 67-year-old Sultan, who once gave $2,500,000 toward construction of the British naval base at Singapore, sobbed when informed of her death.

Miss Hill was trying on a fur coat in an expensive shop in Canterbury when she was killed.

The bomb damage to ancient Canterbury Cathedral was limited almost entirely to shattered windows.

A German aviator who jumped by parachute from his damaged plane was captured today by police and townsfolk who searched through the night in the mountains of Galas.

12 Districts Attacked

Although London bore the brunt of the overnight air raids on Britain, 12 other districts were attacked. A communique said these were in Scotland, Wales, Northwestern, Northeastern and Southern England.

Casualties were described as "light" in London, and "very light" elsewhere.

A London church was wrecked and a Y.M.C.A. property, a furniture warehouse and a hotel were damaged.

"Damage was done to a number of houses and shops," a communique said. "In one district a number of people travelling by omnibus were killed or injured."

In all three buses were wrecked by the explosion. One was smashed and the wreckage hurled against two others and a shop window. The number killed and injured were not disclosed.

Several Houses Crumbled

In another section bombs crumbled several homes and from the wreckage four injured members of a family were dug by neighbors. Some persons who lingered in the darkened streets were killed.

Three R.A.F. fighters pursued a group of Dornier bombers which attacked Liverpool. Three of the raiders were shot down. The Air Ministry announced five other German planes destroyed and nine British planes lost. Six of the British pilots were saved.

Steadily the names of persons widely known and places often seen by visitors from around the world swelled the casualty lists and the accounts of damage done by Nazi bombs.

N. Y. Tribune Claims Premier and Minister Of Belgian Gov't Held

New York, Oct. 12 (CP)—The The 100-pound pivot was with Tig-today it has learned from "private messages arriving in New York from Madrid" that Premier Hubert Pierlot and Foreign Minister Paul-Henri Spaak of the Belgian government-in-exile were arrested in Spain nine days ago.

The newspaper says their arrest "ended an attempt to rejoin their government in London from Vichy." During their abortive flight the Belgian officials were said by the paper to have passed "three days in the No-Man's-Land along the Spanish-frontier, sleeping in open fields."

The Herald Tribune continues:-

"The two Belgians left France on Aug. 28, after the Vichy government of Marshal Petain had broken off relations with their exiled regime. After five days in Perpignan, on the French side of the Spanish frontier, they were admitted to Spain, which still officially recognizes their Ambassador in Madrid.

"Their permission to travel through the country was revoked the same day, however, and they slept for three nights in a meadow between the two frontiers.

"Admitted a second time to Spain, they were allowed to proceed only as far as Gerona . . . For some weeks they were detained in their hotel in Gerona, in spite of friendly representations reported to have been made on their behalf in Madrid by both the British Foreign Office and the United States State Department. News of their arrest on Oct. 3 reached New York for the first time yesterday."

HANSON CHARGES

In "the biggest crime against our war effort," the Prime Minister had refused in 1938 to have the men trained in Canada at the expense of the British Government. But since the last session of Parliament the British Deputy Minister for Air had visited the Dominion.

Rejected in 1938 Charge

Now, the Conservative leader said, Mr. King had "agreed to the very same proposal that he rejected in 1938."

Nothing had been seen on the plan in the newspapers, but he had been informed of it by the Air Ministry. "We are going on with the 10,000 trainee scheme of which you have heard so much," he told his hearers.

Mr. King's asserted 1938 refusal had been "one of the saddest mistakes any man has ever made." Had the British offer been accepted, "we would now be having a steady stream of young airmen trained to fight battles."

In the matter of national mobilization, Mr. Hanson said, he had a "hunch" public opinion might force the prime minister to "go the whole way" if the war grew worse.

Only Half Measure Is Claim.

This would be "the only democratic way to raise an army for the defence of your country, and for the defence of your country's defenders." The present Mobilization Act was only a half-way measure, he said.

He believed Quebec, though its people had been told for 23 years by Justice Minister Lapointe that "never more would their children be conscripted for home or foreign defence," would give assistance wholeheartedly "when the proper appeal was made".

Mr. Hanson renewed his charges that Canada was carrying on a "Liberal war", that responsible government had been discarded in the hasty dissolution of parliament early this year and that the 1st Division had been badly-equipped when it sailed overseas. He said he did not want to enter the King government, and "I certainly never intend to go into his war council".

Plan Disclosed to Press

The plan to move British airmen to Canada for training, apart from the British Commonwealth Air Training plan schools, was disclosed to members of the Parliamentary Press gallery confidentially on Aug. 14, by Air Minister Power.

In an off-the-record talk Maj. Power asked the co-operation of the newspapermen in meeting a request from the British Government that the movement be kept absolutely secret.

He said the Canadian Government felt an immediate announcement should be made rather than have the story come out piecemeal but the British Government had in mind the safety of the airmen crossing the Atlantic. The British insisted on secrecy lest attempts be made to sink the ships carrying the equipment, and personnel who would be sailing at intervals over the next few months.

Asked to Respect Confidence

Mr. Power said further that Capt. Harold Balfour, British Under Secretary of State for Air, would come to Ottawa soon to discuss the movement and the question of an announcement would be discussed with him.

Capt. Balfour arrived a few days later and during his stay granted an interview to members of the Press gallery who asked him directly about the necessity for secrecy on the movement.

"I must ask you gentlemen to respect the confidence which has been reposed in you," Capt. Balfour said.

When it was suggested to Capt. Balfour that the presence of large numbers of British airmen in centres like Kingston would probably make the venture known to the public he said they would have to take a chance on that.

Ottawa, Oct. 12 (CP).—Air Minister Power in a statement today charged Conservative Leader R. B. Hanson with betraying a "secret not of the Canadian government but of Britain."

Maj. Power was commenting on Mr. Hanson's speech at Charlottetown last night in which the Conservative leader said 10,000 British airmen were coming to Canada for training outside of the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan.

"As I understand it Mr. Hanson is presently engaged in the great war work of recruiting for the Tory party," said Mr. Power in a brief statement.

"I am not aware of the measure of his success but I should say that by betraying the secret not of the Canadian government but of Britain, and tying certain facts into a shopworn political canard, he may have made no recruit. His name is Hitler."

PARTY MEMBERS ARRESTED

Rio De Janeiro, Brazil, Oct. 12 (AP)—Authorities announced last night arrest of 10 alleged members of the outlawed Integralist Party—Brazilian counterpart of the Italian Fascist organization. Those arrested were accused of attempting to turn a religious meeting into a political forum.

GERMANS GETTING OIL

Belfast, Northern Ireland, Oct. 12 (CP)—Dr. James Little, Member of Parliament for County Down said at a political meeting today that Germans have been getting oil for submarines from the West Coast of Eire.

He said a statement by the Eire Government that it knew of no such supplying was "putting the glass to the blind eye with a vengeance."

OBITUARY

WILLIAM B. L. HOWELL

After an illness of six months' duration, William Bletcher Lauder Howell passed away at the family residence, 236 George Street, this Saturday morning, October 12th.

The late Mr. Howell was born in the village of Cannifton, being a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Howell. Upon reaching young manhood he entered the teaching profession and all his life was devoted to the cause of education. As a teacher he was eminently successful and with his pupils throughout his long career he was popular and held a high place in their regard. In Chicago, Ill., and also in Simcoe, Ontario, he taught for a time, but his longest engagement was in the City of Port Arthur where he resided for thirty-one years and filled most efficiently the position of Principal of the Collegiate Institute for some time. In the year 1935 Mr. Howell retired from active service and in the year 1938 he came to reside in Belleville. During his residence here he renewed old friendships and made new friends to all of whom his death has brought sincere regret. In religion Mr. Howell was a member of Bridge Street United Church and fraternally he was a member of the Masonic Order at Port Arthur.

On his maternal side, Mr. Howell was a grandson of James Jamieson who was a land surveyor in the County of Hastings and also the founder of the village of Tweed.

Surviving him are his wife, who prior to her marriage was Miss Edith Livingstone; one daughter, Mrs. H. M. Sumsion, Saskatoon, Sask.; one son, Mr. Sidney L. Howell, barrister, Belleville; two sisters, Mrs. Fred S. Deacon, Belleville; Mrs. E. A. Edkins, Coral Gables, Miami, Florida. A brother, Dr. Albert J. Howell, died at Bayport, Mich., in 1939.

The funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this paper.

SIX DROWNED IN SMALL SHELTER

German Aerial Bomb Breaks Water Main and Demolishes House

London, Oct. 12 (CP)—Six persons drowned today in a basement shelter when a German aerial bomb broke a water main and demolished the house above them.

Said a man who was rescued: "Water rushed into the basement and there was not much chance. I was buried by debris. The water came up to my chest. Neighbors got me out in about half an hour."

Spain Resumes Diplomatic Relations With Chile

Madrid, Oct. 12 (AP)—The Spanish government observed the 448th. anniversary of Christopher Columbus' discovery of America today by announcing a resumption of diplomatic relations with Chile.

Gen. Franco's government severed relations with the South American nation July 16 of this year as the result of a dispute dating back to the Spanish Civil War.

(Officials of the Chilean Ministry of Foreign Relations expressed surprise at the Madrid government and said they had received no official information of such a move. They speculated on whether the announcement constituted an invitation to exchange ambassadors rather than an already accomplished reconciliation.)

Meanwhile, Marshal Emilio de Bono of Italy resealed Italo-Spanish friendship in a speech praising Franco as the leader of a nation which "is in full co-operation with the great renovating power of Europe."

Tactical Scheme For M. D. No. 3 Being Arranged

Ottawa, Oct. 12 (CP)—National Defence Headquarters announced today that a tactical scheme for Military District No. 3 with headquarters at Kingston, Ont., is being prepared for carrying out next week.

The scheme, the date and program of which have yet to be announced, will send troops through the area from Kingston to Montreal and will be similar to recent exercises carried out in Western Ontario from Camp Borden.

The Department said facilities would be provided for newsmen to cover these war games next week.

BRITISH SUBJECTS

Britons called the flight over the Legation an "intimidation" raid. Later the planes flew over the Rumanian Oil centres of Ploesti and Giurgiu, where French and British interests once were dominant.

Paper Makes Charge

Rumanian officials claimed the Axis patrol of the oil fields was a "visual guaranty" of defence against enemy bombers. The flights followed a charge by the Tageblatt, German mouthpiece here, that Great Britain had assigned to Turkey the task of destroying the oil wells by air attack, and that the British Minister, Sir Reginald Hoare, was involved in the plot.

(Britons ignored the charge. Similar trumped-up charges preceded all German invasions, peaceful or otherwise.)

There was no comment from the Bucharest government on Britain's action in freezing Rumanian credits on the heels of similar action by the United States. There was silence, likewise, with respect to a Turkish radio warning that Anatolia would be defended by 2,000,000 men in the event German military forces continued through the troubled Balkans into the Near East.

Appears Preoccupied.

The pro-Nazi Iron Guard regime of Premier Ion Antonescu appeared to be preoccupied with "Rumanianizing" industry and with its campaign for favorable intervention of the axis powers in the Rumanian dispute with Hungary over Transylvania.

Both countries, claiming their minorities in the region recently ceded by Rumania to Hungary are being mistreated, asked Italy and Germany to intervene.

From Budapest came a report that nearly 2,000 additional Hungarian refugees had poured across the border from Rumania, and that 150 Rumanians had been expelled from Hungary.

(The Hungarian army, which took over the ceded region a month ago, is virtually at full strength, and the public in Budapest excitedly talked of winning more of the area. Thousands of students demonstrated in Budapest streets.)

Telephone Line Taken Over.

An Iron Guardist commissar took over the American-owned Rumanian telephone company last night and said Iron Guardists would be selected to take over all the important executive posts eventually. This was a part of the government's announced program to place all foreign owned companies under Iron Guard direction.

Turkey's warning, broadcast from Ankara, impressed foreign circles here as evidence that Turkey is taking all possible precautions to forestall a possible invasion, but nevertheless is awaiting crystallization

London, Oct. 12—(CP)—A Foreign Office spokesman declared today British subjects in Rumania have been warned of dangers they might run if they remained in "enemy occupied" territory.

The residents were advised yesterday to leave Rumania because of the movement of German soldiers into the country.

The spokesman said the British legation in Bucharest expected to be able to arrange means for all who wished to leave.

Sir Reginald Hoare, British Minister to Rumania, "confronted by contradictory statements from members of the Rumanian government," is constantly pressing for "further information and an explanation," the spokesman continued.

This source said the British minister is especially interested in obtaining detailed information on the number of German troops being admitted to Rumania.

FOUR MEN BEHEADED

Berlin, Oct. 12 (AP)—Four Danzig men were beheaded today for high treason. The Peoples' Court ruled that the four—Karl Hoffman, Erich Schulz, Willi Tosch and Herman Chill—belonged before the war to an organization outside the Reich aimed at undermining the efficiency of the German armed forces through sabotage and overthrowing the Reich's constitution. Forty persons have been beheaded as traitors thus far in 1940.

AMBASSADORS RETURN

Moscow, (AP)—Turkish ambassador Haidar Aktay returned to his post here today after a two-month absence. The ambassador left Moscow Aug. 12. Since then the Soviet Government has appointed Sergei Vinogradoff as the new ambassador to Ankara. German ambassador Count Friedrich Werner Von Der Schulenburg also is returning to Moscow this weekend after a three-keek vacation.

Trenton and District

Trenton, Oct. 12—Large quantities of vegetables, apples and other kinds of fruit were auctioned off here this morning in an effort to raise money for the War Victims' Fund.

The vegetables and fruit were donated for the fund by gardeners and farmers of the Trenton area. Charles E. York, auctioneer, donated his services for the auction.

Collect Paper

Students of the Trenton High School collected about eleven tons of paper during their recent drive to raise funds for the Trenton Red Cross. Part of the money realized from the sale of the paper will be used to purchase gifts for former students of the Trenton High School who have enlisted and are serving overseas.

The paper will bring about $125. when sold and will be a large donation for the Red Cross.

Registration of shotguns, rifles and revolvers at the Trenton police station, indicates there are practically enough guns so that every able-bodied man could be supplied if the occasion should ever arise. 1200 guns of all makes and varieties, some new, some of ancient vintage such as muzzleloaders, have been brought to the police station. The guns were registered to conform with the National Defence Act.

U.S. CAN REPOSSESS MATERIAL NOT SENT TO FOREIGN POWER

Washington, Oct. 12. — (CP) — President Roosevelt has signed into law legislation giving him authority to take over war materials and supplies which have been sold, but not delivered, to a foreign power.

Under this authority, the United States government could repossess 100 airplanes originally consigned to Sweden and large supplies of machine tools now lying on the docks at east coast seaports for shipment to European countries.

LIVED NINE YEARS WITH CORPSE

Strangest story of the year is that which comes from Key West, Florida, where dumbfounded police have pieced together a tale of a resurrection that didn't work. According to the police they raided the home of scientist and x-ray expert, Karl Tanzler van Cosel, 70. There on one of twin beds in his bedroom they found the preserved, bees-waxed anointed body of beautiful Elena Hoyos—who had been dead for nine years! For the past nine years Van Cosel had lived with the corpse. Said he, "I tried experiments to restore her to life. I hope still, if I live long enough, to bring her back." The beautiful Elena is pictured, TOP, as she appeared before death. Van Cosel is shown, BOTTOM.

ANSWER TRAINING CALL

As 30,000 young Canadians answered the call to military training under the government's compulsory military training scheme, this group of musically-inclined trainees were pictured en route to their new camp in the Toronto area.

Do They Look As Though They've Been Under Bombardment?

Nurses, orderlies and patients in an east London hospital have broad smiles for the camera as they leave their bomb-wrecked building after recent German air raid. This was the 21st London hospital to be struck by bombs.

Little Benny's Note Book

After supper ma said to pop, Willyum, what would you do if you found a diamond pin in a ladies dressing room?

Well first of all I'd proberly explain blushingly what I was doing in there, pop said, and ma said, Well of course I mean theoretically, Willyum.

Did you find one theoretically? pop said, and ma said, No, I found it actually in person. I was trying on an unimportant little dress in Hookbinders when imagine my inmost feelings when I saw a stunning diamond clasp reposing in solitary state right there on a shelf in front of my eyes. Well naturelly my first and foremost thought was to turn it in to the lost and found department, she said.

I hope your 2nd thought wasn't to stick it in your mouth and run, pop said, and ma said, Dont be abserd, naturelly I didn't have a dishonest thought in the matter. But it did occur to me that the owner might never apply for it and some lost and found clerk might not be able to resist the temtation to appropriate it and claim it had been returned. In wich case of course it would be lost to me forever in case it wasn't iddenified by the legal owner, so I thought perhaps the best plan would be to meerly leave my name and address so the owner could apply to me personly with a full discription. Dont you think I was right, Willyum? she said.

Well, I cant say you were wrong, in a skeptical hard boiled way, pop said. Let's have a look at the joolry, he said, and ma said, I didn't go so far as to bring it home. I didn't have time, because just then a big woman in a towering state of excitement came storming into the dressing room demanding her diamond clasp, and she discribed it so accurately I had no choice except to give it up. But anyway do you think I was justified to meerly report it instead of turning it in? she said.

I think the entire confounded question is academic, pop said.

Proberly meaning useless.

Checkerboard Love

By JOSEPH McCORD

A FIRST-RUN McCLURE SERIAL.

CHAPTER XIII.

Until this sunny Sunday afternoon, no man had ever told Audrey Swan that he loved her.

In the manner of every normal young woman she had dreamed her dreams in solitude, dreams unknowingly influenced by romantic stories and pictures. If they awakened no perceptible longing for love they did bring a knowledge of the thrill that must come when the words were spoken softly by the man to whom she was ready to give her heart.

"I love you, little Audrey Swan." No one could have uttered those words with quieter sincerity than Vic. Yet there was no thrill, no particular sensation of amazement or resentment. Instead, a little feeling of pity. It might be akin to love, but it wasn't love.

"Why did you?" was her low question. "Oh, why?"

Vic's smile was pathetically twisted, but Audrey was looing down into the water and did not see. There was no smile in his voice or eyes.

"I guess I had to, Audrey."

Audrey looked into his face for the first time. There was no sign of confusion in the hazel eyes — no heightened color. She even picked her words carefully. "I'm going to think you meant it, Vic. But I'm afraid it's going to spoil things for us. I'm sorry. Really, I am."

"I'm glad you said that," he answered hastily. "About believing I mean it. I couldn't have expected you to say that, for, after all, this is really the second time we've met. I knew how I felt about you after that first evening and the certainty has become so fixed since that it seemed as if the only honest thing to do was to tell you and find where I stood, if at all."

"And I couldn't tell you, Vic. Such a thing never entered my mind. I like you a lot . . . I think you know I do. But that's all."

"That helps. But before the idea is tossed aside, there is one thing I'd like to ask. Maybe you can tell me, maybe not. Would I ever have a chance?"

"I can't tell you, Vic. It's because I don't now. Honestly."

"And that's fair enough."

There was nothing to cry about, but Audrey felt perilously close to tears. There WAS something pathetic in Vic's acceptance of things. "I must be one of the general run," he mused, "for here I am, about to ask you another question. After I promised to drop it, too. But I think your kindness of heart will find an answer to this one. If I behave nicely, can we keep on being friends? I mean, may I see you now and again and not drop entirely out of the picture?"

"Oh, of course you may, Vic! Your friendship does mean a lot to me. Really it does. I want it to go on."

"Then everything's all right with the world. We'll omit all this from the record and start where we left off. O.K.?"

"It's a bargain."

They both laughed and instinctively started to retrace their steps in the direction of the house. But Audrey new that her heart never would forget. It would be a long time before she'd ever go back to the big willow tree.

When they reached the house they found Martha and Anthony on the porch, and the four indulged in a general conversation until Victor declared that it wastime for him to be going. He might drop in again before he left Parville, he said in answer to Mrs. Swan's invitation to see them again while he was in the neighborhood. His plans were a little uncertain. He wanted to see Jeffrey Castle before he left. His thanks for their hospitality were very sincere as he took his leave. He shook hands all around, and there seemed nothing significant in his light clasp of Audrey's fingers.

"Try to come back," she said. Vic had earned that much. He was trying to carry out his promise. And her invitation was sincere—but she'd have to be very careful. She would have been more certain had she been able to observe Victor Quinn's aimless efforts to endure a solitary evening in a small-town hotel when his heart and mind were elsewhere.

Vic's principal reaction to his visit at the Swans' was a suspicion that he probably had made a first class fool of himself and destroyed any possibilities of future happiness by being so precipitate. Yet he could feel no genuine regret. His love for Audrey had become such a part of his life that he had been unable to suppress a hope that she had in some way felt it. The great wonder was that she even had been kind to him, that she hadn't dismissed him forthwith and permanently. As long as she hadn't, there was some hope. He would never give up, but he must have sense enough to watch his step from now on.

At one time he thought of trying to escape from his reflections by getting in his car and driving out to the Castles'. No doubt the Judge and his wife would be glad to see him; they always had been very friendly. The Judge particularly. But for some reason he hated to obtrude into the picture when son Jeffrey would be the main topic of conversation, congratulations and all that. There was something jarring about that wedding that Victor Quinn did not care to analyze too closely. He was distinctly dubious regarding his friend's future happiness. That was an honest fear, but Vic wasn't so sure that it was altogether honest. Try as he might, he could not rid himself of a suspicion that Audrey had at one time cared greatly for Jeff, if she didn't now.

After a moody and aimless stroll about the dark streets of Parville, the visiting attorney betook himself to bed and, much to his surprise, slept soundly.

The following morning he presented himself at the Castle office promptly at nine-thirty. There was some curiosity on his part to find out if Jeffrey really was keeping regular hours. Miss Dodds had told him she expected the young man not later than nine. If there was no evidence of his return to Parville, Victor intended to leave word that he had called, and to resume his journey. To his surprise, he found his friend in the private office, feet up on the desk and puffing contemplatively on a pipe.

Jeff's soles came down with a crash. "Well, of all things! Where the dickens did you come from, Vic? And at this time of day! Come in and have a seat, fella."

Vic shook hands and dropped into a chair. "Why, I'm on tour at the moment. Vacation. After reading the paper yesterday morning, seemed to me that it would be no more than decent to break my trip long enough to offer congratulations and all that sort of rot. So here I am. Accept my good wishes, if you will."

"Thanks, Vic. This sure is a tough burg in which to endure a Sunday. Why in the world didn't you go out and put up with the folks? They would have been tickled to have you," Jeff added reproachfully.

"Well, as a matter of fact . . ."

"As a matter of fact, you were dangling around Audrey. Maybe YOU need congratulations."

"Be yourself. Just dropped in to pay my party call for the breafast I had there when you wouldn't feed me. That was all. I did want to see you, too. Looks to me as if double congratulations were in order. Nice to see you at work. Permanent, I hope."

"Oh, sure." Jeff deliberately relighted his pipe. "Trying to see what your coaching was worth. After all, a family man has to contemplate the sordid aspects of an existence."

"Good for you. Seems to me that will be rather an ideal set-up—you and your father here together."

"Everybody seems to think so." And Jeff switched the talk to other matters. "Of course you're going out to the house with me for lunch," he suggested, when Vic declared that he must take no more of his friend's time.

"Thanks, no, old man. I'm pushing on. I want to make Mooresville by evening."

"I'll lay you a tenspot you never make it, you old fraud."

"And why?"

"Because you'll have to pass the Swans' on your way."

"Then in that case I will stop and say good-by," was the imperturbable reply. Please remember me to the family. And I wish you all the happiness you deserve . . . which isn't so much. So long, old-timer."

"I wonder if that lad's serious," Jeff mused to himself after Vic left the office. "He's about the only guy I now of that's good enough for her. Queer how things happen."

CHAPTER XIV.

Audrey Swan did not see Jeffrey Castle during the interim that preceded his marriage. Nor was she surprised. She knew that he was spending most of the time at home; all Parville knew. She wondered frequently, in spite of assuring herself that it was none of her affair, what would happen after the couple were married. Olive had been positive in her determination to live in the city. It was hard to believe that she would change her mind. But, of course they must have reached some agreement or conclusion by this time.

For one of the city papers had revealed the date of the wedding as Sept. 10. It was to be in All Souls, the city's most fashionable church, and a morning affair. Audrey saw the name of Rhoda Willis among the bridesmaids. She rather expected Vic would be Jeff's best man, but he wasn't. Nor did his name appear among the ushers. Her interest was particularly roused by the information that the bride and groom planned an extended tour, but had made no announcement regarding their future residence.

That hurdle had been cleared more easily by the prospective groom than he had dared anticipate, when he was finally forced to bring up the matter for discussion with Olive. "Why worry over that?" she asked calmly. "For the present, you have given your father all the help he has a right to expect. Has he found anyone to take the place of the paragon you were telling me about?"

"No, he hasn't."

"Then he had better, darling. Surely he doesn't think we are going to Niagara Falls and back on an excursion. I'm rather fed up on Europe for a time. My idea is a leisurely cruise. There must be plenty of interesting places. You might look into that as a little break in your homework."

Jeff was thinking busily. This was new and unexpected. He had anticipated a honeymoon of a few weeks, looked forward to it as a respite from the storm that clouded his horizon. Now it appeared that Olive might be figuring in terms of months. One thing, thank the Lord, he could finance his own wedding trip. His father had recently announced that he was transferring ten thousand dollars to Jeffrey's personal account. It was a gift from his parents. There were no visible strings attached to it, but the young man realised that it was largely as a compensation for his decision to remain in the Parville office and carry on the Castle tradition. The Judge never had mentioned the subject again, after that one fateful discussion. This extended honeymoon was going to complicate things and the news would have to be broken to the Judge soon. There was another matter that lay heavily on Jeff's conscience. Annie Dodds was likely to think, she was almost sure to, that she would have to stay on and assist. It might be imagination, but Jeffrey couldn't help feeling that she was working largely on her nerve.

If the young man had not been so hopelessly in love, he might have suspected that Olive was carrying out a well-laid plan. In fact, she was doing just that. She believed that a few months of happy indolence would be a complete cure for Jeffrey. He would be anxious to compromise, would willingly do anything to escape the drudgery which she could see was growing more and more distasteful to him.

It was about this time that Jeffrey, after long hours spent in wrestling with the dilemma, had what he believed was an inspiration, and he voiced it to Olive at the first opportunity. "You know, darling," he began with his familiar elaborateness, "I was thinking about old Vic today. Been quite on my mind."

"Why?" she questioned a little sharply. She wondered if Jeff had a belated suggestion to make his friend be included among the wedding attendants. She had worked out that list for good and sufficient reasons in every case and considered any alteration quite out of the realm of possibility.

"Why, you know he isn't much more than a high-priced office boy down there at Brand and What-you-call-it's. Of course they're big shots, but he'll be a long time getting anywhere. Maybe he'd like to take a crack at my job while we're away. Father has a lot of respect for him, I happen to know."

Olive appeared to muse over the idea. "It would be perfectly splendid, darling."

Jeffrey was wondering shrewdly if Vic wouldn't entertain the notion with a good deal of interest. There was no use denying the fact that he had fallen pretty hard for Audrey. Be rather nice to be in the same town with her, with a decent income and plenty of spare time. It still looked like a good bet. If it worked, he could go honeymooning with a clear conscience. That legal task would be a cinch for Vic. And it would be a godsend to Annie Dodds. He believed that his father would be so impressed by Vic Quinn's ability that it would go a long way toward making him amenable to the impasse that threatened.

"Why don't you call him up?"

"I will. Right now."

The same afternoon Jeffrey found himself in the offices of Brand, Blumenthal and Brand where an office boy ushered him into a small consultation room. Almost at once Vic appeared, looking somewhat grotesque in a pair of heavy-rimmed reading spectacles.

"You look like a frog peeping through ice," was Jeff's laughing greeting. "Will your boss let me talk to you a few minutes?"

"Shoot," Vic ordered good-naturedly, sitting down and planting his feet on a big table. "You're in a jam of sorts or you wouldn't be wasting any of your precious big-town hours on me. What have you done?"

"It isn't about anything I've done . . . it's about what I'm going to do. Vic, I'm going to put my cards on the table. You're the only one I can talk to. I mean it. And you're the only one I know who can help. It's like this. Olive and I are getting married the tenth of next month."

"The papers beat you to that one, son."

"Don't kid. It's serious. You know Father expected all along that I would go into business with him when I finished law school. You know I never cottoned much to the idea, but there didn't seem to be anything else to consider until I met Olive. Well, the old gentleman and I went to the mat one day. He insinuated that if I went wandering after strange gods I'd have to scare up my own sacrifices. He didn't see why my allowance should be continued. It was a jolt."

"I don't see why," his friend observed callously. "I saw it coming a long time ago. I wonder you didn't."

"I did," Jeffrey conceded miserably. "But I didn't know exactly how to face it. Olive's told me point blank that she doesn't intend to live in Parville. Frankly, I've been stalling. I told Olive that I had to help Father out for a little just now because his office help is leaving. But now she's talking about an extended cruise. Months away, for all I know. Father won't be able to see that, any more than he will by using a nice money gift he made me to defray the jaunt's expenses. He did tell me that after I'm married he plans to give me a decent income as his partner. Whether I earn it or not, he means. I'm between the devil and the deep blue sea. I was a fool to let things drift so far. But I've been hoping something would turn up, you see."

"Darn it, you always were inclined to be a Micawber," Vic growled. "In what possible way do I fit in this? I can't see that it would do any good for me to offer my services as ambassador to your dad or your fiancee. I hope you haven't anything like that in mind."

"Hardly."

"What then?"

"Well, it's like this, old chap. I don't know what you're knocking down here or what you think your chances are. So I was wondering why you couldn't arrange for a leave of absence for a time, pinch hit for me with the old gentleman while I'm away. You'd be so much better than I, he'd be glad to be rid of me I mean it."

"I'm not sure I get that," Vic admitted slowly. "You mean I should give up a permanent job for a temporary one?"

"No. Get a leave. If your boss gets fussy, you can easily line up another berth. I know darned well that father would make it worth your while."

Vic slowly shook his head. "It's the craziest thing I ever heard of."

"Just the same, it appeals to you."

"In a way. I don't think you appreciate the reputation your father has in this state as a jurist. It would be quite an opportunity for any cub like myself to be associated with him. That's the only reason I'd ever consider it . . . not at all for the reason you have in mind. That's crazier still."

"Please think it over carefully, Vic. You can save the happiness of several people, I swear."

"I wonder. It will take a heap of consideration. See me next time you're up. I won't promise a thing. I stil lthink it's crazy."

Cornwall Council Revives Curfew Law

Cornwall, Ont., Oct. 12 (CP)—Revival of an almost forgotten Curfew Law sent Cornwall children hurrying to their homes last night.

Passed in 1893, the by-law had not been enforced for many years until Cornwall City Council revived it at its last meeting. Now two church bells ring at 9 p.m. each night, sending children under 14 off the streets unless accompanied by a guardian.

Police Chief Seymour said members of the force have orders to enforce the curfew. Court action against parents would follow persistent defiance of the by-law by their sons and daughters.

Experiments at the University of Buffalo have shown that parasites that cause the disease trichinosis in pork can be killed with ultra-short radio waves.

"Important Military Targets" in Berlin Bombed

Each of Six Raids Repulsed Before Damage Inflicted

Nazis Use 350 Planes In the Raids and Eight Shot Down-British Artillery in Action Shelling French Coast

London, Oct. 15 —(CP)— Reverting to mass tactics, German raiders made six thrusts at London today in gradually increasing force, using perhaps 350 planes in all after the fiercest night attack of the war on this capital.

Each of the six raids was reported repulsed before extensive damage could be inflicted on the city, however. Only twice did a small number of planes penetrate the city.

Instead of sending single raiders as yesterday, the Germans dispatched their fighter-bombers in formations and gradually increased the number until in the fourth attack 100 planes were used.

The succession of waves was met over the southeast coast by squadron after squadron of British fighters.

In the early morning, British long-range guns on the Channel coast fired several salvoes across the Dover Strait. Their shells burst in the sea, but mist prevented watchers in the English coast from seeing the targets.

By noon, the R.A.F. had shot down eight German planes. One Messerschmitt blew up in a battle near Eltham, in Kent. The pilot was found dead.

In another fight in the clouds over the southeast coast, R.A.F. fighters ambushed a strong force of Climate and psychology! Are we now in the midst of an upswing or a downswing in climate? These swings, up or down, designate, according to psychologists, certain trends in human activity. They believe that the trend of climate indicates the temper of the times: The upswing, for instance, from a cold-dry to a warm-wet period ushers in a "Golden Age", one of great activity, which slows up in the hot-dry period, picking up again on the downswing to cold. Applying these principles to the present time, they believe that we are now due for a colder epoch which indicates a stronger individualism, tending to restore democracies. They make it plain, however, that this is only an experimental conjecture.

Britain Expects Second Winter Different From Stalemate of First

(By William McGaffin)
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

London, Oct. 15.—(AP)—Britain, almost convinced that invasion no longer is imminent, is girding for a second winter of war, which she expects to be far different from the "bloodless" stalemate of the first one.

Authoritative circles say Hitler's new plan now seems to be:—

1.—To deliver the main punch into Premier Mussolini's faltering invasion of Egypt.

2.—To harass the British Isles with raiders as often and as powerfully as the weather and British defences permit.

3.—To attempt to weaken the flow of war materials from the United States to Britain by getting the United States embroiled in war with Japan.

These circles say with grim satisfaction that the new program is made necessary by the Royal Air force, which has foiled Hitler's original plan of bombing Britain into submission. They assert that the danger of invasion unless something unforeseen happens, is "growing fainter with each passing day".

But they recognize that in thus stubbornly balking Hitler, Britain has posed serious problems for herself on the African front, and that the extension of the war to the Near East is a growing possibility.

With German forces moving into Rumania, and perhaps casting speculative glances at Bulgaria, British military correspondents conjecture Hitler has the following manoeuvre in mind:

1.—Attempting to sweep across Turkey (Allied to Britain), across Syria (in a bad way since the collapse of France, which held the mandate there) across TransJordan and Palestine to the Suez Canal and Egypt.

2.—This would form the left arm of a Pincers movement against Egypt.

3.—The right Pincers would be the Italian forces driving across the western desert from Libya, with perhaps some German aid.

Some experts saw the German part of this plan as many practical obstacles to its successful realization. Not the least of these is the 12,000-foot Taurus mountain range which has to be crossed before entering Syria.

A Princess Speaks

A sudden hush, almost reverent in its utter silence fell over city and district homes at 12.15 Sunday afternoon. A Princess of the Royal blood was speaking, and thousands of ears and eyes were attuned to radio receiving sets as Her Royal Highness Princess Elizabeth, spoke to the children of the Empire in her first air-wave address.

The finely modulated tones of the Empire's sweetheart came over the air in bell-like clarity. The voice of the Princess, strangely reminiscent of that of her mother, Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth, sounded clearly in the hush that greeted her, as she broadcast a message of hope to the far-flung corners of the Empire and the United States of America.

There was no hesitancy in her clear young voice. In that beautiful English with just a bare trace of her mother's faintly Scottish accent, Princess Elizabeth flashed warm greetings to the children of the Empire who have found homes in the New World. She brought a message of hope and optimism. "In the end all will be well," she said.

"Britain's children at home are full of cheerfulness and courage," Her Royal Highness said, "and urged children to remember "that when peace comes it will be for the children of today to make the world of tomorrow a better and happier place."

"I have my sister Margaret here with me," Princess Elizabeth continued, "and together we will say good-night to the children Margaret Rose. "Come on, Margaret," came over the loud- of the Empire. At this point the Princess spoke to the Princess speakers. Immediately the voice of Britain's youngest Princess rang out over the air. "Good night, children," she exclaimed. The farewell greetings of Elizabeth followed, and the broadcast was over.

A number of city churches installed radio sets in order that church-goers could hear the address of the Princess.....Hotels, restaurants and other places where people were gathered grew strangely silent as the British announcer "introduced" the Royal speaker. When it was over, women dabbed at suspiciously moist eyes. In one restaurant, two young girls sobbed unashamedly. Men swallowed awkwardly as sudden "lumps" appeared in their throats.

With her very simplicity and sincerity, England's Princess Elizabeth, unknowingly, perhaps, forged a stronger link, if that were possible, in the chain of unity that binds the nations of the British Commonwealth. In her own words, she rooted still deeper in the hearts of the peoples of the Empire, the conviction that "in the end all will be well".

Russia Masses 180,000 On Rumanian Border

Bucharest, Oct. 15 (AP).—Soviet Russia was estimated today to have mobilized ten and twelve divisions—from 150,000 to 180,000 men—on her frontier with Rumania.

These figures, however, were not confirmed and the Balkans still looked for clarification of the Kremlin's attitude as the key to the delicate Balkan situation.

Fear that sabotage in a mysterious fire which destroyed three of Rumania's oil wells yesterday might set off the trouble was allayed by an official statement that the blaze was due to an accident.

Sir Reginald Hoare, British Minister to Rumania, still is here with a skeleton staff, primarily to look after the interests of four British oil men still under arrest on charges of sabotage. One of the Britons held is Capt. John Treacy, formerly of Chatham, Ont.

(In London, authoritative circles said Sir Reginald will decide for himself if it is necessary for him to leave Rumania and will be guided by developments.)

The oil fire, which destroyed wells at Baicoi, in the Ploesti district, was controlled after a three-hour fight directed by German specialists.

While the Germans speeded their supposed task of reorganising and modernizing the Rumanian army, foreign observers saw increasing signs that Russia is hastening to build an equally powerful military machine all along the Russian-Rumanian frontier.

Russian troops were reported pouring into border areas and rushing construction of five new military airdromes.

Moscow's continued silence left the Rusisan attitude a question mark but Turkey—Britain's non-belligerent ally—made no secret of her stand.

The Turkish press issued challenging statements hinting that German moves in Rumania were prejudicial to Russian interests and indicating Turkey's intention to fight if the Germans attempt to cross her territory either toward the Mosul oil fields in Iraq or the Suez Canal.

The signs of mounting Soviet strength in the southeast appeared certain to neutral observers to have a strong effect on Bulgaria, with its deep-rooted faith in Russia as her protector—making difficult any direct move by the Sofia government to tie in with the axis powers.

Bomb Disposal O. C. Stands Bail for Four of His Squad

London, Oct. 15.—(CP Cable)—Lieut. Robert Davies, who has been promoted to the rank of captain in the Royal Engineers, stood bail today for four members of his bomb disposal unit charged under the defence regulations with being concerned in a theft from a bombed shop.

The men were released on £5 bail apiece. Capt. Davies, the Canadian officer from St. Catharines, Ont., who gained fame for his work in removing a German time bomb from the grounds of St. Paul's Cathedral, will be responsible for the appearance of his men in court October 22.

This was the second occasion on which Davies had appeared in court on behalf of his men. On Sept. 30 he successfully defended two members of his bomb disposal squad who were charged with assaulting policemen outside a public house. He explained they had been working at high pressure in the face of sudden death and "undoubtedly became excited".

Duke of Kent's Wife Introduced to Him As "Sister Kay"

London, Oct. 15.— (CP)—When the Duke of Kent, youngest brother of the King, recently visited a hospital one of the nurses was introduced to him as "Sister Kay". the London Press reported today.

She was his wife, the Duchess of Kent, former Princess Marina of Greece, who had completed 50 hours of V.A.D. (Volunteer Auxiliary Defence) and gained the status of a fully qualified Nursing Auxiliary.

HUMAN CANNON BALL SIGNS UP

Raleigh, N.C., Oct. 15 (AP)—A "Human Cannon Ball" quit carnival life today and signed up for "a nice quiet life" as a private in the United States marines. He was Carl Kennedy, 19, of Baton Rouge, La., who said his profession was being shot out of a cannon into a net at county fairs. "About 20 cannon balls have been killed," he grinned. "I think it will be fine—a nice quiet life in the marines."

TIME NOT RIPE FOR DECLARATION OF WAR AIMS

Britain is Not Fighting Merely for Status Quo 'But Among Other Things to Survive' Says Mr. Churchill

GENERAL STATEMENT

World Opinion 'So Far as it is Free is Thoroughly Behind Us'

London, Oct. 15 (CP). — Prime Minister Churchill told the House of Commons today that the time has not yet come when any official declaration can be made on war aims beyond very careful general statements.

"We are not fighting the war merely to maintain the status quo," he said, "but, among other things, in order to survive.

"When our capacity to do that is more generally recognized throughout the world we shall be in a position to take further view of what we shall do when victory has been won."

The prime minister said there is "great danger" in making statements not of a very general character, but that world opinion "so far as it is free is thoroughly behind us."

The statement was made in answer to questions.

Mr. Churchill reiterated his statement of last week when questioned on the Dakar affair. "Apart from technical mishaps," he said, "the government take full responsibility" for the expedition.

"Having regard for the difficulty of carrying on the war, I must ask the support of the House of my attitude," Mr. Churchill said.

SUSPENDED SENTENCES GIVEN BRITONS IN TOKYO COURT

Tokyo, Oct. 15 (AP).—Capt. C. H. N. James, retired British naval officer, was given a suspended sentence of eight months imprisonment by the Tokyo district court today on an espionage charge. The suspension, similar to parole, is to remain in effect for four years.

William de Trafford of Nagasaki was sentenced to six months in jail on an espionage charge and the sentence was suspended for three years.

Eight other Britons recently have received suspended prison sentences or fines in Japan's campaign against alleged espionage or violations of the Official Secrets Act. Nearly all are prominent business men. Capt. James represents the Federation of British Industries in Japan.

New $5,500,000 Plant to be Built For Producing Special Alloy Steels

Ottawa, Oct. 15 (CP).—Munitions Minister Howe announced today an immediate start will be made on construction of a major plant in the Canadian war industries development program "somewhere in southern Ontario" at a cost of some $5,500,000.

"The plant will increase the Canadian output of special alloy steels by thousands of tons monthly," the minister said in a statement.

Addition of this new plant to others being erected by the Department of Munitions and Supply bring to $235,000,000 the capital commitments made by the Dominion government for plant construction to meet war needs.

Production of the new plant will be utilized in manufacture of gun barrels, moving parts of artillery equipment and in other types of military equipment where alloy steels are essential.

"The new plant will be in operation in 1941, well before the present armament program reaches its peak production," the minister's statement added.

Government commitments for plant construction to meet war needs have more than doubled since last June, the minister said, and all the plants and equipment will remain wholly-owned by the government.

In another statement the minister announced awarding of four construction contracts, totalling $151,000, on which work will start immediately.

The contracts, approximate cost, with approximate completion dates, and contractors employed, included:

Fort Frontenac, Kingston, Ont., $118,000, brick and stucco, November. Doran Construction Co., Ottawa.

Service Flying Training School, Dunnville, Ont., $3,000, heating systems, November, Adam Clark Ltd., Hamilton.

Soviet Agency Denies Kremlin 'Timely Informed'

Russian Official Reaction Takes Familiar Form of Denial of Newspaper Dispatch

London, Oct. 15—(CP)—Reuters News Agency reported from Bucharest today that advices received there from Bessarabia said Soviet Russian troops have advanced into Rumania. (Neither The Canadian Press nor The Associated Press had confirmation of these reports from other sources.)

The Reuters dispatch said Soviet troops were reported to have moved southward from Bessarabia and already to have crossed the Chilia mouth of the Danube, the most northerly branch of the river, and to be advancing as far as Sulina, on the mouth of the central arm.

"The reports suggest," the dispatch asserted, "that Russia is answering the German occupation of Rumania by move to gain control of the entire Danube delta."

"From the Sulina area," Reuters said, "it seems they (the Russians) are likely to extend their hold to the St. George Channel"—the most southerly arm of the river.

Moscow, Oct. 15 (AP).—The Soviet government through its official news agency declared today that it had not received what it considered satisfactory advance information of Germany's plans to send troops into Rumania.

This indication of official Russian reaction to Germany's move through the Balkans to the Black Sea took a familiar form, a denial by Tass, the official agency, of a newspaper dispatch.

This dispatch, to a Danish newspaper, asserting that the Kremlin was "timely informed" of the plan and of "the aims and number of troops sent to Rumania," was declared not to "correspond with the facts".

The agency published this communique:

"The Danish newspaper Politiken publishes a report of its Berlin correspondent stating: 'The Soviet government was timely informed that German troops would be sent to Rumania and that the Kremlin was informed of the aims and number of troops sent to Rumania.'

"Tass is authorized to state that this report of the newspaper Politiken does not correspond to the facts."

(In the first German admission that German troops had arrived in Rumania, Berlin "informed spokesmen" said on Oct. 10 that powers friendly to the axis had been notified that others were to follow.

(Up to two days ago, no evident reaction was aroused in Russia by reports that German troops were entering Rumania. Soviet newspapers published only factual accounts of the German march.)

NAZI TROOPS, GUNS, EQUIPMENT NEAR RUMANIA

Bucharest Dispatch Says British Officials Convinced Axis Plans Fully Revealed

BALKAN PROBLEM

Skoplje, Yugoslavia, Oct. 15.—(AP)— Unconfirmed report from across the Albanian frontier said toman troops had arrived at Durazzo man troops had arrived at Durazzo, Albanian port on the Adriatic Sea.

These troops were said to be a part of two complete German divisions (between 20,000 and 30,000 men) now at Bari, Italy, directly across the Adriatic from Durazzo, awaiting transportation to Albania.

Berlin, Oct. 15.—(AP)—The Nazi news and propaganda service Dienst Aus Deutschland says Germany is not putting economic pressure on Yugoslavia.

"Stories of any German steps being taken against Yugoslavia are without foundation", the Service says in a Balkan article. ". . . in truth, no questions or facts have arisen which have or could cause a change in German-Yugoslav relations".

Canadian Fights Fire in London From Top of Sign

London, Oct. 15—(CP Cable)—A young Canadian soldier standing unconcernedly atop a large advertising sign played water on the blazing roof of a theatre during the height of German air raids over London last night.

The Canadian was passing the cinema when an oil bomb fell and started a fire. He dragged the fire hose up the sign and fought the flames until regular firemen reached the scene.

He climbed down from his perch and waved to a large crowd who had been cheering him from below. "It's a hell of a fine business boys, s'long," he said and disappeared down a side street without leaving his name.

ESCAPES INJURY

London, Oct. 15 (CP)—Ernest Bevin, Minister of Labor, escaped injury last night when a bomb shattered the windows of a room where he was sleeping.

Mr. Bevin dressed hurriedly and went out to offer his services to air raid wardens, but found nothing to do and returned to bed.

REGULAR BAPTISTS ATTEND SERVICE

On Sunday evening, Oct. 13th, the members and congregation of Belleville Regular Baptist Church motored to Trenton to attend a combined Thanksgiving service held there. SMALL WHIRLWIND BLOWS PIECE OF GLASS INTO EYE OF CYCLIST

A small "twister" that whirled papers, dust and whatnot in a giddy haze in front of the City Hall shortly after noon on Saturday nearly cost an employee of the Hotel Quinte the sight of an eye.

Riding a bicycle, the young man rode squarely into the dusty "whirligig" and felt a sudden stab of pain in his eye. Persistency of the pain resulted in his securing the attention of a doctor who removed a piece of glass from the eyeball. While the eye is causing considerable pain, there is no danger of loss of sight, the doctor reported lated.

TWO MINOR BLAZES OVER THE WEEKEND

Two fire alarms, both for minor blazes, were answered by the Belleville Fire Department over the long week-end. On Sunday afternoon a chimney blaze at Doyle's Terraces, Pinnacle St. ,required the attention of the firemen to extinguish, with no damage being reported, while on Monday afternoon a kitchen fire, caused by an exploding oil can, caused damage to the home of Mr. J. R. Calbury, at 305 Pinnacle Street.

WELLINGTON SOLDIER WOUNDED IN AIR RAID ATTACK IN ENGLAND

Mrs. William Thompson, Wellington, Ont., received official notification over the week-end of the wounding and hospitalization of her husband, Private William Thompson, of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, following a recent air-raid in England.

Private Thompson enlisted with the First Canadian Division and went overseas with his unit. The cablegram did not disclose the nature of the wounds, or where they were received.

The wounded soldier is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Thompson, well-known residents of the lakeside village.

NAPANEE RESIDENT CHARGED WITH THEFT

Cattle rustling on a small scale was investigated in Lennox County yesterday and resulted in the arrest of Cecil Wales, Napanee, by Provincial Police. Wales was charged with the theft of a calf contrary to section 369 of the Criminal Code. He was held in custody and without bail to appear on October 21st for trial. According to Provincial Constables Grayling and McKenzie, who investigated in company with Provincial Constable P. Barrett of Napanee, Wales is alleged to have stolen a calf from the farm of Mrs. James McCormick, Ernestown, and butchered the animal, disposing of skin and part of the carcass. Wales denied the charge, but was held awaiting trial.

CHILD TREATED FOR LACERATIONS

Suffering several severe lacerations about the face when bitten by a dog, Nancy Lee Adair, aged 2, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robin Adair of Consecon, was admitted to the Belleville General Hopital on Saturday. The little girl's injuries were attended by Dr. G. S. Cronk. She was permitted to return to her home on Sunday.

ROBBERS ENTER POINT ANNE STORE

Robbers entered the general store operated by Frank McDonald at Point Anne some time last night and stole $19.65 in cash and a quantity of merchandise. Entrance was effected by "jimmying" a side door leading into the premises. Provincial Constables Grayling and McKenzie were told when the robbery was reported early today. Mr. McDonald discovered the robbery when he opened his place of business this morning. Although the McDonald family reside in the vicinity of their store, and other residents directly across the road, no undue disturbances were heard during the night to indicate entrance was being made to the store. Police are endeavouring to track down the culprits with the assistance of footprint clues, said to be left in the soft wet ground outside the store.

Several Large Lunge Caught Over Weekend

Anglers of the district said farewell to a season that was mainly devoid of anything of a sensational nature in a blaze of piscatorial glory over the holiday week-end.

The boys who thrill to the sport of hauling the big ones from the waters of the district, lo th to pack up their gear without a final fling at their favorite pastime, were well rewarded for their eleventh-hour activities.

To Leonard Reid and Ivor Butler of this city go the top honors for the best haul in the dying minutes of an anything but over-productive season. And once again it was the fighting "muskies" that upheld their reputation of being the best sporting fish of the entire calendar of varieties. The two sportsmen patrolled Muscote Bay beneath a sullen Monday sky and within an hour two beauties which tipped the scales at 36 and 20 pounds respectively lay threshing in the bottom of their boat.

After Reid had hooked the "big one which got away," Butler's line jerked with a savage strike. There ensued a strenuous 15-minute battle and the 36-pounder was slowly hauled alongside. The boys discovered they had no gaff-hook, but salvation appeared in the appearance of Steve Flintoff and Ray Lockyer, passing fishermen who came to their rescue. Fifteen minutes later the 20-pounder decided it was lunch-time and obligingly took Reid's bait. A short but snappy fight ensued and the boys discovered they had 56 pounds of lunge.

Harry Langabeer and Geo. Wallbridge Lucky Also

Second place, in the "Lunge Holliday Stakes" goes to Harry Langabeer and George Wallbridge. These doughty veterans of the fishing grounds came home with two muskies that weighed twenty pounds each after a three-hour sojourn in Muscote Bay. On Sunday, Harry preceded his fine holiday catch with a fine ten-pound pike and several bass.

John Hinchey and party romped home with the "black bass free-for-all" on Saturday, hauling 26 of the beauties from the waters of the bay. Other Waltons report good fishing in local districts, but the grey trout laddies who patrolled the waters of the northern lakes came home with long faces. "Not so good" was their terse comment.

Fisherman Fined For Placing Nets In Restricted Waters

In the absence of Chief Kidd, Sergeant Arthur Harman was present in police court held before Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C., today, acting as court clerk. Several juvenile cases that were to have been heard, were enlarged for another week owing to the absence of Chief Kidd, under whose supervision such cases were left.

Fish and Game Inspector Herb McCabe presented a charge against Frank Cousins, local commercial fisherman, charging the latter with the violation of the conditions of his gill net licence. The accused man was charged with placing a gill net in the Bay of Quinte restricted area for commercial fishing west of the bay bridge. Cousins pleaded guilty in writing and Inspector McCabe moved for the confiscation of some 3,000 feet of gill nets, which he had impounded after finding them in the unrestricted waters of the bay. His Worship ordered the confiscation and assessed a fine of $25.00 and costs. Crown Attorney S. G. Robertson presented the charge before the court.

Two inebriates pleaded guilty to imbibing too freely and were assessed the conventional "ten and costs".

Special Thanksgiving Services Featured in All City Churches

Prayers and sermons of thanksgiving mingled with those for victory and everlasting peace with, in some cases, the voice of a Royal Princess that came over radio receiving sets, furnishing an appropriate background, featured the Sunday services in city churches.

Appropriate seasonal decorations were evident in the majority of the churches with the colors of Autumn fruits and flowers enhancing the topical nature of the many addresses. Special music by choir and organ, and in some cases by outstanding soloists and musicians, was another feature of the week-end worship.

At Bridge Street United Church, the Rev. Dr. James Semple preached a forceful Thanksgiving sermon at the morning service. In the evening the Rev. J. W. Flatt, B.A., occupied the pulpit with Miss Gwendolyn Lambert, Newmarket gold medalist, a lyric soprano, giving the congregation the benefit of her beautiful voice.

The Rev. J. A. Dilts, new minister of Holloway Street United Church, preached his inaugural sermon "Three Rungs in the Ladder of Give" to a large congregation on Sunday morning. At St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, the Rev. W. J. Walker, minister spoke in the morning on "Not by Bread Alone". The evening service was of a Thanksgiving nature.

Following the Thanksgiving service in the morning, the congregation of Tabernacle United Church heard a forceful review of Hitler's book "Mein Kampf" given in the evening by the minister, the Rev. D. T. McClintock. On October 27th this church will observe its anniversary services, when it is expected the Metropolitan Silver Band of Toronto, will be present.

The Rev. Claude T. Olmstead, minister of Victoria Avenue Baptist Church, spoke to a large Thanksgiving Day congregation at both services. His evening theme was "Thank God and take Courage". In this church as in a number of others, the radio address of the Princess Elizabeth, was heard by the congregation.

Holy Communion was celebrated at the Church of St. Thomas and Christ Church where special sermons were preached by the Rev. A. Beauchamp Payne and the Rev. G. G. Wright, respectively. Special choral music was a feature of all services.

The Rev. D. R. Chatreau of Emmanuel Church gave two fine addresses his morning theme being "Give Thanks with a World in Flames", while in the evening he spoke on "Is there any way out of this Chaos?"

At the Alliance Tabernacle, the Rev C. V. Freeman defined the message and meaning of "A Psalm of Praise". In the evening he spoke on the subject, "The Blessings of the Trinity".

Mr. E. Tatham of Lakefield, was the guest speaker at Bethel Hall on Sunday evening, addressing his audience on "A four-fold view of the Cross". Prayer and praise services were conducted at the church of Nazarene by the Rev. W. W. Mallory.

Evangel Temple was the meeting place for large congregations where Evangelist B. N. Sims, Reg.N., continued her special services. Miss Sims was assisted at both services by her brother, Mr. W. R. Sims, Montreal, radio commentator and sports announcer, known to host of sports fans as "O.K. Bill". Mr. Sims sang and gave brief addresses at both services.

Salvation Army members and a large number of friends turned out in goodly numbers to welcome the new commanding officers of the Belleville Corps, Adjutants Charlong and Morgan. Special music, and a cordial reception was afforded the new officers.

Christian Science Society, Belleville, held their annual Thanksgiving service on Thanksgiving Day at eleven o'clock.

Following the opening hymn, the First Reader read the Thanksgiving proclamation as received from Ottawa.

The hymns and the Lesson sermon all on Thanksgiving and the Infinite goodness of God were most inspiring, followed by many grateful testimonies of healing and benefits received during the year.

Contributions to Red Cross Needed For Campaign to Reach Objective

So near and yet so far. It is the last grand effort that pushes the wagon over the hill; the last ounce of energy that wins games and battles. And so it is with the local Red Cross Campaign, according to officials today. The goal is in sight on the campaign horizon and a little concerted effort on the part of public, canvassers and collectors will, officials feel sure, bring the objective within reach.

At present there are a number of people who have not contributed, through no fault of their own, but because of absence when collectors called and other reasons. With the objective beginning to loom up, campaign officials urge these people to send their contributions to Mr. Joseph Imlah, Campbell St., or I. G. Hefkey, Royal Bank, Front St.

Collectors are also urged to send in their books and collections, if they have not done so already.

Belleville, like other cities, towns and communities of the Dominion must and will go "over the top" in the present campaign. The goal is in sight and teamwork, with all pulling together will send the figurative ball-carrier of the local squad across the goal-line for the objective touchdown.

The response has been fine, thus far, officials report, but there is still needed that last-minute punch, that eleventh-hour drive to bring "home the bacon". It won't take long and it won't take much, but as in all campaigns, the last amounts are the hardest to collect.

So, the officials urge, "All together" in one last grand pull, and not only maintain Belleville's reputation in contributing her full quota to humanitarian causes, but aid in the Empire's efforts to bring the war to a successful conclusion.

Police Blotter

Motorists who persist in violating city traffic by-laws proved numerous over the holiday week-end and a goodly number were apprehended for speeding, found in violation of the stop-street signs and more especially for driving without the proper lights displayed. Traffic Officer Doug. Ellis apprehended a large number of motorists for the violation of such by-laws over the week-end and summonses were issued in every incident.

Mr. J. McMullen, R. R. No. 1 Stirling, reported the loss of two small pigs on Saturday. The "porkers" were lost returning home from Saturday's market.

John Carter, 223 West Moira St., reported the loss of a large chicken which was stolen from his chicken coop over the week-end. Twenty birds were undisturbed. "Looks as though some person had chicken for Thanksgiving dinner," remarked a police official as the matter was reported Monday morning.

Two Stolen at Kingston

Two automobiles were reported stolen at Kingston over the week-end. One was a 1930 Graham Paige bearing licence plates number 449-N-2, while the other was a Dodge sedan, licence number 89-N-98.

A Starling Street resident complained that mischievous lads were releasing the air from the tires of his automobile. City police investigated and warned teen-aged boys of the community against such practices.

Reported missing from her home at Bayside early Sunday morning after failing to return home Saturday night, 14-year-old Beatrice Sine, daughter of F. A. Sine, Bayside, was returned to her anxious parent late Sunday night. The girl was found walking on Pinnacle Street, by P. C. Evans late Sunday night and later her father was notified. The lass told police she was tired of school work.

William C. Sills, R.R. No. 3, Belleville, had his 1930 model Ford car stolen from its parking position on the market square last night. The vehicle carried Ontario markers 3-C-162, the owner told police.

CAR TURNS OVER AT SHANNONVILLE

Several Other Minor Accidents Primarily Due to Slippery Pavements

Wet slippery pavements were attributed by police the paramount cause of several motor accidents, which occurred on highways adjacent to Belleville over the Thanksgiving weekend.

Mrs. W. R. Henderson, Brockville, sustained severe facial lacerations when the automobile driven by her husband turned over along Highway No. 2 immediately east of the village of Shannonville early Sunday morning. Mrs. Henderson was treated at the Belleville General Hospital by Dr. R. S. Gibson, while three other occupants of the vehicle sustained only minor bruises and a shaking up.

Mr. Henderson told Motorcycle Patrolman Siple he was travelling about 50 miles per hour and after negotiating the curve east of Shannonville, his motor car skidded on the wet pavement and turned over in the ditch. Mrs. Henderson was hurled out of the vehicle, striking a cement culvert where she sustained her injuries.

Cow Destroyed

A cow owned by Ernest Potter, Sidney Township, had to be destroyed last night after being struck by a motor car driven by Clifford Millar, R.R. No. 2, Belleville. Millar was proceeding northerly on the concession road running north from the Potter farm when the cow, which had wandered from the Potter herd, walked in front of the motor vehicle. A broken leg resulted necessitating the destruction of the cow, Motorcycle Patrolman J. J. Hatch stated after investigation.

Tire Blows Out

Josef Valchar and John Vobooda, both of Frankford, miraculously escaped serious injury when a tire on the automobile in which they were riding blew out forcing the car into the ditch as it rolled down off the overhead railway bridge west of Trenton. The vehicle was a complete wreck, Motorcycle Patrolman Hatch discovered upon his investigation. Valchar was driving when the tire blew, but managed to keep the vehicle righted until it passed the guard rail, following which it turned over into a deep ditch. The damage was estimated at over $400.00.

Charges Pending

A head-on between north bound and parked automobiles occurred at the foot of the Mountain View hill at midnight Saturday when an automobile driven northerly by W. J. Ryback, Toronto, crashed into a parked car owned by Ivan McFarlane, of the McFarlane Construction Company. McFarlane had parked his car on the lefthand side of the road, while drawing water from a nearby spring. Ryback drove into the parked vehicle head-on, with the result that over $150.00 damage resulted. Constable Hatch stated today that charges were pending.

Ross McKenna, 66 George Street, informed local police Saturday that a teen-aged lad riding a bicycle had crashed into his truck on Pinnacle Street. Mr. McKenna escorted the lad to the surgery of Dr. G. H. Stoble, where it was disclosed no serious injuries resulted.

MARKET ATTENDANCE AT A LOW EBB

Inclement weather kept attendance at the Belleville market at a low ebb on Tuesday morning with only a few vendors braving the drizzling rain to display their produce. Purchasers also were kept at home by the threatening weather and there were few takers for the slim display of garden produce and other vegetables which were held at prices comparing with Saturday's quotations.

Electric Organ Here for "Happy Gang"

With interest mounting steadily in the forthcoming appearance of the famous radio troupe, the "Happy Gang" members of the Belleville Rotary Club's entertainment committee are leaving no stones unturned to make the event a gala one here on Friday night.

In answer to a number of queries the "Happy Gang" is none other than the radio troupe which is heard daily over a network of Canadian stations, with the program originating in Toronto. The artistic Kathleen Stokes, long known as one of Canada's leading organists, will be here presiding over the Hammond Electric Organ being brought expressly from Toronto for the purpose. Then there will be Blaine Massey and his violin, versatile Bob Farnham, Eddie Allan and his accordeon and Bert Pearl, inimitable master-of-ceremonies, and pianist of the troupe.

The reserved seat sale is now on day and night at the old Eaton Groceteria at 279 Front Street, and they are going very fast. Potential purchasers are advised to secure their tickets right away and avoid any possible disappointment.

The "Happy Gang" is easily the outstanding entertainment to be brought to Belleville in many a year. The Belleville Rotary Club has spared no effort nor expense to bring this clever troupe of entertainers here so that residents of this city and district can see their radio favorites in person. The entire proceeds of the show will be devoted to the Crippled Children's Fund of the Rotarians, whose work along these lines has been an outstanding feature of the club since its inception twenty years ago.

The show will start in the Hume Arena at sharp eight o'clock and patrons are advised to be in their seats early.

CENTRE HASTINGS TEACHERS MEET

C. A. Wells of Stirling Public School Elected President for Ensuing Year

Tweed (Special)—Centre Hastings Teachers' Institute met in Trinity United Church, Madoc, on Friday, October 11th. Morning and afternoon sessions were held with President H. K. Carleton, B.A., in charge.

There was an attendance of 105 teachers from the rural and urban schools of the inspectorate. The opening exercises were conducted by Rev. Alfred Poulter, pastor of the United Church. A very fine address was given by the president on the subject, "Education in a Democracy."

Several interesting papers were given at the morning session. Mr. W. F. Brown, B.S.A., in his address on "Natural Science" urged the teachers not to neglect the teaching of Agriculture in the school. The subject of "Choral Reading" was ably discussed by Miss Phillips. Mr. Clare Morgan, musical supervisor, led community singing. An excellent paper on Social Studies was given by Miss Dorothy Harding who suggested a number of devices which the teachers might use to advantage.

Urged To Keep Objective

Inspector McGuire, in discussing "The Course of Study", urged the teachers to keep an objective before them at all times if they hope to succeed in their important work. In the matter of discipline with which some teachers have difficulty. Mr. McGuire pointed out that they misinterpret the spirit of the new course of study and have trouble with discipline, permitting the pupil to have too much freedom. There must be freedom with restraint.

At the afternoon session, Mr. James Irwin, principal of Madoc Public School, discussed Mathematics urging the teachers to insist on speed with accuracy in all mechanical work of the upper grades.

Subject of Discussion

The "Attendance Reports" was the subject of a discussion by Mr. S. H. Connor, principal of Tweed Consolidated School. Miss C. McQuarrie and Miss Loreen Connor gave a great deal of valuable help to the younger teachers on their methods of teaching Primary Reading.

Messrs. O. B. Edgeley and H. K. Carleton discussed the Rural School Time Table.

Mr. C. A. Wells, principal of Stirling Public School, was elected president for the coming year. Mr. S. H. Connor, who had been secretary-treasurer since 1916, was again elected to the office. The other officers were: Vice-President, Walter Moran; Executive, Dorothy Harding, Chas. Young, Loreen Connor; Auditors, O. B. Edgeley and R. Armstrong.

The National Anthem brought a very successful convention to a close.

Counsel Demands Crown Produce Some Evidence

Toronto, Oct. 15 —(CP)— In women's police court today Elna Lehto, held as a material witness in the death of Mrs. Aune Newall, appeared before Magistrate Robert Forsyth, who demanded that the Crown produce some evidence to connect the girl with the case.

The body of Mrs. Newall was found in a lagoon on the Toronto Island with a stocking tied around her neck. The woman's husband, Aircraftman William Newall, is also held as a material witness.

"How can anyone be held as a material witness when no one is charged with anything," asked the Magistrate. He gave the Crown and police one day to produce something to connect Miss Lehto with the case.

British Cruiser, Ajax, Sinks Two Italian Destroyers, Cripples Third In Extensive Sweep of Mediterranean

London, Oct. 15—(CP)—The Admiralty announced tonight that H. M. S. Ajax sank two Italian destroyers and crippled a third in two engagements during a recent extensive sweep of the eastern and central Mediterranean by the British fleet.

The Ajax was one of three cruisers which drove the German pocket battleship Admiral Graf Spee into Montevideo in the battle off Uruguay last Dec. 13.

The Admiralty said the Ajax's fights with the destroyers constituted the main action of the Mediterranean sweep and no contact was made between the main British and Italian forces.

RUMOR SAYS RUSSIA-JAPAN PACT IS LIKELY

Turkey, Greece and Yugoslavia Are Reported Standing Firm and Resolute

KREMLIN SILENT

(By J. F. Sanderson)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Oct. 15.—(CP Cable)—A far-eastern non-aggression pact between Russia and Japan may be signed within the next few days, according to reports received in diplomatic quarters here.

Japan, it was reported, would be given a comparatively free hand in China. Russia would receive a special sphere of influence along the North China border.

There are conflicting views here as to Russia's willingness to discontinue military aid to Gen. Chiang Kai-Shek but it is thought that the Soviet might continue efforts to strengthen Chinese currency and in this way aid the Chinese leader.

Rumor of Hitler's Plans

Rumors also are current here that Germany is offering Russia a special sphere of influence along the Dardanelles and is working to freeze out Turkey.

According to this report Hitler plans a big-scale movement against Egypt, the oil fields of the middle east, and possibly even India and desires to immobilize the Soviet war machine before moving.

There seems to be more foundation for the report of the Russo-Japanese treaty than the German offer to Moscow of the gateway to the Black Sea. If Russia and Japan sign a non-aggression pact it would form a double link between the Soviets and the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo Axis, because they already have a non-aggression treaty with the Germans.

Fear of Hitler's Unemployed Army

The keystone in Russia's Foreign policy at the moment seems to be fear of Germany and fear of Hitler's unemployed army. This fear became sharper when German troop entered Rumania, giving Hitler access to the Black Sea, which the Russians traditionally regard as their special domain.

Despite this Stalin has maintained strict silence on the turn of events and what he intends to do about them. His shrewd Caucasian mind may be dwelling on the thought that if he signed a rapprochement with Japan he would strengthen his position or at least give himself more time, the goal of all diplomats.

Reports reaching London indicate that Greece and Turkey and, to a lesser degree, Yugoslavia—the three remaining partners of the old Balkan entente—are standing firm and resolute.

The British government is in close touch with them and the Turks appear to be improving their relations with the Soviets. But the Balkan diplomatic picture all comes back to Russia, and the Kremlin is not saying anything.

The War Today

By LEON EDEL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

The Kremlin, in characteristic indirect fashion, told the world today that Germany—also in characteristic fashion — had broken its word to Russia, moving troops into Rumania without informing Moscow.

That the uneasy partnership between Hitler and Stalin is suffering strain, was divulged by the Soviet News Agency, Tass. It issued a denial of a report in the Danish press that "the Soviet government was timely informed that German troops would be sent into Rumania and that the Kremlin was informed of the axis aims and numbers of troops sent to Rumania."

This, Tass abruptly observed, "does not correspond to the facts".

What the "facts" were Tass did not say, but it must be recalled that a much-heralded clause in the Russian-German non-aggression pact provided that Moscow and Berlin keep each other informed of their plans and moves in the international sphere.

Russia's Sphere of Influence.

Russia would have particular reason for resenting the move in Rumania. She has always regarded Bucharest as within her sphere of influence. Furthermore, the German move means that Nazi troops have been planted along another Soviet door-step, Bessarabia which Russia recently won by ultimatum from Rumania. It means, significantly, that a rough German-Soviet frontier now stretches from the Baltic to the Black Sea.

While it may be premature to assume on the basis of this slender denial that a Russian-German break is impending, it is an important straw in the wind. Only yesterday Foreign observers in Bucharest saw increasing evidence that Russia is speeding to mobilize a powerful military machine along the Russian-Rumanian frontier — ready either to clash with German soldiers or join in a new land seizure by the Axis powers.

Soviet Troops Pour into Border Areas

Soviet Red Army troops were reported pouring into border areas rushing the construction of five new military airdromes.

Without confirmation elsewhere Reuters News Agency said in a dispatch from Bucharest that Soviet troops are reported there to have already advanced into the Danube delta of Rumania. If true, Russia would appear to be challenging Germany's self-elected guardianship of Rumania.

There was the possibility that Ribbentrop, Hitler's Foreign Minister, might make a hurried trip to Moscow to pour oil on the troubled Germanic-Soviet waters. Such a trip has been spoken of in dispatches from the Reich recently.

The Soviet government's statement was in direct contrast to a claim by Berlin spokesmen on Oct. 10 that powers friendly to the Rome-Berlin Axis had been notified German troops had arrived in Rumania and that other were to follow.

Russia-U.S. Discussions

An interesting sidelight on this development was a dispatch from Washington which spoke of progress towards more friendly relations between the United States and Soviet Russia being made in almost daily discussions between Constantine Oumansky, the Soviet Ambassador, and State Department officials.

London dispatches have told recently of renewed Anglo-Russian trade talks, and the Russian Ambassador, during a recent official tour of air raid shelters in London's East End received a cordial welcome from the crowds.

Supplementary Credit Of Nearly 4 1-2 Billions Approved by House

London, Oct. 15—(CP)—A supplementary vote of credit for 1,000,000,000 pounds ($4,450,000,000 for government expenditure arising out of the war was announced today in a one-page white paper.

A vote for credit for a similar amount was approved by the House of Commons last July 9, while a previous credit of 70,000,000 pounds was approved in March.

The government was given a blank cheque with regard to appropriations early in the war and parliament voted it money from time to time to pay the bills.

Exchequer returns earlier this month showed expenditures since April 1 were 1,681,125,532 pounds while the revenue for the same period was 475,549,528.

PREMIER KING TAKES SHORT REST

Will Go to Maritimes but Trip is Informal and With No Set Itinerary

Quebec, Oct. 15 (CP)—Prime Minister Mackenzie King drove through rain-swept streets today to the ancient Citadel, Quebec residence of the Governor-General of Canada, to be an overnight guest of the Earl of Athlone and the Princess Alice.

On the first stage of a trip planned for the dual purpose of giving him a change from the close application to work which has occupied him without rest since last April, and to familiarize him with some of the Eastern Canada military establishments, Mr. King arrived in Quebec this morning from Ottawa.

Until late this morning the Prime Minister was busy in his private car with two secretaries, dealing with communications reaching him from the capital.

Mr. King said he had enjoyed a good night's rest on the train and was looking forward with pleasure to his trip to the Maritime Provinces. He will leave here tomorow night.

Nazis Move into Rumania May Cause Break Between Berlin and Moscow

(By Edward E. Bomar, Associated Press Staff Writer)

Washington, Oct 15—The reported massing of Red Army forces on the Russian - -Rumanian border along with the sinking of two Rumanian patrol boats hint that before long Moscow and Berlin may drop their mask of official friendship.

The troop concentrations attest further the mutual distrust of the parties to the compact that startled the world on the eve of the war.

Inexorably, the time is drawing nearer when the Soviet Government must disclose whether it will resist or acquiesce in a German drive to the East through the Balkans.

Events of the last few days have dissolved any doubt that the Axis intends to dominate Southeast Europe, whether in preparation for a drive to attempt to sever Great Britain's lifeline in the Middle East, merely to safeguard a vital source of supplies for a long conflict, or both.

Stalin is not talking, but there are signs both that he may have made up his mind to resist, and possibly that the United States had considerable to do with the decision.

The Bear Behind the Mosque

The indications that Russia may be ready to risk war to thwart a Nazi drive eastward come mostly from Turkey Britain's non-belligerant ally and guardian of the Dardanelles.

For nearly two decades it has been a diplomatic axiom that Turkey is belligerent only when Russia gives the nod.

Now the Turkish press is a unit in asserting that Turkey will fight if invaded, thus strongly suggesting Russian promises of at least passive support of such a course.

It is only logical to assume that Americal official acts and statements of recent weeks have had a direct and strong bearing on whatever decision Stalin may have made or is pondering.

American influence on Moscow just now depends naturally on the signs of the United States' attitude toward the Axis and the extent to which the United States, seems likely to checkmate Japan, so that Moscow need not fear trouble in the Far East if she risks war in the Balkans.

Japan Given Pause

Stalin and his advisers should have a fairly clear idea by now of American sentiments and intentions. Ambassador Oumansky is called to the State Department for repeated conferences, Russia is granted long-sought charters of American oil tankers, and an export ban is lifted on at least some machine tools ordered by the Soviet.

Both the Army and Navy act to reinforce Pacific defenses and Japan is given pause by the preparations to return Americans from the Far East.

American and British co-operation in the Pacific is the reported subject of conferences both in Washington and London.

And if any doubt remained, President Roosevelt tended to dissolve it by his declaration Saturday night that "no combination of dictator countries of Europe and Asia will stop the help we are giving to almost the last free people fighting to hold them at bay."

Toronto Motorist Facing Charge of False Pretences

Driving away from McCauley's service station at Marysville without paying for gasoline received landed Michael Braun of Toronto right into jail this afternoon. Braun told Provincial Police he had taken his father's automobile for a "joy-ride" over the Thanksgiving holiday week-end and visited Ottawa and Montreal but his cash had become somewhat depleted to the extent he found himself financially embarrassed and in need of gasoline. Young Braun is alleged to have driven into McCauley's service station and cried "Fill 'er up," but he was unable to pay for the petrol. While Mr. McCauley was notifying Provincial Police of the incident, young Braun drove away. Motorcycle Patrolman Siple later apprehended Braun as he drove into Belleville, while Provincial Constable Patterson preferred a charge of obtaining goods under false pretenses. Braun was held in custody, but later today notified his parents of his predicament.

Winner of Victoria Cross, Thought Killed, Now Prisoner of War

London, Oct. 15 (CP)—The War Office announced today that Lieut. Eric Wilson, who was awarded the Victoria Cross after he was reported killed in action, is now known to be a prisoner of war of the Italians.

Lieut. Wilson, attached to the Somaliland Camel Corps, won the award for valor while commanding a machine-gun post during the Italian advance in British Somaliland in August.

FULL DEBATE IF M. P.'S WISH SAYS MR. KING

Final Decision on Plans for Nov. 5 Sitting of Parliament Will be Made in Week

FREE DISCUSSION

Ottawa, Oct. 15 (CP)—Prime Minister Mackenzie King was away from the capital today, and it will be about a week before final decision is made on plans for the Nov. 5 sitting of Parliament.

But just before Mr. King left last night on a trip which will take him to the Maritime Provinces, he announced the Government is prepared to allow a full debate on international affairs when Parliament meets next month, if that is the wish of members.

The Prime Minister also announced agreements reached between Canada and the United States directed to development of the water power resources of the international section of the St. Lawrence River, and the diversion of additional water from the Niagara River for power purposes.

Be Prepared To Stay

Mr. King made the announcements at a hurried press conference. He said members of Parliament should come to Ottawa Nov. 5 "prepared to stay".

The Prime Minister added that if it is decided to hold a general debate the present session of Parliament, now standing adjourned, will be prorogued as soon as it reassembles, and a new session will start a day or two later.

The original intention, announced by Mr. King Oct. 3 was that Parliament would hold only a brief meeting in November for formal adjournment, leaving all debate over for a new session to be called early in January.

Yesterday Mr. King said he wishes to return to the capital in about a week, when a final decision will be reached on which procedure to follow at the Nov. 5 sitting.

'No Desire to Avoid Debate'

"The Government has no desire to avoid debate," he said. If members wanted the debate to start as soon as the resumption date in November, the Government "would not oppose them."

Mr. King told about 20 news reporters gathered in one of the outer rooms of his office that since his Oct. 3 announcement there had been much discussion in the country, some of it critical.

It had been contended the members should be given an opportunity for free discussion when they meet next month, particularly in view of developments in Europe and the Orient.

The Prime Minister said he had talked with Hon. R. B. Hanson, Conservative House leader, before making the Oct. 3 announcement and both agreed that no emergency had developed requiring immediate attention of Parliament. If anything did develop, Parliament could be summoned at any time.

However, Mr. King said the Government had no desire to avoid debate, and would give members the fullest opportunity for discussing any matter they wish.

Unidentified Motorists Save Young Girl's Life

The quick thinking and prompt action of two unidentified motorists saved the life of thirteen-year-old Betty Calbury, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Calbury, 305 Pinnacle Street, shortly after five o'clock Monday afternoon when they stopped their car and enveloped her blazing clothes in their overcoats, after she dashed from her burning home following the explosion of a can of coal oil.

The young girl suffered severe burns of the legs and lower body and was taken to Belleville General Hospital by Imlah's hospital car, after receiving treatment from Dr. G. S. Cronk.

Members of the Belleville Fire Department raced to the scene following an alarm and extinguished the flames that threatened to envelop the house and which caused $75 damage.

According to Plainclothes Officer Fred Isard, who was called to the scene, the young girl had endeavored to pour the oil in the stove when the container suddenly exploded. Blazing oil sprayed her clothes igniting them in an instant. She dashed from the house into the open air, her skirt in flames. The passing motorists, noticing her plight, quickly stopped their car and rushed to her aid.

Her condition was said to be favorable by hospital authorities today.

FRUMPIEST WOMAN IN BELLEVILLE GETS BEST DRESSED VOTE

You remember her—the woman who never bothered about her appearance—who got to thinking no one ever looked at her anyway.

Look at her now! She's smart—chic—up-to-the-minute—and now she's the best dressed woman in town.

A friend decided something could be done about that woman's appearance. She reasoned that if one item in her wardrobe could be spruced up, the rest would follow automatically. So she started with the shoes and—you've guessed it—she told her to use Nugget Shoe Polish—the polish that preserves as it shines. And the rest was easy!—Adv.

Toronto, Oct. 15 —(CP)— In women's police court today Elna Lehto, held as a material witness in the death of Mrs. Aune Newall, appeared before Magistrate Robert Forsyth, who demanded that the Crown produce some evidence to connect the girl with the case.

The body of Mrs. Newall was found in a lagoon on the Toronto Island with a stocking tied around her neck. The woman's husband, Aircraftman William Newall, is also held as a material witness.

"How can anyone be held as a material witness when no one is charged with anything," asked the Magistrate. He gave the Crown and police one day to produce something to connect Miss Lehto with the case.

British Cruiser, Ajax, Sinks Two Italian Destroyers, Cripples Third In Extensive Sweep of Mediterranean

London, Oct. 15—(CP)—The Admiralty announced tonight that H. M. S. Ajax sank two Italian destroyers and crippled a third in two engagements during a recent extensive sweep of the eastern and central Mediterranean by the British fleet.

The Ajax was one of three cruisers which drove the German pocket battleship Admiral Graf Spee into Montevideo in the battle off Uruguay last Dec. 13.

The Admiralty said the Ajax's fights with the destroyers constituted the main action of the Mediterranean sweep and no contact was made between the main British and Italian forces.

RUMOR SAYS RUSSIA-JAPAN PACT IS LIKELY

Turkey, Greece and Yugoslavia Are Reported Standing Firm and Resolute

KREMLIN SILENT

(By J. F. Sanderson)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Oct. 15.—(CP Cable)—A far-eastern non-aggression pact between Russia and Japan may be signed within the next few days, according to reports received in diplomatic quarters here.

Japan, it was reported, would be given a comparatively free hand in China. Russia would receive a special sphere of influence along the North China border.

There are conflicting views here as to Russia's willingness to discontinue military aid to Gen. Chiang Kai-Shek but it is thought that the Soviet might continue efforts to strengthen Chinese currency and in this way aid the Chinese leader.

Rumor of Hitler's Plans

Rumors also are current here that Germany is offering Russia a special sphere of influence along the Dardanelles and is working to freeze out Turkey.

According to this report Hitler plans a big-scale movement against Egypt, the oil fields of the middle east, and possibly even India, and desires to immobilize the Soviet war machine before moving.

There seems to be more foundation for the report of the Russo-Japanese treaty than the German offer to Moscow of the gateway to the Black Sea. If Russia and Japan sign a non-aggression pact it would form a double link between the Soviets and the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo Axis, because they already have a non-aggression treaty with the Germans.

Fear of Hitler's Unemployed Army

The keystone in Russia's Foreign policy at the moment seems to be fear of Germany and fear of Hitler's unemployed army. This fear became sharper when German troop entered Rumania, giving Hitler access to the Black Sea, which the Russians traditionally regard as their special domain.

Despite this Stalin has maintained strict silence on the turn of events and what he intends to do about them. His shrewd Caucasian mind may be dwelling on the thought that if he signed a rapprochement with Japan he would strengthen his position or at least give himself more time, the goal of all diplomats.

Reports reaching London indicate that Greece and Turkey and, to a lesser degree, Yugoslavia—the three remaining partners of the old Balkan entente—are standing firm and resolute.

The British government is in close touch with them and the Turks appear to be improving their relations with the Soviets. But the Balkan diplomatic picture all comes back to Russia, and the Kremlin is not saying anything.

The War Today

By LEON EDEL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

The Kremlin, in characteristic indirect fashion, told the world today that Germany—also in characteristic fashion — had broken its word to Russia, moving troops into Rumania without informing Moscow.

That the uneasy partnership between Hitler and Stalin is suffering strain, was divulged by the Soviet News Agency, Tass. It issued a denial of a report in the Danish press that "the Soviet government was timely informed that German troops would be sent into Rumania and that the Kremlin was informed of the axis aims and numbers of troops sent to Rumania."

This, Tass abruptly observed, "does not correspond to the facts".

What the "facts" were Tass did not say, but it must be recalled that a much-heralded clause in the Russian-German non-aggression pact provided that Moscow and Berlin keep each other informed of their plans and moves in the international sphere.

Russia's Sphere of Influence.

Russia would have particular reason for resenting the move in Rumania. She has always regarded Bucharest as within her sphere of influence. Furthermore, the German move means that Nazi troops have been planted along another Soviet door-step, Bessarabia which Russia recently won by ultimatum from Rumania. It means, significantly, that a rough German-Soviet frontier now stretches from the Baltic to the Black Sea.

While it may be premature to assume on the basis of this slender denial that a Russian-German break is impending, it is an important straw in the wind. Only yesterday Foreign observers in Bucharest saw increasing evidence that Russia is speeding to mobilize a powerful military machine along the Russian-Rumanian frontier — ready either to clash with German soldiers or join in a new land seizure by the Axis powers.

Soviet Troops Pour Into Border Areas

Soviet Red Army troops were reported pouring into border areas rushing the construction of five new military airdromes.

Without confirmation elsewhere Reuters News Agency said in a dispatch from Bucharest that Soviet troops are reported there to have already advanced into the Danube delta of Rumania. If true, Russia would appear to be challenging Germany's self-elected guardianship of Rumania.

There was the possibility that Ribbentrop, Hitler's Foreign Minister, might make a hurried trip to Moscow to pour oil on the troubled Germanic-Soviet waters. Such a trip has been spoken of in dispatches from the Reich recently.

The Soviet government's statement was in direct contrast to a claim by Berlin spokesmen on Oct. 10 that powers friendly to the Rome-Berlin Axis had been notified German troops had arrived in Rumania and that other were to follow.

Russia-U.S. Discussions

An interesting sidelight on this development was a dispatch from Washington which spoke of progress towards more friendly relations between the United States and Soviet Russia being made in almost daily discussions between Constantine Oumansky, the Soviet Ambassador, and State Department officials.

London dispatches have told recently of renewed Anglo-Russian trade talks, and the Russian Ambassador, during a recent official tour of air raid shelters in London's East End received a cordial welcome from the crowds.

Supplementary Credit Of Nearly 4 1-2 Billions Approved by House

London, Oct. 15—(CP)—A supplementary vote of credit for 1,000,000,000 pounds ($4,450,000,000 for government expenditure arising out of the war was announced today in a one-page white paper.

A vote for credit for a similar amount was approved by the House of Commons last July 9, while a previous credit of 70,000,000 pounds was approved in March.

The government was given a blank cheque with regard to appropriations early in the war and parliament voted it money from time to time to pay the bills.

Exchequer returns earlier this month showed expenditures since April 1 were 1,681,125,532 pounds while the revenue for the same period was 475,549,528.

PREMIER KING TAKES SHORT REST

Will Go to Maritimes but Trip is Informal and With No Set Itinerary

Quebec, Oct. 15 (CP)—Prime Minister Mackenzie King drove through rain-swept streets today to the ancient Citadel, Quebec residence of the Governor-General of Canada, to be an overnight guest of the Earl of Athlone and the Princess Alice.

On the first stage of a trip planned for the dual purpose of giving him a change from the close application to work which has occupied him without rest since last April, and to familiarize him with some of the Eastern Canada military establishments, Mr. King arrived in Quebec this morning from Ottawa.

Until late this morning the Prime Minister was busy in his private car with two secretaries, dealing with communications reaching him from the capital.

Mr. King said he had enjoyed a good night's rest on the train and was looking forward with pleasure to his trip to the Maritime Provinces. He will leave here tomorow night.

Nazis Move into Rumania May Cause Break Between Berlin and Moscow

(By Edward E. Bomar, Associated Press Staff Writer)

Washington, Oct 15—The reported massing of Red Army forces on the Russian - Rumanian border along with the sinking of two Rumanian patrol boats hint that before long Moscow and Berlin may drop their mask of official friendship.

The troop concentrations attest further the mutual distrust of the parties to the compact that startled the world on the eve of the war.

Inexorably, the time is drawing nearer when the Soviet Government must disclose whether it will resist or acquiesce in a German drive to the East through the Balkans.

Events of the last few days have dissolved any doubt that the Axis intends to dominate Southeast Europe, whether in preparation for a drive to attempt to sever Great Britain's lifeline in the Middle East, merely to safeguard a vital source of supplies for a long conflict, or both.

Stalin is not talking, but there are signs both that he may have made up his mind to resist, and possibly that the United States had considerable to do with the decision.

The Bear Behind the Mosque

The indications that Russia may be ready to risk war to thwart a Nazi drive eastward come mostly from Turkey Britain's non-belligerant ally and guardian of the Dardanelles.

For nearly two decades it has been a diplomatic axiom that Turkey is belligerent only when Russia gives the nod.

Now the Turkish press is a unit in asserting that Turkey will fight if invaded, thus strongly suggesting Russian promises of at least passive support of such a course.

It is only logical to assume that Americal official acts and statements of recent weeks have had a direct and strong bearing on whatever decision Stalin may have made or is pondering.

American influence on Moscow just now depends naturally on the signs of the United States' attitude toward the Axis and the extent to which the United States, seems likely to checkmate Japan, so that Moscow need not fear trouble in the Far East if she risks war in the Balkans.

Japan Given Pause

Stalin and his advisers should have a fairly clear idea by now of American sentiments and intentions. Ambassador Oumansky is called to the State Department for repeated conferences, Russia is granted long-sought charters of American oil tankers, and an export ban is lifted on at least some machine tools ordered by the Soviet.

Both the Army and Navy act to reinforce Pacific defenses and Japan is given pause by the preparations to return Americans from the Far East.

American and British co-operation in the Pacific is the reported subject of conferences both in Washington and London.

And if any doubt remained, President Roosevelt tended to dissolve it by his declaration Saturday night that "no combination of dictator countries of Europe and Asia will stop the help we are giving to almost the last free people fighting to hold them at bay."

Toronto Motorist Facing Charge of False Pretences

Driving away from McCauley's service station at Marysville without paying for gasoline received landed Michael Braun of Toronto right into jail this afternoon. Braun told Provincial Police he had taken his father's automobile for a "joy-ride" over the Thanksgiving holiday week-end and visited Ottawa and Montreal but his cash had become somewhat depleted to the extent he found himself financially embarrassed and in need of gasoline. Young Braun is alleged to have driven into McCauley's service station and cried "Fill 'er up," but he was unable to pay for the petrol. While Mr. McCauley was notifying Provincial Police of the incident, young Braun drove away. Motorcycle Patrolman Siple later apprehended Braun as he drove into Belleville, while Provincial Constable Patterson preferred a charge of obtaining goods under false pretenses. Braun was held in custody, but later today notified his parents of his predicament.

FULL DEBATE IF M.P.'S WISH SAYS MR. KING

Final Decision on Plans for Nov. 5 Sitting of Parliament Will be Made in Week

FREE DISCUSSION

Ottawa, Oct. 15 (CP)—Prime Minister Mackenzie King was away from the capital today, and it will be about a week before final decision is made on plans for the Nov. 5 sitting of Parliament.

But just before Mr. King left last night on a trip which will take him to the Maritime Provinces, he announced the Government is prepared to allow a full debate on international affairs when Parliament meets next month, if that is the wish of members.

The Prime Minister also announced agreements reached between Canada and the United States directed to development of the water power resources of the international section of the St. Lawrence River, and the diversion of additional water from the Niagara River for power purposes.

Be Prepared To Stay

Mr. King made the announcements at a hurried press conference. He said members of Parliament should come to Ottawa Nov. 5 "prepared to stay".

The Prime Minister added that if it is decided to hold a general debate the present session of Parliament, now standing adjourned, will be prorogued as soon as it reassembles, and a new session will start a day or two later.

The original intention, announced by Mr. King Oct. 3 was that Parliament would hold only a brief meeting in November for formal adjournment, leaving all debate over for a new session to be called early in January.

Yesterday Mr. King said he wishes to return to the capital in about a week, when a final decision will be reached on which procedure to follow at the Nov. 5 sitting.

'No Desire to Avoid Debate'

"The Government has no desire to avoid debate," he said. If members wanted the debate to start as soon as the resumption date in November, the Government "would not oppose them."

Mr. King told about 20 news reporters gathered in one of the outer rooms of his office that since his Oct. 3 announcement there had been much discussion in the country, some of it critical.

It had been contended the members should be given an opportunity for free discussion when they meet next month, particularly in view of developments in Europe and the Orient.

The Prime Minister said he had talked with Hon. R. B. Hanson, Conservative House leader, before making the Oct. 3 announcement and both agreed that no emergency had developed requiring immediate attention of Parliament. If anything did develop, Parliament could be summoned at any time.

However, Mr. King said the Government had no desire to avoid debate, and would give members the fullest opportunity for discussing any matter they wish.

Unidentified Motorists Save Young Girl's Life

The quick thinking and prompt action of two unidentified motorists saved the life of thirteen-year-old Betty Calbury, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Calbury, 306 Pinnacle Street, shortly after five o'clock Monday afternoon when they stopped their car and enveloped her blazing clothes in their overcoats, after she dashed from her burning home following the explosion of a can of coal oil.

The young girl suffered severe burns of the legs and lower body and was taken to Belleville General Hospital by Imlah's hospital car, after receiving treatment from Dr. G. S. Cronk.

Members of the Belleville Fire Department raced to the scene following an alarm and extinguished the flames that threatened to envelop the house and which caused $75 damage.

According to Plainclothes Officer Fred Isard, who was called to the scene, the young girl had endeavored to pour the oil in the stove when the container suddenly exploded. Blazing oil sprayed her clothes igniting them in an instant. She dashed from the house into the open air, her skirt in flames. The passing motorists, noticing her plight, quickly stopped their car and rushed to her aid.

Her condition was said to be favorable by hospital authorities today.

FRUMPIEST WOMAN IN BELLEVILLE GETS BEST DRESSED VOTE

You remember her—the woman who never bothered about her appearance—who got to thinking no one ever looked at her anyway.

Look at her now! She's smart—chic—up-to-the-minute—and now she's the best dressed woman in town.

A friend decided something could be done about that woman's appearance. She reasoned that if one item in her wardrobe could be spruced up, the rest would follow automatically. So she started with the shoes and—you've guessed it—she told her to use Nugget Shoe Polish—the polish that preserves as it shines. And the rest was easy!—Adv.

SEASON FOR CAUTION IN DRIVING

Careful motorists know that this is the season when they must exercise care. It is the time of the year when fogs are common and drivers travelling long distances are cautious not to be caught on a long journey during the night hours.

The falling of the leaves gives rise to a condition of which the careful driver is not slow to take notice. Leaves are moist and often damp with dew or from the residue of rain on the pavements and make skidding only too easy and often too serious a matter.

The leaves, it is also remembered, tempt children to play in them and the motorist has to proceed cautiously lest a child on a city street may in play cover himself with leaves and be unseen by the driver. Particularly at dusk and after is this need felt.

A little later in the year there will be the new problem of the icy road and pavement with the first appearance of frost.

All in all, there are many reasons for careful driving and the good driver is observant.

PLANETS IN CONJUNCTION

In the sky at night at the present time are two brilliant lights, the reflected rays of the sun from the planets Saturn and Jupiter, now in conjunction. The unusual appearance of these two heavenly objects which have been drawing close to one another for some time has attracted attention during this early autumn. Jupiter is thirteen hundred times the size of the earth and Saturn is eight hundred times as large.

Great as these objects are and wonderful as Saturn is to the observer through the telescope as it possesses a series of rings, which make it an object of great appeal, neither of these giants, the largest of the planets of our solar system, possesses any life. Jupiter is enveloped in envelopes of ammonium and methane gases and has a temperature of over 100 degrees below zero. Saturn is partly gaseous and would float in water if it could be so suspended.

It is thought by some that possibly Venus and Mars may have developed some form of life. J. A. Marsh, past president of the Royal Astronomical Society of Canada, Hamilton centre, in an article in the Ottawa Journal says these planets possess an atmosphere and both have "temperature limits suitable to life of a kind. In fact, vegetable growth is strongly suggested by the planet Mars in its seasonal changes of color and analysis of the spectrum. It would appear that the continents on Mars are much flatter than ours, with vast planes and shallow seas contrasting with the lofty mountains and deep oceans of the earth. Also there has been seen on that strange planet a geometrical network of lines appearing to connect inland seas; all of which has given rise to the doubtful theory of man-made canals. The matter still lies within the realm of speculation. This much is known however: that physical beings constructed as we are could not live on the planet Mars or any of the other known planets. Differences in gravity, pressures and atmospheres preclude that possibility. An approach, however, to a problem such as this must take into account life in all its forms and it intrigues our fancy and stimulates the mind to exclaim with Camille Flammarion; 'Distant universes whose beauty is enfolded in the depths of inaccessible space, who shall tell us of the wonders of your known nature? The ant knows neither the heavens nor the earth and has never seen anything but the grains of dust he piles upon the ground, but the eagle soars in the heights of the air and measures with his glance the lofty mountains.'"

This speculation whether there is life of some form elsewhere than on earth is intriguing and develops the fancy and inspires science to new discoveries even though the discovery of life elsewhere may not be made.

THE PLANE AND MODERN WAR

How the airplane has fitted into modern war and how it has changed so much the style of war is indicated in the report last week of the total of British casualties of the air, army and navy forces and of the announcement of the civilian losses.

Losses in life are slight as compared with the human losses of the last Great War when tens of thousands might be lost in a day. Today war has been carried or directed right at the centres of the services which mould modern war.

The island position of Britain of course has had much to do with the present and recent phase of war for it has forced Hitler's hundreds of thousands and perhaps millions of soldiers into a position where they are non-combatants for the time being, whatever other duties they are performing. That Hitler had them in waiting to put into his barges and transports in an invasion plan is the general opinion but the airplane and other agencies upset that calculation.

If the war is marked by smaller casualties among the military forces, it bears quite heavily upon the civilians and yet according to Prime Minister Churchill the civilian losses are very far short of the expectations held before the outbreak of war fortunately.

The war of the air has changed the lives of people in many cities. Life in shelters has come into great prominence and the perfection of these shelters is credited with the saving of many lives.

If the war of the air has caused fewer deaths and injuries it has become more a war of nerves as it was recognized from the start it would be. The Nazi has tried every method to break down morale, by screaming bombs, by machine-gunning of civilians and by false propaganda.

If the war should move to another arena as there are some hints at present with much prominence upon the Balkans, something of the present characteristic of the war around England would probably be modified.

There is talk of a British offensive to come when British air supremacy in numbers of planes will be greatly marked. That indicates that still the airplane will have a great role to play and that it will pave the way for the advance into Germany.

The Free Tricolor In Africa

The dramatic appearance of the Free French Tricolor in the Cameroons should have a political and moral value far greater than the intrinsic importance of this forest and jungle territory in the heart of tropical Africa. Strategically there is nothing in the whole of the Cameroons as important as Dakar, in Senegal, which juts a thousand miles farther into the Atlantic and commands the great trade routes through southern waters. Economically the resources of the Cameroons are of slight importance and could have had little effect on the outcome of the war if they had passed into axis control. The real importance of General de Gaulle's seizure of the Cameroons is that it will help to offset the recent fiasco at Dakar and may rally other French colonies to the Free French cause.

General de Gaulle's qualities as a political leader have been handsomely praised by Prime Minister Churchill, who said on Tuesday that "his judgment has been found extremely surefooted," and that "our opinion of him has been enhanced by everything we have seen of his conduct in circumstances peculiarly and perplexingly difficult." No doubt the British would have preferred a more inspiring and more experienced leader than this French officer, who, after all, was little more than a competent and clear-sighted expert in the science of mechanized warfare. Still, the British are thankful to have him, and they have promised that they will not abandon their support of him. They know that the fate of the strength of British resistance to Germany, and by the efficacy of the British blockade, rather than by the personality of General de Gaulle or any other leader.

Today most of the French colonies, apart from those on the Mediterranean, are cut off from France by the British blockade. French freighters bringing supplies to Madagascar and to the West African colonies have been seized by the British; if the French in the colonies are to receive food and clothing from abroad, they can do so only with British consent. This promises to be a more effective weapon in the colonies than all of General de Gaulle's Free French troops and guns. The British blockade may explain why General de Gaulle was welcomed so enthusiastically in the Cameroons; it may, in time, be the determining factor in bringing the French colonial empire back into the war against the invaders and despoilers of the French homeland.— N. World's Art Enriched By English

(By Prof. Davis Park)

A Dutch critic having witnessed a performance of the well-known corps de ballet known as the Vic Wells—after the two famous theatres of the Old Vic and Saddler Wells—expressed his astonishment at the beauty of the spectacle, and added:

"To tell the truth, one has never expected from England much of a revelation of beauty, in view of the fact that that country is generally considered as an inartistic land. But as far as concerns the dance, one can now considerably revise this legend."

It is true that in many parts of the world the English race are looked on as a nation of unimaginative plodders, content to eat food of terrifying monotony and drink heavy beer, ice cold in winter, tepid in summer, and in general to reflect the grim vagaries of the notorious English climate.

It is one of those legends which has grown up imperceptibly. Millions of people abroad still believe that London is enveloped in yellow soup fogs for nine months of the year, whereas in actual fact there are hardly ever nine foggy days in a twelvemonth, and London is almost certainly the healthiest metropolis in the world. But that fog myth, the legend of the climate and the solidity of our meat dishes have contrived to create the impression that the English are solid and inartistic.

Nothing is further from the truth. This Dutch critic ought not to have been astonished by the beauty of the modern English ballet He ought to remember that when the Czarist regime fell and the State Ballet of Petrograd was broken up, scores of the principal dancers came to London, where they were immediately welcomed. Since that time the ballet has played an important part in the artistic life of the English people. When the great Diaghilleff was alive, the Russian ballet certainly led the field, but England has successfully established a flourishing series of ballet schools, of which the Vic-Wells is decidedly the most important.

But this is, in itself, a small thing. Great Britain has made contributions to all kinds of the arts for a thousand years. There is no need to stress the importance of William Shakespeare; unable to deny his genius, Nazi Germany has lately claimed for him a "German soul." Then again, in France, there are many who took on Byron as the greatest of all poets. In Italy the names of Shelley and Keat are revered.

The world also owes Britain a deep debt for her architecture. All over the countryside you will find ancient cathedrals of superb beauty, many of them unsurpassed anywhere. It would be difficult to imagine a world without the towers of Durham Cathedral and York Minster, or the tapering spire of Salisbury or the carved facade of Wells. These cathedrals have been the inspiration of builders in all parts of the world.

In every valley one comes across the moss-grown remains of former abbeys and monasteries, dissolved at the time of the Reformation. The graceful lines of those stones, even in decay, make one realize that in other days the English countryside had a richness and beauty which pass imagination.

The same is true of domestic architecture. The "stately homes of England," the country houses of the landed gentry, are to be found every where. Some of them—like Haddon Hall, the seat of the Duke of Rutland, and Hatfield House, ancestral home of the Marquess of Salisbury—have no equals in the world. Windsor Castle has a longer history than Versailles, or the Hofburg, or Sans Souci.

English artists and craftsmen have made a noble contribution to furniture design, silver and chinaware. The names of the great furniture makers, Sheraton, Chippendale and Hepplewhite need no introduction to the artistic world. Wedgwood was one of the greatest potters of all time. Worcester, Crown Derby, Chelsea can compare with the finest porcelain ever turned out from the factories of Meissen or Sevres.

English silverware is prized by all collectors not only on account of its exquisite design and extensive range, but also because of its authenticity. For hundreds of years every piece of silver produced in an English shop has had to be officially stamped with what is universally known as the "Hall Mark". This mark gives in cipher the date of manufacture and also the manufacturer's name. There are silversmiths in England still making silver dishes in the very shops in which their ancestors and namesakes worked three hundred years ago. Each year they take their produce to the assayers to be duly stamped, as their fathers did before them.

Critics have indeed objected that there is no state opera in England, such as exists in many other countries. The reason is that the British do not much care for state-controlled arts. But in London there is a fine opera house—perhaps the finest opera house in the world, as it is certainly the best known. It is called Covent Garden.

Ask any world singer his crowning ambition and he (or she) will answer: "To sing in a big role at Covent Garden. That sets a seal on my fame."—Hamilton Spectator.

Proof against flames or violent impact, a powerful high explosive invented by a resident of Stamford, Conn., requires a charge of electricity to detonate it.

Autumn Splendor

The trees their flaming torches raise
Above the sun-kissed land,
The sumachs, in these autumn days
In crimson velvet stand.

And soft in autumn's mellow light
All Nature seems to rest,
While in the lake's calm mirror bright
Trees view their radiant dress.

Oh glad the brightness of the Spring
And gay the summer time
But autumn days, no season brings
A beauty such as thine.

So, in the face of ripened age
May love and light appear,
As when the brilliant autumn days
Crown bright the closing year.

Headache Not an Outstanding Symptom of Eye Strain

Some months ago I attended a symposium (a number of short speeches) on headache I write frequently about headache and of the great number of causes for headache. Already about 150 causes have been found by physicians.

As eye strain has always been considered a very frequent cause of headache, I was surprised when the four speakers and the eye specialists in the assembly said little or nothing about headache due to eyestrain.

Fortunately eye strain as a cause of headache came up amid the questions and answers and the chairman and others admitted that while there seemed to be a headache due to eye strain about an inch above the eyes, and at back of the head, nevertheless it was not a constant symptom and could be due to other conditions besides eye strain or other disturbances of the eye However, a pain in the eye or eyes was considered a fairly common result of eye strain.

This means then that in looking for the cause of headache, disturbances of the eye or eye strain is not as common a cause as was thought.

What, then, are the signs and symptoms of eye strain or eye defects?

Persistent pain in the eyes themselves; persistent flow of tears, dimness or blurring of vision, inflammation of the eyes and lids, itching or swelling of the lids, are the usual symptoms. "Persistent scowl or a tendency to hold a book too close ar too far from the eyes are common signs of eye disturbance".

In most cases where eye symptoms are present, there is a tendency to first visit an oculist or optometrist. In a great many cases the oculist or optometrist will refer the patient to the family physician as the symptoms are not due to any eye condition or eyestrain but to disturbance elsewhere in the body. It would be wise, therefore, when eye symptoms occur to visit your family physician who in turn may advise you to see your dentist before consulting an eye specialist or optometrist.

The point then is that headache is not the outstanding symptom in eye defects and that when headache or even eye symptoms themselves are present, the family physician and dentist should be consulted immediately.

"Music, the Greatest Good"

The exigencies of war enforce curtailment of the pleasures of peacetime and compel many to devote the time and money expended on these pursuits to others made imperative by the struggle. Our willingness to make sacrifices is the measure of our patriotism, but in deciding upon those things which we should give up, or ask our families to give up, we should use discretion and discrimination, not allow our hearts to run away with our heads, not give up those things which have incalculable social value and may confer future benefits on the country.

Among these intangibles, these things whose value is elusive but none the less actual, is music. There will be many who feel that the musical education of their children may very well await the coming of peace; but if it is at all possible to make the necessary expenditure, this is one branch of education that should not be curtailed. For music is a potent factor in the formation of character. Perhaps the monotony of five-finger exercises will irk the child, but if it leads later to the moving expression of a Beethoven sonato the child will thank its parents for their firmness.

The school authorities recognize these values. For the past three years they have sought the co-operation of the McGill Conservatorium of Music, which arranges group pianoforte courses in the schools. McGill plans to extend this program this year to rural schools so that children who, in many districts, have few other forms of recreation available to them may derive the soothing and educative benefits of music. It is an endeavour to be encouraged. Parents should think twice before attempting to save the nominal fee that will enter a child upon a course that may develop hidden talent and that will, in any case, open up new frontiers of the mind.—Montreal Star.

How Britain Can Win

Gradually, unless all the teachings of military history are false, the British blockade will wear down and weaken the Germans and Italians. A time should therefore come, if Britain holds out and ultimately gains superiority, when Britain can take the offensive. How? Where?

A coalition should be attacked at its weakest point. If Spain joins the war, Spain will be the weakest point. If not, Italy's colonies will be the weakest pcint. Britain should be able, with the help of sea and air power, to undertake, sooner or later, the conquest of Libya. From Libya, Italy itself can be attacked. If the Balkans are involved, the British can land troops. And a tightening of the British hold on Italy will mean a tightening of the blockade on Germany.

The group of Italian colonies and conquests centring on Ethiopia, be it said in passing, are cut of ffrom Italy now, and will remain so, unless Italy can take Egypt. Cut off, they are half helpless, and must ultimately surrender.

Meanwhile, if the war should develop in this way, an opportunity will certainly come, sooner or later for a British army to land in, or near, Germany itself. If by that time, the Germans are sufficiently exhausted by blockade and by their own previous efforts, they can be defeated ever on land. That happened in 1918. It can happen again.—Chicago Daily News.

Up to the Brenner Pass meeting of recent date between Hitler and Mussolini, all their conferences had been fraught with big things which followed. The recent confab aroused much speculation and was subject to all sorts of predictions in the totalitarian press about how fast the British Empire was to be disintegrated. A touch of humor, by H. I. Phillips in The New York Sun, helps to save the situation. He has a good column of it, but a couple of paragraphs will suffice. All set, they are in the de luxe luncheon car:

Hitler—We must pull another surprise. What would your suggest?

Mussolini—I can't think of a bigger surprise than if you invaded England ,after all this talk.

Hitler—And, boy, would I be surprised if I heard that you had taken Suez!

Mussolini—We're getting nowhere exchanging sarcarsms. What should we do next? What new plans have you? How can we make the world's hair stand on end again? 24 PERSONS DIE IN ACCIDENTS ACROSS DOMINION

Thanksgiving Weekend Toll is High, Ten of Deaths Being in Ontario

16 TRAFFIC DEATHS

(By The Canadian Press)

Twenty-four accidental deaths occurred during the Thanksgiving week-end in Canada. Although the majority of them — sixteen — were caused by motorcars, the others reported to The Canadian Press were due to a variety of causes, including an airplane crash, an electrocution, falls and drowning.

Nearly half the deaths occurred in Ontario where ten persons lost their lives. There were five fatalities in Nova Scotia, six in Quebec, two in Manitoba and one in British Columbia.

Among the traffic deaths, seven persons were killed when struck by cars, seven others died after their car had gone out of control and only two fatalities occurred as results of collisions.

Two Die In Aero Club Plane Crash.

Near Paris, Ont., Errett Skipen and his brother, Lloyd, were killed instantly Sunday when their Brant-Norfolk Aero Club plane lost part of a wing in mid-air and crashed into shallow Grand River.

In a colliery at Inverness, N.S., Sanders Macdonald, 33, was killed late Saturday when a string of cars broke away on an incline and struck him.

Two Montrealers, Damase Pilon, 60, and Hector Denis, 61, were killed Saturday when a scaffolding on which they were working fell, dropping them 40 feet to the ground.

Falls From Train.

Another Montrealer, Frederick Billingsley, was killed Monday night when he fell from a moving train near St. Jerome, Que.

The sole drowning of the holiday week-end occurred near Flin Flon, the Northern Manitoba mining town, when Martin Seidel, 23, lost his life after his canoe upset.

In Goldboro, N.S., Herbert MacCarthy, 27, was electrocuted when he touched a high tension wire.

Florian Lemire, 18, of Montreal, suffered fatal injuries late Saturday when the car in which he was driving collided head on with another as both drivers sought to avoid a cyclist. Near Hamilton, Ont., Monday night, James Hadland of Burlington, Ont., was killed in the second collision of the week-end.

Drivers Blame Headlights.

In at least two cases where persons were struck by automobiles, the drivers of the cars said they had been blinded by the glare of headlights. In one accident ten-year-old Jeanette Cleroux of Ottawa died of injuries received when she was struck by Flying Officer George Hill's car. In the other, 16-year-old Finlay Douglas of St. Mary's, Ont., was struck from his bicycle by a car driven by Pte. R. Ferris Stewart of St. Marys.

Two Toronto men, Garnet Skeritt and Ross Stevenson, were killed near Brantford, Ont., when they were struck and crushed against the rear of their car as they prepared to change a tire.

Struck By Cars.

Others who died of injuries received when they were struck by cars were Louis Dumas, 47, of Rimouski, Que., James Eagles of Londonderry Mines, N.S., and Maurice Tetreault, 13, of Montreal.

Mrs. Edith Outhet of Montreal was killed Monday night when her car got out of control and crashed after a piece of cordwood from a passing truck struck the wheels of the car. In Granville Centre, N.S., J. Reginald Wade died when his truck drove off a wharf while out of control.

Mrs. Elise Macauley, a Hamilton widow with four sons, lost her life Sunday night when her car driven by her 20-year-old son, Austin, plunged down a 160-foot embankment on the newly opened Queen Elizabeth Way between Toronto and Hamilton.

Others who lost their lives when cars and trucks got out of control and crashed were: Harvey Turner, 16, of Woodstock, Ont.; Hilda Smith, of the Springhill District in Nova Scotia; William Cooper, 78, of Victoria, B.C.; and Ernest Trevor Summer of Port Arthur in an accident near Winnipeg.

31,094 Tons Shipping Lost by Enemy Action In Week Ending Oct. 6

London, Oct. 15—(CP)—Ten merchant ships totalling 31,094 tons were sunk by "enemy action" in the week ended October 6, the Admiralty announced today.

This represented the lowest weekly total since May 6 and "a little more than half the average weekly loss during the previous 56 weeks," the Admiralty said.

The total announced today included seven British ships totalling 24,943 tons; two Allied ships totalling 2,464 tons; and one neutral vessel of 3,687 tons.

"The Germans claimed that during this week they have sunk a total of 81,816 tons, which is nearly three times the actual tonnage sunk," an Admiralty spokesman said.

Checkerboard Love

By JOSEPH McCORD

A FIRST-RUN McCLURE SERIAL.

CHAPTER XV.

Jeffrey Castle's suggestion that Victor take his place in the office while he would be on his honeymoon brought the consideration the young lawyer promised, and a great deal more. Try as he would to view the proposition in a detached and logical fashion, Victor realized more and more that he was yearning to accept it because it would bring him so near to Audrey Swan. Now he cursed himself helplessly for having told her of his love. If he had kept quiet a little longer he could have gone to Parville with good reason, and his chances for winning Audrey's love would have been increased a hundredfold. Perhaps.

But he had cut himself off from Parville. If he went there to stay for a time, Audrey would think it was a put-up job and the barrier between them would be raised higher than at present. No, the whole thing was unthinkable. Idiotic. In accordance with his code of ethics, he would practically have to ask Audrey's permission. That seemed a pretty dumb procedure, any way one cared to look at it. Why the dickens had the idea ever popped into Jeff's mind? Usually, he wasn't that resourceful.

To make the matter more involved, it wasn't impracticable. If Judge Castle were agreeable, it was a wonderful professional chance for Victor, much better than digging up corroborative evidence for his present superiors to present in court as evidence of their own erudition. There was also the sincere desire to get Jeff off the stupid spot where he was standing just now. He was bound to get in a beautiful row with both wife and father before long.

Desperate, he put in a call for Audrey without any clear idea of what he was going to say. He would have to trump up some excuse for an interview; then what?

Unfortunately, the operator reported that his party was not at the number given. Would he talk to anyone else? At first he was on the point of saying no, then reconsidered. Even Julia would be able to tell him when he might expect to find Audrey in. But it was Mrs. Swan who took the call. "I wanted to speak to Audrey just a minute," he attempted, after greetings had been exchanged. "Will she be at home after dinner?"

"I doubt it," Martha replied. "Audrey's in the city. She broke a filling yesterday and left early this morning. She hoped the dentist would be able to take care of her today. If not, she said she would stay over."

"Do you know who her dentist is?" Vic demanded grimly.

"It's Doctor Llewellyn. He's in the Medical Arts Building. You might just happen to catch her there. Why don't you call up? I know she would be glad to see you."

"Thanks a lot. I'll do that. Good-by."

Before his courage should desert him, Vic leaved through the directory for the dentist's number. Probably there would be a flock of dental Welshmen by name of Llewellyn, but there proved to be only one. The voice that answered belonged to a deferential receptionist. It so happened that Miss Swan was in the chair at the moment. Could the message be given to her a little later?"

"Tell her not to leave the office until I can get there. I am a friend of the family and it is an important matter."

"Very well. I will give your message to Miss Swan as soon as she is finished with Doctor Llewellyn."

Victor jammed on his hat and started for the Medical Arts Building, leaving word in the outer office that he was going on a business errand and might not be back until after lunch. When he reached his destination the first person he saw in the reception room was Audrey.

"For goodness' sake!" she exclaimed. "I couldn't imagine who had called. How did you know I was here?"

"If you can tear yourself away from that last year's magazine," he answered, "and come with me, I'll explain. Have you finished here?"

"Yes." She picked up her bag and made ready to leave.

"We're going some place to have lunch," Vic enlightened her as he led the way to the elevators.

"Vic! What in the world has happened?" There was something near alarm in Audrey's face and voice. "Anything wrong at home? You must have called up . . ."

"No, no! Nothing like that. Don't worry. The world and I are merely a little more cockeyed than usual. I'll explain when we can sit down alone."

At a small table in a secluded corner of a grill room, Audrey said, "Now tell me what it's all about."

"Well, it has to do with our old pal, Jeff."

"What's he done? Trying to back out of things?"

"No. Trying to back in." Victor briefly sketched the situation, growing a little more uncomfortable as he proceeded. Audrey's eyes did not leave his face for an instant, but her own was perfectly expressionless. "He thinks he's stuck for a lengthy honeymoon and he's begging me to pinch hit for him with his father."

"Could you get away from here?" she asked quietly.

"It might be arranged. I haven't taken it up with the boss."

"Why don't you?"

"Let's skip that one for a minute." Victor pondered a little over his next words. "If the situation were different, I'll admit I'd jump at the chance to be around the old Judge, more or less. It would be the post-graduate course of a lifetime."

"What's holding you back?"

"You."

"Me?"

"Naturally. Look here, Audrey. You knowo what I'm driving at. Nothing has changed with me. But put it this way. Suppose I'd have turned up in Parville for an indefinite stay. Frankly, wouldn't you have thought it in pretty poor taste . . . not to say low?"

"No."

"Really!" Victor's eyes widened in surprise. "That's the part I couldn't get away from. I couldn't go through with it without talking to you first."

"You can't think much of me, Vic," Audrey said quietly. "I always try to be fair with everyone, I hope. Why should you think I would ever stand in the way of your helping a friend or helping yourself to something better? There's no reason that I can see."

"That's mighty swell of you. I believe I'll broach the subject to the elder Brand this afternoon if I get the chance. If he's agreeable, I may do it."

* * *

Henry Brand listened attentively to his subordinate's request and was unexpectedly cooperative. "I don't wonder, Quinn, that you wish the association with Judge Castle. It is a real opportunity for a young man. I think it can be arranged if you wish."

Determined to get the whole affair off his mind, Victor's next move was to call Jeffrey Castle at Parville. "I say, Jeff," he began with a carelessness that would have done credit to Jeffrey himself, "I just talked over that proposition with Mr. Brand. He was good enough to urge me to accept . . . thinks it will mean a lot for me. I guess he's right."

"You mean you'll come, then?" Jeff's relief and delight were apparent. "That's the best news I've had in an age!"

"Yes. That is, if you plan to be away long enough to make it worth while."

"Oh, it will be plenty long."

"What about your father?"

"He'll be tickled pink! He's away for a few days. But I told him I was trying to get someone to help here and he'll be delighted to know it's you. Don't worry. It's all settled."

"Well, unless I hear something to the contrary, look for me about the third. That's next week.

"Marvelous! Come right to the house. We'll put you up until you have a chance to look about."

"I'd rather you didn't mention it to anyone until it's settled."

"I won't . . . you sly dog! Good-by."

He hung up before Victor had a chance to refute the final insinuation.

CHURCHILL HERO OF BRITISH NAVY

(Ross Munro, formerly of The Canadian Press Ottawa Bureau and now attached to the London Bureau sailed from Canada in the first of the overage United States destroyers to be transferred to the Royal Navy. In a series of two stories he discusses life on the voyage. This is the second.)

By Ross Munro Canadian Press Staff Writer.

London, Oct. 15 (CP)—The Royal Navy's living hero is Prime Minister Winston Churchill—essentially a navy man.

Seamen and officers on British warships talk of him with fervent pride, refer to him as "Winny" and would go through hell and high water to win his approbation.

He's a symbol for Britain's sea strength to the sea-going men of this island. In 11 days with the Royal Navy as the first flotilla of United States destroyers transferred to Britain moved across the Atlantic from Canada, it seemed to this writer that there was a "Churchill touch" even about those American ships newly taken over by British blue jackets.

Sea-going notes from a war diary: Britain's navy men will sacrifice any amount of comfort to have their ships more efficient... The American destroyers have bunks in them for officers and men... They probably will be replaced by hammocks which are easier to sleep in in stormy weather but not as comfortable most of the time ... The yeoman of signals aboard the flotilla leader said "the American blokes had it too easy what with all the high class gadgets about this here ship..."

Duchess of Windsor Changes Coiffure

Miami, Oct. 15.—(CP)— The Duchess of Windsor has changed her hair-dress by eliminating the part-in-the-middle. Wayne Forrest, 23-year-old New York hairdresser, said on his return here from Nassau, Bahamas. His pupil, Mabel Bethel, will be entrusted with the task.

FRUMPIEST WOMAN IN BELLEVILLE GETS BEST DRESSED VOTE

You remember her—the woman who never bothered about her appearance—who got to thinking no one ever looked at her anyway.

Look at her now! She's smart—chic—up-to-the-minute—and now she's the best dressed woman in town.

A friend decided something could be done about that woman's appearance. She reasoned that if one item in her wardrobe could be spruced up, the rest would follow automatically. So she started with the shoes and—you've guessed it—she told her to use Nugget Shoe Polish—the polish that preserves as it shines. And the rest was easy!—Adv.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BECKMAN

Do You Suffer From Anecdotage?

Anecdotage is an amusing word. It really means "anecdotes collectively," but there's something about those last two syllables—dotage — that devastatingly describes the malady from which so many people suffer. To them conversation means the telling of anecdotes. Anecdotes are practically their only topics of conversation, and, apparently, it's hopeless for them to conquer this urge.

I don't mean that there aren't interesting anecdotes told interestingly and amusing anecdotes told amusingly. Many are fascinating revelations of human nature, of places we have visited or longed to visit, of thrilling experiences. But these kinds of anecdotes and an engaging way of telling them add seasoning to a conversation; a good conversationalist doesn't allow them to become the entire conversation.

The tiresome tellor-of-anecdotes is the one who has a collection of "set" stories, miscellaneous bits of things that have happened in his life. The anecdotist has told the stories so often that they have taken on the quality of recitations. No word or phrase or sentence ever varies: there is always the same inflection in the voice at the same places in the stories. At the drop of a hat, up pops the anecdote! He seems to lie in wait for something in the talk that reminds him — or that can be twisted into reminding him—of one of his anecdotes. Then we always know it's coming— "Did I ever tell you about the time my car broke down and we couldn't get back to the dinner we were to give at our house for eight guests?" Or, "I had the funniest experience the first time I voted." Or, "Speaking of practical jokes, I never laughed so much in all my life as when Jim Allen played that one on Tom Smith. He...." And so forth, endlessly.

If you have even a suspicion that you may be afflicted with anecdotes, analyze your conversation, and give yourself this quiz:

Is your talk apt to be mainly about what has happened to you in your life? Of course these happenings are terribly important and significant to you, but remember that they may not be so engrossing to your listeners.

Do you depend entirely — and lazily — on dragging these stories of your life into the general talk, never making the effort to find other topics of conversation?

Do you make any effort to remember of whom you have already told your anecdotes, or do you just keep on grinding them out on all occasions to anyone who will or must listen?

Do the anecdotes you tell really help along the conversation, or stymie it?

If you are serious about wanting to find out the answers to these questions, the next time you feel the urge to tell one of your old standbys, study the expressions of your listeners. That ought to tell you.

Courtesy Tip

People are proud of their names. So make it your habit—and it's a habit that can easily be cultivated—to listen most carefully for the other person's name when you are being introduced. Then use it when you acknowledge the introduction, "How do you do, Mrs. Harrison."

When Child Refuses Food

By Garry C. Myers, Ph.D.

Many a child from two to five does not drink enough milk. He should consume about one and one-half pints of milk a day.

You can, of course, prepare many foods containing milk in disguise. Even then the child may not get nearly enough unless he enjoys drinking it.

The child may grow more interested in taking milk if he has a small pitcher from which to pour it, but the chances are that no such device will wholly solve the problem.

Solving the Problem

Place a small cup of milk before the child at the beginning of the meal. Explain to him that he can have no other food until he has drunk it. If he chooses not to drink all of it let his meal end there with no food at all until the next meal.

Then proceed as before. If he drinks this amount and chooses no more at the end of the meal let the matter go. Be satisfied at the time with your victory. With the habit of drinking established, he will almost surely choose later to drink more.

It is very important that the cup or the amount of milk in it be small when this problem is attacked. To be successful the amount offered should always be consumed without resistance.

Do not try to force the milk directly into the child. Let him choose but limit his choices to drinking the milk or going without other food. The opportunity to choose between milk or nothing is vastly different from making him drink the milk, or even trying to get it into him by some trick or bribe.

Wants Milk Only

Then there is the tot who is satisfied with milk alone as a diet and refuses some or all solid foods. Keep milk away from this child until after he has eaten some or all the other foods and, if necessary, for a week or so give him no milk between meals except, perhaps at bed time. Again, let the child choose between the food offered or nothing.

Reverse the Process

If, as often is the case, the child refuses vegetables or a particular essential vegetable, proceed as already indicated. Merely let him choose between it and nothing, and show no emotions if he does not eat this time. Neither coax him nor push the food into him.

In case it is a particular essential vegetable he refuses, offer a very, very, small portion of it to him, nothing else. If he refuses to eat it let his meal end there and proceed at the next meal as before, with no other food in the meanwhile. If he is old enough to walk, place on a plate, with a spoon beside it, a very small portion of the food on a low table or chair, go about your business with your lips sealed. If he has not begun to eat the food in, say, four minutes, call the food to his attention and remove it without saying a word. Continue in this fashion until you get results. It may take several days. But don't give up too soon.

Solving Parent Problems

Q. Should a teacher force a left-handed child to use the right hand in written work at school?

A. Certainly not; if she does, the parent should protest. Failing to win her co-operation, the appeal for justice should be in order: to the principal, superintendent, courts of justice. In the best modern school systems teachers are instructed by the superintendent of schools not to tamper with the child's handedness.

Q. Should the child be allowed to play with the furniture?

A. If he has learned to be careful, never to jump on the furniture, nor to stand on it. Teach him, "no rough house."

Q. How best to deal with the child from six to twelve who habitually comes to the table unwashed and uncombed?

A. Announce to this child there will be two calls for dinner. At the second call expect him to be there and ready and if he isn't, let this be the cost to him: To sit in a chair for 15 minutes several feet from the table while the family go ahead. And they should have a happy time.

DR. DAFOE'S COLUMN on the Quintuplets and the Care of Your Children

Adenoids And Tonsils

In yesterday's column I discussed diseased tonsils and enlarged adenoids and their symptoms. If these symptoms persist, then there isn't much to do but operate. I know we did everything medical science could to save the tonsils and adenoids of the Dionne Quintuplets, but in the end we had to remove them sugically.

When your physician examines your child and finally tells you "Those tonsils will have to come out," don't be upset and worried. In these days of specialists, hospitals and scientific care, there isn't much to fear. Certainly there is a lot less risk than there were 20 years ago, and we did pretty well even then.

I remember seeing my father remove tonsils forty years ago. He was one of the old time doctors here in Ontario, and he performed about every operation there was to do unaided. I have performed the operation myself many times since I began practising nearly 35 years ago, and I know my experiences were similar to those of hundreds of doctors in United States and Canada.

You would go out into the country perhaps twenty miles and find a child crucially ill with diseased tonsils. Usually by the time the parents called you in, the tonsils were so bad that the only thing to do was operate. So, you dragged a table out into the centre of the kitchen floor, scrubbed everything clean and went to work. You used the kitchen because it got more fresh air than the parlour, for example; hot water was handier there; it wasn't full of stuffed unsanitary furniture, and it was cleaned more often. The parlor was the place for the coffin when some one died, not for an operation.

It was quite a job to operate under those conditions, for not only was the doctor the surgeon, he was nurse as well, he sterilized the instruments and he administered the anaesthetic. Those were the days when we really worried about hemorrhages. I remember more than once getting hold of what we call a "bleeder," under those conditions. It used to scare the daylights out of me. Still, in spite of all those handicaps and hardships, I can't remember that I lost a single patient in a tonsil operation.

Today all the conditions to which I refer have changed for the better even in back country sections. Red Cross or other public nurses patrol them now. Once or twice a year, clinics are held, children who have been examined and known to need an operation come in and have it done by specialists, they are nursed by real trained nurses, and are given real hospital treatment.

It is something I used to dream about—getting the skill of the city specialist for the little people in the backward places; people who can seldom afford to pay their own doctor let alone have a specialist all the way from the big city.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Authority Lists Another "Stop, Look and Listen"

When the newlyweds have had a spat and the bride rushes to mamma to tell her how she has been deceived and that she has found the husband is not the gorgeous he-man she supposed him to be, and is terribly reluctant when it comes to taking the rubber band off his roll—don't listen.

The same holds good with your boy. While he may have flouted mamma as old-fashioned and not knowing what this business of living is all about, he's likely to do a return engagement to her apron-strings when he feels how mistaken he was in his bride. It seems he complains, that the bride is extravagant and that she spends enough money for beauty parlors to keep them in steaks and roasts for a week.

Also, he wails, the bride is a "can addict" and has the indolent habit of dumping the contents of a can into the frying pan about five minutes before her lord and master returns. She may be guilty of other high crimes and misdemeanors; but no matter what they are — don't listen.

You know, when he gets home, that his wrath against the bride, her housekeeping, her lack of economy, and the way she does things so differently from the way you did them in the old home, will melt at the first kiss. If you listen sympathetically and say one word which is bound to be repeated in the reconciliation, you will find yourself in the dog-house with both.

To be in the dog-house with an in-law means hostility will spread and the mother will be out of luck with both her own child and the in-law.

It's much better to "yes, yes" the newlywed along without committing yourself, and say something like this: "Do you remember how fond you used to be of my chocolate layer cake? Well, there's one in the cake-box. Let me give you a piece." If you haven't any chocolate layer cake, almost anything else will do. A good "eat" from the old home is as soothing as a poultice when the newlywed begins to discover that life keeps right on after the honeymoon has waned.

Attention, Mothers-in-law! Please remember if the first bickerings between newlyweds develop to the point where the bride sees no solution but Reno, that you will be primarily responsible if you listen to these tales of disillusionment.

From the time your son or daughter stopped believing in Santa Claus, you may have had a particular pattern of husband or wife you wanted him or her to marry. But he or she fell in love with something utterly opposed to your idea. Well, my dear lady, there's nothing to do about it. You've got to grin and bear it, even putting on your sweetest of smiles, when you feel more like biting nails than smiling. This you'll have to do if you wish to keep the affection of your child. And it is always your own child, no matter how old he or she may become.

Mother always thinks she knows best when she starts out matchmaking for her children. But that imp of contrariness that gets into the best of us at birth works overtime when we're trying to pick out husbands and wives for our children.

The more we try, the more our beloved youngsters seem to take the bit in their teeth and bolt in a contrary direction. Mother has to stand by and watch loyally and lovingly, which is about the hardest thing mothers have to do.

Fashion Flashes

THERE'S SENSE and economy in those ensembles that feature frocks plus fur jackets. A beauty is of natural colored kasha jersey for the frocks and a loose-swinging jacket of nutria lined with the jersey.

SURE TO SCORE at college is a jumper dress of slate blue corduroy worn with a bright red wool jersey shirt blouse.

JUST ABOUT the smartest little hat of the season is a crocheted turban in various colors trimmed with a tawny leopard's paw, its nails highly enameled to match or contrast with the color of the turban.

DRESS UP your little black daytime frocks with a handsome jacket. A delightful model is a fitted hip-length jacket of bright red woolen with Peter Pan collar of black Persian and black Persian bows at the slanting hip

Work of Canadian Red Cross Deeply Appreciated in England

London (Special) Oct. 13th. A letter appearing in a London newspaper recently ended with the words, "God bless the Canadians." It was one of many communications appearing in the newspapers of England these days expressing gratitude to the Canadian Red Cross Society for its contributions of food, clothing and blankets to air-raid victims.

The letter, written by an official of the Charity Organization, official society handling relief in the distressed areas, said, "It was not only that the Canadian Red Cross supplies were just what we needed, but they reached us when the need was greatest. The people of Canada should know that their generosity has saved the lives of babies who might have suffered sadly from cold and hunger and it has given thousands of people a fresh start. God bless the Canadians."

One story is quoted as typical of the cases assisted by the Canadian Red Cross. In one of London's working class districts, mothers put their children to sleep in concrete shelters. They were wrapped warmly in blankets sent from Canada. A bomb landed above, blew in the doors and walls. There were casualties and bad bruises and cuts. Escape seemed impossible, but finally the little company was pulled out by brave A. R. P. workers while bombs were still dropping and pieces of steel were flying around.

A greater shock faced the family. The row of houses that had been their home had been completely demolished. The women and children spent the night at a school. In the morning they were told to go to a nearby centre to collect clothing for themselves and the children. It was Canadian Red Cross clothing that stood ready in bundles. Every mother remarked on its good quality. One woman, the wife of a builder, remarked frankly, "These are the best clothing my children have ever had."

Many have been the comments on the use being made of Canadian Red Cross blankets, donated by the people of Canada, in London's safe but uncomfortable draughty undergrounds. Canadian Red Cross officials have been working day and night filling the demands which continue to pour in as families are left homeless and with no belongings but the clothes they stand in.

Our Wartime Policy:

Cash for Your War Service Church or Charity

. . . "and be it further resolved that, until March 1, 1941, we give in cash to the charities of Canada, for war or home service, two cents for each pound of Red Rose Tea and Red Rose Coffee."

THE ABOVE IS FROM A RESOLUTION PASSED BY THE DIRECTORS OF THIS COMPANY, AND THE PURPOSE OF THIS ADVERTISEMENT IS TO EXPLAIN TO THE PEOPLE OF CANADA JUST HOW WE HOPE TO CARRY OUT THAT WARTIME POLICY.

That we may have an equitable basis for giving to all causes, we invite you as individuals and organizations to save the end showing the Rose from all Red Rose Tea packages and a similar coupon found in every vacuum can of Red Rose Coffee.

These "rose end" coupons must be sent to us through the organization, society, church or club in which you do your war service or charitable work and to whom we will donate cash on the basis of two cents for each pound of tea or coffee represented by the coupons.

You can readily understand why we must ask that all coupons be sent to us by an official of your organization. We shall issue our donation cheque to the organization, not the individual.

Those engaged in war activities will naturally have complied with all federal and provincial regulations.

It does not matter whether your organization is national in scope or entirely local. If you are engaged in furthering war effort, providing comforts for the men in uniform, or maintaining the religious, benevolent and charitable work that must go on in peace or war, we shall be glad to aid you. Here is the simple procedure we ask you to follow:

1. Start saving the "rose end" coupons immediately and tell others to do so.
2. Have an official of your organization write us stating that your members and workers intend to accumulate the coupons, and telling us of the work you are doing.

Upon receipt of such a letter we shall send complete instructions and a certificate showing that the name of your organization has been entered in our newest ledger—a ledger that is marked "Donations in Co-operation with Our Fellow Canadians."

This Policy effective only until March 1, 1941

'HOODED GENT' EASILY DEFEATS MIKE DOMERKO

Seeks Police Protection After First Fall When He Tangles With Spectator

FLATTENS DERBY

Pavish Easily Wins Over Tom George While Allen Beats Local Boy

Never take an inadvertent poke at a citizen of Belleville, that is if you're a wrestler grappling at the Hume arena.

In the past several wrestlers have learned to their sorrow, that it is poor policy to get into controversies with the local wrestling public, but the latest was the modern edition of the Masked Marvel, that "hooded horror" who made the mistake of flattening Thomas Wells', well known Belleville sadler, derby down around his ears as the gent with the mask was stalking to the dressing room at the Arena after winning the first fall in his bout with Mike Domerko, of Syracuse, last night. Dozens of Bellevillians came to Mr. Wells' rescue and the "Masked One" was subjected to such physical violence, that he demanded police protection before he would return to the ring for the remainder of his bout with Domerko. Police Constable W. T. Evans was summoned to the arena and acted as personal body guard for the "hooded gent" for the remainder of the night.

Just Damaged Derby

Just how the unadvertised scrap between Mr. Wells, an innocent ringside patron, and the Masked Marvel got under way is questionable, but all Mr. Wells suffered was a damaged derby, while the "hooded horror" ran afoul of the violence of Belleville sporting fans, once their kindred is belittled, and he was so pugnaciously maltreated at the entrance to the dressing rooms at the Hume arena, that it was necessary to commandeer police protection to insure his safety for the remainder of the evening, despite the fact he emerged victor over Domerko.

From the outset of the semi-final bout, which doubtless stole the show owing to the local angle which followed the first round, the Masked Marvel assumed a villainous role, which was proven in the first round when Domerko had victory within his grasp as the result of his pet ring appliance, the flying tackle. However, the Masked one turned defeat into victory by kneeing the Syracuse football player in a questionable effort and the Mask won in 24.30 minutes after flooring Domerko with an illegal knee attack and a press. It was enroute to the dressing room that "The Masked One" and Mr. Wells tangled when the former hit Mr. Wells' hat.

Domerko bounced the Marvel off the ropes like a rubber ball for the second fall, but Mike's football tactics proved a boomerang in the third round as his flying tackles left him an open victim for a drop kick and "The Mask" dropped on Domerko for the fall and victory.

The main scrap wasn't even a laugh as George Pavish, 230 of Sudbury, proved himself anything but an impressive wrestler to beat Tom George, 210 of Greece, in successive falls.

Made Plenty of Faces

Pavish was busied all evening making faces, while George put in the most of his time hauling up his trunks. The bout had been advertized as the "badman scrap", but proved to be an effort of Referee Faux in evading attacks from Pavish. Pavish literally pounded George into submission and tortured him unmercifully to win the first fall with a press in 24.35 minutes and returned to make it two straight with a pile-driver and press after five minutes in the second round.

Actually Charlie Thorne, of Belleville and Jimmie Allen, the former Canadian amateur champion, staged a better scrap than the main-bouters, although Allen finally won in the preliminary, but not until after Thorne had satisfied the fans he was improving vastly at the game. Thorne made matters interesting for Allen for 12.31 minutes before Allen won with a rolling barrel and press.

B. C. I. Touchdown Machine Runs Roughshod Over Cobourg To Score Their First Win 22-0

"Collegians" Look Smart in New Uniforms and the First Wearing Did Not "Jinx" the Squad

85-YARD TOUCH

Stewart McBride Breaks Through Cobourg Line and Then Had Clear Route to Touchline

Belleville Collegiate touchown machine swung into action at the Fair Grounds gridiron with a 22 to 0 win over the Cobourg C.I. in their opening game of the Bay of Quinte Senior Interscholastic football group yesterday. The large-margin win elevated the "red and black" clad local collegians into the group leadership.

Everything was jammed into the pastime for the entertainment of over 1,200 rabid football fans, who jammed the grandstands and sidelines, from a razzle dazzle wide open touchdown-producing game, as played by the victors, to a direct contrast in weather conditions, as the sun shone brightly at the offset while rain fell to dampen the hopes of the losing Cobourg squad in the last quarter. However, two fistic outbreak in the last session added spark and spice to the game and proved the boys were playing for keeps.

Lots of Colour

All of the drama of Interscholastic football was in evidence from the presence of the Belleville Collegiate school band to a cheering section and school chorus, led by Cheerleader Bill Boyle, all of which added color and tradition to the game, but all of this went for little as the fans literally rocked the mighty grandstand as Stewart McBride, hard-hitting Belleville halfback, crashed through the Cobourg line on his own 20 and broke loose to run 85 yards to score a touchdown late in the second stanza. Although there were other feature plays, as Coach Morley Baker's local squad unravelled a bag of tricks in a wide open razzle dazzle game, but McBride's gallop was the trick that stole the show, as "Two-touch" Cronk slapped the pigakin down for ten points in his initial game as a backfielder.

No Score in First

There was no score in the initial period, although the "red and black" had the ball on Cobourg's seven-yard stripe on two occasions. The loss of a down once and the strong Cobourg line on the other occasion held the Baker-led crowd from off the score sheet. On the second play in the second canto, however, Ross Clare fired a long pass to Bruce Cronk and the newly converted Belleville backfielder ankled over to a touchdown, that was not converted. After the kick off Clare intercepted a Cobourg forward pass and ran it back 40 to Cobourg's ten, where he later punted for a single point making the count 6-0 for Belleville. Doug Maher, Cobourg's courageous little blonde-haired quarterback, showed some real football at this point as he made two fine gains in success, but Cobourg was forced to punt at midfield.

The Game's Sensation

It was on the first play for Belleville that Stewart McBride crashed through right end in high gear and with some fine broken field running galloped 86 yards for a touchdown, the longest run made locally since Wally Hilton made his sensational 90 yard run in a last-minute play here some years ago. McBride's try was not converted and the halfway mark found Belleville leading 11 to 0. Although the ball never once was out of Cobourg's half of the field in the third stanza, the only scoring rung up came after Jones cracked through the Cobourg line to toss them for a ten-yard loss and forced them to punt out of danger. Clare fired a flat forward over scrimmage to Bill McBride and "The Phantom" ambled over to a touch having only to elude two tacklers and the count rolled to 16-0 for B.C.I.

Some High Tackling

Campbell fell on Maher's early third period fumble and some piling on was observed as Pickering smeared a blocked kick. A couple of scrimmages saw high tackles and when Benson speared Theobald around the jugular and all went down in a heap with the players coming up swinging fists, it took the efforts of all three officials to straighten matters out and no penalties resulted. A Belleville player "piled on" on the next play and fisticuffs broke out again as punches were exchanged and players and spectators swarmed the field but again no serious injuries resulted from the scrap and no penalties resulted. Cobourg attempted to evade a whitewashing by reverting to last minute aerial attack in desperation, all of which ultimately mounted the Collegians' score as Bruce Cronk leaped high into the air to spear a Cobourg forward and streak over for a touchdown, that Clare converted to make the final count 22 to 0 for the Belleville Collegiate.

Strong, Sturdy Line

Coach Baker's line proved too formidable for the lighter Cobourg team as seldom holes were seen in the local front line. The two McBride boys and Clare proved the chief thorns in the side of the losers with their fast extension plays, that resulted in continued gains of yardage in a wide open game. The wide sweeping plays of the "red and black" homesters repeatedly left Cobourg bewildered, while the tackling and driving force of Theobald and Warren at the end positions sparked the locals going both ways. Doug Maher stood out as the star for Cobourg, while Hinman out-punted Clare on several occasions. Haines, Benson and Runciman all played strong football for the visitors. It was the veterans of the Belleville line, Zufelt, Sharpe and the outsides that held, but for the first-year boys, Jones, McGeachie Campbell, Row and Pickering were all good, the latter cracking through to break up Cobourg punts twice.

Belleville attempted 11 forward passes and completed five, while Cobourg tried an even dozen forwards and got but one, that coming as the result of a B.C.I. interference play. Cobourg made five first downs, while Belleville moved the yard sticks for ten initial downs.

N. H. L. Training Camp Notes

(By The Canadian Press)

Gossip about a goalie: Bert Gardiner has come in for a compliment from Coach Dick Irvin of Montreal Canadiens. Irvin calls Gardiner one of the best-skating goal-tenders he has ever seen. The Habitant coach rates Gardiner on a par as a skater with Cecil (Tiny) Thompson in Thompson's great days with Boston Bruins.

Absence makes the heart grow fonder, it was once said. And Tiny Thompson's case can be taken as an example. Thompson has decided to take leave of the National Hockey League scene after 13 years of stardom with Boston and Detroit. His new job is to coach Buffalo Bisons of the American Hockey League. It would be safe to bet that many an N.H.L. forward is glad that he will not have to face Thompson this season.

Canadiens have at least two better than average golfers with the team. One is Ray Getliffe, who not so long ago was good enough to make Ontario's Willingdon Cup golf team along with such a star as C. Ross (Sandy) Somerville. The other is Earl Robinson, who can grind out scores below 80 with regularity.

Toronto Maple Leafs start eating off the management today, although they will not get into camp at St. Catharines, Ont., for another day. The Toronto club has its annual luncheon today for the players, hockey writers and almost everybody who is anybody in sport around Toronto way.

The thriving hockey centre of Oshawa, Ont., will be well represented in the rookie division at the Maple Leaf training camp. No less than three members of last season's championship Junior Oshawa team will be trying for places with the Leafs. The boys are Nick Knott, Bud Hellyer and Frank Eddolls, the chunky defenceman who used to play a lot of hockey for Verdun Maple Leafs.

Boston Bruins went through two stiff workouts yesterday at Hershey, Pa., and afterwards General Manager Art Ross declared that he was well satisfied. In all, 31 players were out. There were the 16 players who took in the Stanley Cup playoffs last season, 11 amateurs and four Bruin farmhands.

OTTAWA, ARGOS ATOP BIG FOUR, MEET SATURDAY

Rough Riders Smear Montreal 19-0, While Argos Down Tigers 17-5

BEACHES WIN

Balmies Score 6-1 Win Over Camp Borden to Tie 2-26th Battery for Leadership

By Sydney Gruson Canadian Press Staff Writer.

The east's football schedules showed up today after the holiday week-end of play just as everyone thought they would—with Ottawa Rough Riders and Toronto Argonauts atop the Interprovincial Union and Toronto Balmy Beach and Sarnia Battery tied for the Ontario Union lead.

The march of the rampant Rough Riders continued in a 19-0 shutout of Montreal as the Capital cheered, while at Toronto 12,000 fans played "Eenie-meenie-mineemo" trying to decide whether the Argonauts were good or just plain lucky after they had beaten Hamilton Tigers 17-5.

These along with Sarnia's surprisingly-close 12-6 triumph over Hamilton Alerts, were Saturday's results. Balmy Beach plucked a 6-1 victory from Camp Borden in the rain at Toronto Thanksgiving Day.

The answer to the Argonaut question probably will be had next week when they travel to Ottawa for the season's first clash between the clubs. The Scullers' performance against Tigers did nothing but add confusion to the case they set for themselves in their "overtime" victory over Montreal in the season's opener.

Argos Outplayed For Time

The Tigers outfought and outplayed Argos for 35 minutes and led 5-3 early in the third quarter on George Wright's two singles, both from placement attempts, and one successful field goal. Then the lightning struck.

Argos took possession on a fumble 42 yards out. A pass play brought them to the 25 and after Jordan ran out a wide placement attempt by Annis Stukus, Wright fumbled behind the line and Steve Levantis fell on the ball for a touchdown that Stukus converted. That was the ball game—on a fumble—and the fact Argos bogged down after marching 72 yards to pay-dirt territory a little later didn't ease the impression they were lucky.

Bobby Coulter fired a 20-yard pass to Red Storey and the big back ambled the other eight for Argos' fourth-quarter touchdown after Tigers had been bottled up in their own end. But the touchdown on the fumble was the breaking point. The Tigers might have been able to play it safe had they come out of that unscathed and then again Argos might have made something out of the 72-yard drive if they had needed the points.

Rough Riders Too Good

The Rough Riders were much too good for Montreal. They smashed the Hughes line to bits to set up Tommy Daley's two touchdowns early in the game. Murray Griffin tossed Arnie McWatters a touchdown pass in the third quarter, when the Riders were fumbling on almost every other play. Montreal just didn't have the attack to take advantage of these miscues.

A fumble also paved the way to Alerts' downfall against Sarnia. Ralph Perry scooped the ball up on the five and went over in the first quarter. Two field goals by Hank Galloway offset Odie Gibb's six singles and Perry's touchdown remained the edge in Sarnia's victory.

Beaches drove 64 yards for their third-quarter touchdown against the soldiers from Camp Borden after being held scoreless in the first half. Frank Seymour ploughed over for the score after a busy afternoon taking the Borden line apart. At the critical moments, until they tired in the third quarter, the soldiers held the powerful Beaches as if they were holding a front-line trench.

ST. CATHARINES ATHLETICS WIN THE MANN CUP

Defeat Vancouver Burrards in Fourth Game of Dominion Finals 18-5

BURRARDS FADE

Collapse Can be Attributed to Sustained Pounding of Previous Games

(By Dick Sheridan, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Oct. 15—(CP)—It's only a year since the Mann Cup has been missing from St. Catharines, but the Garden City lacrosse fans today welcomed back the historic trophy with all the fervor reserved for a prodigal son. The Athletics regained the cup they lost to New Westminster Adanacs last year by beating Vancouver Burrards 18-5 last night.

It was the third straight victory for the veteran "A's" after their loss in the series opener a week ago. And it was the most decisive for the battered Burrards faded rapidly after the first quarter.

Scoring four times in each of the first two sessions, St. Kitts had marshalled an 8-3 lead at half time. After that it was a case of coasting for the winners, who produced a six-goal onslaught in the final quarter.

Burrards had no defence against the pulverising attack which the "A's" used in fashioning their triumphs. Their collapse last night could be attributed to the sustained pounding of the previous games, more than to any other factor.

Shooting Cock-eyed

This weakening process was noticeable particualrly in the cock-eyed shooting of Vancouver. For minutes on end Burrards stormed the St. Catharines' goal in the final quarter, hitting the backboards without ever coming close to the net.

Vancouver, however, salvaged some consolation from the contest in the sparkling play of their goalie Walt Lee. He capped a brilliant performance by literally taking the ball from Bill Fitzgerald's stick as the latter was about to thrust it into the goal in the final minute of the game.

Bill Whittaker, the St. Catharines' netminder, handled even more shots than Lee, but few carried the sting of those flung at the western goalie. In one instance, Whittaker refused to be drawn out of position by Bill Dickinson as the latter shifted in front of him. Dickinson shifted so violently, he lost his balance and Whittaker stole the ball.

Fitzgerald High Scorer

Bill Wilson and Fitzgerald each scored three goals for St. Kitts. Five other players got two goals each. Bill Dickinson, big Burrard defenceman, counted twice to lead the Vancouver scorers.

The only outbreak of ill-feeling occurred when George Hope of St. Catharines and Roy Cavallin of Vancouver argued as to where they would sit after being chased to the penalty box in the third quarter. The players failed to reach a decision in the slugging match that ensued and when the police broke up the scrap, Hope and Cavellin were banished from the game.

The series drew more than 25,000 with a crowd of 6,848 turning out for the fourth game last night.

CALLING 'EM

Between the Lines

with Ken J. Colling

With all the color and glamorous effects of interscholastic football, the 1940 Belleville Collegiate gridders tossed out the challenge to a C.O.S.S.A. world in their 22 to 0 win over Cobourg yesterday before at least 1,200 football fans here. Although four of the seven linemen of Coach Baker's squad are first-year players, the "Collegians" look strong enough in that department, while the backfield efforts will be well taken care of providing yesterday's efforts are any criterion upon which to base an opinion for their future grid efforts. About everything that could be jammed into 60 minutes of rugby football was seen here yesterday. Razzle dazzle football, an 85 yard run for a touchdown, the B.C.I. band in parade and attendance, Cheerleader Bill Boyle's encouragement section, two outbreaks of fisticufs and lastly weather from a beautiful sunshiny day to a downpour of rain that gave Cobourg a double soaking.

Bedecked in bright new red and black uniforms, the B.C.I. squad shook the traditional jinx of loss when clad in new jerseys as their speed and strong line proved too great for Cobourg. Of course the feature play was Stewart. (You're in the army now) McBride's sensational 85-yard gallop for a touchdown, while those fast extension plays on the Baker-led squad proved most effective and resulted in fine gains of yardage. The Belleville line was too heavy and strong for Cobourg and that about tells the tale of a 22 to 0 hometown victory. Incidentally the Collegians were minus the services of their veteran middle-winger, Claude "Goldie" Mullholland yesterday. Goldie sustained a torn ligament of his right knee in practice last Thursday and will be out for the remainder of the season. His accident was most unfortunate but both Jones and Row filled in at the middle positions in veteran-like style yesterday. Ronnie Warren was breaking through at one end while Gord Theobald took care of the Cobourg kids coming around the other side in capable manner.

One official of yesterday's game remarked at halftime—"Well, it's Maher, Hinman and Bennett versus B.C.I. here today." And that about told part of the story. Maher stood out for Cobourg, while Hinman punted well, but otherwise the visitors could not cope with the strong Collegians from along the shores of the Bay of Quinte. Those two fistic outbreaks in the last quarter, which did much to add spice to the game without any serious injuries, can be attributed to the fact the officials of the game were a little too lenient in the early stages. Piling on, high tackling and tripping were seen all afternoon and sooner or later tempers were bound to flare up. When they did fists flew plenty and no doubt both squads are eagerly awaiting the return game in Cobourg. Principal P. C. MacLaurin was on hand yesterday and all smiles when he saw his favorite boys playing such a wide open game. Cobourg beat Albert College 4 to 1 and B.C.I. beat Cobourg 22 to 0, so on paper Coach Baker's team should win the group honors and if they don't it's their own fault.

The Eastern Canadian football games went true to form over the week-end. Argos trimmed the Hamilton Tigers and of course Ottawa beat Montreal in the Big Four. In the O.R.F.U. the 26th Battery of Sarnia kept in the race by beating Hamilton Alerts, while yesterday Balmy Beach trimmed Camp Borden and no upsets. However, our own Jimmie Follwell came in for some deserved honors (and they're hard to get in Toronto), when he was admitted to be the No. 1 kicker with the Argos. Here's what Globe and Mail Ralph Allen had to say about the boy who learned his football with the B. C. I.—"Argos uncovered a few material assets, too. A good part of the first half was devoted to demonstrating that Red Storey isn't a Big Four kicker, and a good part of the second half was devoted to demonstrating that Jim Follwell, the Guelph Aggie and Belleville rookie, is."

They had to introduce the "convoy system" (and there's a plug for Tommy Mascaro's picture at the Capitol Theatre in the bargain) at the Hume Arena last night. That hated "hooded horror", the Masked Marvel ran afoul of the brotherhood of Bellevillians and demanded police protection before he would return to the ring after winning a fall over Mike Domerko, the Syracuse football player. But—enroute to the dressing room the "Masked Giant" lost his personal pride after he cuffed Mr. Wells' derby hat into a pancake. That was his big mistake, taking out his egoism on Mr. Wells' hat. Tom's friends, and there were plenty in the Arena, made that "hooded gent" wish he'd never seen old Belleville by the bay, as the fans swarmed all over the "masked boy" and administered a real going over, so much so, that the Marvel demanded police protection. Enter P. C. Evans and that's that. As for the main scrap, it was digusting. Tom George tried to wrestle, but George Pavish (and he ain't so tough) merely employed every illegal tactic known to the game and was declared winner in a poor bout but the semi-final outside the ring battle made up for all and perhaps we'll be back next week to see a repetition, who knows?

Do you remember when Stanley Ketchel, claimant to the world's middleweight boxing championship at the early part of the century, was shot and killed in Conway, Mo., 30 years ago today?

Del Baker, of whom some say rests the responsibility of the Tigers losing the world series, is at least in the good graces of his employers. Del was signed to manage the Detroits for 1941 and with an increase of salary.

SPORT SPICE—So close, yet so far—that's the position the Oshawa baseball club finds itself today. . . . The Motor City nine had the senior O.B.A. flag all tucked away in the bag last week but Niagara Falls beat them in Oshawa 7-2 on Saturday and returned to the town of the Big Roar yesterday where Oshawa lost 8-6 in a scrappy battle that saw Player-manager Peg Hurst ejected from the pastime. . . . Now they're all tied up at two games each in a best-in-five series. . . . The N.H.L. pucksters are slowly rolling into action at the various training camps and the big league opens two weeks from Saturday.

AT THE BELLE

"Boom Town"

The biggest parcel of exciting, thrilling action, played by the greatest cast delivered to a theatre audience in many a year, is at the Belle tonight and Wednesday. The picture is "Boom Town" and the action booms from beginning to end. Some of the most amazing scenes the screen has ever exhibited are seen in this picture which is sure-fire recommended entertainment for everyone.

Not only does "Boom Town" give audiences fast action, but it parades a cast which is almost unbelievable in popularity Stars of the picture are Clark Gable, Spencer Tracy, Claudette Colbert and Hedy LaMarr. And as though that were not enough there are Frank Morgan, Lionel Atwill, Chill Wills, Marion Martin, Minna Gombell and a few more, ending with wee Casey Johnson and Baby Quintanilla.

To review the work of the stars would be a hollow effort for any reviewer. Suffice it to say, none of the four stars was ever better cast. This picture will add new fame to every player in the star-studded cast. Producer Sam Zimbalist, director Jack Conway and writer John Lee Mahin, who adapted from James Edward Grant's story, set out to give fast action, intense drama, thrills and startling scenes coupled with a gripping human-interest story. They succeeded.

The story cannot be told briefly, but it is the story of two pals who battle together, become enemies, are reunited and arrive at a pulsating climax when one of them must take a long gamble to send his friend away from a siren back to his wife—the girl they both love. Through the story speeds one piece of action after another. The two pals fight three husky bruisers, bring in a water geyser, strike a gusher that will lift you out of your seats, battle a blazing well in one of the most dynamic scenes ever filmed, do a hilarious scene in long "underwear."

The scene in which Gable and Tracy fight it out with bare fists in a swanky office is nothing short of sensational. Through all of this there are lovely girls, two of the loveliest and most talented of which are Miss Colbert and Miss LaMarr, as the wife and the siren. When this is served up with a plentiful dash of comedy by Frank Morgan and Chill Wills, it all adds up to the best entertainment of the year.

The popular Belle News of the hour and "Papa Gets the Bird," a funny comicolor cartoon, precede the feature attraction.

MOTORIST FINED FOR HITTING COW

Striking a cow along Highway No. 2 adjacent to the Montrose Farms, an automobile driven by Albert Plummer, a colored man from St. Catharines, Ont., was found to have been operated with defective brakes when the accident was investigated by Motorcycle Patrolman J. J. Hatch, late this morning. Plummer was proceeding easterly when his motor car collided with the cow, breaking the animal's leg which necessitated in the destruction of the cow, which belonged to Mr. George K. Graham, Sidney. Patrolman Hatch later charged Plummer with careless driving and the motorist paid the minimum fine and costs when arraigned before Miss Mary Butler, local Justice of the Peace.

AT THE McCARTHY

"The Howards of Virginia."

Cary Grant and Martha Scott in the Frank Lloyd production, "The Howards of Virginia," is now continuing its engagement on the McCarthy Theatre screen, after its gala Dominion of Canada premiere performance which took place on Sunday midnight, before a capacity audience and also was most thoroughly enjoyed by capacity audiences both afternoon and evening on Thanksgiving Day.

If you said that this stirring screen dramatization of Elizabeth Page's book, "Tree of Liberty" is artistically well nigh perfect; if you said that the performance of Cary Grant is of Academy Award calibre; if you said that all in all this is one of the best pictures Hollywood has ever turned out, you still wouldn't be saying all that you should about "The Howards of Virginia" unless you added one thing more, that it is a great picture.

"The Howards of Virginia," is highly recommended entertainment to Belleville and vicinity readers of this column, as we believe that at the end of 1940 "The Howards of Virginia" will be rated a high-spot on the list of the year's best motion pictures.

In brief, the story is of folks just like us, men and women, living, loving, working, fighting, human to the core. You never will nor would you want to, forget the screen experience you will thrill to watching the magic grandeur of every scene so vivdly portrayed by a competent cast, flawless in their respective parts, under the most capable direction of the picture's producer-director Frank Lloyd, the man responsible for such other memorable motion pictures as "Mutiny on the Bounty." "Cavalcade" and "Wells Fargo."

AT THE CAPITOL

"Convoy"

Now playing at the Capitol to large audiences, was held over at the Imperial, Toronto, Canada's largest theatre, was given 5 stars by Roly Young, Toronto Globe and Mail.

Unless my memory is playing tricks with me, this is not only the first five-star picture of the season but also in a good many months, but personally I have no doubts about the rating for this new British picture "Convoy" which to me at least, is the best naval thriller that has been made in years. It should be understood right from the start, too, that "Convoy" is not a propaganda picture, it has no newareel stuff in it. Instead it is a bang-up adventure built around the wartime convoy system and the British navy co-operated to the extent of allowing the technical crew to make three trips with convoys in order to get authentic background scenes to work into the story. As a matter of fact, it is so far from being a propaganda picture that you'll see a British cruiser getting the worst of a battle with a German pocket battleship, which should relieve "Convoy" of any stigma which the public seems to place on propaganda films these days.

You'll notice a few slightly familiar names in the cast, and, of course, it's grand to see Clive Brook back again in uniform, he's ideal for this type of role.

The supporting cast is excellent, with plenty of those typical little English character bits that are so well done. You should see "Convoy" . . . it's terrific.

To complete this grand attraction, two select short subjects are shown, "Larry Clinton's Band" and an uproarious comedy featuring Walter Catlett in "Static in the Attic."

HOW TO OVERCOME ITCHING PILES

If you are annoyed with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not neglect the same or run the risk of an operation. Any itching, soreness or painful passage of stool, is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once. For this purpose get from J. S. McKeown or any druggist, a package of Hemroid and use as directed. This formula, which is used internally, quickly relieves the itching and soreness and aids in healing the sore, tender spots. Hemroid is highly recommended, is easy to use and it seems the height of folly for anyone to risk an operation when a simple remedy, which is so pleasant to use may be had at such a reasonable cost.

KILLED IN RAID

Lydia Hill, English actress who captivated the heart of the Sultan of Johore, was killed during an air raid on Canterbury. The Sultan showered jewels on Miss Hill and one time there were reports of a crisis in Johore and a possible abdication. The Sultan and Miss Hill always denied rumors they were engaged, although the Sultan divorced his wife and Miss Hill then wore a large diamond ring.

London Still Centre Of Britain's War Effort

London, Oct. 15 (CP)—The London correspondent of the Swedish newspaper Stockholme - Tidningen said Monday London remains the centre of Britain's war effort despite six weeks of air attack, the British Broadcasting Corporation reported.

"The destruction of London dwellings and factories is less than one per cent., the correspondent said. "I am convinced air bombardment can not decide the war unless one side is so superior that its opponent's defences are broken down which is not the case in London."

The correspondent said it was possible to take a 15-minute busride in London without seeing anything more startling than broken glass and one or two bomb craters.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was doing the bridge problem and pop was smoking to himself in his private chair, saying, For Peet sake, Benny, what are you doing, giving an imitation of a ferret?

I'm hunting for something I said, and pop said, Well you've looked everywhere at least 3 times, why dont you call it a day and look for something elts?

Well G wizzickers, pop, I mean holey smokes, I dont know what elts to look for, I want those things, I need them, they're stickers with dry mucilledge on one side, and all you have to do is wet them and stick things together with them, I said. Are you positive you haven't seen them anywhere, pop? I had about 6 of them, I said, and pop said, By gollies I'm sure I saw those things somewhere, now let me think, where did I see them, was it in my tomato soup at dinner this evening? he said

Aw jimminy, pop, I'm serious, did you really see them somewhere? I said, and pop said, I really did, and I'm just as serious as you are, if not more so. Could they of been mixed up in my shaving lather this morning? he said.

G roozalem, pop, hoy could they? I said, and ma said, For land sakes Willyum if you really know where the boy's things are, why do you keep him dangling in suspense with a lot of rediculous nonsense?

Now I remember, pop said. The mizzerble things were in my wallet, and when I tried to pay the waiter for my lunch my bills were all stuck together in a gassly mess, much to my public embarrassment, he said, and I said, G, that's right, pop, I put them in your wallet so you'd be sure to see them and ask me about them, and that would remind me to ask you if you wanted to buy them to use down at your office.

The rest being the sad part.

Testify in Trial of Suspended Toronto University Lecturer

Norman Freed and Morris Erlich, interned as Communists, are shown here accompanied by an armed military guard as they appeared at Toronto city hall to testify at the trial of Dr. Samuel Levine, University of Toronto lecturer, who is being tried for a breach of the Defence of Canada Regulations. Both Freed and Erlich were roomers in the Levine house in which Communistic literature was seized. Note the patches on their trousers, which are placed there to mark them as internees.

There is not much in the way of comfort for this sleeping family taking refuge in an air-raid shelter in England. But they are kept warm by blankets contributed by the people of Canada to the Canadian Red Cross Society. More than 60,000 blankets have been shipped to England, and tons of food and thousands of articles are being distributed daily to air-raid victims by Canadian Red Cross Society officials in England.

Kingston, Ont., Oct. 15—(CP)—An American flier who landed his plane near Gananoque yesterday has been allowed his liberty by police officials but his small plane is being held by customs officials. The flier, Clinton Leslie Brown, 23, bought a plane at Rome, N.Y. and took off for Keene, N.H. He apparently got twisted in his directions and on landing near Gananoque said he had had a small fire on the plane. When he landed he had only six cents in his pockets.

Columbus Day Banquet Held By Local Knights of Columbus

Commemorating Columbus Day, Belleville Council Knights of Columbus entertained at a most successful banquet held last evening at which the guest speaker was Rev. G. Hanley of Trenton. Honored guests included Rt. Rev. J. F. Nicholson, V.G., Rev. J. J. Collins, Mr. E. G. Hiland, Peterborough, District Deputy, and Mr. John Legrose, Deputy Grand Knight of Peterborough Council. Grand Knight George Lee very capably carried out the duties of presiding officer. The long tables were beautifully decorated with roses in silver baskets, dahlias and marigolds.

Prize Winners

Members of the Children of Mary were in charge of serving and were most attentive to the wants of the guests. Throughout the banquet community singing, led by Mr. Harold Barrett, with Mrs. Barrett as accompanist, added to the pleasure of the guests. Many prizes were awarded during the evening and the quiz contest, arranged by Lecturer Frank Domenico, was an amusing feature of the entertainment. Prize winners were Mrs. Ethel Lee, Frank Yeome, Mrs. V. P. McIntyre, John Lee and for the quizz contest Jos. Dorian, Jos. Chapelle, Mrs. T. J. Flurey, Miss Betty Corrigan, Ed. Doyle, Mrs. Charles Doran, Maurice Callaghan, Bill McQuaide, Godfrey Donoghue, Mrs. M. Freeman and Harold Barrett. The balloon competition was won by Miss Helen McQuaide and Leo Callaghan.

Guest Speaker

Grand Knight George Lee called upon Monsignor Nicholson to act as chairman for the program. He congratulated the Grand Knight and officers, the Perfect Cafe and the Children of Mary for the excellence of the banquet and its efficient serving. Monsignor Nicholson gave an interesting address on the significance of the occasion in commemoration of the discovery of America by Christopher Columbus. The life of this intrepid mariner, characterized by the qualities of courage, constancy and above all, faith, might well be emulated in the world today.

Monsignor Nicholson introduced the guest speaker, Rev. Father Hanley, Trenton, who gave an eloquent address on Adult Education in religion, as fostered by the Confraternity of Christian Doctrine. The ideal discussion group includes ten or twelve persons with no officers, but a leader, meeting in informal circumstances in the home of one of its members. The work of the discussion groups is gaining in importance every year, bringing a better understanding of religion by the lay person.

The parent education group is becoming very popular in many dioceses in the United States. Its membership is made up entirely of parents and the subject matter is always some phase of instructing and training of children in the home. Parents are coming to realize their obligation in training children as they have never realized it before, in answer to the challenge to home authority and home training being issued all over the world.

Formal education, even the acquiring of a degree from a university, is only the foundation upon which real education is built. It awakens interest in the individual and a desire to explore further the roads of learning. It is this frame of mind which leads the Catholic adult to undertake Adult Education in religion, keeping in mind the fact that the first study group was composed of a group of poor shepherds, stimulated by the announcement of the Angel to seek the truth and to publish the tidings abroad.

Past State Deputy A. B. Collins, K.C., extended to the speaker the heartfelt appreciation of the audience for his inspiring address. Mr. Harold Barrett delighted the audience with vocal solos, Mrs. Barrett acting as accompanist.

District Deputy

Mr. E. G. Hiland, Peterborough, District Deputy, addressed the Knights on their program for the coming year, advocating classes in public speaking, as convincing public speaking claimed leadership in every walk of life. He congratulated the local Council for its splendid work under the guidance of Grand Knight Lee and asked for co-operation in the movement for increased membership. He told of the work of the Army Huts, emphasizing the fact that all monies collected were used for the special activities of the Huts, not one cent being expended by officers for personal expenses in connection with this project. Dr. Claude Brown, who is now in England with the Army Huts leaders, pays his own personal expenses. In conclusion the speaker bade the members to "fear God, honor the King and love the Brotherhood."

Deputy Grand Knight Legrose, Peterborough, Rev. J. J. Collins, Lecturer Frank Domenico and the chairman of the banquet committee, George O'Brien, gave brief addresses, the officers of the local council thanking their associates for their splendid co-operation in making the banquet a success. Grand Knight George Lee expressed his gratitude to the officers and members, especially Brother W. Lynch, for their assistance, and to the Children of Mary, the Perfect Cafe and the Pepsi-Cola Company for their help. The enjoyable evening came to a close with the singing of Auld Lang Syne.

STETTIN ATTACK

Weather connections were unfavorable and some of the British planes were unable to reach their first objectives, the ministry said, so some moved on to the great ports of Hamburg and Emden in Germany and Den Helder in Holland, where they unloaded bombs on the docks, while others attacked railway communications at Goettingen, Lingen and Hanover, besides several factories and airdromes at those points.

The ministry said four planes were lost in these operations and in daylight patrols yesterday.

Long Attack On Britain.

The long attack on Berlin started about 2 a.m. today (9 p.m. E.D.T. Monday).

Through all of the 600 miles flight from Britain the fliers had soared against a clear sky lighted by a full October moon—a hunters' moon—which clearly defined the cities and towns and countryside below them.

A slight haze lay over Berlin, the ministry said, when the first of the raiders roared past the outer ring of anti-aircrafe guns and searchlights, moving so high they were mere dots to the gunners below.

They quickly picked out the large Danzigerstrasse gas works and dropped a stick of heavy calibre bombs. The glares of fires reddened the distant earth, the ministry said.

Railway Yards Hit.

Other raiders picked out the Templehof railway yards near the great Templehof airport and laid patterns of bombs across tracks and buildings.

Other sections of the raiding party concentrated their attack on military objectives in the centre of the city. They dropped tons of high explosive bombs and numerous small fire bombs.

Once, the air ministry said, the attack was so intense that explosions and fires could be seen simultaneously in several parts of the city.

One direct hit of a heavy bomb was scored on railway sidings near the Lehrter station, not so far from the Brandenburger gate in Berlin.

Two Air Raid Alarms

Berlin, Oct. 15 — (CP) — Long range Royal Air Force bombers winging through moonlit skies gave Berlin two air raid alarms during the night and loosed a rain of explosives on the city.

Several planes braved heavy anti-aircraft fire to swoop so low the roar of their motors could be heard plainly in the streets. One large bomber was caught in the beams of searchlights as it droned across the city but it disappeared before anti-aircraft guns could find its range.

(A communique issued in London said R.A.F. planes attacked German bases on the Channel and oil plants and other targets in Germany.)

The northern and western districts of Berlin bore the brunt of the R.A.F. attacks. Many persons were being removed from the bombed area today, either because their homes had been destroyed or because of danger from unexploded bombs.

All the bombs which fell on the city were dropped during the second alarm. The first alert roused millions of persons from their beds and sent them to underground shelters, but there was no gunfire or sound of planes overhead.

(Censorship forbade transmission of information from Berlin concerning the exact times at which the alarms were sounded, but the hours at which despatches reached New York indicated the first alarm was sounded before midnight and the second during the early morning hours.)

ACTIVITIES OF CLUB DRAFTED FOR SEASON

The schedule of hikes and club meetings for the coming season was drafted by the Junior Boys' Club and the Prep Club of the local "Y" on Saturday when the two clubs met for the election of officers. Among other business transacted at the meeting, a competition for selling Christmas cards was started among the boys. Two groups were formed and at the conclusion of the contest the winners will be hosts of the losing team. One-half of the profits derived from the contest will be divided between the Y.M.C.A. World Brotherhood Fund and the Boys' Camp.

Following are the officers elected in the two clubs: Junior Boys' Club—President, Douglas Ashley; Vice-Pres., George Wonnacott; Secretary, Ronald Moorman; Treasurer, George Garrow; Sgt.-at-Arms, Bill McIntosh.

Prep Club—President, Bob Ashley; Vice-President, Hugh Cameron; Secretary, Jack Campbell; Treasurer, John O'Flynn; Sgt.-at-Arms, Gerald Bongard.

EACH OF SIX

German planes, and the hum of engines and rattle of machine-gun and cannon fire were heard by the people below. They were unable, however, to see the planes except once when a raider broke through the clouds and was immediately ringed by anti-aircraft fire.

One fighter dived out of the clouds and dropped a high explosive bomb on a southeast coast town, damaging a few houses but causing no casualties.

Eight Nazis Shot Down.

Some bombs fell in the London area during the first two attacks. Other daylight raiders appeared in the vicinity of Liverpool. Up to noon eight German planes were shot down.

The first daylight alarm came a few hours after dawn when three waves of German planes, flying at about 10,000 feet, crossed the southeast coast at Margate at intervals of three minutes, apparently headed for London. The first alarm did not last long.

The Press Association said a Messerschmitt raider last seen losing height after being attacked by a British plane might have been brought down.

Fierce dogfights were reported high over the Kent coast between German planes and squadrons of Royal Air Force fighters.

Persons on the cliffs watched the fight as planes dived in and out of cloud formations in a deadly hide and seek.

In London, during the second raid, three high explosives and an incendiary bomb fell on one districtt.

Besides the air fight over the Kent coast, R.A.F. planes met a strong Nazi formation over a town in the home counties.

Described As Fierce.

Both fights were described as "fierce" by the Press Association, which said the first engagement lasted half an hour.

Meanwhile, it was disclosed that a bomb dropped in a recent raid damaged Kemsley House, London home of the Daily Sketch. The newspaper said "production was not halted for a moment".

The Press Association also reported a "London music hall where many stars of the variety world have appeared" was damaged badly inside. A high explosive bomb smashed through the roof. There was no performance on at the time. Some staff members in the building were injured.

Casualties caused by 55 German air attacks on counties of England's industrial midlands region up to Sept. 30 were listed today as 170 killed, 180 seriously injured and 380 slightly injured.

"These figures may be compared to a total of 183 people killed in the same three months in ordinary road accidents in a part of the region," said the Press Association.

It was estimated 56 districts in and around the capital were bombed during the night.

For Great Britain as a whole, however, a government communique described the attacks as "on a somewhat smaller scale than those of the previous night".

Glaring Headlines

London newspaper trucks twisting through debris-clogged streets at dawn carried papers whose headlines said: "London bombing is fiercest yet", "London's worse terror raid', and "fiercest night raid of the war".

The Daily Express printed a picture of a large United States bomber under the heading: "Soon we may bomb Berlin by day, too". It added: "This is the big plane for the job—a bomber the fighters cannot reach".

A joint communique of the air and Home Security Ministries said in London an unidentified town in the Midlands bore the brunt of the Nazi night attack.

Seven-Hour Raid

The raid began soon after twilight. The drone of planes overhead, the bark of anti-aircraft guns, and the scream and the roar of bombs were heard almost continuously for seven hours. Then the attack dwindled.

Almost every kind of bomb was dropped on London, including projectiles described as a combination of the high explosive and incendiary types. The Germans used light single motor planes.

The number of casualties was not disclosed, but the government said they were heavier in London and its suburbs than elsewhere. Many persons who in the past have ignored the alarm sirens raced to shelter in London. Night workers caught in the streets hurled themselves into gutters for scant safety when they heard the scream of falling explosives.

Homes and business buildings in London and the Midlands were hit, widening the areas of ruin which large crews of workers have started to clear away.

In the Midlands, one town was attacked three times, with at least four killed and 13 injured. A department store and a home for aged men were hit.

Four homes in a southeast coast town were smashed.

Incendiary bombs, apparently scattered over wide areas by "Molotoff breadbaskets," set fire to a London theatre and the upper storey of a restaurant building.

Fires Extinguished.

Flames from these and other fires scattered throughout London cast a glow against the bulging barrage balloons floating thousands of feet above the city.

Fire trucks raced from one blaze to another in one of the busiest nights recently for London's expanded fire fighting forces. By daybreak, the fires were extinguished, or under control.

There were some casualties at a Catholic Church and Convent where a bomb exploded.

Franklin Gowen, Second Secretary of the United States Embassy, said a big building in one section of London had been smashed to a heap of rubble.

A rescue crew which dug through wreckage for twenty hours found 40 to 50 persons still alive in a basement shelter beneath a block of flats levelled by bombs Sunday night. Uncounted others were killed.

St. Michael's Band, Calf Club Main Features Ameliasburg Fair

Although the quality of the exhibits compared favorably with those of other years, the 85th edition of the Ameliasburg and Hillier Fair failed to attract as large an attendance as usual on Saturday.

The Junior Farmers' Calf Club, long known as one of the chief attractions of the fair was productive of eight entries, and the fine showing made by the young agriculturists was indicative of the interest being taken and the progress made in this important phase of Prince Edward County agriculture.

While the complete returns from the Calf Club will not be available until computations of points are made later in the week, by Prince Edward County Agricultural representatives; Wilfred Motley, youthful Huff's Island farmer "stole the show" with a fine heifer calf. In the showmanship judging, Don Valleau, of Massassaga, convinced the judges that he knew how to parade a calf and how to show it. Results of the Saturday judging follow:

Calves—Wilfred Motley, Huff's Island; Burton Osterhout, Ameliasburg; Don Valleau, Massassaga; Ronald Burr, Burr's; Bob Cairns, Ameliasburg; Kenneth Thompson, Centre; Jack Grey, Massassaga; Roy Thompson, Centre.

Showmanship — Don Valleau, Wilfred Motley, Burton Osterhout, Bob Cairns, Ronald Burr, Kenneth Thompson, Jack Grey and Roy Thompson.

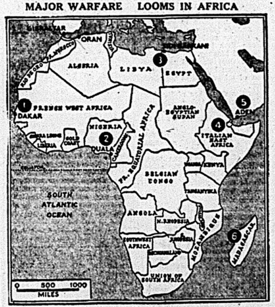
Highlighting the general exhibits was the fine display of ladies' work shown in the main building. Here the exceptional ability of the women of Prince Edward County was shown to advantage. It was one of the best of its kind shown in this district. Also outstanding in a display that was considerably smaller than usual was the vegetable exhibit shown by Ridley Wallbridge of Huff's Island. The young farmer, who apparently "knows his vegetables" arranged an attractive pile of eighteen varieties that caught the attention of the people who viewed this part of the exhibits. It was a colorful collection, tastefully arranged which reflected great credit on its exhibitor.

Livestock, poultry, swine and horses exhibit were small, while a floral display attracted a lot of attention.

Heading the entertainment was the versatile St. Michael's Band, of Belleville. The youngsters, some twenty all told, attractively garbed in their colorful scarlet, gold and blue uniforms with pill-box hats thrilled listeners with a varied program of music. The youthful musicians who are improving with every appearance gave their listeners tuneful evidence of the name they are rapidly making for themselves as one of the finest children's bands in the Dominion. They gave their concert under the baton of dainty Miss Barbara Forhan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Forhan of this city.

Representatives of some of the best Holstein and other herds of the county were noticed in the cattle exhibits with some fine draft horses appealing to lovers of this phase of livestock. The midway provided amusement with a number of games while the ubiquitous "hot dog" stands catered to the inner man, woman and child. Fruits, home-cooking, preserves and seeds and grains, the latter being outstanding, rounded out the exhibits.

MAJOR WARFARE LOOMS IN AFRICA



The clouds of major warfare which have been hovering over Africa for several weeks are quickly lowering as General Maxime Weygand (1) is busily engaged in attempting to solidify the French colonies on the side of the Vichy government. General Charles de Gaulle, who has landed at Duala (2) and took over Cameroons for Free France, is likewise engaged. With the Italians stalled at Sidi Barani (3) the British have bombed the Italian base at Tobruk. They also bombed the Assab and Djibuti-Addis Ababa railway (4). The Italians retaliated by raiding Aden (5). The island of Madagascar, which has thrown in its lot with the Vichy government, is being blockaded by the British navy (6).

ONTARIO GIVEN IMMEDIATE USE NIAGARA WATERS

Agreement Reached Between U.S. and Canada on Hydro Electric Project

MAY BE TREATY

Roosevelt Emphasizes the Immediate Need for Power Development in St. Lawrence

Washington, Oct. 15 — (AP)— Canadian-United States collaboration for total defence was advanced today by an agreement for immediate engineering "investigations" on a major Hydro-Electric project in the St. Lawrence River basin which would assure adequate power supplies throughout that strategic area.

The State Department, announcing the agreement last night, said that the United States also had assented provisionally to giving the Province of Ontario immediate use of additional waters at Niagara Falls. The existing Ontario Hydro-Electric plants will use these waters to develop an increase of power for Canadian defence industries.

(Announcement of the move was made simultaneously in Ottawa and Washington.)

The engineering investigations look toward an early understanding to carry out power development phases of long-standing but previously unsuccessful proposal for a deep waterway linking the Great Lakes with the sea. In some quarters it was believed that a new treaty might be drafted during the winter, possibly to be submitted to the United States Senate at its next session.

Previous Treaty Rejected

A previous treaty was rejected by the Senate in 1934, with opponents charging that it would benefit Canada more than the United States and that Atlantic and Mississippi ports would suffer by the diversion of traffic to the St. Lawrence seaway.

Whether seaway navigation provisions which the United States suggested in 1938 would be eliminated entirely in a new treaty proposal was not disclosed, but President Roosevelt emphasized recently that the immediate need was for power development in the St. Lawrence basin area as a defence measure for Canada and the United States.

Early completion of the preliminary engineering investigations was regarded as an important step in assuring that work could get under way promptly with the coming of favorable construction weather provided a treaty is ratified by the two governments.

The project involved in last night's announcement is located in the international rapids section of the St. Lawrence. Substantial agreement on this project has been reached already by engineering advisers of the two countries. It involves a main dam in the vicinity of Barnhard Island with a power house in each country and a control dam upstream.

ALL IN OTTAWA ANTI-TANK UNIT

Three Canadian Gunners Roll Unexploded Bomb Out of Danger

Ottawa, Oct. 15—(CP) — The three gunners who rolled an unexploded bomb to a place where it could do no harm to buildings in an English town are all serving in an Ottawa anti-tank unit, but only one lives in the capital, it was learned Monday.

Reports from England said the men had been brought to the attention of senior officers for their bravery.

The Ottawa member of the trio is Gnr. Kenneth Arthur Johnson. His wife and father, a veteran of the First Great War, also live in Ottawa.

Gnr. James Geddes is from Renfrew, Ont., and is one of a family of six brothers, all fighting in this war. Two of them are in the Royal Canadian Air Force and the other three are with British units.

Gnr. Lionel Brunet, a French-Canadian, came here from Leonard, Ont., to enlist.

'IN THE END ALL WILL BE WELL', SAYS PRINCESS

Heir to British Throne Delivers Message by Broadcast to Children of Empire

ON CHILDREN'S HOUR

London, Oct. 15 (CP).—Fourteen-year-old Princess Elizabeth said in her first broadcast Sunday that Britain's children at home are "full of cheerfulness and courage."

"We know, every one of us, that in the end all will be well," said the King's elder daughter on the British Broadcasting Corporation's children's hour.

"And when peace comes," the Princess added, "remember it will be for us children of today to make the world of tomorrow a better and happier place."

The address, lasting four minutes, was heard throughout the world.

"I feel that I am speaking to friends and companions who have shared with my sister and myself many a happy children's hour," the Princess said. "Thousands of you in this country have had to leave your homes and be separated from your fathers and mothers.

"My sister, Margaret Rose, and I feel so much for you, as we know from experience what it means to be away from those we love most of all.

"To you living in new surroundings, we send a message of true sympathy, and at the same time we would like to thank the kind people who have welcomed you to their homes in the country."

The King and Queen listened in the same room. Elizabeth spoke in clear, confident tones. Radio officials commended her lack of "mike fright".

Before Princess Elizabeth concluded the broadcast with, "Good-night and good luck to you all," she had her little sister, who was beside her at the microphone, say: "Goodnight, children."

New York, Oct. 15 (AP). — The text of Princess Elizabeth's broadcast as transcribed here by the National Broadcasting Company.

In wishing you all good evening, I feel that I am speaking to friends and companions who have shared with my sister and myself many a happy children's hour. Thousands of you in this country have had to leave your homes and be separated from your fathers and mothers. My sister, Margaret Rose, and I feel so much for you, as we know from experience what it means to be away from those we love most of all. To you living in new surroundings, we send a message of true sympathy, and at the same time we would like to thank the kind people who have welcomed you to their homes in the country.

All of us children who are still at home think continually of our friends and relations who have gone overseas, who have travelled thousands of miles to find a war-time home and a kindly welcome in Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa and the United States of America.

My sister and I feel we know quite a lot about these countries. Our father and mother have so often talked to us of their visits to different parts of the world, so it is not difficult for us to picture the sort of life you are all leading and to think of all the new sights you must be seeing and the adventures you must be having. But I am sure that you too, are often thinking of the Old Country. I know you won't forget us. It is just because we are not forgetting you that I want, on behalf of all the children at home, to send you my love and best wishes to you and to your kind hosts as well.

Before I finish, I can truthfully say to you all that we children at home are full of cheerfulness and courage. We are trying to do all we can to help our gallant sailors, soldiers and airmen, and we are trying, too, to bear our own share of the danger and sadness of war. We know, every one of us, that in the end all will be well, for God will care for us and give us victory and peace. And when peace comes, remember, it will be for us, the children of today, to make the world of tomorrow a better and happier place.

My sister is by my side and we are both going to say goodnight to you. Come on, Margaret.

Princess Margaret Rose: Good-night, children.

Princess Elizabeth: Good-night, and good luck to you all.

Plan Proposed to Harness Rapids Of St. Lawrence

Move Will Ensure Adequate Power for Defence Production for Both Countries

Ottawa, Oct. 15—(CP) — Joint action by Canada and the United States to harness the swirling rapids of the St. Lawrence River for production of electric power is a step closer today.

Last night Prime Minister Mackenzie King announced the governments of the two countries had taken steps to initiate "preliminary engineering and other investigations for that part of the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence basin which is located in the international rapids section of the St. Lawrence River."

At the same time Mr. King announced the United States would offer no objection to an Ontario Government project for diverting water into Lake Superior from Long Lac and the Ogoki River in Northwestern Ontario, generating power there in the process, and diverting an equivalent amount of water at Niagara Falls for power purposes in addition to the amount Ontario is now permitted to divert.

The St. Lawrence move, Mr. King said, is to assure adequate power supplies for defence production in the northeastern part of the United States and in Canada. The Niagara-Long Lac-Ogoki understanding is to assist in providing sufficient power for Canada's defence needs.

The preliminary engineering and other investigations on the St. Lawrence are being started so that the international rapids development can go ahead without delay when the two governments decide upon it.

Construction in Spring

Informed circles assumed it was desirable to have the work done so that construction could start early in the Spring if a general agreement for St. Lawrence development is reached.

The potential power development from the international rapids section is estimated at 2,000,000 horsepower, one half of which would come to Canada, and one half to the United States.

In northwestern Ontario and Niagara development would produce an estimated 100,000 horsepower in northwestern Ontario and possibly 200,000 at Niagara, all accruing to Ontario.

The Ontario Government wanted to proceed with this work a few years ago but was unable to obtain permission. The United States refused to agree to any change in the agreed position at Niagara pending the conclusion of a general treaty dealing with the whole power and navigation situation on the St. Lawrence River and the Great Lakes chain.

Much of the general engineering work on the international rapids section of the St. Lawrence has already been done. Several surveys were made in recent years in connection with preparation of material for a St. Lawrence waterways treaty.

No Statement on Waterways

Mr. King's statement last night made no mention of the navigation aspects of the St. Lawrence development. In pre-war discussions, these were considered to be of at least equal importance with the power aspects.

A St. Lawrence Waterways Treaty was concluded between Canada and the United States in 1932 but was rejected by the United States Senate.

Since then negotiations have been carried on at intervals and the latest move was the submission to Canada of a new draft treaty for study. This provided for the creation of a joint commission representing the two governments to carry on the construction work involved in building a ship channel and developing power.

Mr. King said the investigations now being started will be under the direction of temporary committees to be appointed by the two governments.

SEVEN INJURED IN ONE ACCIDENT

Napanee Party in Hospital at Iroquois After Head-On Collision

Iroquois, Ont., Oct. 15 (CP) — Seven persons were injured Monday when two automobiles collided on the Toronto-Montreal highway about a mile west of here. Hospital authorities said last night the full extent of their injuries would not be known until X-ray plates are developed

The injured are: Miss Margaret Robinson, Mrs. T. B. Anderson and Mr. and Mrs. W V. Webster, all of Napanee, Ont.; Mr. and Mrs .C. Gelamen of St. Pierre, Man., and Norman Dixon, Montreal.

R. N. REINFORCED BY DESTROYERS

Transfer From the United States Made at a Canadian Port — Americans Praised

London, Oct. 15 (CP)—The Royal Navy has just been reinforced by another group of destroyers transferred from the United States, the British Broadcasting Corporation reported Monday.

The destroyers joined other overage American craft which had already reached Britain through the transaction whereby Britain was to receive 50 destroyers from the United States in exchange for naval and air base sites in the western hemisphere.

The BBC said the additional destroyers were transferred to Britain at a Canadian port, in a brief ceremony sealed with a handshake between British and American senior officers.

Describing the ships as in "apple pie order," the BBC quoted a British naval officer as saying his men were delighted to find the Americans had left supplies of silver, china, linen, towels, sheets, blankets, pillows, typewriters, paper and pencil sharpeners on board.

Discovery of an electric coffee-machine, a refrigerator and an ice-water tap also drew admiration from the British seamen.

The BBC said the American crews spent a full day at the Canadian port explaining details of the American ships' operation. At the end of the day one British officer remarked: "Nobody could have been more helpful than the Americans."

Amazed at Machines

The sailors were amazed at an electric washing machine...... Pleased with hot and cold showers and intrigued by an electric coffee machine...... The ship's doctor would stand for an hour experimenting with it like a chemist.... He never turned out a good cup on the whole voyage......

The Navy has tea at four every afternoon...... Even on stormy days they pipe the crew to tea.... And at 11 in the morning the shout runs down the mess decks, "Up spiritis"...... And the crew lines up for its tots of rum......

The flotilla leader commander scorned the enemy's power...... Sometimes when there was peril from mines and the ships were in the U-boat area he would flip through the pages of a detective thriller he kept on the bridge with him......

Anti-aircraft guns were fired in practice in mid-Atlantic as the crews polished up their aim...... They handle easily...... We fired two bursts...... You just press a lever and a stream of lead—tracers, armor piercing and incendiary bullets whip the sky......

Lookouts' Dilemma

Whale spouts are the lookouts' dilemma...... They look for a minute like the periscope of a submarine...... Navy men refer to the Germans as "he"...... It's always if "he" comes over...... If "he" pops one at us...... You live in a life jacket on a destroyer...... and in the war zone you sleep in your clothes......

Two days before sighting land the ship's doctor and the coxswain both earnestly remarked, "Ah, I can smell and taste England in the air this morning......'

As the flotilla neared the United Kingdom, the whole life aboard pepped up...... The officers' reserve broke down completely...... Crewmen whistled and sang weird medleys of shanty tunes and swing.......

WIFE OF PREMIER OPENS CAMPAIGN

Mrs. Winston Churchill States Raids Are Only Making Britons More Determined

London, Oct. 15 (CP)—Mrs. Winston Churchill, wife of the Prime Minister, Monday said devastation caused by German air raids over the United Kingdom is arousing in Britons "only the determination to fight, work and live for victory," the British Broadcasting Corporation reported Monday.

Mrs. Churchill was opening War Weapons Week at Birmingham. Objective of the Birmingham campaign is £8,000,000 ($35,600,000) to buy bombers. Residents of the city have already contributed £4,500,000 ($20,025,000) since the war began.

In a message to the City of Manchester, Sir Kingsley Wood, Chancellor of the Exchequer, urged the need for "most stringent personal sacrifice and for steady and continual saving." Manchester hopes to raise £10,000,000 ($44,500,000) in its War Weapons Week.

Similar campaigns in Nottingham and Leicester have resulted in collection of £1,800,000 ($8,010,000) and £1,600,000 ($7,120,000), respectively.

TOM MIX DIES IN MOTOR CRASH

Adventurous Career of Soldier, Cowboy, Sheriff and Circus Actor Closed

Florence, Ariz., October 15—(AP) —Tom Mix, 60, cowboy-actor and hero of score of Western thrillers of the silent film era, was killed near here Saturday as he was pinned under his overturned automobile on highway detour.

Mix, whose coloful career as a circus performer, soldier, law enforcement officer and motion picture star made him the idol of millions, was travelling alone from Tucson, Ariz., to Florence and Phoenix. Coroner E. O. Devine said Mix apparently died instantly after losing control of his car. There will be no inquest.

Mix worked as a cowboy in Texas, Arizona, Wyoming and Montana and won United States riding and roping contests at Prescott, Ariz., and Canon City, Colo., in 1909 and 1910.

During the years when he was identified with pictures, Mix always was cast as a hard-riding, gun-toting hero out to thwart unlawful acts in the days of the Wild West.

Mix served with the United States Army in the Philippine Islands, in the Spanish American War and during the Boxer Rebellion in China winning a medal and citation. He was with the British Army at the siege of Ladysmith during the Boer War in South Africa.

THREE SCHOOLS OPENED MONDAY

Centres Under Private Ownership by R.C.A.F. Supervision

(By the Canadian Press)

Three elementary training schools under the British Commonwealth Air Training scheme were opened in Ontario yesterday and scores of young men eager to get on with their training and get into the air battles over Germany and Britain were installed in new quarters.

The centres were opened at Sky Harbor near Goderich, St. Catharines and Mount Hope, near Hamilton, all under private ownership but Royal Canadian Air Force supervision.

At Sky Harbor more than 5,000 civilians were present when Group Capt. P. H. Mackworth, Senior Air Staff Officer of No. 1 Air Training Command declared the new project open. The officer spoke of the rapid growth of the Air Training Plan and commended citizens for their public support of the training centres.

In St. Catharines the opening of the new training centre was marked by the enthusiasm of the young men to "get at it." The centre is under the supervision of Flying Officer W. H. E. Drury with G. Dunbar as chief civilian instructor. Mr. Dunbar said the trainees provided "much better material than the average civilian seeking flying instruction."

There was no ceremony marking the opening of the Mount Hope centre where actual flying was underway early in the day under the supervision of Flt.-Lt. Norman L. Drynan.

Allegedly Enters Water Deliberately

Brockville, Ont., Oct. 15 (CP).— Leo Launrendeau, 49, of Montreal, was rescued from the waters of the St. Lawrence River here Monday after he allegedly entered the water deliberately. Police officials said a charge would be laid against him today.

Police said Laurendeau was motoring from Montreal to Toronto with friends and, after excusing himself for a few minutes from his friends at a hotel here, left the building through a rear door, went to the water front and jumped into the water after removing his hat and coat.

He was rescued by Paul Rouselle and Harold Charlton, both of Brockville, who applied artificial respiration after getting the man ashore.

He was removed to hospital where a police guard was stationed over him.

WOMAN KILLED IN FREAK CRASH

Cordwood Falls Off Truck Ahead Hitting Front Wheel of Motor Car

Cornwall, Ont., Oct. 15 (CP). — One woman was killed and two persons injured last night in a freak automobile accident on the Montreal-Toronto highway east of here.

The dead woman is Mrs. Edith Outhet of Montreal. Mr. and Mrs. Percy A. Clarkson also of Montreal are in hospital.

Police said the accident occurred when a three-foot piece of cordwood fell from a westbound truck driven by Lionel Lortier, Cornwall, and struck one of the front wheels of Clarkson's car in which Mrs. Outhet was a passenger. The car crashed into a ditch and turned over twice.

Two other passengers in the car, John Travers and Mrs. Duncan both of Montreal, were uninjured.

An inquest will be held.

A portable photoelectric timer has been developed that records the speed of racing boats in thousandths of a second.

Considering Scale Of Attack Damage Is Not Extensive

Nineteen German Planes Shot Down During Day and Night-Britain Loses 15 But Nine Pilots Saved

London, Oct. 16.—(CP)—London today counted the destruction and death in one of the worst overnight bombardments of forty days of constant air siege, while Nazi raiders blasted at Britain in new daylight assaults.

The Ministry of Information described the night attack as "of a heavy nature", and said that the casualties were greater than in recent raids. It added however the damage was not as great as that done in raids in early September.

Almost without pause the Germans followed up with fresh thrusts at London and near Liverpool, as well as along the south and east coasts and over coastal regions of Scotland and Wales.

In mid-afternoon the raiders penetrated defences to London, where two alarms developed in less than thirty minutes.

While the all clear was sounding after the first alert there was heavy fire from the city's outer ring of batteries. The steady all clear note of the siren scarcely had died away before the modulated wail again sounded the danger signal.

Schoolhouse Levelled

The old October dawn lighted many a scene of devastation and death in London.

Why The Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen
Science Service Meteorologist

Rain and events! We all know how efficiently at times the fire-hose is used to stop street brawls rain has the same and often other, more far-reaching effects. For instance, the battle of Waterloo was delayed three days by rain. Rain acts like a wet blanket; during the Dreyfus trial in 1899 it stopped an outbreak; and a downpour prevented an expected riot in St. Petersburg in 1906. Heavy rain may cause floods, washing out bridges and parts of railroads and causing much inconvenience if not actual suffering, while disastrous effects may be produced by the breaking of a dam. On the other hand, a scarcity of rain may be equally bad. For instance, a drought in 1899 caused famine and destitution in China, which precipitated the Boxer rebellion in 1900.

PETERBOROUGH'S CITY CLERK DIES

S. R. Armstrong Held Position for 47 Years and Was Former Resident of Belleville

Peterborough, Ont., Oct. 16 (CP).—Simon R. Armstrong, City Clerk of Peterborough for the last forty-seven years, died suddenly last night.

Mr. Armstrong had attended a meeting of the Board of Health and went home apparently in his usual health. During the evening he was suddenly stricken.

Born in Marmora in 1861, he spent his boyhood at Blairton when that Hastings village was the centre of a thriving iron mining industry. When eighteen years old he went to Belleville and worked three years in the office of the Intelligencer and with that experience in newspaper work he came to Peterborough in 1882 as a reporter for the Peterborough Review. He later became its editor. From that position he was appointed city clerk in 1893. He was one of the founders of the Ontario Municipal Electric Association.

He was an active member of George Street United Church.

He is survived by three sons, W. Wallace of Windsor; Howard Armstrong of Toronto Star and Charles R. of Montreal and two daughters, Mrs. S. S. Cook, Sharon, Pa., and Mrs. Frank Dawson of Peterborough.

TORONTO MAN KILLED ON AJAX

Sub.-Lieut. G. H. K. Strathy Graduated From Toronto University Last June

Toronto, Oct. 16 —(CP)— Sub-Lieut. G. H. K. (Pat) Strathy, 22, of Toronto, was killed in action aboard H.M.S. Ajax, his parents here were informed today. It was presumed he was killed during last Saturday's engagement in the Mediterranean in which the Ajax defeated 10 Italian ships, sinking two of them.

Sub-Lieut. Strathy graduated from the University of Toronto last June with high honors in mathematics and was shortly called up by the Royal Canadian Naval Volunteer Reserve with which he had taken training. On arrival in England he was transferred to the Royal Navy and was posted to the Ajax.

He was one of a three-man team of student mathematicians from the University of Toronto which won a competition against teams from 60 Canadian and American universities last spring.

Surviving are his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gerard B. Strathy, and two brothers, Flt.-Lt. C. M. A. Strathy, Ottawa, and J. G. K. Strathy, Toronto, a captain in the Queen's Own, non-permanent active militia.

TO DOUBLE PROGRAM

Washington, Oct. 16 (AP).—The United States War Department disclosed today that its pilot training program would be doubled next year, in line with the general expansion of the air corps, to provide schooling for 24,900 "flying cadets". Officials said the program originally contemplated giving the seven-month cadet course to young men at the rate of 12,500 annually.

"The secretary of state will also visit contingents of British and Allied forces in the Middle East."

AJAX INFLICTS STINGING BLOW ON ITALY'S NAVY

Two Destroyers Sunk, Another Crippled by Famous British Cruiser

ITALIANS FLEE

Cruiser and Four Destroyers Leave Scene of Battle at High Speed

London, Oct. 16—(CP) — The British Empire today acclaimed another saga of the royal navy's power on the seas — the story of H. M. S. Ajax and her victory over Italian naval forces.

The Ajax, almost single-handed, sunk two destroyers and crippled a third in two swift Mediterranean battles and came out of the clash ready to fight again any day. The crippled destroyer later was sunk by gunfire.

The Admiralty announced that the Ajax last Saturday fought eight warships, one a heavy cruiser and received aid only after H.M.S. York appeared to help her polish off the last of her victims.

Night Club Girls From Balkans in Egypt Protest Move

Cairo, Egypt, Oct. 16.—(AP)—Two hundred night club girls from the Balkans, regarded suspiciously by British counter-espionage agents as possible spies, are protesting against moves to expel them from Egypt.

One group held a noisy indignation meeting and appointed a spokesman to communicate their grievances to the press. Others thought it better to plead individually with influential personages frequenting their night spots.

Officials disclose that there had been some arrests among entertainers on charges of spying and that some already had been expelled as "dangerous women".

The Balkans supply Egypt with most of its night club artists, except for hip-swaying dancers, a local specialty.

The ones authorities want to get out of the country for the most part are Hungarians and Rumanians. There also are many Czech, Polish and Austrian girls here, but the British Intelligence Service say they are less likely to spy for Germany.

"We're innocent", the protesting group says. "Why should we be deprived of the right to make a living, especially now when it's hard and expensive to get home and just at a time when a big British army in Egypt makes business good?"

WILL NOT HONOR CORTES

Mexico City, Oct. 16 (AP). — The Chamber of Deputies says "no" to a proposal to emblazen in gold letters the name of Hernando Cortes, the Spanish conqueror of Mexico, on the walls of the legislation halls. It contended his methods of conquest, including torturing of Indians and rule of iron, made such an honor undesirable.

ACTORS' EQUITY DENIES APPLICATION OF PRODUCER

New York, Oct. 16 (AP). — The Council of Actor's Equity denied an application of Producer Sam H. Harris yesterday to escape paying salaries to the cast of "George Washington Slept Here" for a week's delay in opening caused by the death last week of Berton Churchill, Toronto, the featured player. Harris sought to invoke an "act of God" clause in contracts between players and the management.

Heavy Calibre Bombs Dropped by the R. A. F. On Kiel and Hamburg

London, Oct. 16.— (CP)— The Royal Air Force dropped "large numbers of heavy calibre bombs" during the night on the German naval bases of Kiel and Hamburg, the Air Ministry announced today.

The main strength of the R.A.F.'s raiding squadrons dropped tons of high explosives on shipping and wharves at those two bases.

The weather was spotty—clear in places, in others so bad that blind flying was necessary; and some of the R.A.F. planes with assigned objectives elsewhere in Germany did not reach their destinations, the Air Ministry said.

Not As Destructive

The raids on the whole were not as destructive as Monday's, when the R.A.F. demolished buildings, smoke stacks, tanks and reservoirs at the vital synthetic fuel producing plant at Politz, near Stettin, the ministry's communique indicated; but considering the weather they were successful.

British bombs were dropped on oil plants at Gelsenkirchen, Magdeburg and Salzbergen. The oil depots near Kiel also were hit, the communique said.

Seeking to damage the powerful German war machine, other planes pitched their bombs at freight yards at Schwerte, Krefeld, Hamm and Soest, and railroad junctions at Nordhausen and Halle.

The planes forced from their primary objectives by the weather unloaded their bombs on munition factories aircraft factories and power stations, familiar to them from many nights of raiding.

Others renewed the attack on the Channel invasion ports and the gun emplacements at Cap Gris Nez.

All Planes Return

All the planes returned to Britain safely.

One pilot who flew in the Monday night raids reported to the Air Ministry that a bomb explosion at the Bohlen, Germany, oil refinery threw a cloud of smoke up 6,000 feet.

"We saw our bombs burst right on the target", he said. "There was no doubt about it, for about 30 seconds after they had landed there were some pretty hefty explosions which went off about 100 or 200 yards apart".

The pilot told the crew they might just as well circle around a bit to see if anything else happened, and about 90 seconds later another explosion occurred with a tremendous shower of sparks over a wide area. This was followed upward by a column of white smoke or steam which the crew said shot up like a waterspout.

TRAINING SCHEME WORKING AHEAD OF ITS SCHEDULE

Hon. C. G. Power, Minister for Air, Addresses Plowmen at St. Thomas

MANY AIRPLANES

St. Thomas, Ont., Oct. 16 (CP).—Hon. C. G. Power, Minister of National Defence for Air, told farmers gathered here last night of the international ploughing match, that the British Commonwealth Air Training Scheme has been speeded up to the extent that it now is nearly a year ahead of schedule in some respects.

Mr. Power spent a busy day here. He inspected the technical training centre of the Royal Canadian Air Force, attended many of the opening day events of the ploughing match in which farmers of six Western Ontario Counties competed, and was guest speaker at the banquet in the evening.

Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn introduced Mr. Power at the banquet as "the man of the hour" or whom the responsibility of equipping Canada for war in the air rested.

Outlining progress in the Empire Training Scheme, Mr. Power said "a two year construction program will be completed this fall before the snow flies. As for aircraft, I believe we are in a position to say that if we have not a satisfactory supply,

2 Nazi War Prisoners Escape From Camp

St. John's, Nfld., Oct. 16 (CP Cable)—Military authorities and the police joined last night in an island-wide search for two Germans interned during the early days of the war who escaped from an internment camp before dawn yesterday.

Captain Wilhelm Josting and Ernest Munch, an oiler, were reported missing from the camp, the site of which was not disclosed, during the day. They were believed to have made their escape from the camp by cutting the lower strands of barbed wire fence.

The two Nazis were interned when their ship, the Christopher Dornum, was seized shortly after war was declared. Three dogs that had been seen about the camp frequently were reported to have disappeared also and were believed to have gone with the Germans.

Authorities, confident the internees will be rounded up swiftly, recalled Munch made a break for freedom on a previous occasion but was quickly recaptured and taken back to the camp.

VALCARTIER CAMP TO BE INSPECTED BY ATHLONE, KING

By C. R. BLACKBURN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Quebec, Oct. 16 (CP)—Valcartier Camp was being groomed today to receive the Governor-General of Canada, the Earl of Athlone, and Prime Minister Mackenzie King who is on a tour of military training and service establishments in Eastern Canada.

Mr. King arrived here yesterday to begin a tour of inspection of the Army, Navy and Air Force activities in Quebec and the Maritime Provinces, and will leave tonight for Halifax.

The Governor-General and Prime Minister will motor to Valcartier Camp, 15 miles from Quebec, this afternoon. It will be the first large-scale inspection the Prime Minister has made of Canada's war effort in action.

The Earl of Athlone has been in residence at the summer government house in the Citadel since early September. He had Mr. King as his guest overnight. It was the first opportunity the Prime Minister and the King's representative have had to confer on government matters in nearly six weeks.

A number of units in training at Valcartier will be drawn up for inspection by the vice-regal party and it is expected the distinguished guests will have tea with the officers. It is possible a visit will be made also to the Non-Permanent Active Militia Training Camp at Lauson, near Levis across the St. Lawrence River from Quebec.

1941 Markers in Green Lettering On White Ground

Toronto, Oct. 16 (CP).—Ontario's 1941 auto markers will be ready for issuance Dec. 1, Hon. Harry Nixon, Provincial Secretary said today in discussing delay in manufacturing the plates at the Ontario Reformatory at Guelph, due to lack of steel which is going into war industry.

Mr. Nixon said the supply of steel will expand by Oct. 25, so that all the 750,000 plates, green lettering on a white background, will be ready for distribution Dec. 1. Markers must be obtained by Dec. 31 although it is likely the government may grant a 15-day extension.

SEAPLANES, SUBS BEING SHIPPED INTO RUMANIA

Expected Rumanian Black Sea Port Will be Used by Germany as "Training Base"

GUARD OIL FIELDS

Nazi Airmen Constantly Fly Over Fields as Germany and Soviet Troops Face Each Other Across Danube

Bucharest, Oct. 16—(AP)—Great shipments of knocked down seaplanes and submarines were reported en route today from Germany to a Rumanian Black Sea naval "training base".

The Bucharest government was reported authoritatively to be preparing 100 apartments in the heart of the city as living quarters for members of the German army general staff as well as for a large German economic delegation.

These further indications of the Axis growing economic and military sway over Rumania and her resources came as large concentrations of German and Russian troops face each other across the Danube River near the Rumanian port of Galati.

Nazi fighter planes maintained a constant patrol over Rumania's oil fields and the German newspaper mouthpiece, Tageblatt, remarked that the performance of German pilots "proved their readiness for action wherever they may be needed".

Tanks Support Nazi Forces

The German forces at Galati were supported by several squadrons of aircraft and 300 heavy, medium and light tanks which rumbled into the port yesterday.

Informed sources estimated the strength of the Red army troops on the Russian side of the frontier at 150,000 to 180,000 men.

German planes continued to fly at intervals over Bucharest, where the British Minister, Sir Reginald Hoare, remained with a skeleton staff.

The German military establishment in the Rumanian capital was augmented by arrival of a Nazi naval mission expected to supervise construction of a naval base on the Black Sea.

Italian Marines Expected

A contingent of Italian Marines was expected here shortly to assist the Germans in instructing the Rumanians in modern war methods.

Refusal of Russian authorities, meanwhile, to extend the Novem-

British Warships Drive Off Italian Raiders

Alexandria, Egypt, Oct. 16 (AP)—Italian bombers, operating under a full moon, attacked a concentration of British warships in Alexandria harbor early this morning, but were driven off without scoring a hit. Anti-aircraft guns on warships and on the shore put up a heavy barrage, and the raiders withdrew to sea after losing their bombs. The alert lasted one hour.

School Children of Britain Defy Bombs as Calmly as Parents Do

London, Oct. 16 —(CP)— School children of Great Britain are meeting the terror of indiscriminate bombing as bravely and as calmly as their parents.

Schools have been bombed and children killed and maimed but there has not been one instance of panic reported.

An elementary school was bombed in a Midland town's first raid of the war and six children, all about seven years of age, were killed. Others were injured, yet five minutes after the bombing the boys and girls, lined up by their teachers, were singing.

About 400 children, some of them evacuees from London and the east coast, attend the school. They were in classrooms when a lone raider, flying low, released high explosive and incendiary bombs in a row across the town.

Behavior of all the children was described as magnificent. Many probably were saved because just before the school was hit some of them were told to lie on the floor.

Praise has been lavished on the boys of one of Britain's most famous public schools, situated northwest of London.

Incendiary bombs fell over the scattered buildings but the boys, clad in steel helmets and pyjamas, tackled the flames so efficiently that regular firemen and A.F.S. workers left the job entirely to them and concentrated on other fires in the district.

The roof of the speech room, where many distinguished scholars had given addresses, was slightly damaged and the roof of the school museum was burned, but the exhibits escaped harm.

The boys collected bomb fins and whole bombs that had not burned out for souvenirs and many "swaps" were made at classes the next day. One boy, who had 15 bomb fins, sold them at a shilling apiece for a Spitfire fund.

Turkey, Greece, Says Press, Cannot Be Intimidated

Turkish Government Circles Silent But Press Say Turkey Will Defend Her Independence

Budapest, Oct. 16 (AP)—Reports that Turkey and Soviet Russia are near agreement on a military alliance designed to block Axis penetration into the Near East spread through the Balkans today as Germany poured more troops and equipment into Rumania.

Bulgarian Communist sympathizers in Sofia, where the reports originated, said President Ismet Inonu of Turkey was expected to announce the pact to the National Assembly in Ankara Nov. 1.

Turkish Government circles maintained silence, but the inspired press asserted that neither Turkey nor her "close friend" Greece could be "intimidated" by Germany or by any one else.

No Change of Friendship

"Turkey has no intention of changing existing friendships, is determined to defend her independence and is still peacefully inclined," said the newspaper Ulus, Turkish Government Party organ.

Turkey counts among her friends both Russia and Great Britain.

Growing anxiety in Turkey over the Balkan situation was reflected in reports from Istanbul that the Government had chartered three steamships to speed removal of its Nationals from Rumania.

Greece also showed its concern by calling to the colors engineering and communications specialists of the class of 1936.

Conjectures Raised

That action coincided with reports that several shiploads of German soldiers had joined Italian

The annual tree trimming program of the City Parks Commission is in full swing this week under the direction of Foreman Walter Tucker. Chairman M. Callaghan stated recently that young saplings would be planted in the spring to supplement the trees left standing.

An outstanding program has been arranged by the St. Julien Chapter I.O.D.E. to be presented at the concert to be given in the Capitol Theatre this coming Sunday evening a 8.30 o'clock. The Officer Commanding at the Trenton Airport has kindly given his permission to the R.C.A.F. Band to take part in the program and in addition to the numbers played by this excellent body of musicians, the entire boys' choir of Christ Church will assist and there will be solos by prominent and favorite singers. The proceeds of the voluntary collection will be devoted entirely to the purchase of wool, blankets and other comforts for the soldiers overseas and at home. The need is urgent and it is hoped that a generous response will be made by the public in assisting the members of the St. Julien Chapter in their noble work. In addition to supplying comforts to the soldiers at home and abroad, blankets and warm clothing are being forwarded to England for the people who have suffered so greatly in the bombed areas.

The manager of the Capitol Theatre has generously given the use of the theatre free of charge for this concert.

By attending the concert on Sunday evening, music lovers will pass a pleasant evening and assist a worthy cause.

Police Blotter

Following a diligent search on the part of city police seeking a motor car that had been reported stolen from off the market square on Monday night, the authorities later discovered the vehicle had been parked elsewhere by its owner. Mr. William C. Sills, R.R. No. 3 Belleville, informed police he was certain he had parked his automobile on the market square before attending Monday night's wrestling show at the Hume Arena. The theft of the vehicle was broadcast over CJR, Belleville police radio, and a diligent search commenced. Later the vehicle was found parked on the main street. "That's twice this sort of a thing has occurred of late," remarked one rather disgruntled officer after Mr. Sills admitted his mistake to Sergeant Arthur Booth.

Henry Laird, employee of a construction company at the Mountain View airport, reported the theft of his 1928 Chevrolet coach. Mr. Laird informed police authorities he was of the opinion that two soldiers had taken the vehicle to Campbellford.

M. Jones, 20 Murney Street, left his bicycle at the rear of the City Hotel on Front Street yesterday, but when he returned for the bike it was gone, he told police.

Last night's sudden drop in the temperature resulted in an increased number of transients seeking warm sleeping quarters at the police station when nine shivering knights of the road welcomed the heated cell block, which was not so well appreciated by a Toronto motorist who was held on a charge of drunk driving.

Several Degrees Frost Tues. Night

Ice-rimmed creeks and ponds, and blackened vines of plants and floral life of the city and district were mute evidence of the severest frost of the year Tuesday night as the mercury dipped to nearly ten points below freezing. The official thermometer at the Belleville Purification Plant registered 26.3 degrees but many private instruments in the city stopped at the 22 mark.

Any tomatoes corn or other plant life that survived the frosts of a few weeks ago, were gently but firmly frozen out of the harvest picture. Fields in all parts of the district hitherto untouched by the damaging frost fingers today are areas of blackened frozen vines.

By the same token flowers in lawns and gardens left to the mercy of the elements are also ruined. Boulevards and gardens showed pitiful remnants of once proud floral beauties.

Ice froze to unseasonal thickness on creeks, pond and swamps. In the city streets, solid ice was noticed in gutters, and on sidewalks.

The frosty tang of the morning air brought memories of long underwear and fur coats. At that a straw hat was seen perched jauntily on the side of the head of a rural resident, who, paradoxically enough, walked into a haberdashery and bought a warm mackinaw coat.

Change in Time For "Happy Gang" Show

In deference to the many rural residents of the surrounding districts who have purchased tickets and in other ways have signified their intentions of attending the performance of the famous "Happy Gang" at the Hume Arena here on Friday night, members of the Belleville Rotary Club entertainment committee have changed the time of the opening of the show from 8 p.m. to 8.30 p.m.

Thus time, the committee feels, will give rural residents who are living and working under Standard Time, a chance to arrive in town in time for the opening.

The seat sale now under way at the old Eaton Grocteria, 276 Front Street, is meeting with a fine response and hundreds of seats have been sold. However, there are some choice seats left and potential purchasers are urged to secure their seats immediately as the committee have announced that no choice of reserved seats can be had at the Arena box-office on Friday night.

Outside communities have shown exceptional interest in the show and orders for large blocks of seats have been received by the committee.

The show promises to be the outstanding entertainment event of the season with such "Happy Gang" favorites as Kathleen Stokes who will perform on a Hammond electric organ, Eddie Allan and his accordeon, Bob Farnham, Blaine Massey and his violin and the inimitable master-of-ceremonies Bert Pearl.

Many private parties have secured their seats, and others are urged again to get theirs right away. Better be safe than sorry.

RUGBY INTEREST ON INCREASE AT STIRLING

Village Fans Eager to Learn Rudiments of the Fall Classic

Stirling, Oct. 16 — Stirling has long been known for its interest in sports and the support it gives its teams among those games of the past that have drawn record crowds are hockey, an easy first, lacrosse and soccer football. But this year the efforts of the Stirling High School Rugby team have drawn increasing interest of fans who are now striving to become familiar with the technical points of the game that is new to most sport fans of the district.

Under the guiding hand of Mr. Mundy, coach and sports director of Stirling High School, the boys got away to a good start winning their first two games in a row. In their first game they downed Tweed 11-0 on their own campus in Tweed and in the second game trounced Grant Thain's Madoc squad 17-1. Their first setback came when Tweed visited Stirling last week and reversed the issue by downing the locals 13-0. But still the interest increases and 'ere the schedule is completed a real gallery of fans will be 'rootin' for the Stirling lads. Snap duty is handled by Freddie Eggleton, "Buckeye" Hulin and Norm. Murray with their combined weights topping 400 lbs are the Insides, Clark Pidgeon and Ed. Sine are Middles with Don Francis and Bert Bastedo on the Ends. Russ Pyear is an excellent choice at quarterback. Bill McGee and Tanner are on the Halfline. Don McIntosh as Fullback and Rowen Walker as Flying Wing complete the team that is no way weakened by Ralph Vandervoort, Doug. Patterson and Jack Thompson as alternates.

The Humming Bird

Hushed and silent is the bird-song
In these mellow days of Autumn,
Wren and robin, swift and swallow,
To the summer land have flown;
Orioles so sweetly calling,
And the bluebird's song enthralling,
Oh! that we might hear their music
In these days so sad and lone!

Bob-o-links have left the meadow,
And the King-bird's nest in shadow
Tells no tale of crowded nestlings
Now that summer days are o'er;
But tho' bereft of singing,
See! a humming bird is winging,
With its airy vibrant spirit
Keeping summer at our door!

SHORT SESSION OF CITY COUNCIL HELD TUESDAY

Members Discuss Parking of Cars on Pinnacle Street and Refer Matter Back

BY-LAWS PASSED

Parking cars on the west side of Pinnacle Street for long periods of time during the day was a matter for discussion of the City Council, when they met in regular session on Tuesday evening. A complaint in the form of a letter from the City Engineer, registered by Miss Thompson of Pinnacle Street, was referred back to the committee for consideration. Miss Thompson stated to the City Engineer that cars were parked in front of her residence practically all day and it was impossible at times to use the driveway. Other residents along the street and several business places were also included in the protest. The members of the Council were agreed that the matter was a troublesome situation and that more consideration should be given the protest and thus it was referred back to the committee.

A letter from the City Engineer on the matter was read to the Council and is herewith given in its entirety:

October 15, 1940.

His Worship Mayor Thompson and Aldermen of the City Council,
Belleville, Ont.:

Gentlemen,—

Re: Pinnacle Street Parking

On Saturday morning Miss Thompson called me to her place of residence at 254 Pinnacle Street to register a complaint about the parking of cars in front of her home on Pinnacle Street for the whole day. Much inconvenience is caused by this practice as it makes it impossible for the Thompsons to use their own front entrance. Dr. Stobie also complains of the parking in front of his residence, because it interferes with his practice to a certain extent. Other cars park in front of dwelling formerly occupied by Dr. Connor all day long. The Hydro Commission's garage, the Belleville Sargeant Company and the Salvation Army Citadel all have occasion to use their front entrances, but cars are parked here in the early morning and remain there all day. On the east side of Pinnacle Street, between Campbell Street and Victoria Avenue, the parking does not cause inconvenience to any great extent.

It would appear quite reasonable to prohibit parking along the west side of Pinnacle Street between Riggs' Garage and Victoria Avenue and the cost of making and erecting six No Parking signs at this location would amount to approximately $15.00.

If the Council approves of the undertaking I would appreciate the passing of a recommendation covering same.

The alternative would be to place two No Parking signs in front of the Thompson residence at a cost of $4.00, as Miss Thompson is the chief complainant.

Yours respectfully,
CHARLES A. MOTT,
City Engineer.

Offers Accepted

The City Engineer and the Fire Chief will hereafter operate their cars while on city business at the expense of the city. The City Engineer was allowed $150 a year for the use of his car on city business to be paid in twelve annual instalments, while the Fire Chief was granted $100 a year, the same to be paid monthly. The offer of J. B. Ives of $75 for the building of the Kerr Clubhouse was accepted. The lot will eventually come back to the city. An offer by R. F. Hayward of $250 for 159-161 James Street was accepted by the Special Property Committee and ratified by the Council in session. It was decided to call for new tenders for a truck required by the Department of Public Works and the Comptroller was requested to insert the necessary advertisement. Some tenders were received but the Council did not think the number sufficient to adequately deal with the situation. The Army and Navy Veterans in Canada were granted the first Saturday before November 11th as their annual tag day.

Cheques Authorised

The treasurer was authorized to issue a cheque to Florence Reeves and Cecil Reeves for $727.37, being the amount of the damage recovered from the Corporation in her accident on West Bridge Street some time ago. Porter, Payne and Arnott will be paid $309.85 for counsel fees for Mrs. Reeves and Ackers and Thompson, Toronto, will be paid $73.45 for work done in connection with the case in Osgoode Hall when the appeal was heard.

The Hume Arena will be given a grant of $500 by the City Council and in return the Hume Arena officials will give free skating to the children of the city on certain days of the week. This is the arrangement that has been in effect for a number of years and is working satisfactorily from city's standpoint. The city would have to maintain skating rinks and the cost would be greater to maintain these rinks than the arrangement with the Hume Arena.

Inquiries Answered

Under the head of Inquiries Alderman Eddie Logan asked the Mayor if something could not be done about the playing of "jute boxes" in local restaurants after the midnight hour. The Alderman stated it had been reported to him that some restaurant keepers were not living up to the agreement with the city regarding these music boxes and that the annoyance was great to some citizens. Mayor Thompson promised a full investigation and if it was found the keepers were not living up to the agreement, their licenses would be suspended. Alderman Pringle asked the Chairman of Market and City Property if the garbage collector was as careful as he might be with garbage cans and Ald. Butler stated the committee had had few complaints about this matter. "Our garbage collector is quite efficient and doing a good job," said Alderman Butler. Ald. Allin asked if more direction signs pointing to Belleville could not be placed in the north country. "There is a fine field for business for this city in that part of the county and should be earnestly sought after," said Ald. Allin.

Two by-laws transferring property to Stanley Lennox and John A. Ireland were passed through the various stages. There being no further business, the council adjourned.

Public-Spirited Citizens of Trenton Contribute to Fund

Trenton, Oct. 16 — The Trenton police force will be radio-equipped in the near future, as the result of donations received from public spirited citizens who are donating money towards the construction of a sending receiving station.

The fund was started two months ago and already $160.00 has been collected for the station. Donations are still being received for the fund.

The radio station will greatly aid the efficiency of the police in apprehending thieves and many other offenders. A two-way radio will be installed in the police car so that the police in the cruiser will be able to converse with the station regarding instructions.

Efforts will be made by Chief Bain to have the Trenton station on the same waveband as the Belleville police station, so that the two police forces will be able to cooperate in the enforcement of law in the district. The Belleville's police radio was one of the first in the province and Chief A. Kidd, of Belleville, praises the station highly.

Citizens realizing the need for the radio station here because of the extra duties now being done by the police and the large numbers of airmen in the district, have taken it upon themselves to donate to the fund for this radio. Donations have been received from John Orrill, of the Quinte Hotel $25.00; E. Vassar, of the Royal Hotel $25.00; Gilbert House $25.00; Lion's Club $25.00; Art Black $10.00; C. R. Perry $10.00 and from many other citizens.

Over $30.00 for the fund has been collected from letters of recommendation, written by Chief Bain. So many Trentonians had been requesting the Chief for letter of recommendation that it was decided that those who were deserving of the letter, should donate $1.00 to the fund.

OTTAWA VALLEY TO BE SCENE OF EXTENSIVE GAME

C.A.S.F. From Petawawa Will Hunt for 'Imaginary' Enemy During Weekend

TROOPS TO RIDE

Ottawa, Oct. 16.—(CP)—In war games faintly reminiscent of the battles waged between early Canadians and the Iroquois Indians early 300 years ago, men of the Canadian Active Service Force will range through the Ottawa Valley next week-end.

There will be no battles to the death such as that waged by Adam Dollard Des Ormeaux in 1660, but the movement will be carried out in earnest. Where the French and the Indians, armed with muskets, hunted one another in canoes, Canadians will hunt other Canadians in high-speed trucks, armed with rifles, machine guns and artillery.

The big hunt will be for a body of cavalrymen riding in armored cars and motorcycles. The cavalrymen will be members of the Royal Canadian Dragoons from St. John's, Que.,—the "Skeleton Enemy" who will oppose the progress of a composite force of infantry, artillery, engineers and signallers towards Montreal.

Somewhere between Ottawa and Montreal, the Dragoons, a mechanized cavalry unit, will take up positions. Search for them will give the advancing force exercise in reconnaissance.

Out of Petawawa Camp, 110 miles west of Ottawa on Friday morning will roll three regiments of artillery, two field companies and a survey company of engineers. They will be joined by a detachment of signallers from Barriefield Camp, near Kingston. The whole force will number 2,500 to 3,000 men, travelling in 300 vehicles. eral's Foot Guards, an infantry bateral's Foot Gaurds, an infantry battalion, will join the force and the whole outfit will spend Friday night in Ottawa.

Go to Lachute

Saturday morning the force will move to the Quebec side of the river and travel to Lachute where troops will spend the night before advancing to Montreal, Sunday.

The manoeuvres are designed to provide truck drivers with exercise in driving and in travel co-ordination and to give all the troops practice in mobility in attack.

Near Lachute, Que., where it is just possible the hidden "skeleton enemy", the Dragoons, may be found, the forces from the Upper Ottawa will be joined by the Victoria Rifles of Canada and the 3rd Motorcycle regiment from Montreal.

Exercises about Lachute will provide experience in reconnaissance, in securing information about the enemy and in the use of all arms. The use of reserves to reinforce an attack will also be demonstrated.

The Royal Canadian Air Force is expected to participate in the manoeuvres with aircraft from Ottawa stations.

Tea Company Plans Cash Donations To War Services

Substantial financial aid for home and war services in Canada is seen in the newly announced policy of T. H. Estabrooks Co., Limited, Saint John, N. B., whereby a cash donation of 2 cents per pound of Red Rose tea or coffee is made available to charitable organisations during the coming winter. Every war service, church and charitable association, it is stated, may take advantage of the offer, which is effective until March 1, 1941.

The method of distributing the funds indicates that purely local charities will be given equal opportunity with national organizations to participate in the plan. Essence of the offer is that individuals and organizations are invited to save labels from Red Rose tea packages and coupons from tins of Red Rose coffee.

"These labels or coupons", states an Estabrooks official, "must be sent to the Company through the organization, society, church or club in which the war service or charitable work is undertaken and to which we will donate cash on the basis of 2 cents for each pound of tea or coffee represented by the coupons. To those organizations engaged in furthering war effort, or providing comforts for the men in uniform, or maintaining the religious, benevolent and charitable work that must go on in peace or war, we shall be glad to extend this offer".

Officials are enthusiastic about the plan which becomes effective immediately and hope that it will lead to substantial sums being made available to war and home services at a time when they are so urgently needed.

In order to publicise the offer as quickly and widely as possible, T. H. Estabrooks Co. Limited, are taking large space in newspapers in key Canadian centres. The first advertisement sets forth features of the plan in detail with complete instructions as to how charitable organizations may secure the cash donations.

Mrs. J. H. Forrester Elected Pres. Of Women's Hospital Auxiliary

At the annual meeting of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary held yesterday afternoon at the Nurses' Residence, Mrs. J. H. Forrester was elected President. The members of the executive include:

Honorary Presidents, Mrs. W. C. Mikel and Mrs. G. H. Stobie.

President, Mrs. J. H. Forrester.

1st Vice-President, Mrs. A. H. Ketcheson.

2nd Vice-President, Mrs. R. A. Flynn.

Treasurer, Mrs. R. Hamilton.

Recording Secretary, Mrs. G. Robertson.

Corresponding Secretary, Miss Ivy Dickens.

Executive, Mrs. Mac Robertson, Mrs. A. B. Collins, Mrs. E. Bassingthwaighte, Mrs. O. H. Scott, Mrs. J. McIntosh, Mrs. P. C. MacLaurin.

Entertainment Committee, Mrs. J. McIntosh, Chairman, Mrs. G. H. Stobie, Mrs. H. Wray, Mrs. A H. Ketcheson, Mrs. Mac Robertson, Mrs. J. W. Imlah, Mrs. C. A. Cameron, Mrs. P. C. MacLaurin, Mrs. W. H. Finkle, Miss Ivy Dickens.

The meeting which brought to a close the first two and a half years' effort on the part of the Auxiliary showed the extent in which the members and the community have worked for the furtherance of the Hospital. Mrs. C. A. Cameron presided for the first part of the meeting when the reports of the previous months were received.

Reviews Convention

Mrs. W. C. Mikel gave a most interesting account of the annual meeting of the Hospital Aids' Association of Ontario held last week in Toronto when the activities of the many organizations making up the Association were reviewed and new ideas shared. Dr. MacEachern and Dr. Routley were made honorary members of the Association. Mrs. Matthews, wife of the Lt. Governor addressing the meeting said it thrilled her to realize the great work the aids were doing and that their motto appeared to be "making things easier for hospital boards" rather than trying to "run" them.

During the past year Hospital Aids have raised sixty thousand dollars, an increase of ten thousand over the previous year. In the period of the past twenty years, Dr. MacEachern pointed out, the Aids have raised two million dollars in Ontario and more than two million dollars in good will.

Mrs. Mikel gave interesting highlights of various reports she had heard, of the plan to facilitate the visiting of public health patients in Hamilton hospital when forty young ladies working two at a time, directed the visiting periods of relatives of patients. One hospital has a library service of 1800 volumes and magazines. These cannot be distributed to maternity patients. St. Michael's Hospital, Toronto, has inaugurated a hospital service just for maternity patients. A valuable discussion on hospital insurance took place and many other vitally important phases of the work of the Aids were reviewed.

With Mrs. G. H. Stobie presiding the annual reports were then received. Mrs. G. S. Cronk, corresponding secretary, reported that sixty five letters had been written during the past year.

The report of the treasurer, Mrs. R. L. Brown, follows:

Mrs. J. D. O'Flynn in her comprehensive report as recording secretary outlined the many undertakings of the Auxiliary since its organization. Her report is as follows:

Annual report of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary, October, 1940.

In response to a request of the Women's Christian Association and the Board of Governors of the Belleville General Hospital, thirty-five ladies met in the Council Chambers of the City Hall on April 28th, 1938, for the purpose of forming a hospital auxiliary.

The Belleville General Hospital was built by the Women's Christian Association in 1886 which directed its management for many years during which time an auxiliary was not necessary. Of later years, when the management has been turned over to a Board of Governors it was increasingly evident that a Hospital Auxiliary would be of great benefit. The aim of the Auxiliary to be of financial assistance and to keep before the people the many services rendered by the hospital. The result of the meeting was that an organization was formed to be known as the Hospital Auxiliary of the Belleville General Hospital. The following officers were elected:

Hon. Pres., Mrs. W. C. Mikel.

President, Mrs. G. H. Stobie.

Vice President, Mrs. C. A. Cameron.

Second Vice President, Mrs. R. A. Flynn.

Recording Secretary, Mrs. J. A. Kerr.

Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. G. S. Cronk.

Treasurer, Mrs. R. L. Brown.

Executive Committe, Mrs. R. S. Stafford, Mrs. J. D. O'Flynh, Mrs. B. C. Sisler, Mrs. J. Chant, Mrs. A. B. Collins, Mrs. G. A. Stokes. Also Entertainment Committee with Mrs. A. H. Ketcheson, convener.

Auxiliary Activities

Since the formation of the Auxiliary, the following activities have been very successful in raising money—three tag days, three teas and bridge parties, two style shows, two dances, selling Christmas seals, commission on sale of magazines and sale of beautiful piece of needle point very kindly donated by Mrs. W. C. Mikel. The gross receipts from the above activities $3,322.86. As a result of these activities the Auxiliary has been able to furnish the waiting room, buy a much needed Mobile X-Ray, furnish a private room in the new wing, bring Christmas cheer to the indigent patients, place cards on the new patients' trays and the members have supplied many knitted articles for needy infants. A visiting committee has been formed to visit any patient who might be lonely. During each monthly meeting the members do hospital sewing under the supervision of Miss Thompson.

During our first year Mrs. Rhymas, President of the Ontario Hospital Aids spoke to the members stressing the necessity of having the women of the community interested in the welfare of the hospital and keeping the people hospital minded.

Each year our Auxiliary has send two delegates to the annual convention and they have brought back much valuable information as to ways and means of helping our hospital.

Welcomes New Members

The Auxiliary wishes to take this opportunity to extend a cordial welcome to any new members who would care to join—the fee is fifty cents, also to thank Miss Thompson and her staff who have been most kind, serving tea to the members each meeting. The members and officers feel that Mrs. A. H. Ketcheson and her committee cannot be praised too highly for their untiring efforts and time which they have so cheerfully given to make our activities succesaful. The Auxiliary is very grateful to the citizens of Belleville and surrounding district for their very generous response to our appeals and with their continued support and good will the Auxiliary hopes to be able to carry on.

Respectfully submitted,
M. W. O'Flynn.

Following the election of officers, Mrs. G. H. Stobie thanked the officers and members for the excellent co-operation and support given her during her term of office. She expressed appreciation of the response of the Belleville public to the appeals of the Auxiliary, and wished the new officers every success. Miss Thompson was warmly thanked for her hospitality in arranging for tea after each meeting.

Tribute to the work of the Auxiliary from the Medical Staff of the Hospital was conveyed in a letter which expressed appreciation for everything the Auxiliary had done for the Hospital especially for the mobile X-ray machine which has had constant use.

Tribute to Members

Mr. G. A. Friesen, administrator of Belleville General Hospital thanked the Auxiliary for their work of the past two years, a work which cannot be evaluated in dollars and cents. It is the goodwill which has been created throughout the community by their efforts which is of much more importance and which is invaluable.

The necessity of carrying on the work of the community at a high state of efficiency is not to be overlooked, even with so many calls for war service. The speaker congratulated the Auxiliary on its excellent record of achievement, pointing out the many features of improvement they had sponsored at the hospital, the mobile X-ray, the waiting room, in use night and day, being only part of their many services.

At the conclusion of the business afternoon tea was served by Miss Thompson and her assistants.

German Prisoners Permitted to Read Canadian Newspapers

Ottawa, Oct. 16 (CP)—German prisoners of war in Canada are given almost the same opportunity as Canadians to read about hostilities in Europe, interment officials said today.

Canadian newspapers which circulate in districts around the various camps are provided for the men and only occasionally is anything removed before they are made available to the prisoners.

"It's worse to cut things out of the papers than to let the prisoners see them," one official said. "If things are removed the Germans get the idea there's something we're trying to hide."

The prisoners are allowed to read even the German war communiques, with their exaggerated claims of Nazi successes.

Camp officials scrutinize each paper carefully before it is released to the men. Particular attention is paid to advertisements, like those in the "personal" columns, which have been used from time to time in efforts to communicate with individual prisoners.

So far no German-language newspapers are allowed in the camps. There's a strict ban on Hitler's Mein Kampf.

THE PRINCESS SPEAKS TO THE CHILDREN OF THE EMPIRE

A girl of fourteen years held the families of the Empire and of many other parts of the world by the charm and simplicity of her message to the children of the British Commonwealth. It was the Princess Elizabeth who was speaking on the B.B.C. "Children's Hour" and her words were heard in countless millions of homes where parents and their families unitedly heard the heir to the Throne speak from London.

In these war days thoughts of elders turn naturally to the future and the place that the children of today will have in that new day. Ceaselessly men and women and children pray for the return of peace with the overthrow of the Nazi menace.

In this message of the young British Princess is heard the eternal spirit and courage of the child and young life full of hope, and freed from so many of the conventions which bind their elders. Here is the word of the King's daughter to the children whose part, when peace comes, will be she said "to make the world of tomorrow a better and happier place." The simple and direct words entered every hearer's heart as she spoke of her sister and herself as having gone through trials just as so many children of the Motherland have done. "Thousands of you in this country have had to leave your homes and be separated from your fathers and mothers. My sister, Margaret Rose, and I feel so much for you, as we know from experience what it means to be away from those we love most of all."

This is the appeal of the children of the world which has been heard for ages and will be heard to the end of time, the appeal of cheerfulness in the face of obstacles and of separation, the appeal of the honesty and openheartedness. The artlessness of the child in his or her hopes and the freedom of the child's mind make progress possible. It is touching to think of a young girl who has but entered her teens saying "I can truthfully say to you all that we children at home are full of cheerfulness and courage. We are trying to do all we can to help our gallant sailors, soldiers and airmen and we are trying, too, to bear our own share of the danger and sadness of war. We know, everyone of us, that in the end all will be well, for God will care for us and give us victory and peace."

So spoke the young daughter of Their Majesties, the young daughter of the British race.

The young are full of faith and hope and courage. That is the glory of life.

And then the loving touch as she called her very young sister, Princess Margaret Rose, to "bid good-night" to the world audience of childhood, "Come on, Margaret." How sisterly, how natural, whether heard in cottage or palace, these words to a younger sister to whom Princess Elizabeth must and always will be the greatest girl and best sister in the world! What a plea for the family life such as has honored the royal home of Britain!

Here was the Princess leading a world's thought in words that children understand.

Why did this message have so wide an appeal? Because the future is all summed up in the child. The oncoming generations are the aim of nature and of life and it is the responsibility of their elders to see that the future shall be as noble and as beautiful as the imagination, vision, innocence, love and zeal of a child picture it.

Princess Elizabeth in that message surely voiced the world's hope and the prayer of humanity and gave the answer to dictators.

HITLER OVERLOOKS A DATE

Hitler is supposed to have a superstition about dates in the autumn.

But Hitler willy nilly cannot keep them.

The fifteenth of August was to have been the day of Hitler's arrival in London. But he did not come and the British people held a mock ceremony of regret at the absence of the dictator.

The other day the British broadcast drew attention to another date, eight hundred and seventy-four year ago, when, on October 13th, 1066, William of Normandy invaded England. The broadcast remarked, "October 13th, 1940 has come and gone. Hitler, who has a superstition about dates, has allowed this famous day in Britain's history to pass unnoticed."

In fact Adolf Hitler being a Fuehrer and finding his attack on Britain disappointing and no doubt fearing the effect of his failure to quell the British resistance and to conquer the island, has thought of something new, a drive towards the East if that be the purpose of his efforts in Rumania.

William of Normandy did not find the task as difficult as Adolf Hitler finds it. Hitler is finding it so difficult that Britain is not only confident that he will lose the Battle of Britain but also that his defeat there will bring about the ultimate collapse which will bring down his Nazi Empire about his ears.

It is difficult to see how Hitler could find any good omen in the event of October 13th, 1066. Duke William of Normandy, who became William the First of England and was known as the Conqueror, was a very able administrator, a brave soldier and was of Viking and French or Celtic blood. He had not a trace of German blood in his veins.

His dukedom, formerly a province in the North of France, was first called Normandy after King Charles the Simple in 912 gave it to Rolf or Rollo, the leader of a band of Norse or Viking rovers to be held by him as a fief of the French crown. His descendant. William Second, son of Robert Second, became Duke of Normandy in 1036. Thirty years later he became King of England by the Norman Conquest.

How could Hitler follow in the footsteps of the Conqueror? William of Normandy while ruthless in his conquest was a leader with a shrewd practical sense of responsibility. None of this has been shown by Hitler or his companion, Mussolini, in the attempted looting of the world. William the Conqueror lived in a rougher world than today and had not the examples of democracy but Hitler had all these and yet threw all away because democracy did not suit his plan to exploit the world and feed his envy and revenge on the good and great. William was a soldier and Hitler is no general, though Nazis claim he directs the military campaigns of Germany. William was sane and level-headed, Hitler is a neurotic and visionary who would throw civilization back for a thousand years or more if it were possible for him to achieve what he seeks to do. Hitler is the man who smears and messes and defiles what is beautiful.

Hitler can make no date with Britain and hence cannot satisfy any dream he may have about the island. Britain has shown him why.

A Master Builder

Everybody who reads the newspapers knows that St. Paul's Cathedral in London, now being battered by Nazi bombs, was designed by Sir Christopher Wren. It is not so well known that there are many other churches and secular buildings in London designed by Wren, several of which have also been hit by German bombs. Wren was a mathematician and astronomer as well as an architect. As the leading builder of his time, and the favored city planner of Charles II, he had practically a free hand after the great fire of 1666 left the heart of the metropolis in ashes.

It may surprise many Americans to learn that the influence of Sir Christopher is still powerful in this country. This is reflected to some extent in church architecture, though Wren rejected what he called "the Gothick rudeness of the old Design," which we have largely followed in our city churches, for "a good Roman manner." But Wren also designed many of the great town houses and country villas of his day, such as Belton House, Marlborough House and Buckingham House. Their decorative features have been repeated again and again in the formal mansions of America. Wren greatly admired the Italian architect, Bernini. His inspiration is felt in many a stately Wren doorway and handsome wood paneling set off by swags of intricately carved flowers and birds. Wherever possible Wren used the work of Grinling Gibbons, one of the most facile of all wood-carvers. Imitations of his patterns were to be found all over this country before factory-made decorations replaced the work of the craftsman.

The Englishman's home is still his castle, but it was Wren and another architect of a previous generation, Inigo Jones, who really turned the castle into a home. Even in Elizabeth's time the great house preserved many of the features of a fortress. It was bare and uncomfortable, sparsely scattered with ugly, bulbous furniture, including a few stiff chairs for the hosts, but only settles for the retainers. This style gradually evolved into the Jacobean, also stiff, ornate and uncomfortable, though it did produce the convenient gate-leg table. But it was Inigo Jones who emancipated the English town house and introduced the stately comfort of the Italian Renaissance.

Meanwhile domestic furniture was constantly becoming more comfortable and beautiful. Dutch influence was important in the reign of William and Mary, and fine needlework, of which the Queen was a skilled exponent, was widely used on chairs and settees. The Queen Anne ogue, so popular still, was a period of simplification which introduced the graceful cabriole leg for furniture. Two architects, William Kent and James Gibbs, did much to shape the Georgian period, but that era was distinguished chiefly by Thomas Chippendale, the prolific and versatile designer of furniture. However, it was Robert and James Adam who revolutionized English domestic architecture in the latter half of the eighteenth century and left it as a precious heritage which even the Modernist trend of today has failed to supplant.

Robert Adam was an architectural genius, even more many-sided than Sir Christopher Wren. Like Sir Christopher, he sought his inspiration in the classic past. It was a visit to the Emperor Diocletian's palace at Spalato on the Dalmation coast that filled him with enthusiasm for that antique balance and grace which characterized his austere but delicate style. When Adam designed a building he designed everything in it and outside of it, including the dog kennel and the garden colonnade. He planned complete interiors, including the drapes, the furniture, the ornamentation and even the andirons. His furniture designs were carried out by Hepplewhite and other contemporary craftsmen who set a standard never excelled. Plenty of styles have been developed since Robert Adam, from Regency through cluttered Victorian to what we call Modern, but none which has exercised so vital and continuing an influence on our own homes.

Our homes are, perforce, the world in which we must live most of the time. The familiar things we touch and see, the portals we pass through, the molding on the walls, the chairs we sit in, the beds we sleep in and the rugs underfoot, color our whole outlook. It might well be argued that the influence of the men who shaped these things and handed them down to us, men like Wren and Adam, will outlast the hecatombs of all the destroyers of history. Nazi bombs may blast St. Paul's Cathedral, but they cannot destroy the work of its architect, repeated in ten thousand buildings scattered around the world. To design the homes in which a million families will live and love is a contribution to the continuity of life. To depopulate a city of homes from the sky is as temporary an aberration as any other attack of homicidal mania.—N.Y. Times.

Stewart Says—

Washington news men see Roosevelt returned to office.

By CHARLES P. STEWART

Central Press Canadian Columnist

Straw polling on the presidency generally has given a comfortable margin of advantage to Franklin D. Roosevelt over Wendell L. Willkie.

Chas. P. Stewart

Willkie-ites however, get considerable balm of Gilead out of the fact that these polls have recorded a noticeably sizeable proportion of the voters questioned who hadn't made up their minds when queried, how they will cast their ballots.

This bloc is about 10 per cent. strong. Assuming that Roosevelt's and Willkie's respective straw showings are approximately correct, the doubtful contingent, should it flop mostly one way, ought to be enough to decide the election.

Now, the Republicans reason that an individual who remains on the fence until the last minute is far likelier, finally, to get off on Willkie's side than on Roosevelt's. He (or she) has had, say G. O. P. analysts, hard onto eight years to assess the present White House tenant. If the latter, in that elector's opinion, has performed sufficiently satisfactorily to offset whatever anti-third term prejudice such voter may harbor, that person already favors his continuance in office.

If, however, said citizen (or citiziness) is Rooseveltianly hesitant, the inference is that he or she isn't overly well suited with Franklin D. at today's juncture. Yet he or she (put it "she or her", to be impartial) quite possibly has regarded Wendell Willkie as a practically unknown quantity hitherto; therefore has preferred not to declare for him prematurely.

Can Wendell Win 'Em?

Can Wendell, in the course of his still raging campaign talks, convince this see-sawing element?

If he can do it, the Willkie-ites contend that he'll get most of that aggregation and that it'll elect him. And they maintain that he can do it. You can't but suspect that more or less wishful thinking enters into their argument. Nevertheless, such is their cerebration.

The New Dealers naturally pooh-pooh it contemptuously.

Personally, I think the Democrats genuinely are more confident than the Republicans, but perhaps that's to be expected; they're intrenched and that's an advantage.

One guess is that Norman Thomas will get a record Socialist vote. Nobobdy believes, to be sure, that there's any really Socialistic trend. The notion (if there's anything in it) is that it'll be a protest vote cast by folk who are fed up on the New Deal but don't want to acts ballots for Willkie. Of course, should it happen it won't imply Communistic, Nazi, or Fascist sympathies. Thomas doesn't go into any of those classifications. He rates as a politico-economic bug, but not a malignant one.

G. O. P. Rather Pessimistic

I live in an atmosphere which is decidedly Willkie-esquely pessimistic.

Capitol Hill doesn't count. Regardless of what they truly anticipate, congressmen predict victory in November, accordingly as they are Democrats or Republicans. Ditto the respective parties' headquarters.

My gang, though, is the Washington newspaper corps.

I'd estimate it as about 80 per cent. pro-Willkie in sympathy. It's thus mainly because the boys don't like Roosevelt. You might suppose they would, but they don't. They deem him too patronizing or something.

Nevertheless, pro-Willkie though they are sentimentally, they bet on Franklin D.

Senator Carter Glass of Virginia discouraged the crew badly when he announced that, despite his violent third term opposition, he intended to vote the Democratic ticket. Their conclusion is that the Solid South, while strongly anti-third term, will stay solid.

With the south remaining that way, the newspaper dope is that Franklin D. will get enough additional northern votes to elect him.

I'm speaking of the papers' Washington correspondents; not their home newspapers.

You can wish one thing and think otherwise.

Stewart Says—

Starting today Central Press Canadian will bring you a Washington column by Charles B. Stewart, noted news columnist. This column, STEWART SAYS, will be carried three times weekly—Monday, Wednesday and Friday.

With Washington news daily becoming linked closer to events of paramount important to the Empire, Mr. Stewart will endeavor, in his column, to interpret what lies behind the news headlines of the United States.

Blood for Britain

When Dr. Alexis Carrel returned from the French front last June he pleaded for blood. No lust for gory slaughter animated his appeal. He wanted American blood to be transfused into wounded French soldiers on the brink of death. though France has collapsed since then the need persists. But it is Great Britain's need. Accordingly Dr. Carrel sat down with the Blood Transfusion Betterment Association called into being eleven years ago by the New York Academy of Medicine, and developed a plan for collecting blood, reducing it by well-known methods to plasma (blood without red and white cells) and shipping this plasma to Great Britain. Now comes the news that through the efforts of the Red Cross and the Association some 6,000 men and women in all walks of life have donated 3,000 quarts of their blood to the British cause in less than three months.

We have here a heartening example of foresight, scientific progress and organization which redounds to the credit of the New York Academy of Medicine. If American blood is streaming across the Atlantic it is because the academy through the Blood Transfusion Betterment Association, saw to it long ago that donors were properly recruited and tested for venereal disease, so that hospitals could proceed with the business of emergency transfusion readily and safely. Blood banks were established when Dr. O. H. Robertson's method of collecting blood at the front during the last war was improved. And now we have plasma, which does away with the necessity of carefully matching the blood of donor and recipient to avoid clotting in the circulatory system.

Sir Edward Mellanby, director of the Medical Research Council of Great Britain, has testified to the need and the satisfactory character of American plasma. Accordingly, regular shipments will be made to Canada and thence to Great Britain. Mr. Churchill reported the other day to the House of Commons that some 8,500 civilians have lost their lives since the air raids began. The toll seems small in comparison with that exacted by the last war on the battlefield, but it is large enough to arouse the Red Cross. It must not be forgotten that Great Britain's potential blood donors, men and women in the flower of life, are for the most part either with the colors or in munitions and airplane factories, so that there is a real need of blood. To give up plasma is to bleed vicariously in combat for the cause of democracy. Many a resident of New York can say, proudly and truthfully, "I gave my blood to defend Britain," even though he kept on driving his truck or punching the keys on an adding machine.—N. Y. Times.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

James W. Barton, M.D.

The Treatment of Patients Complaining of Their Nerves

When a patient consults a physician and tells him that she or he is consulting him about their 'nerves', the physician knows that he has a difficult case on his hands because in the great majority of these "nerves" cases, there is no physical cause for all the symptoms that patient is about to describe to him.

In former days, physicians, after an examination in which the patient was allowed to do very little talking, advised the patient that there was nothing worse and that the symptoms were all imaginary. Today physicians save time and also the time of their patient, by making a thorough examination and then, when the patient tells of his symptoms, they are able to explain that, while these symptoms are present, they are not due to any serious or organic condition and so should pass away in time.

Today most physicians know that if they are to help the patient, they must be willing to give much time to the case even to the extent of two or more consultations of one or more hours each.

A method of treatment frequently used is to first ask the patient a number of questions about his family and relatives as to their "nerves". He then asks the patient about his own life, his work, his recreations, any illnesses or surgical operations, and finally if he has anything on his mind that is worrying him, any sorrow, grief, conflict that is interfering with his work, sleep or appetite.

After gathering all this information he gives the patient a very thorough examination, following a regular written or printed chart so that the patient can have no opportunity of feeling that any particular part of the body has not been examined. The examination may include Xrays and use of the electrocardiogram.

Thus with all the patient has told him—subjective symptoms—and all that he has discovered for himself, the physician is in a position to explain the reason for all the symptoms described by the patient.

As the patient has "told all" and has been thoroughly examined, he is in the proper frame of mind to follow the directions of the physician and so get rid of his symptoms.

London, Oct. 16 (CP)—The Air Ministry today credited an undentified Royal Air Force Flight Lieutenant with bringing down four German Messerschmitt fighter planes in 10 minutes, then going up to bag a fifth three hours later. For this exploit he was awarded a Bar to his Distinguished Flying Cross, previously won.

The Ministry said the four were downed in an action involving his squadron of Hurricanes with 85 Messerschmitt 109's at 18,000 feet over Kent.

"At once he dived to attack with 10 minutes of fierce fighting following," the Ministry said.

" 'I saw a bomb being dropped from the first machine', the Lieutenant reported, 'and pieces flew off his wing and he went down in a violent outside spin.' "

The three others were shot down in rapid succession, he said, all falling in flames .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

AN INTERESTING and possibly eventful day is presaged from the astral potencies for intervention. This may be felt mainly in the realm of the personal life, home, feelings, sentiments, in social plans and prestige as well as in all pertaining to these in a cultural and psychological phase. There should be a definite sense of security in the home and in domestic and social stability and soundness, with much felicity and worth manifesting. However, in public or group activities there is need for caution.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year in which the affairs of heart and home may be placed on foundations of safety, security and soundness. Cultural and artistic advancement, all stable and enduring growth may contribute much to happiness and satisfaction. But group or public operations centering in similar objectives call for precaution, as altruistic or utopian purpose may run into intrigue or pitfalls.

A child born on this day should be artistic, refined, gracious and cultured, with high altruistic ideals and ends. These may beget complications or make for its being "soft and sentimental." Generally it will have a useful and happy life.

All Good Children Help Mother

By Garry Cleveland Myers, Ph.D.

It is more convincing to read what a mother has done well than for me to write what she should do. Therefore, with permission from a correspondent, I am quoting from her first letter to me.

"Your articles interest me very much, because I have three children.

"Children weren't meant to be little angels and can't be expected to be good with nothing to do. I have many problems, too, and most are with my son six years old; but I took my cue from his first-grade teacher who was having a terrible time with him. I went over to the school a couple of times and told her I was glad if she could do anything to make him behave. Finally his teacher hit on a plan. She has him help her with a lot of things. He even sweeps up the floor every day and he has to go down on his knees to do it, but he doesn't mind. She says he is a different boy since she has him as her "helper."

Improved Disposition

"So I let him do a lot of things around the house and give him a lot of praise. He is kinder to his two smaller sisters since then and asks them to help him when he's picking up, thereby training them in a good habit with no interference from me. He dries dishes after supper only; washes hands and face of his baby sisters now and then, takes out the garbage and numerous other things. Even helped clean wall paper the other day, saving us the effort of stooping to do the bottom. Of course, it takes a few extra minutes to teach him the proper way but, once learned, it saves me many more precious moments.

"My three-year-old can get into a lot of mischief too but I try to forestall it by letting her help me. You may wonder what a three-year-old can do, but it's really remarkable. Before they can talk much they can learn to recognize a thing you have a name for, like strainer or bread board, and if asked to get this item a certain number of different times will soon learn just where it's kept and be able to bring it while you are doing something else.

"When I bake, this three-year-old knows what I want and can bring me flour, baking powder, salt, pepper, vanilla, sugar and the like. The baby can help her carry them back to their proper place. The baby helps me carry things out for supper and also puts things away.

"When they are a little over two they can learn to wash themselves, before and after meals, and once learned, think what an invaluable habit it is.

All in Fun

"And we have fun together too. We can hold our own when Daddy decides to stage a wrestling bout and I can roll on the floor as well as any one. Of course, I have no dignity then, but who wants dignity at the cost of the children's love? I forgot to tell you that most of these experiences are according to your advice. I read all your articles even about teen age children and I read a great deal to them, often to all of them together."

DR. DAFOE'S COLUMN on the Quintuplets and the Care of Your Children

Epileptic Convulsions

I have a particularly distressing case on my hands now—a young lad who has been subject to epileptic convulsions for some time, and is beginning to be affected mentally. He is becoming dull and slow witted, and I am afraid that he will never be able to take his place in the world as a normal citizen.

This is the most serious aspect of epileptic seizures in children. This young fellow was a very bright youngster. Since the seizures began several years ago, we have done everything we could for him. For a while I hoped that his mental capabilities wouldn't be seriously affected, but recently there has been a definite change in him. Many cases of epilepsy result in this progressive deterioration of the patient's mind. I think the frequency and violence of the attacks must have a bearing on the injury done to the brain. Certainly the mental deterioration appears much more frequently in cases where the seizures are frequent and violent.

Yet I have seen cases where no mental decline whatever seemed to follow the disease. Some very brilliant persons have been epileptic all their lives. While there is as yet no medical cure for epilepsy, some cases seem to cure themselves, for the seizures stop of their own accord. In these cases the mental deterioration ceases as soon as the seizures do. One child I knew suffered some injury to his mental capabilities. Then the seizures stopped, and he began to improve. Today, I believe he is almost as alert mentally as though the seizures never occurred.

It is very important for parents to remember that although medical science has not evolved a cure for epilepsy, that in all cases proper medical treatment makes the mental deterioration much less serious.

Improving the mental attitude of the epileptic child toward his affliction is very important in keeping the disease from harming his mental apparatus. The more intelligent youngster subject to the seizures will come to realize that he is different from others in a distinctly unfavorable way. Possibly, other children will taunt him with his weakness if they know about it, and if he has many seizures, they won't be long in finding out about them. This ridicule will likely create in him a greater fear of his seizures. He will be constantly thinking about them, and this will produce a nervous strain which is precisely the condition that brings on the seizures.

In the belief that they are helping him, most parents attempt to shield the child and make his life even more abnormal. They restrict his freedom. They try to keep him quiet, often away from other children of his age. All these things make the poor child brood over his lot, and this again is the exact condition that should be avoided.

The fact is that these seizures rarely occur when the patient is active and busy. They come most often when he is resting. If he is kept preoccupied with wholesome, normal activities and interests, and kept as far as possible from being made to feel that he is a very unfortunate child, a great deal will have been done to prevent the disease from doing serious damage.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Girl Gives Dinner Order to Her Host, Not waiter

I always feel sorry for the man who is trying to be a courtly host to a girl he has invited to dine with him when that girl gives her order directly to the waiter. The host is, of course, helpless in the face of this discourtesy. All he can do is take the impoliteness while the waiter takes the order. But if a girl or woman knew how men feel about this unmannerliness they would change their ways: they would, when they had made their choice as to foods, tell this choice to the host and let him relay both orders to the waiter.

A letter in today's mail vociferously sets forth how one man feels about this:

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I've just finished reading your "Good Manners" column, and here are three long, loud, ringing, heartfelt cheers from a man who has suffered the indignity of not being allowed to give the order to the waiter. Notice I say "has" suffered. Thank Heaven, I don't any more.

Thanks to my well-bred wife, I never have to tear my hair any more while desperate waiters resort to the same extremity trying to take orders from two or more people at once. But there was a time when this particular transgression enraged me as much as you correctly say that it enrages most men.

Some day, perhaps every young lady will realize that, no matter how impulsive or hungry she may be, it is fair to assume that her host is just as capable of dealing with the waiters as he is of picking up the check!

There! Now I feel better. Again three cheers for Mrs. Beeckman — and I hope you'll keep up your crusade about who gives the order to the waiter.

Faithfully,
P.K.F.

Thanks for Dance

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When boys thank a girl for a dance, should the girl also thank the boy? I always say "You are welcome". Should I do this? I would not like to continue doing so if I am wrong. After all, it is the boy who asks for the dance.

2. Is it permissible to wear white mesh gloves while dancing, either with a short or long sleeve dress?

J.

1. I hope you won't continue to answer "You are welcome" to the boy's "Thank-you for the dance". This does, as I am sure you will admit, suggest that the pleasure of the dance is entirely on the boy's side. Instead you will realise that it is best to indicate, by your gracious words, that you too enjoyed the dance. So say just that, "It was delightful", or "I enjoyed that dance so much", or "That was a grand dance, Bob".

2. Yes, if you wish.

Not Good Form

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it good form to have one's telephone number on calling cards?

K.

No. It is not good form to have one's telephone number engraved on one's visiting card. It is excellent form to have the address on our cards, but not the telephone number.

Courtesy Tip

It is not necessary to leave some bit of food on your plate "for manner's sake."

ST. JOHN'S A. Y. P. A.

The regular meeting was held Oct. 7th of the St. John's A.Y.P.A. Herchimer Avenue with twenty members and five visitors, and William Cameron, the president, in charge. The meeting opened with hymn 186 followed by prayer led by Rev. C. P. Heaven. The President presented on behalf of the group a gift of a silver cream and sugar set on a tray which was engraved "St. John's A.Y.P.A." to Mr. and Mrs. Willis Jackson. Mr. Jackson is the honorary vice president of Christ Church A.Y.P.A. He has meant a great deal to members in building up this group.

After Mr. and Mrs. Jackson had expressed their thanks all joined in singing "For they are jolly good fellows". Games were then played and a dainty lunch was then served. The evening closed with the singing of "The National Anthem."

Make Reading Fun

By Garry Cleveland Myers, Ph.D.

Some bright children have trouble in the first steps in learning to read. Parents can help such a child at home.

His first problem is to translate words, phrases and sentences into meaning. Although not many teachers today have children spell out words as they read, it should be of advantage to the child to know the letters of the alphabet, but not in alphabetic order. Knowing the letters should aid him in getting initial sounds of words.

The child can learn the letters easily at play with blocks or from printing from a copy a few at a sitting. Be sure to make the copy very large. Guide the child so he will make each part of the letter in the right direction.

After he has learned a letter he will like to find this same letter in a newspaper, a magazine or book. Don't make the learning a task. Let it be fun. Induce the child to attack only two or three letters a day.

It will aid him in learning sounds of letters if you will draw or cut out pictures and print the appropriate word under each picture. After this fashion you might make a scrap book with him. It helps to group the words and pictures about an initial letter as, pig, pan, pail, book, ball, box.

Call to the child's attention some of the signs in the grocery store and to some of the street signs.

Print Placard

In very large letters, print on a placard the name of an object about the house, attaching the placard to the appropriate object as door, chair, table. Just a few of these at first; more later. If you can draw stick men, you can picture action words, even phrases.

He probably knows some nursery rhymes by heart, or even some brief stories you have read to him repeatedly from an illustrated page or book. It will be fun for him to say the rhyme or story very slowly while you point to each word as he says it. Perhaps you can move the finger so as to suggest whole phrases in a group.

As soon as the child can read a little, get from the library a very easy book with many pictures, large print and but little reading matter to a page. Help him read some from it. Try all sorts of simple things. Aim always to make the practice easy and interesting. Don't keep him at it beyond the time when his interest lags. He should always feel that he is succeeding; always he should get pleasure from success.

Read aloud to him every day. Occasionally run your fingers along the line as you read so he will get the relationship, left-to-right. Now and then point to a word on the page and tell him what it is.

If you have a typewriter, write some statements he wishes to say to you. Then he will want to read these statements having you help him. Without a typewriter, you could print some of his statements for him. If he has a baby brother or sister, encourage him to read to the baby, even if only a few words.

Fashion Flashes

JUST MADE to do things for a brown frock are some of the new accessories such as a bag and pumps of deep bronze in a new light-weight calfskin. Gloves are in deep pinky-beige with bronze buttons.

SMART WOMEN like white hats the year round. To wear with a dinner suit, one woman has chosen an eyeline helmet of white felt trimmed with an enormous pompom of white fox.

DASHING AND ROMANTIC is the cape, and so it generally appears in every important collection. A new model, for formal afternoon or evening wear, of inky black, beautifully marked caracul, is collarless and has jet passementerie on the tuxedo collar.

OFF TO THE COUNTRY to enjoy the beautiful autumn days. A grand travel, town or country suit is a tailored model in beige, light coral, fawn brown and gray shadow plaid tweed. High, notched revers. Skirt uses material in diagonal pattern.

INVITATIONS TO DINNER are frequent these days. To take one right through the season, there is a smart, slim, long-sleeved dinner dress of dark red silk jersey. A high boat-shaped neckline is of jet sequins and this continues in bands down the sleeves. Worn with jet halo hat and bag.

The "Late" Miss Smith Isn't late any more!

"How can I be early when I even wake feeling tired?" she used to say. Many people have this dull feeling that drags on them like a ball and chain.

Often the cause is a sluggish system—due to too little "bulk" in the diet.

Post's Bran Flakes help to prevent this trouble. They provide bulk in the form of bran—the natural regulator—to keep food wastes moving promptly.

"Now I eat Post's Bran Flakes regularly," says Miss Smith, "I'm always right on my toes. And how delicious they are, too!"

HELP keep your family free from the effects of faulty elimination by serving Post's Bran Flakes regularly. They are so appetizing, wholesome and convenient. If this does not readily relieve constipation due to insufficient bulk in the diet, it's time to consult a physician.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Romeo and Juliet Complication

Dear Miss Fairfax:

We expect to be married in about four months, but sometimes I feel like breaking it off entirely because of all the arguments. His parents want us to live with them. They are buying a house and think we might help them pay for it, as it will probably be ours when they die. My husband is the only child.

My mother and father are broken up about this, because they don't care for his family, and say they won't give us any assistance if we live with my fiance's folks. I'm between the frying pan and the fire.

Pretty Blue.

You seem to have a Romeo and Juliet complication on your hands, and my earnest advice to you is to sidestep future trouble by not living with either family. And perhaps it would be better for you to postpone the wedding until the various in-laws and your family have settled their differences.

What Shall She Bring Him?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

What sort of a souvenir can a girl give her boy friend upon her return from her vacation? Or is it not in good taste to give him such a remembrance? Also, when writing to him, would it be too personal to sign cards and letters "with love"? I have been going with my boy friend almost a year now.

An Admirer.

The souvenirs people give to friends usually suggest the place visited. If you're going to spend your holiday at the seashore, bring something that suggests the sea — ashtrays, cigarette case, or something for his desk. All resorts seem to be crowded with souvenir shops, and I'm sure you'll have no difficulty in finding something appropriate in the first one you visit. Don't give anything too expensive.

As for signing your card and letters "with love", people do that sort of thing today, and mean nothing by it. In your mother's day it would have meant that you were engaged.

Boy Friend Seems Imaginative

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I've been going with a boy almost a year now, and love him very much. We went to a party recently and while there he told all my friends that we are going to get married in November, without even asking me. He also told his parents.

Another time he said in the presence of my friends that he was going to buy me a diamond ring, and made a date for the next evening to pick out the one I wanted. When the next evening arrived he didn't even mention the ring. And now all my friends want to see the ring.

He thinks it's a big joke and went so far as to say: "Wouldn't everyone be surprised if they knew we really aren't going to get married?" It looks as if he's making a fool of me, although he does tell me he loves me. He also has broken other promises. My mother said to give him up as he can't be trusted, and that marriage is too serious a thing to be joked about in this manner. What steps do you advise taking?

Maryanna.

The boy of whom you write me is probably too young and inexperienced to know how underbred are these things which he imagines to be jokes. I think you would do well to take your mother's advice and drop him completely until he learns better manners.

VAN DYKE'S POEM, "FOUR THINGS", SUBJECT OF TALK

Charles Shaw, Toronto, Addresses Kiwanis Club on Essentials of Life

PROJECTS DISCUSSED

Henry Van Dyke's poem "Four Things" was the subject of a most interesting address delivered to the Kiwanis Club at their weekly luncheon at the Queen's Hotel on Tuesday by Charles Shaw of Toronto. Interspersed with the message he wished to deliver were a number of stories in the Lancashire dialect and putting it mildly "they brought down the house." The members were not satisfied and Mr. Shaw at the conclusion of his talk gave two more and the members were still laughing, when they left the luncheon room.

It was decided, that the club would assist in the War Savings Stamps drive, which is being sponsored by the Rotary Club. Judge Mott, former Juvenile Court Judge will be the speaker at this luncheon with Y's Men, the Kiwanis Club and other organizations being represented. P. C. MacLaurin is chairman of the committee in this district and the members were more than eager to help their former Lieutenant Governor put over the project. The members will hear more about the drive in their next bulletin as a Directors' meeting was held at the conclusion of the luncheon.

Committee Thanked

Charlie Tripp and his energetic committee handling the Poultry Project of the club was congratulated at the luncheon for the swell job and Harold Carruthers and his Bingo committee was thanked in helping to put the project over. The secretary announced that over $200 net was secured from the bingo and there is a place for the money in assisting some war work project. The pupils who took part in this project, their teachers and friends are to be entertained by the club and prizes awarded and it was more than likely that the meeting will be held in the country and it is proposed that the wives and sweethearts of the members will be asked to join in the celebration. There will also be more news of this meeting in the bulletin. The Belleville Club may take on another project, that of gathering scrap of all kinds and selling same, the money to be donated to worthy charities and war committees. Mr. MacLaurin explained the fine work being done at the Collegiate in this regard and the members voted solidly to get behind the effort.

To Arrange Visit

An inter club meeting with some club in this district or out of it will be arranged in the near future. Clarence Jewell has this work in hand and all can rest assured a fine meeting will be arranged. The members are getting itchy to get out and visit with other clubs. The speaker of the day was introduced by Jim Barclay, Chairman of the Program Committee and Ray Grant expressed Kiwanian appreciation. Mr. Shaw expressed his pleasure at being present and repeating Van Dyke's short poem said "That we must think without confusion clearly, love our fellowman sincerely, to act from honest motives purely and to trust in God and heaven truly. "These four things will guide you right" said the speaker. In discussing the First Thing, the speaker stated that wrong thinking had put the world in chaos and brought on this dreadful war that all are so anxious to win. We must get the right people for the right job and that requires thinking without confusion clearly. He stated that 95 per cent of our man power are dependent upon the other five per cent for their thinking, planning and management. He thought everyone should have a definite aim in life and all should fortify themselves by a burning, conquering determination to reach the goal set.

"Certainly we must love our fellowman sincerely if we are to succeed in life," said Mr. Shaw and he quoted incidents in his own life to show that love is a great help to those in need. He dwelt on the third of Four Things, to act from honest motives purely and he showed what built goodwill. "To have a dealer profit" said the speaker, "you must have co-operation, sound policies, good service, goods properly sold, honestly advertised and a genuine product. The last of Four Things is the one Great Help and without God none can succeed. "Dick" Flynn presided at the luncheon with Harold Carruthers as song leader and Leo B. Riggs at the piano The boys were in good voice and they did justice to "Roll out the Barrel."

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—
And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Harmful poisons go into the body, and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't always get at the cause. You need something that works on the liver as well. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless and gentle, they make the bile flow freely. They do the work of calomel but have no calomel or mercury in them. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name! Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

Unmarketable Grain Surplus Raises Many Problems in West

This is the last of a Canadian Press series of stories generally depicting the present wheat problems in Western Canada and some of the ways in which it is being faced.

By CHARLES GUNNING
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Winnipeg, Oct. 16 (CP)—A substantial expansion in the prairie livestock industry is looked for in many quarters as a result of this year's great unmarketable grain surplus but western farmers generally are not expecting any such development to provide the answer to their problems.

Dealers and government livestock official predict conlderable increase in grain feeding of livestock, since they figure many farmers will prefer feeding stock, especially hogs and cattle, to the risk of having their undeliverable grain rot in improvised bins on the farms. At present wheat producers are allowed to deliver only eight bushels an acre to the elevators.

From the farmer's standpoint, however, the livestock question is not as simple as that. In many wheat-growing areas, the shortage of a year-round water supply makes livestock raising expensive, if not impossible. New barns and shelters would also be necessary on most wheat farms if they turned to hogs or cattle.

Then there is the danger that the livestock market itself would become flooded, even with the increased demand of wartime.

The basic problem, as far as the farmer is concerned, remains the question of how he is going to realize cash now on his wheat crop to tide him over the winter. Prairie producers are hoping that some announcement will be forthcoming from Ottawa soon regarding the advancement of money on wheat which must be stored on the farms for lack of elevator space.

Little Improvement In Sight

With little improvement in the world wheat market likely before the war is ended, producers also are wondering how to plan their activities for next year.

"If there is to be Government control of sown acreage to reduce the size of the crop, the farmers want to know about it this fall," declared W. A. MacLeod, publicity director for the farmer-owned Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta wheat pools.

One of the most serious difficulties arising from the farm-storing of grain was the fact that such storage doubled handling costs, D. J. Reid, president of the Manitoba Federation of Agriculture said. Instead of taking wheat directly from the threshing field to the elevator, it had to be stored, then loaded later and taken to the elevator.

Hon. J. G. Taggart, Saskatchewan Minister of Agriculture and chairman of the Dominion Bacon Board, told The Canadian Press there was no doubt that hog production was increasing fairly rapidly in Saskatchewan.

If wheat were used exclusively, each pig would consume about 16 bushels, he said. However, wheat alone is rarely used.

"In 1940 hog marketings in Canada will exceed those of 1939 by about 1,300,000," he predicted. "If this whole increase had been produced by feeding wheat, the increased disappearance of wheat would be a little over 20,000,000 bushels."

Newly Acquired U. S. Destroyers Slated for Hard Assignments

(Ross Munro, formerly of The Canadian Press Ottawa Bureau and now attached to the London Bureau, sailed from Canada in the first of the overage United States destroyers to be transferred to the Royal Navy. In this, the first of two stories, he discusses life during the voyage.)

(By ROSS MUNRO.)

London, Oct. 16 (CP)—The United States destroyers transferred to the Royal Navy are slated for some of the toughest and most dangerous sea assignments of the Battle of Britain.

They aren't mere symbol ships of Anglo-American co-operation. They won't be pampered by the Admiralty. They are likely to get the "real dirty jobs" during the next few months, one officer aboard the leader of the first flotilla to arrive in a British port told me during the Atlantic crossing from an east coast Canadian port.

"You can compare Britain's position in this destroyer deal to that which might be put through by a reliable and well-established trucking firm which has a particularly dirty job to do," he said. "So the firm obtains fifty old but serviceable trucks to handle the job. That's what these warships are for.

"And they will do the job, too, from what I've seen of them during this voyage of ours. There is going to be plenty of steel flying from our guns when we catch the enemy. There is going to be some hot scraps and these Stars-and-Stripes ships are going to show some fight."

Crews Fit and Ready.

The crews, as well as the officers, are fit and ready for the Admiralty order that will send their ships foaming down the English Channel in battle formations or pitching and bobbing through the Atlantic swell guarding convoys to and from Canada.

The officers and crew have been carefully chosen for these important duties and many of them have taken part in historic naval operations of this war. They talk and live the Royal Navy. On the Atlantic voyage conversation in the officers' wardroom and on the seamen's mess deck below would veer around constantly to the navy's role in the war.

In these shop talk hours the navy men casually would tell stories of naval engagements at Narvik, Namsos, Dunkirk and in the Mediterranean. They were stories of real heroism under fire, of triumphs and disasters. It was the stuff that a modern Conrad would spin into the fiction yarn of the year. But it all was work-a-day duty to these sea-going men, many of whom were white-collared men in business positions until the call to the colors came and they went out on the destroyers to hammer the Nazis.

Many of the navy action yards would wind up on a humorous note. There was the time the leader of the first former American flotilla, a veteran navy man, commanded a supply ship at Narvik. The harbor was under a bombardment by enemy planes, but in the heat of the action the commander calmly ordered a brand new expensive automobile which was abandoned on the docks to be hoisted aboard beore the ship put to sea.

"I imagine the salvaging of that car about paid for half of my year's pay," he said. "I turned it over to the Admiralty when we arrived in a British port."

Then there were stories about battles with E-boats, the German torpedo craft, in the Channel, and a dozen epics of the evacuation from Dunkirk. And there would be some buoyant, cheering note in every yarn from these men who are certain nothing can beat them on the final score. It's only the first quarter in this war game to them just now.

They are fatalists the way most men are in this war zone. The commander of the flotilla expressed the psychology of the navy leaders as we moved through the most dangerous stage of the voyage from Canada, expecting every minute that a squadron of planes would thunder down in a dive attack.

"If the bombs start thumping around us," he advised calmly, "just take it quietly and believe that if they are going to hit you they will. It is the only way to keep a peace of mind under fire."

Even the crew off watch and on talked of guns and armaments. It was their job and these seamen knew it. They study it these wartime days as they would a civil job.

WALLBRIDGE

On Saturday evening, Oct. 5th, about one hundred friends and relatives of Corporal and Mrs. Grant Millar (nee Laura Sine) gathered at the Town Hall here to honor them on the occasion of their recent marriage. After a short program of readings and musical numbers Mr. and Mrs. Millar were called to the platform and presented with a beautiful assortment of gifts. The young couple thanked their friends for their gifts. Lunch was served and short time was spent in dancing. Their many friends join in wishing them a long and happy wedded life.

Not entirely satisfied with the evening's entertainment, about seventy five of the company later went to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Sine, the bride's father, and treated the young couple to another musical entertainment, some of the instruments being shot guns, cow bells etc. Mr. Millar paid his entertainers most royally and they visited the nearby store and treated themselves to soft drinks, chocolate bars and peanuts and quiet was again restored in the little hamlet.

Mr. Lawrence Ketcheson had the misfortune to break a cord in his finger last Saturday evening which necessitated a short stay in the hospital. Mr. Ketcheson is home again but will be unable to use his finger for some time.

While Mr. J. A. Wright was plowing one day last week he was surprised to see a young fawn standing near his horses. When he spoke the animaly quickly returned to the woods from which it had come. He wonders if it is one of the fawns seen by Mr. E. Lane a few days ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilson of Manitoba are visiting Mrs. Wilson's sister Mrs. Geo. Nicolson. Friends are sorry to hear Mr. Wilson has contracted pneumonia but hope he will soon recover.

Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Hinchcliffe and daughter Laura of Dryden, Ont., left the first of this week for home after a short visit with his mother and other friends in Hastings County.

A large number of ladies gathered at the town hall last Wednesday to work for the Red Cross Society. A couple of quilts were quilted and yarn and sewing distributed to be done at home.

Toronto Maple Leafs Enter Upon Two-Weeks Training Period at St. Catharines

Thirty Players Taken to Camp With Happy Day as Coach

APPS CAPTAIN

Succeeds Red Horner, Who Will Act as Goodwill Ambassador for Club

(By Dick Sheridan, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

St. Catharines, Ont., Oct. 16—(CP)—A hockey season that is expected to bring thousands of United States dollars into Canada to help in the war effort, opened for Toronto Maple Leafs today, on a military note. Reveille sounded before daylight and the Leafs embarked upon the first full day at training camp—a two-week period that will prepare the players for five months of national hockey league competition.

During that time United States currency will flow into Canada in the form of players' salaries. Part of this money will be held in trust by the Canadian Government for players with American teams. It will revert to them when they resume residence in Canada at the end of the season.

The Leafs, the last N.H.L. club to begin training, brought 30 players to camp along with a new coach, Clarence (Happy) Day. The former Leaf defence stalwart and league official took over the coaching when Dick Irvin signed with Montreal Canadiens last Spring.

Syl Apps is Captain

The team also has a new captain—Syl Apps. One of hockey's smartest centres, Apps succeeds Reginald (Red) Horner, who retired from the defence to a post as Leaf goodwill ambassador.

The squad — about the largest ever to undergo training under Toronto auspices — proved somewhat unwieldy, prompting Manager Conn Smythe and Coach Day to follow a new departure. Beginning this morning the players were divided into two sections. While one section works out on ice, the other will be taking "PT" or golfing.

Of the players at camp, three are goalies. Turk Broda, regular custodian in recent years, will have to battle Phil Stein of Syracuse Stars and an amateur, Bas Bastien, for his job. Bastien was with Port Colborne Sailors and Atlantic City Seagulls last season.

There are eight defence men competing for the four regular berths and 19 forwards seeking one of the 10 positions generally held open by the club.

75 Yearlings Average $489 at Auction

Lexington, Ky., Oct. 16.—(AP)—Seventy-five thoroughbred yearlings were auctioned at the Lexington sales Paddock last night for $36,700, an average of $489.

T. H. Heard of Refugio, Tex., paid the top price, $3,000, for a brown colt by Wise Counsellor-Golden Stairs from the consignment of Mrs. H. G. Wells of Lexington.

The second high, $1,900, was paid by S. G. Baker, Sr., of Lexington for a filly by Wise Counsellor-Rhythmic Miss, from the consignment of Miss Mary De Witt Snyder of Lexington.

PROVIDENCE STARTS TRAINING

Cornwall, Ont., Oct. 16.—(CP)—Providence Reds of the American Hockey League began a two-week practice session here Tuesday, under the coaching of Bun Cook, former New York Ranger star. Eight players worked out and more will arrive today when intensive training gets under way.

Reds will meet Eddie Shore's Springfield Indians, another American League team, in an exhibition game here Friday night.

TINY THOMPSON TAKES NEW JOB

Detroit Goalie Becomes Manager of New Team Located at Buffalo

Detroit, Oct. 16 — (AP) — Cecil (Tiny) Thompson, one of the greatest goal minders in modern hockey history, said good-bye today to the National Hockey League, ending a career in which he stopped an estimated 100,000 shots from sailing into his net.

The 35-year-old goalie left Detroit last night for Buffalo where he will take over the Buffalo Club in the American Hockey League.

He carried with him a box containing the pads he has worn since he started goal minding for the Duluth Club in the American Association in 1924. He has worn them down through the years, but he doesn't expect to don them often this year.

He joined Boston Bruins in 1928 and for ten years guarded the Bruins' goal. He was sold to Detroit Red Wings in 1938 for $15,000 and Goalie Normie Smith, who quit the game after the deal was announced.

He was awarded the Vezina trophy three times as leading N.H.L. goal tender and was chosen on the Canadian Press all-star team twice and on the alternate team twice.

N. H. L. Training Camp Notes

(By The Canadian Press)

Add Good Luck Charms: Dick Kowcinak and Johnny McCreedy. The pair of former Kirkland Lake Blue Devils have played on four successive amateur championship clubs in the past four years. They're both trying for National Hockey League berths at the Toronto Maple Leafs camp in St. Catharines, Ont., now—and the Leafs should sign them, even if only on the assumption that their luck will hold good in pro ranks.

Reconstruction Note: Red Dutton has signed 11 Western Canada puck chasers in his rebuilding campaign for the Americans at the New York club's training camp in Port Arthur, Ont. Three of them—Bus Wycherley, Saskatoon; Billy Benson, Winnipeg; Squee Allan, North Battleford, Sask.—are expected to form a complete line for the Amerks. The others probably will play with two farm clubs, Springfield Indians and Seattle Hawks.

It was like Old Home Week as Toronto Maple Leafs gathered at their annual pre-training banquet recently. Scattered about the room were such former stalwarts as Baldy Cotton, George Hainsworth, Jimmy Fowler and George Parsons. In the grey-blue uniform of the Royal Canadian Air Force was one of the most valuable defensive forwards in Leaf history—Corporal Frankie Finnegan.

Introducing Red Horner at the banquet, Cotton told of the time that the big defenceman who is now the Leafs' goodwill ambassador signed his first contract with Manager Conny Smythe. No mention was made of money. "Red didn't care about money—he just wanted to give his all for the dear old Leafs," related Cotton, adding: "But he soon smartened up."

Frank Boucher, who has been given the Rangers' reins by Lester Patrick, is one of the original members of the New York club and for 10 years pivoted the famous Bun Cook-Boucher-Bill Cook line which broke practically all records in organiezd hockey. During the winters they were together, the famous Ranger trio scored more than 1,100 points in goals and assists.

Search for Talent: Art Ross is working different amateurs with the veterans on his Boston Bruins to determine the best players among the younger crop. Ross' club won the National Hockey League championship last season but lost out in the Stanley Cup playdowns —and the fiery manager wants nothing less than perfection.

Return of English Football

By IAN MORRISON
(United Correspondents)
(J-24)

It will take more than the persistent air attacks on Britain to stop the punctual opening of the Association Football season here in England. Soccer enthusiasts refuse to let Hitler rob them of their sport and his "war of nerves" has made little impression, if any, upon them. They still flock to League fixtures, prepared, if need be, to run for temporary shelter in the midst of a game.

As during last autumn, Association football has adapted itself to wartime conditions. The League and its clubs have to take into account that most of their players are now in His Majesty's forces and cannot always get leave to play in matches. They are also hampered by the fact that travelling in wartime has to be reduced to a minimum, both for clubs and the "fans". Admission to popular fixtures has to be limited to avoid over-crowding in the event of air raids.

For all these reasons the League is again holding no championship and presenting no Cup. The championship has been replaced by regional competitions, to be played out before Christmas. The number of regions in which these tournaments will be held is smaller this year than in 1939-40. The sixty odd clubs at present making up the League have been divided into a Northern and a Southern group.

So far as the military situation will permit the release of players for individual matches, the clubs will play most of their "old guard," especially in the First Division. Last season the sight of Service men slipping into their colours for an afternoon and reappearing with their old team added much to the crowd's enjoyment. Now that the war is a year old, this will happen very much more often, especially as quite a number of professional footballers have distinguished themselves in the fighting services particularly in the Air Force. For instance, Alf Kirchen, Scott and Drake, the well-known Arsenal internationals, are all in the R.A.F. and will always turn out for their club whenever they can.

The pay of the players has been further substantially reduced to meet wartime conditions. This year there will again be no permanent salaries, only a modest payment for every match played. This fee will be paid to every player whether he is in the Services or not. It is remarkable that, in spite of their greatly reduced earning capacity, some clubs are still demanding extraordinarily large sums for the transfer of players. This applies especially to transfers from English to Scottish clubs, now that the League has decided not to release players for Scotland except after their formal transfer.

This decision makes it impossible for professionals who have returned to Scotland to enlist in Scottish units or to lend their services to the local club for the period of the war.

On the other hand, the clubs which in peace-time have spent large sums in securing certain of their players, cannot agree to a free transfer system. Thus, Luton Town F.C., a club of the Second League Division, is asking 4000 pounds for its full-back, T. F. Dunsmore. Few clubs, if any, can afford to pay so large a sum, but it shows the value set upon English footballers even in wartime.

CRUCIAL CLASHES IN TWO LEAGUES SLATED SATURDAY

Argos Journey to Ottawa and Winner Will Head the Big Four

O.R.F.U. BUSY

Balmy Beach and Sarnia Will Tangle With Victor Going Out in Front

(By The Canadian Press)

Throughout Eastern Canada's football camps, the training tempo stepped up today preparatory to the crucial contests of next week-end. On these matches will depend first place in both leagues as well as much of the post-season playoff line-up.

In the Interprovincial, both the champion Ottawa Rough Riders and Toronto Argonauts are trying to scare up a potential touchdown or two for Saturday's meeting between the unbeaten giants. The same is true in the Ontario Union, where Toronto Balmy Beach will pit their undefeated record against that of Sarnia Saturday.

The situation is no less potent among the bottom two teams in each league, all looking for their first victory of the season. With the week-end games bringing the schedule to the half-way mark, the losers in either the Hamilton Tigers-Montreal match or the Hamilton Alerts-Camp Borden clash can virtually kiss goodbye to 1940 playoff hopes.

Neither Ottawa nor Toronto Argonauts rested on their two-straight-victory laurels last night. Ottawa's Ross Trimble, who expects the Argos to be "plenty tough," sent his squad through an active workout at Lansdowne Park

His opposition, Coach Lew Hayman, meanwhile augmented his Argos' offence with new pass and ground plays during the Toronto clubs' drill. The team divided up for a short scrimmage and then had ball handling and tackling practice.

At Montreal, Coach Bill Hughes sought to improve his team's condition for their first attempt to gain their first victory in Hamilton Saturday. Hughes concentrated on conditioning exercises during a lengthy drill at wind-swept Molson stadium.

In the Ontario Union, the two leaders prepared to put on an old-time Balmy Beach-Sarnia classic. Beaches, fresh from a Thanksgiving Day victory over Camp Borden, had an off night but the Sarnia soldiers, replacing the unoperating Imperials in the league, went through a rugged workout.

FOUR SQUADS PLAY SIX-MAN RUGBY IN CITY

O.S.D., Albert, St. Mikes and B.C.I. Compose Junior Football Loop

SCHEDULE DRAFTED

Four secondary schools will be represented in the Belleville Junior Interscholastic Rugby Football group for six-man rugby in the junior series of the C.O.S.S.A. for 1940. The four schools to affiliate in the group at a meeting held in the Y.M.C.A. before Convener N. A. Beach were Ontario School for the Deaf (group champions of 1939), Albert College, St. Michael's Academy and the Belleville Collegiate Institute.

Before the adoption of a 12-game home and home schedule, the team coaches discussed the newly instituted rules of six-man rugby football as accepted by the C.O.S.S.A. Convener Beach pointed out that the ball must be snapped directly to the quarterback "and the quarter must pass, not hand or place the ball into possession of the potential carrier," added Mr. Beach.

Play-Off With East

An invitation for the Belleville district six-man junior group winner to play off with the winner of a group in the Ottawa Valley was discussed and met with the favour of all team representatives present. The local group will get under way with the group champion O.S.D. squad meeting the Belleville Collegiate sextette at the B.C.I. campus on Friday afternoon while at the same time St. Mike's pry off the league lid at Albert College. Arthur L. Cole and Homer Townsend were agreed upon as the officials to handle all games.

The school representatives were: Albert College, Mr. Munn; Belleville Collegiate—Mr. C. Yerex and Mr. Dudgeon; St. Michael's, Mr. J. Doran, and O.S.D., Mr. J. Richaby.

The group schedule as drafted by Convener N. A. Beach today is as follows:

Oct. 18—O. S. D. at B. C. I.
St. Mike's at A. C.
25—O. S. D. at A. C.
B. C. I. at St. Mike's.
Nov. 1—St. Mike's at O. S. D.
A. C. at B. C. I.
Nov. 8—B. C. I. at O. S. D.
A. C. at St. Mike's.
Nov. 15—A. C. at O. S. D.
St. Mike's at B. C. I.
Nov. 22—O. S. D. at St. Mike's.
B. C. I. at A. C.

FAMILIAR FACES WILL BE MISSING IN N. H. L. LOOP

League Won't Seem the Same Without Horner, Thompson and Stewart

GOOD REPLACEMENTS

Frankie Brimsek, Walter Stanowski and Murray Armstrong Pack Plenty of Color

(By Sydney Gruson)

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Oct. 16.—(CP)—A lot of the old familiar faces will be missing in the National Hockey League this season.

It won't seem quite the same now that Tiny Thompson has decided to quit the big league, or that Red Horner won't be swinging his fists or that Old Nels Stewart won't be ambling along in that inimitable waltz style the New York fans used to moan about and love to watch.

There are kids like Frankie Brimsek and Walter Stanowski and Murray Armstrong to do the jobs now. Time and bruises of a dozen or so National League campaigns have caught up with the veterans and they're going out so fast that a fan of five seasons ago would look in vain for some of his old favorites.

Others besides Thompson, Horner and Stewart have slipped quietly out of big-league activity this season. There is Al Murray retiring, a little guy bowing out long after he fooled those people who said he was too small and that one day he would knock himself loose at three or four parts from hitting the big guys. Marty Barry has taken up a minor league coaching job.

Thompson, one of the N.H.L.'s all-time great goalkeepers, gave up the Detroit netminding job to coach Buffalo of the American League. Horner, the inveterate "bad man", will act as the goodwill ambassador for Toronto Maple Leafs. Stewart and Murray apparently are out of the game altogether this season, but another American veteran leaving active service—Art Chapman— will act as Red Dutton's aide.

Eddie Shore is Out

Eddie Shore has quit, too, after years and years as the League's No. 1 defenceman. He'll stick to his Springfield Indians of the American League. This will be the first season in 15 that the National League hasn't thrilled to the defence work of the big Alberta wheat farmer.

The Old Guard of Montreal Canadiens—fellows like Walter Buswell, Armond Mondou and Earl Robinson—is threatened with extinction in the new deal Montreal Canadiens have dealt themselves. Before the training camps close and the season opens November 2, the list of the old-timers missing from the N.H.L. ranks probably will have been stretched further.

Battling for their jobs are the rookies dotting the N.H.L. camps in greater numbers than ever.

The Maple Leafs, one of the youngest teams in the circuit, took eight with them to camp yesterday, fellows like Dick Kowcinak, Johnny McCreedy and Blink Bellinger. The Canadiens have a dozen or more in camp at St. Hyacinthe, Que., with Conny Tudin, Tony Graboski and Ken Reardon leading the candidates for the veterans' jobs. Dutton already has signed a complete new forward line from amateur ranks.

These are the young fellows who will be filling the spots the old-timers vacate. The years pass fast in hockey.

Paige to Sponsor Edmonton Comets

Edmonton, Oct. 16—(CP)—Percy Page, retired coach of the disbanded Edmonton Grads, world famous women's basketball squad, today laid plans for the formation of a club which will sponsor a new team that will seek Dominion and North American senior women's basketball championships.

The news club will be backed by officials of the former Edmonton Commercial Grads basketball organization and the new team will be called Edmonton Comets. Page announced last night that decision to sponsor the new organization and help finance it for at least a year was reached at a meeting at which the Edmonton Commercial Grads Club was officially dissolved and the books closed.

The club was dissolved four months after the Grad team disbanded here June 6.

CALLING 'EM

Between the Lines

with Ken J. Colling

Although the pet and most prolific play employed by Coach Morley Baker's B.C.I. Interscholastic backfield quartette is their fast-passing extension handling of the pigskin, the local "Collegians" possess sufficient speed in Clare, Cronk and the two McBrides to take to the air any old time, but football experts contend forward passing is dangerous when used as a last resort. This was proven when the Cobourg squad used the aerial attack in last-quarter desperation on Monday. But, what are the essentials of a good passing game? Fundamentally there are three—the passer, the receiver and the protection for the passer and the skyway attack fails when any one of these three does not function properly. Statistics show that Coach Baker's squad attempted eleven forwards on Monday and completed five, which is a fairly good average in Interscholastic football. Three of the B.C.I. major scores came as the direct result of forward passes. Bruce Cronk took a pass from Clare for one and intercepted a Cobourg pass to dash 35 yards for another, while Bill McBride speared a pass from Clare for the third. The continued handling of the pigskin assures more certain receiving.

We struck up a conversation with Coach Cleaver, of the Cobourg Collegiate, after Monday's game here. "The Belleville team have some strong tacklers and today they broke through our line almost at will. However, I believe we've learned our lesson and I feel quite certain my boys will take Belleville's measure back in Cobourg on the 30th of the month," predicted Coach Cleaver in all sincerity. After witnessing Monday's game we'd say the only way Coach Baker's "Collegians" could lose in Cobourg would be the result of multiple injuries or rank carelessness on their own part. Glancing over the group schedule it would appear as though Saturday's Cobourg at Albert College game will be about the tit-bit of the schedule, as the loser of this tussle will doubtless pass out of the group picture as a contender. Two losses in the local group almost means curtains in a three-teamed loop. Incidentally the Peterboro' Collegiate squad stayed in the Lake Shore group running by virtue of a 15 to 0 win over Oshawa on the home field Saturday.

Do you remember when Connie Mack, shrewd Philadelphia Athletic manager, bought Bob (Lefty) Grove, ace Baltimore Oriole pitcher, for $100,600 cash 16 years ago today. The Southpaw was with the Athletics until the end of the 1933 season when he was traded to Boston Red Sox.

Jimmy Powers, sports editor of the New York Daily News, believes action in the second section division of the major leagues of baseball would be faster during the latter months of the season if the World's Series split was extended to include the fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth-place clubs. He favors a cut of that fat World's Series pool to every team right down the line," asking: "Why stop at fourth place, anyway? Give the fifth-place player $500, sixth $300, seventh $200 and eighth $100. Then, even a cellar team will fight to the end for a chance at seventh place and that extra C-note that goes with it."

Here are some World Series statistics to tell us that:

Babe Ruth leads all players who have hit two or more home runs in one World's Series game since 1903, having clouted three homers in a single contest on two occasions and a pair of round-trippers in two other contests.

Lou Gehrig twice hit two homers in a single World's Series game and four other players have accomplished the feat once. The list follows:

October 6, 1926—Babe Ruth, left field, New York A. L., three.
October 9, 1928—Babe Ruth, left field, New York A. L., three.
October 11, 1923—Babe Ruth, right field, New York A.L., two.
October 1, 1932—Babe Ruth, left field, New York A.L., two.
October 7, 1928—Lou Gehrig, first base, New York A.L., two.
October 1, 1932—Lou Gehrig, first base, New York A.L., two.
October 13, 1915—Harry Hooper, right field, Boston A.L., two.
October 11, 1917—Benny Kauff, centre field, Boston A.L., two.
October 2, 1932—Tony Lazzeri, second base, New York A.L., two.
October 7, 1939—Charlie Keller, right field, New York A.L., two.

Thanks to "Pete" Beach, athletic director at Albert College, there's a four-teamed junior Interscholastic 6-man football loop in town. With the group champion O.S.D. and the B.C.I. ready to play, St. Mikes were dubious as to their chances, as Coach Doran's charges are smaller and younger than the players at the other two schools. So in order to assure the Irish of two games versus younger players at least, Coach Beach entered a six-man team from Albert and away they'll go for a junior Interscholastic season. Huddles will be permitted in the six-man league and everyone is eligible to receive forward passes, but at least three men must be on the line in all scrimmages. There is a possibility that the winner of the Belleville junior interscholastic six-man football loop may engage in a post-schedule play-off with an Ottawa Valley group winner this year. Convener N. A. Beach laboured with considerable effort towards the success of six-man football in the district secondary schools. Mr. Beach contacted something like 17 high schools and collegiates and at the last minute had to sacrifice his own conventional senior team at Albert College in order to assure a four-teamed loop here.

Toronto Maple Leafs are in St. Catharines opening fall training today .... Pepper Martin, who led the St. Louis "gas-house gang" to world series titles in '31 and '34, has been named as manager of the Sacramento Club of the Pacific Coast League....Wonder who'll be the first to recognize catcher Jimmie Wilson's ability as a manager?.... That sojourn at Philadelphia should be forgotten now..As we predicted last spring, Oshawa is back in the senior O.H.A. ranks once again, with Tracey Shaw as manager.

Apples Not Damaged To Any Extent by Tues. Night Frost

The heaviest frost of the season which put a final quietus on plant and floral life of the city and district did not have any disastrous effects on apple crops, unless the fruit was touched before the sun brought rising temperatures, according to Senior Fruit Inspector C. T. Stevenson.

Apples generally are not affected by frost until the mercury falls to the sixteen degree mark, he said. The fruit, however, will show a tendency to spoil if touched before the superficial frost has disappeared at temperatures six degrees above this mark.

The greatest frost havoc wrought to fruit and orchards occurred in 1933 when snow and low temperatures on October 24th ruined thousands of apple trees. Intense early season cold froze the sap in the trees before it had a chance to "drop." The following Spring saw whole orchards of apples and small fruits totally destroyed.

London, Oct. 16 (CP).—A London rescue squad saved a family of four today after they had escaped death by explosion, drowning and electrocution. With their house smashed over them, the four waited for rescuers in a basement shelter while water spouting from a broken main rose to a depth of four feet. Just before they were pulled out, they suffered slight shock from an electric cable.

Residence of W. Giles, Centre, Destroyed By Fire Early Today

Fire destroyed the residence of Mr. William Giles, Centre, Prince Edward County, at five o'clock this morning. In spite of the efforts of neighbours, the house, a small frame structure, was a total loss, but helpers were successful in saving the furniture in the downstairs rooms. For a time it was feared that the rest of the farm buildings were endangered but the absence of wind prevented the spread of the flames. The cause of the fire is unknown, and the occupants of the house made their escape without injury.

Location of Hidden Gold Still Unsolved

South Bay, Oct. 16—Stories of lost gold and buried treasure on an island with an atmosphere of mystery, romance and adventure, the Main Duck island off Point Traverse, for many years has beckoned treasure seekers from far and near, seeking lost gold that legends say was buried there during the early part of the 18th century.

A lone prospector has returned to the mainland after spending many days of a very extensive search upon the island, an island where sailors dug their own graves and a heroic French crew faced death unafraid; failed to find any trace of a chest of gold louis, which legend says was buried there some time during the middle of the 18th century, when a French brigantine set out from Fort Frontenac for Fort Niagara, where his Majesty's forces had a small garrison. It carried a complement of soldiers, a crew of seamen and a chest of gold louis in the keeping of a paymaster. It never reached Fort Niagara.

A big boulder on the island bears a tracery of an arrow and a date. It has been thought that it marked the burial place of the hidden gold. The location of the buried gold on the Main Duck remains unsolved.

Grenville Pays Visit

The Canadian lighthouse tender Grenville arrived here with supplies for the Point Traverse light. The Grenville came up from the St. Lawrence and will return to the Duck islands during the middle of December to remove lighthouse keepers from their posts at the close of the season.

Lt.-Col. E. O. Keeler Gives Statement On Application

Lt.-Col. E. O. Keeler, M.C., V.D., officer commanding the N.P.A.M. Training Centre No. 32 at Peterboro when asked on Wednesday if anything was being done to secure an exemption for Michael Peters of Bancroft said that he knew nothing about it.

Peters is the man who was reported in a story last week to have left his mother, who is a widow, and a sister alone to operate their farm while he took his training at Peterboro. The woman apparently will have the task of assisting with the threshing, feed the stock, do the chores and all the heavy duties that exist on a farm.

Col. Keeler said that the only knowledge he had of Peters was what he had read in the Peterboro Examiner. He explained that no person had approached him seeking an exemption for Peters, and if they had, all he could do would be to send the application with all the particulars to the military authorities at M.D. 3 Kingston. The powers that be do not give camp commanders authority to release anyone.

As it stands now Peters has not gone to the commanding officer with his story and unless he does, or in some other manner sends the appeal for exemption to the military authorities, he will spend the thirty days in camp, the same as all other soldiers.

NAZIS BOAST ATTACKS ON BRITAIN WILL BE TREBLED

Berlin, Oct. 16 (AP). — German propaganda spokesmen boasted today that attacks on London will be tripled before the Nazi air offensive reaches its peak. They asserted that last night's assault on London, in which 1,000 tons of bombs were reported dropped on the city, was only a "zephyr" compared with what is in store. "We'll reach the typhoon stage yet," they said.

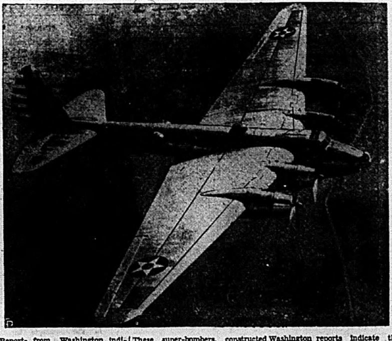
CZECHS DOWN 388 NAZI PLANES IN SIX WEEKS

London, Oct. 16 (CP).—The leader of a Czech fighter squadron now in England said today his unit had downed 38 German planes in the last six weeks. The Czechs, flying British Hurricane fighters, suffered "very few" losses, he said.

"AND WHEN PEACE COMES . . .

In her first radio broadcast, 14-year-old Princess Elizabeth, RIGHT, is shown as she addressed British refugee children in the United States and the Dominions. With her is her younger sister, Princess Margaret Rose. She sent tidings to all British children in her address and added, "and when peace comes, remember it will be for us children of today to make the world of tomorrow a better and happier place."

MAY SOON FLY OVER GERMANY



Reports from Washington indicate that Britain will receive some of the mighty U.S. "Flying Fortresses" in the very near future. These super-bombers, constructed at a cost of $400,000, have a range of 5,000 miles and cruise at 260 miles per hour with a full load. The Washington reports indicate that the president's approval is all that is now needed to turn these mighty battleships of the air over to England.

Cary Grant and Martha Scott co-stars of one of the most memorable motion pictures ever made, "The Howards of Virginia," which is now showing at the McCarthy Theatre.

CHAPTER XVI.

"Now this was real nice of you, Audrey, to drop in and see me of an evening." Annie Dodds plumped up the cushion of a porch chair and motioned her caller into it. She went on: "I just finished watering my flowers a few minutes ago and was about to sit down and enjoy the breeze. How is your mother?"

"She's quite well. I have been intending to drop in for a long time to say how do you do. How are you feeling, Miss Annie?"

"Oh, pretty well. I'm taking things easier at the office since Mr. Quinn came. He's living right next door, you know. At Mrs. Asher's. Carrie sets a good table and he seems to like it there very much. He's so nice. If he was at home, I'd be tempted to call him over and have you meet him. I know you'd like him. You couldn't help it. He goes to the office every evening of his life."

Audrey gave a little start at this information. She had not seen Victor Quinn since his arrival. The news that he was not at home was gratefully received. If he saw her, he might just think that she was trying to encounter him. "Oh, I've met him," she admitted. "He was at the Castles' for dinner one night some time ago. Jeffrey was entertaining several friends from the city."

"Oh! That must have been the time Mrs. Cooper . . . I should say Mrs. Castle . . . was hurt. Didn't you like Mr. Quinn?"

"He seemed very pleasant, I thought."

"Well, I must tell you, my dear. He knew that I had been planning to take a little vacation and he wasn't in the office over three or four days when he insisted that I stay home." Miss Annie removed her spectacles and scratched the tip of her nose with them. "You'd hardly believe, Audrey, how quickly he got his fingers on things. And you should see him at a typewriter! He said there was no point in my being there all the time, because if he wanted any information he'd step down here and ask me, or wait until after supper. And that's the way it has worked out. He's so thoughtful."

"Isn't that nice."

"And the Judge! He just can't get over it. He certainly was lucky to get a man like Mr. Quinn to come in while Jeffrey had to be away." Loyal to Jeff, Audrey thought with a little smile.

"Did Mr. Quinn go up to the wedding?" she asked indifferently.

"Yes. He drove up the night before and came right back after the reception at the house. He wasn't sure he ought to go, but I insisted. I looked after the office for him. He said it was a very pretty wedding. I got an announcement," Miss Annie added with a note of wistful pride. "They were beautiful. But I suppose you had one, too."

"Oh, yes. The family was remembered." Audrey was recalling also that she had looked in vain for the small "at home" card that usually accompanied such missives. She hoped for Jeff's sake there would be one, and with Parville mentioned.

As darkness fell she became anxious to end her call. There was danger that Vic would be passing the front gate. It was not likely that he would recognize her from the street, and there was no reason to believe that he was familiar with the Swan car. But it was sure to be one of those occasions when he would wish to consult Miss Annie about something regarding the office.

When she was ready to leave, Miss Annie insisted upon sending flowers from her garden to Mrs. Swan and then walking out to the car with her guest. As Audrey was about to enter, she chanced to see what she thought was a familiar figure passing under a street lamp half a block distant. With a haste that amounted almost to rudeness she scrambled under the wheel and started the motor. The car was in motion almost before Miss Annie could call good-by.

"I think that was in the way of being a narrow escape," the driver murmured to herself. And to make sure that she was safe, she went two blocks out of her way to avoid the Castle office.

Miss Annie Dodds, she imagined, would lose no time in telling Vic about her caller and her discovery that the two young people were acquainted. It would not be surprising, either, if Vic took advantage of the situation and thought that a call at the Swan home was in order. Privately, Audrey hoped he would. For some reason, she had been feeling rather low of late, and it always was good fun to talk to Vic.

Her conjecture proved correct, for Vic strolled up on the porch the following evening with a cheery, "Howdy, everybody," quite as if it were a common occurrence.

Audrey found herself alone with him, and was conscious of a little atmosphere of restraint for which there seemed no particular reason. She tried to dispose of it by a casual: "How's the new job going, Vic?"

"That's a compliment," he told her, with a return of his familiar and whimsical air. "It's a sinecure. I'm going to be ashamed to take any money when my month is up."

"But I heard you were working day and night."

"There's a catch to that, too. Don't tell anybody, but when the boss is in I make it a point to get him started on some legal dissertation or other. Then I usually go in after supper to make notes on his unintended lectures and do any little odds and ends."

"That's purty good," she mimicked, "but that ain't the way I heered it. Miss Annie says you're a marvel. You've made a great hit with her."

"I hope I have," Vic returned soberly. "I've sort of an idea, Audrey, that a pot of people around here regard that lady as a character of sorts; make fun of her. As a matter of fact, she's a brilliant woman who might have made her mark in the world. Next to the Judge, she has about the most marvelous store of legal lore I ever encountered. She's ill, isn't she?"

"I don't know," Audrey returned cautiously. "She told me she was feeling quite well when I saw her."

"I imagined she would say that. I couldn't ask her, but I have the feeling that she is very far from well and has been traveling on her nerve for a long time. She speaks about her 'vacation', but the Judge rather intimated to me that it was forced. They're both close-mouthed when it comes to personalities. Not a bit like me."

"Well, if you're like that ,why don't you tell me something about the wedding? I've seen any number of pictures of the bride, so you don't have to describe her dress. Was it very impressive? Did everybody weep? Did you?"

"I don't recall seeing any of it through a mist of tears," Vic admitted. "It was all nice and snazzy, naturally. Our hero conducted himself with great credit, I thought. I didn't have a ringside seat."

"I think Miss Annie said something about your going to the house reception. Did you see the gifts? Excuse me for being childish, but I'm a small-town girl, you know. We always get a big kick out of things like that."

"Sorry, but I didn't see them. I wanted to hit the road back to the simple life, so I just lingered long enough to commiserate the pair . . . told Jeff I had to get back and toil while he played."

"Did you hear where they went?"

"Out to the coast by way of the Canadian Rockies, I believe. Jeff thought they might take the ferry to Honolulu."

"That sounds wonderful. I suppose Jeff had no idea when they would be back?"

"Not for a good while, I hope."

"On your account, you mean?"

"No. On his. I don't like to be a specter at anybody's feast but . . . do you know that new house about a mile beyond the Castles' on the same road? The one that doesn't look as if it had ever been occupied?"

"You must mean the Ross place. They built it about two years ago, and just before it was completed Mr. Ross died. It's a lonely house. Were you thinking of moving in?"

"No. It's been sold recently. I had something to do with the papers, since the purchaser was no one less than my present boss. The deed run to Jeffrey Langdon Castle et uxor. I wasn't sworn to secrecy. But I did run out and take a look at it, by way of satisfying my curiosity."

"What a gorgeous wedding gift!"

"That's the idea, apparently."

"For goodness' sake! I can't understand you, Vic. You talk as if the Judge were offering an insult to Jeff and his wife."

"To be perfectly frank, I think bribe is the better word. And I still am under the unpleasant impression that young Mrs. Castle is going to prove singularly incorruptible."

AT THE CAPITOL

"Convoy"

"Convoy," magnificent film of wartime adventure on the sea is now at the Capitol Theatre. Helen Allen of The Toronto Evening Telegram says: A picture as up-to-date as tomorrow's front page and as thrilling as any epic that was ever written, is "Convoy." This film represents the valiant effort of the British motion picture industry to keep going in spite of the war, and more power to it! Any studio that could produce a film like "Convoy," even in peace time, would deserve congratulations. To have done it in the strain and difficulty of war is a major achievement.

The story of "Convoy" is told in its title. It is a tale of merchant ships shepherded carefully across the Atlantic, of the submarine raiders waiting for just such prey, of the cruisers and destroyers that keep guard over the cargo boats.

Men and ships of the Royal Navy and the merchant service co-operated in making the film and cameramen crossed the sea in a real convoy to get authentic pictures. That journey makes it obvious how the peaceful sea scenes were done. Not so obvious is the filmed account of a battle between a light British ship and a German pocket battleship. How that fight was filmed we cannot imagine. It must have been done with models, since it is hardly likely that the photographers were able to induce the Deutschland to co-operate with them, but it is the most masterly faking.

All the cast of "Convoy" is in the super category, with special mention going to Edward Chapman as the captain of the "Seaflower."

The picture, by the way, is not propaganda. It is entertainment of the superlative, indispensable kind. Still, it is no drawback that it brings a lump to a British throat and a rush of pride to a British heart. Don't miss "Convoy." It lives.

To complete this great attraction is Larry Clinton's Band and a comedy riot, "Static in the Attic" starring Walter Catlett.

Lovely Joan Bennett, featured with George Raft and Walter Pidgeon in the romantic thrill-drama, "The House Across the Bay," next attraction at the Belle.

AT THE McCARTHY

"Scatterbrain"

By popular request...she is now on the screen!...Your 'Jennie Lind of the Ozarks,' Judy Canova, radio's favorite feminine funster.

"Scatterbrain" starring Judy Canova, is the next attraction coming to the McCarthy theatre.

Judy Canova is definitely the comedienne of the hour, her work in the starring role of "Scatterbrain" ranking her with the Marx Brothers, Martha Raye, the Ritz Brothers and all others in whom the gift of comedy rises to genius proportions.

Jimmie Fidler says: "Scatterbrain" is grade A fun, Judy Canova, ace of its laugh-getters, is headed places.

In addition to Judy Canova the cast of "Scatterbrain" includes Alan Mowbray, Ruth Donnelly, Eddie Foy, Jr., Joseph Cawthorn, Wallace Ford, Isabel Jewell and Billy Gilbert.

"Scatterbrain" has our recommendation of being a grand musical hill-billy comedy, please put it on your must see list, for this week.

John Wayne in "The Man From Monterey" an action story of old California, is also to be presented with "Scatterbrain". Making the show a double-header of excellent screen-fare.

"The Howards of Virginia"

Cary Grant and Martha Scott, heading an excellent cast which includes, Sir Cedric Hardwicke, Alan Marshal and Richard Carlson, in the picture that won the Blue Ribbon Award as the best motion picture release for September "The Howards of Virginia" is now playing at the McCarthy theatre, for the last time. Do not fail to see it, it is one of the finest most memorable motion pictures that has actually ever been brought to the screen. Directed by Frank Lloyd who gave you "Cavalcade" and "Mutiny on the Bounty." The Howards of Virginia" will be among the ten best pictures made in Hollywood during 1940.

AT THE BELLE

"The House Across The Bay"

With George Raft and Joan Bennett sharing stellar honors and a strong supporting cast featuring Walter Pidgeon, Gladys George, Lloyd Nolan and June Knight, Walter Wagner's "The House Across The Bay" is the next attraction at the Belle theatre. The new film production is based on an original story by Myles Connolly, and the central figure in the picture is Brenda Bentley, played by Miss Bennett, a young girl confronted with the problem of adjusting her life to a strange fate when her husband is sent to prison for income tax evasion.

This role, which is outstandingly dramatic, gives the alluring Miss Bennett, wide scope as she is seen as a singer and dancer in addition to her dramatic opportunities. In one sequence of the film she sings and dances "Chula Chihuahua," her own interpretation of the South American rhumba, and later introduces "I'll Be a Fool Again." This, of course, is a radical innovation for the actress, who in the past has confined herself to the more sedate measures of the ballroom dancing. In the star's gay and colorful rhumba debut she carries a four-pound chihuahua dog in her arms during the performance.

Irene, the famous Hollywood stylist, brings a new flair and design to the accepted rhumba costumes by her creation of a special gown worn by Miss Bennett during her dance. And the star also introduces a new hair style in this sequence, created by Carmen Di Rigo, leading coiffure expert. As for her other clothes in the film, Miss Bennett sets something of a record for sartorial splendor by wearing 25 different outfits in the picture. This elaborate wardrobe includes five gowns, three fur-trimmed coats, two evening wraps, 12 street ensembles and a silver fox coat valued at $4800.

A gay, sparkling comedy with plenty of laughs, is announced as the added laugh hit when Warner Bros. new film "Calling All Husbands" opens at the Belle. The picture, starring George Tobias, Lucile Fairbanks and Ernest Truex, shows how a henpecked husband finally got up courage enough to say "No" to his belligerent wife.

Britain's R.A.F.

A special extra attraction on the same program is the exhibition of the newest issue of the March of Time, "Britain's R.A.F."

It is a particularly stirring subject done in the thorough March of Time manner, and will be viewed with pride and interest by every Canadian.

"Boom Town," Departs

By all standards of measurements "Boom Town," which concludes an all-time record engagement at the Belle theatre, tonight is super entertainment....if not the best of this or any other year.

For a cast it boasts four stars—Clark Gable, Spencer Tracy, Claudette Colbert, Hedy Lamarr and Frank Morgan.

"Boom Town" blends excitement, romance, comedy and a great human-interest story, and should not fail to more than satisfy every member of any audience.

Highlights of the Belle News of the Hour reveal heart of the Empire ablaze during during Nazi raids, King George and Queen Elizabeth viewing destruction and talking with survivors, Prime Minister Winston Churchill directing vigil on home front. A thrilling film epic of courage.

By contrast scenes of the World series games, dramatic highlights of the Detroit-Cincinnati battle for the baseball championship. Records topple as nation's notables crowd park for major league final.

WALL STREET

New York, Oct. 16 (AP)—Gains among steels strengthened a recalcitrant stock market today, causing rising trends throughout the lists.

The plus signs, however, were hard won and prices slipped from their best point toward the fourth hour. Advances occurred in fairly active dealings, while declines were based on only small transactions.

On the up side through most of the session were Bethlehem, Republic, Youngstown, Crucible, U.S. Rubber, Harvester, Douglas, Sperry, Cerro De Pasco, International Nickel, Westinghouse, General Electric, Dow Chemical, Allied Chemical, Eastman, U.S. Gypsum and Great Northern Pfd.

Canadian stocks steadied. McIntyre, Canadian Pacific and Distillers Seagram advanced fractions. Canada 4s in the bond market, gained 1-2 point.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Oct. 16—(CP)—Toronto Exchange remained steady today. Industrials recovered part of yesterday's loss, Golds displayed further strength, and Metals and Western Oils held steady. Volume was sizeable at 162,000 shares.

Active trading in Upper Canada, Bobjo, Federal-Kirkland and Cochenour Williams swelled the junior issue volume figures and Upper Canada touched a new high at 1.48. The 7-cent gain was dropped under profit-taking. East Malartic, Kerr-Addison, Chesterville, Sylvanite, Wright-Hargreaves and Lake Shore were gainers. Base Metals posted only minor changes.

Foods, Building issues and Senior Oils were firmer. Canadian Dredge was up 1 3-4 at 16 3-4.

Top-Grade Eggs Up 1 to 2 Cents

Toronto, Oct. 16.—Scarcity of offerings caused price increases of 1 cent to 2 cents a dozen on top grade eggs during yesterday's session of the Toronto open produce market. Butter improved from Saturday's slight weakness.

The egg market opened the week strong as continued light fresh receipts met good demand. The Dominion Department of Agriculture points out that while heavier weights of grade A-large eggs are becoming scarce there is a substantial flow of pullet eggs to market with every indication of a substantial volume of fresh eggs this winter. Up to the present production has been aided to some extent by favorable weather conditions. Inspections of eggs for export, the department reported, totalled 12,702 cases in the week ended Oct. 5.

Demand picked up on the butter market after a morning lull. Strength at Montreal helped in the slight price improvement here. Ontario No. 1 grade solids sold at 27 1-2c a pound. Buyers raised prices on churning cream in line with recent advances in butter. No. 1 grades on truck country points ranged at 26c to 27c.

AJAX INFLICTS

Waited Two Days

British officials waited two days to tell their story after the Italians had put out their version. The Italians on Sunday claimed their craft had sunk a cruiser, but admitted three losses. The British announcement was equivalent to a denial that a cruiser was lost.

The Ajax, under the command of Capt. E. D. B. McCarthy, engaged the enemy 80 miles off Sicily, the Admiralty said, within easy striking distance of a main Italian fleet that never left its base. She suffered new scars, a few dead, but was hit only above the water line. H.M.S. York, a bigger cruiser, wasn't even scratched.

Help Destroy Graf Spee

The Ajax, mounting eight six-inch guns, was one of three cruisers which drove the German pocket battleship Admiral Graf Spee into Montevideo last December where she scuttled herself.

The Admiralty, in describing Saturday's battle, said the action started at 2.30 a.m. after the Ajax sighted three of Italy's 697-ton "airone" class of destroyers, each with main armament TF three 3.9 inch guns and fitted with four torpedo tubes.

Guns Soon Silenced

Ajax opened fire immediately with her six-inch guns, ripping gaping holes in the sides of the Italian's funnels and sending their masts tumbling down on their decks.

The destroyers answered briefly, but after a few salvos their guns went silent.

Ajax kept up her fire for several minutes. Then there were terrific blasts as the magazines of two of the Italian ships blew up, and they sank. The other fled into the darkness.

About half an hour later the Ajax met two other large Italian destroyers and quickly engaged them. Both turned tail and put on full speed. One of them, later identified as the 1,620-ton Artigliere, was hit by Ajax. A mass of flames swept skyward from her decks.

A few minutes later the Ajax sighted an Italian cruiser and four destroyers, but was unable to make contact with them because they steamed northward in a hurry, making direct for Sicily.

Ajax then turned to the trail of the flaming Artigliere.

British planes of the fleet air arm, looking like silver bullets in the glow of the rising sun, mounted from the decks of aircraft carriers and spotted the burning warship, then being towed by another Italian destroyer.

A small striking force of the fleet air arm was ordered to speed ahead and drop torpedoes around the towing ship. The latter, spotting the approaching aircraft, slipped the tow line and headed for Sicily, leaving the blazing Artigliere to shift for herself.

Some of the Artigliere's crew stubbornly fought the flames enveloping their ship, while others hurled themselves on to liferafts tossed on the sea. Many stripped themselves of their clothing and jumped in naked.

Captain Surrenders.

Italian sailors who kept to their ship, seeing the hopelessness of their fight against the flames, waved white sheets and her captain hoisted a white flag.

H.M.S. York, a short distance away, signalled the Italians to abandon ship, waited until all had complied and got their liferafts clear, then fired heavy shells into the Artigliere.

Fully six hours after Ajax fired her first shells into the ship, she was still flaming, sending up a big smudge of black smoke.

Shortly after 9 a.m. a sheet of flame spouted skyward. A torpedo from the York had touched off the Italian vessel's magazine.

Vessel Sinks

Then she went down, a rainbow band of pink, light green and purple framing her. As she disappeared she sent up geysers of steam.

The rainbow disappeared almost as quickly as the Artigliere, and a long spiral of white smoke marked the spot where the vessel had been.

York, remembering the experience of other British ships which were bombed while trying to rescue Italian seamen from the Italian cruiser Bartolomeo Colleoni sunk by the Australian cruiser Sydney last July, decided to avoid a repetition of that experience.

So York dropped rafts into the water, supplementing those already carrying the Artigliere's seamen, and Admiral Sir Andrew Cunningham, Commander, in Chief of the Mediterranean Fleet, sent a radio signal in Italian giving the position of the survivors. A few of those left adrift from the destroyers sunk by the Ajax were picked up.

British aircraft some time later sighted three Italian cruisers and several destroyers southeast of Sicily, apparently despatched in the hope of covering the Artigliere. The British flagship sent cruisers to engage them, but the Italian vessels turned about quickly.

The Italians attempted to make the British pay for their victory by showering bombs on the fleet, but the Fascist planes missed, all explosives falling harmlessly into the sea.

Pompoms and four-inch anti-aircraft guns beat off six heavy air attacks within a few hours.

British fighter planes from aircraft carriers engaged the attackers. Their machine guns shot down one Italian plane shadowing the fleet, and two Italian bombers, wreathed in flames, plummeted into the sea.

Still another bomber was downed by anti-aircraft guns and a fifth was seen fluttering toward land with one motor dead and part of its fuselage shot away.

All the British fighters returned safely to their ships.

The Italians, apparently sticking to a policy of avoiding contact of their main units with the British fleet sent out a large force of submarines, causing warnings to be sounded almost continuously aboard this flagship and other units of the British fleet during the last two days of the week-long sweep through the Mediterranean.

The Admiralty listed three other victories:

Bombardment of the port of Savona, near Genoa, by a British submarine and the sinking of two armed merchant ships in the vicinity, one of them of 5,000 tons, another of 3,000.

Sinking of two supply ships, one of 3,000 tons, the other, 800, by submarines off Naples and Bengasi, Libya, respectively.

Successful naval bombardment of Italian troops at Sidi Barrani.

Ajax Believed at Gibraltar Now

La Linea, Spain (AP)—A British warship damaged during a recent naval engagement near Malta, with a gap showing in her side above the waterline, has arrived at the British base at Gibraltar, it was reported last night.

Early last night, five bodies had been removed from the ship and fifteen to twenty wounded were being cared for in Gibraltar hospitals, according to information received here.

(The vessel might have been the cruiser Ajax, which fought eight Italian war vessels in the Mediterranean, causing sinking of three. The Admiralty in London announced that the Ajax was hit above the waterline and suffered a few casualties.)

CONSIDERING

known building. A famous London Square was piled with the debris of shattered buildings. A whole block of apartment buildings was blown to pieces. Dead and injured lay in the ruins.

At one place where the dead and dying could be brought out they were placed on the littered pavement to await the attention of overtaxed ambulance crews.

The Ministry of Information said the overnight raiders strewed their bomb cargoes indiscriminately, hitting many homes. Unofficially it was estimated that 250 tons of bombs were dropped by from 200 to 250 planes during the night.

Some Buried Alive.

Two large bombs scored direct hits on the two-storey schoolhouse, in which an undetermined number of Londoners had taken refuge.

Rescuers reported they had dug out most of those buried alive and all still in the ruins were believed to be dead. Most were women, children and old men, it was said.

Tons of tumbled masonry and woodwork had to be moved to reach the entombed. Many were seriously injured.

In one London area twenty-eight bombs fell within a small radius, hitting a Roman Catholic Church, a school, apartments, factories and numbers of shops and small houses.

Rescuer workers digging in the debris of a youth hostel had given up hope of finding anyone alive when a policeman heard the muffled sound of voices. Renewed digging uncovered fifteen boys who had been asleep in the basement. Most of them were unharmed, but two or three others were known to be dead.

Priest Is Trapped.

A priest was trapped with three other boys, but little hope was held that they still lived. One of those rescued had been pinned down by timbers and stone. Unable to move, he kept up a running conversation with his rescuers until they lifted him free.

A college in London was damaged severely last night, and it was believed some lives were lost there, since a number of residents from the east end, already bombed out of their homes, had taken shelter in the building. The basement was flooded by broken water mains.

Ripped to Pieces

One blast ripped a block of apartments to pieces, and a pastor sleeping in a nearby church basement told of crawling out and seeing the twisted bodies of dead and injured, some of them still in their beds, pinned beneath beams and blocks of concrete.

"We took the dead and badly injured out," he said, "and laid them on the pavement by the railings surrounding the church until ambulances removed them."

It was estimated unofficially that 250 tons of bombs were dropped on London by 200 to 250 Nazi planes during the night.

One bomb made a direct hit on a previously damaged office building from which rescue squads still were trying to remove persons pinned under debris. Five dead and a number of injured were taken from the wreckage and others were believed still buried.

Public Shelter Hit

In the same area a block of one-room apartments for girls was wrecked and numerous casualties were caused by demolition of a row of houses in an adjoining street.

Another bomb hit a public shelter and it was feared that a number of people had been entombed.

Still another bomb exploded near a shelter under a building in which 110 persons had taken refuge. Rescue crews by mid-morning had taken out seven dead and a number of injured.

The rescue work was slowed by the necessity of removing masonry by hand to prevent further collapse of the building.

The Ministry of Information said that German bombers dropped a large number of bombs indiscriminately on London during the night. The Ministry said damage to London was heavy, but not as heavy as that done in a raid which took place early in September.

Two German bombers were shot down during the night, bringing to 19 the number destroyed during the day and night. Fifteen British planes were lost, but nine pilots were saved.

German raiders struck elsewhere in England, Scotland and Wales. Homes and other buildings were destroyed in an attack on a Midlands town, but the government said casualties were not numerous, considering the scale of the attack.

Streets Machine-Gunned

Diving warplanes machine-gunned streets in London. The biggest time bomb yet dropped on London fell near a famous building. High explosive bombs believed to be the largest Germany has were dumped along with smaller explosives and all kinds of fire bombs.

The raiders, taking advantage of a clear, moonlit night, shuttled back and forth across the Channel ceaselessly.

Royal Air Force planes countered again with extensive attacks.

The Air Ministry announced targets included a naval dockyard in northern Germany, communications, aluminum and oil facilities in western and central Germany, and Channel ports.

Large Fires Started by R.A.F.

(Berlin also had an alarm about midnight. No planes were reported seen over the city.)

Large fires were started by R.A.F. raids on the Nazi-held French port of Boulogne.

The London raid started a short time later than usual, but gained in intensity as the night advanced. Only once during the night was there a lull. It was momentary.

(Western Union Cable Service from London to New York was cut off during the night bombing—at 9.30 E.D.T. The Cable Department at New York said that the service was resumed at 6.05 a.m. E.D.T.

(The Associated Press leased cable feeding through the London Western Union building also was out of operation during the period the service was down. The Canadian Press dispatches come over the AP's cable.

(Censorship prevented an explanation of the failure of the service.)

Dawn found haggard rescue crews still digging through the smashed wood and stone wreckage of homes and business buildings in London. Behind rescue crews came other squads of the pick and shovel army clearing debris-clogged streets and carting rubble off to swamps.

Smouldering ruins told of the unceasing work of fire companies in the wake of the night's shower of incendiary bombs.

Three hospitals, a college and two churches were damaged. Little cottages and shops and numerous big buildings in London also were hit.

Six Buildings Hit By One Stick

Six buildings were struck by a single stick of bombs across one section, and some persons who had sought shelter in them were believed trapped.

Two other sticks of bombs in another section, preceded by a shower of flares, crumbled three buildings and shattered windows in a three-block area.

An automobile was hurled over a row of houses and scattered in pieces over the back yards.

One bomb hit a school where a number of persons were feared killed or injured. Flames ringed one large store. Once, 12 separate blasts shook a neighborhood at intervals of only a few seconds. Another salvo of bombs smashed in a straight line along one side of a street. Two public buildings were wrecked.

Air Raid Wardens Killed

Two air raid wardens were killed by an exploding bomb.

Some persons were killed when a heavy bomb demolished a row of cottages in a suburb. Most of the residents had stayed in the cottages for shelter during the raid. Another bomb in the same locality caused other casualties.

A blast damaged a famous London square, but caused fewer than a dozen casualties, although taxicabs were twisted and hurled from the street. The fronts of some buildings were torn out.

Eleven persons were trapped in a basement shelter beneath a bombed residence. Two children were saved, an elderly man was pulled out injured critically, and workers dug for the others, guided by voices as those caught under the debris called out directions.

VALCARTIER CAMP

Mr. King is taking this opportunity to see for himself how the members of the armed forces work and live, getting first-hand information of the practical carrying out of Canada's war effort.

Highlight of the trip will be the visit to the Maritime Provinces where he will visit all three branches of the services on active duty. He expects to arrive in Halifax late Thursday evening and will spend several days on the Atlantic seaboard.

Yesterday the prime minister, after arriving on an early morning train from Ottawa, went to Government House in time for lunch. A fellow guest of their Excellencies was Sir Eugene Fiset, Lieutenant Governor of Quebec, and after luncheon Mr. King drove with Sir Eugene Fiset to the latter's official residence, Spencerwood, on the heights about Wolfe Cove, for an hour's chat.

Late yesterday afternoon Mr. King mingled with the guests at a reception and tea dance given by their Excellencies in the citadel. He dined privately with the Governor General and the Princess Alice, and the vice-regal staff.

EARL OF ATHLONE TO VISIT STATES

Princess Alice Will Accompany Governor-General and Both Will Call on President

Quebec, Oct. 16 (CP)—Authorities at the citadel announced today that the Governor General, the Earl of Athlone, and Princess Alice will spend the weekend of Oct. 19-21 at Hyde Park, N.Y., as guests of President Roosevelt.

The announcement said that Lady May Abel Smith, daughter of the Earl of Athlone and the Princess, would accompany them on the trip. Attending the Vice-Regal Party will be Hon. Ariel Baird and Sir Shuldham Redfern.

Text of the announcement follows:

"The Governor General and the Princess Alice, accompanied by the Lady May Abel Smith and attended by the Honorable Ariel Baird and Sir Shuldham Redfern, will spend the weekend of Oct. 19-21 as guests of the President of the United States of America and Mrs. Roosevelt at Hyde Park."

The Earl and his wife have been staying at their quarters here since Sept. 11. They were later joined by their daughter, who arrived in Canada with her three children early this summer from Great Britain.

The Earl of Athlone took office last June and since then has made several trips to Ontario cities and one tour to the Maritimes where he saw defence works on the eastern seaboard.

His immediate predecessor, the late Lord Tweedsmuir, visited the United States during his term as Canada's Governor-General and visited President Roosevelt.

forces in Albania, raising conjectures the Axis powers might be planning a thrust through Greece toward the Dardanelles, strategic gateway to the Black Sea.

(Fascist circles in Rome denied any German soldiers are in Albania).

German warplanes, meanwhile, maintained a patrol over Rumania's rich oil fields, and squadrons of Nazi aircraft continued to fly over Bucharest.

Reports From Rumania

Reports from the Rumanian capital said a German naval mission had arrived there to assist Nazi army officers in instructing the Rumanians on latest methods of warfare, and that a contingent of Italian marines was expected shortly.

The Germans were said to be hastily concentrating men, tanks and planes near Galati, across the Danube river from Russian air bases under construction in Bessarabia.

Sir Reginald Hoare, British Ambassador, remained in Bucharest with a skeleton legation staff. The British Minister to Sofia, George W. Rendel, was received late yesterday by King Boris after an interview with Premier Bogdan Philoff, who also is acting Foreign Minister. The topic of the talks was not disclosed.

Government officials in Sofia disclaimed knowledge to the Turkish-Russian negotiations reported by Bulgarian radicals, but expressed hope that in the troubled situation Bulgaria might "maintain friendly relations with all powers."

Bulgaria Refuses Gesture

Although co-operating with the Axis Powers in the economic sphere, Bulgaria was reported to have refused to mobilize her army as a gesture of military support after receiving contrary advice from Moscow.

In the eyes of some Bulgarian observers, any mobilization, while storing up Axis goodwill with the possibility of future favors, would compromise unnecessarily the country's relations with Greece, Turkey and Yugoslavia.

TRAINING SCHEME

at least we have enough to get on with. I believe, barring unforeseen accidents, we shall be able to meet all requirements for the duration".

Triple Training Planes.

The minister said that the present number of training planes will be tripled by next June. "All the flying schools now open and all the new schools—and there will be many—will be provided with sufficient aircraft to carry on training.

"We shall be able to furnish overseas a constant and increasing supply of pilots, gunners and air observers, so that when the time comes and we begin the offensive, we shall be able to wipe the enemy from the face of the earth."

Mr. Power said there will be twice as many aircrew pupils by Jan. 1 as had been anticipated under the plan originally and by next July "there will be many times more".

The turn of events in Europe had not caused any change in the original scheme but had resulted in its acceleration. The minister added, "I betray no secret when I say there are more in training now than there were fliers taking part in the last war.

Better Trained.

"Canada's instructors and pilots, with a minimum of 50 hours' flying, are better trained than the men who flew in the last war. Our men are better trained, know their machines and know the air—have been taught to fight better—that is the reason for the magnificent and successful results of the Royal Air Force operations."

Mr. Power said there had been a tendency last May to "shoot the works" at the risk of disrupting the plan but the original plan was followed and many trained men were kept at home to act as instructors.

"No farmer, except in extreme emergency, would consume his seed potatoes. We are proposing to plough back into the plan from amongst the first and best of its human output those men who are most qualified to be instructors and trainers of others."

The air minister said the plan had started from nothing but raw human material. As it developed, however, it required eighty-three establishments, including buildings scattered throughout the nine provinces, engineers and contractors to build them and the training of practically all instructional staff.

YOUNG MANHOOD

Selective service officials said they expected to draw 5,000,000 men ready and able to undergo military training in the next 4 1-2 years—nearly 750,000 more than were mobilized in the United States during the last war.

In a brief address prepared for delivery at registration centres President Roosevelt said that "It is a day of deep and purposeful meaning in the lives of all of us. We prepare to keep the peace in this new world. It is a program obviously of defensive preparation and of defensive preparation only.

Democracy Your Cause

"Democracy is your cause — the cause of youth. Your act today affirms not only your loyalty to your country, but your will to build your future for yourselves."

The message from Wendell L. Willkie, Republican Presidential nominee, said:

"You are registering one more chance for freedom—your chance for freedom." He pledged his effort to "release" the power of American industry to arm the young men who may be called to duty.

With a few specified exceptions, all men between 21 and 35 must report to the 125,000 registration places between 8 a.m. and 9 p.m. EDT. with special provisions for those ill or unavoidably detained and stern penalties for willful evaders.

Son of President Registers

President Roosevelt has one son, John, registering. Already in army, navy and marine reserve units, the other three sons are exempt from registration.

Though automatically exempted by law from service, at least one state governor, two United States senators, and several members of the House of Representatives also must register.

Governor Harold E. Stassen, 33, Senator-designate Joseph H. Ball, 34 and Lieut. Gov. C. Elmer Anderson, 28, must register in Minnesota.

Among the mayors of major cities, Carl Zeidler, 32, Chief Magistrate of Milwaukee, is within the draft-age limits.

In numerous communities, bands and flags and banners made registration day a patriotic holiday.

Rank operated a trading post at Blubber Bay, or Hooper Harbor, Siberia, until it was confiscated in the Bolshevist revolution of 1919. Rank escaped capture, but learned there was a price on his head.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was starting to smoke a cigar with a enjoyable expression, and I said, Hay pop.

Hark, the hay bird, pop said.

Meaning me, and I said, Do you believe there's such a thing as perpetual motion?

Many profound minds and even more shallow ones have grappled with that question, pop said. Partly sane inventors have spent happy but fruitless years trying to get to the bottom of it, but so far the only perpetual motion machine known to man is nature's great invention otherwise known as the Universe, wich has no top, bottom or sides and hence no beginning or end, therefore it never stops moving because there is nothing to stop it, and there cant be an effect without a cause. I must say I dont understand how nature did it and I have never tried very hard to solve the mystery because I dont enjoy getting dizzy, but I see no reason to be ashamed of my ignorance, inasmuch as there are only a dozen living men who even understand Professor Einstine's famous theary, wich is comparatively a game of checkers, pop said.

Well do you believe a thing can be in 2 places at once? I said, and pop said, I knew they cant, even nature has never performed that one.

Well I did, pop I said. Do you know that little dark comb you carry in your pockit except when you forget it? Well I was playing a tune on it with tissue paper and is broke itself in 2 pieces, so now it's in 2 places at once and the places are my 2 pants pockits, but maybe it can be fixed, pop, and I'm going to try, I said, and he said, Yee gods my tortiss shell comb. Now that I come to think of it, my hand can be in 2 places at once, firstly on my wrist and 2ndly on your posterior.

And he quick reached over and proved it.

Excelsior Life Observes Its Golden Anniversary

ALEX. FASKEN C. Q. PARKER T. O. COX C. P. MUCKLE

Prominent in the celebration of the Fiftieth Anniversary of The Excelsior Life Insurance Company are Alex. Fasken, President, who became a director in 1900; C. Q. Parker, Investment Manager, who joined staff as junior in 1896; T. O. Cox, Manager of Agencies; and C. P. Muckle, Secretary-Treasurer, who has been with The Excelsior Life for thirty years.

Toronto, Oct. 16.—For more than a year the leading representatives of the Excelsior Life Insurance Company have been looking forward to meeting in Toronto today to celebrate the Golden Jubilee of the organization.

Owing to the war, the celebration has been cancelled, and every representative will be "on the job" in his home territory persuading policyholders to indirectly help Canada's war effort by increasing their insurance holdings.

On October 15th, 1890, The Excelsior Life opened its doors for business, and in the ensuing half century its assets have grown to $22,650,000.00 and its insurance in force now exceeds $115,000,000.00.

First President was E. F. Clarke, M.P.P., then Mayor of Toronto. In 1900, David Fasken, prominent lawyer and mining executive, was elected President—remaining in office until his death in 1929.

Alex. Fasken, brother and law-partner of David Fasken, became President in 1930. He is well known in mining circles, as well as being a director of other companies. In Toronto he is Chairman of Board of Governors of Toronto Western Hospital.

Like many other insurance companies most of the present executive officers of the Company are men who joined the organization at a youthful age and have grown up in the service of the Company. Charles Q. Parker, Investment Manager, joined The Excelsior Life in 1896 as a junior clerk. Charles P. Muckle, Secretary-Treasurer, has been in the Company's service for thirty years. Thomas O. Cox, Manager of Agencies, had been associated with Messrs. David and Alex. Fasken since 1912, and in 1925 joined The Excelsior Life.

Picton and District

Picton, Oct. 16—Local churches were decorated with fruits, vegetables and flowers on Sunday when Thanksgiving services were held. Special music and timely talks by the ministers were also features.

At Picton United Church, Rev. J. F. Reycroft in relating some courses for Thanksgiving, read portions of letters from his son overseas. A radio was installed in the church and the address by Princess Elizabeth broadcast.

Rev. D. M. Smith of Baltimore occupied the pulpit at Wellington United Church. Rev. D. N. Morden, Picton, took the services at Bowerman's United Church where the anniversary was also observed.

A quartette of Salvation Army officers from Toronto spent the week-end in town. A program was given in the S. A. Citadel Saturday night and on Sunday in the United and Baptist Churches. Captain Arnold Brown, formerly of Belleville, now on the editorial staff of the War Cry and Adjutant A. Bryant, Toronto, former officer of the Picton corps, gave addresses. Bandsman Frank Fisher gave euphonium solos and Capt. Ernest Parr gave concert solos. The Picton Post of the Canadian Legion paraded to the morning service at the Salvation Army.

At St. Gregory's R. C. Church, a day of recollection and prayer was observed with Rev. Father Kelly of the Redemptorist Order, Brockville, in charge.

In presenting its annual report the Prince Edward County branch of the Canadian Red Cross yesterday revealed that splendid work is being done in this county.

The county branch during the past year handled $14,585, and from this made a donation of $8,450 to Red Cross headquarters for general work. After all supplies are paid for and the balance of a county grant paid, the society will have $2,415 on hand for the purchase of supplies.

A report of the work done is illuminating. There have been 8,360 knitted articles sent to headquarters. These include 8,360 pairs of socks, 319 sweaters, 372 pairs of wristlets as well as gloves, helmets and scarves.

Hospital supplies total 7,618 and include binders, bandages, bed socks, surgeon's caps, pillow cases, pyjamas, hospital bed gowns, towels, sheets, face masks, etc.

In addition, a large supply of refugee clothing, 1,500 pounds of jam, 46 cases of canned goods, 213 blankets and 163 quilts have been sent to Red Cross headquarters.

This is not all that the women of Prince Edward have found time to do despite busy lives. Hundreds of pairs of socks, hospital supplies, treats and other things have been sent to members of Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment overseas, these not passing through the Red Cross Society.

Members of Picton L.O.B.A. were guests of the Trenton L.O.B.A. Tuesday night and while there put on the degrees in fine style. Last week the local L.O.B.A. entertained the Kingston L.O.B.A. Happy social times were enjoyed at both gatherings.

Minister of Food Offers New Grace At Defence Luncheon

London, Oct. 16 — (CP) — Lord Woolton, Minister of Food, offered a new grace today at the National Defence Committee luncheon:

"By the grace of God and the vigilance of the Royal Navy, the courage of the Mercantile Marine, the devotion of dock laborers and transport workers and food traders, and the patient efforts of farmers these good things have been brought to our table, and for these benefits we thank God."

BRITISH MINISTER TO BULGARIA ON WAY TO ISTANBUL

William Rendel to Confer With British Ambassador to Turkey

BULGARIAN ATTITUDE

Sofia, Bulgaria, Oct. 16 (AP)—William Rendel, British Minister to Bulgaria, left today for Istanbul to confer with Sir Hughe Knatchbull-Hugessen, British Ambassador to Turkey, as Bulgarian Radicals reported that Russia and Turkey are discussing a military agreement to block any Axis plan of penetration into the Near East.

The conference at Istanbul was regarded by diplomatic observers as likely to be closely identified with future Turkish-Russian relations—in which Turkey still would carry a British guarantee.

Mr. Rendel, who was received by King Boris yesterday, and twice conferred with Foreign Minister Bogdan Philoff in the past four days, also is expected to discuss with Sir Hughe Bulgaria's position in latest developments in southeastern Europe.

The British Minister departed as the German Education Minister, Bernard Rust, arrived to receive a planned welcome from school children lined up along streets leading from the station. Tomorrow he will open a German institute at which Philoff is to make a speech.

There is mounting evidence, meanwhile, that Bulgarians are impressed with Soviet manoeuvres and are trying to hold firm in a policy of neutrality against reported Axis pressure.

KING'S CHAPLAIN DIES IN LONDON

Became Vicar of St. Martin-in-the-Fields in 1928

London, Oct. 16 (CP).—Rev. William Patrick Glyn McCormick, 63, Vicar of St. Martin-in-the-Fields and Chaplain of the King since 1928, died today. He was a chaplain with the British forces in France from 1914 to 1919 and recently became well known as a broadcaster.

Mr. McCormick became vicar of St. Martin's in 1927 following the retirement of Rev. H. R. L. (Dick) Sheppard through ill-health. He carried on the social service work started by his predecessor and for some years before the start of the war hundreds of underprivileged persons were accommodated daily in the well-equipped crypt of the famous old church in Trafalgar Square.

Under Mr. McCormick's energetic direction and with the aid of money contributed from all over the empire, the work grew in recent years. Since the intensification of Germany's air attack on London 1,000 persons have been sheltered and fed nightly in the crypt.

Well-Known Broadcaster.

"Pat" McCormick as he was known throughout the United Kingdom, broadcast regularly from St. Martin-in-the-Fields. In his younger days he was a well-known athlete and starred at rugby and cricket.

A daughter, Patricia, is the wife of the Rev. John Frank, Rector of the Church of the Holy Trinity, Toronto. Mr. McCormick visited Toronto in 1937 and preached to crowded congregations at Holy Trinity. During the past few weeks the Toronto congregation has sent $1,500 to St. Martin's for its war relief work.

After several years as rector of a church in Johannesburg, S.A., Mr. McCormick returned to England and during the first great war was a chaplain overseas.

He is survived by his widow, three daughters, Mrs. John Croft, Mrs. Frank and Joyce, and one son, David, in the Royal Air Force.

Take Pride in Removing Bombs From Humble Homes

London, Oct. 16 — (CP Cable)—Capt. Robert Davies, Canadian chief of one of the bomb disposal squads of the Royal Engineers, said in a luncheon address today that the bomb disposal personnel take as much pride in removing bombs from the most humble homes in the country as they did in removing the one that threatened the destruction of St. Paul's Cathedral.

"St. Paul's is a national edifice," Capt. Davies said, "but the little man's home, even the smallest and humblest, is his castle, just as dear to him as St. Paul's is to us as a nation."

Bomb Splinters From Battle of Britain

London, Oct. 16 (CP)—Occupants of one shelter are starting a Christmas Fund. They want their quarters decorated for Christmas and presents bought for the children.

Theatrical Department.

First play produced in London since the aerial blitzkrieg started was written by a William Shakespeare. The title? "All's well that ends well."

Syd Philips, London clarinet player and music arranger, has written a piece called "Air Raid Shelter."

Jock Roberts, London stage artist, was appearing at the Regent Theatre when an air raid warning sounded. At the end of the show the "Raiders Passed" signal had not gone so the manager asked the artists to give an impromptu show for the audience. Roberts remained and with his wife, returned home several hours later to find his house had just been bombed. "Lucky for us we stayed," he said.

Miss Ella Daincourt, 54, an actress who has appeared in many East End productions, was killed in a London air raid. Member of the Repertory Company at the New Theatre, Hull, Miss Daincourt was on a week's holiday at the time of her death. London productions in which she appeared included "Sweet Aloes" and "Laburnum Grove."

The engine from a car wrecked by a bomb in a North London district described a huge arc over a block of flats and shops crossed a main road, hurtled through a roof and fell into a bedroom.

Sixteen-year-old Ronald Roberts was thrown from his bed when a bomb landed near his Midlands town home. He wasn't hurt but had to walk barefoot through the debris when he couldn't find his shoes. They were blown to the bottom of the garden.

Roosevelt Assumes Control Over Sale Or Export of Raw and Manufactured Products Vital to U. S. Defence Program

By Lloyd Lehrbas Associated Press Staff Writer.

Washington, Oct. 16 (AP)—President Roosevelt today assumed full control over the sale or export of raw and manufactured products vital to the United States defence program, after invoking the government's power to requisition any equipment, munitions, machinery, tools, materials or supplies needed to prepare for any emergency.

In an executive order the President ordered the army and navy Munitions Board yesterday to make an immediate survey to determine the necessity of requisitioning any of the items deemed necessary for defence purposes.

The Board was authorized at the same time to determine whether it is in the public interest to sell, or otherwise dispose of, any of the articles or materials requisitioned.

Defence experts said that under the action the United States could regain possession of many war materials, equipment and supplies already sold but not yet shipped to foreign countries and then either retain them or dispose of them to other foreign countries or individuals.

Examples of the President's powers, delegated to the Munitions Board and the administrator of export control, included retention of the following:

Vitally important machine tools already sold to, or on order for Soviet Russia.

Planes ordered by Sweden.

Planes sold to Thailand (Siam) which, because of conditions in the Far East, might be used for purposes detrimental to United States interests.

Scrap metals already sold to Japan, but not yet shipped, which might be converted into war munitions and used in an extension of the war in the Orient.

Toronto, Oct. 16.—(CP)—Six-year-old Mildred Grkovick of Midland district spent a "fairly comfortable" night in hospital although her condition remains critical as a result of a head wound she allegedly received Saturday.

The War Today

(By H. M. Peters, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Londoners today grimly absorbed new and severe punishment from bomb attacks, buoyed up by stirring accounts in their newspapers of naval successes in the Mediterranean and paralyzing attacks by the Royal Air Force on the Nazi military machine from the English Channel to the Baltic Sea.

Amid the increased aerial activity diplomatic action speeded up in the Balkans where the critical situation became ever more acute.

Reports spread thoughout Balkan capitals that Turkey and Soviet Russia are near agreement on a military alliance which would be directed against any further Nazi encroachment in southeastern Europe where Germany now has reached the Black Sea.

The Bulgarians, allies of the Germans in the last war but now more closely associated with Russia, began to mend their political fences. Their recent success in obtaining southern Dobruja from dismembered Rumania has made them, in effect, neighbors of the expanded Reich — and there were indications the Bulgars were not happy about it.

The Germans in Berlin declared the Tass News Agency denial yesterday that the Russians had been advised in advance of Germany's intention to occupy Rumania with troops was incorrect. It was presumed the Nazis would attempt to follow up this denial with some effort aimed at healing the strain which has developed in Russo-German relations. Hitler's cardinal policy has been never to fight on two fronts at once, if it can possibly be avoided.

Massed thousands of German and Soviet Red Army troops faced each other across the Danube River near the Rumanian port of Galatz.

The British victory in the Mediterranean, in which the light cruiser Ajax sank two Italian torpedo boats and caused the sinking of a larger destroyer, made good reading in Ankara and Athens as well as in London. Turkey and Greece need the shield of a strong British Mediterranean fleet as well as the support of a strong Russian army if they are to stand in the path of the Nazis. The ease with which the Mediterranean fleet scours the "Italian lake" assures them of this shield.

And thousands of miles away a new factor which may play an increasing part in the war came into being when 16,500,000 young United States men flocked to assembly points to register for peacetime conscription.

President Roosevelt called it the reenactment of the 300-year-old custom of the muster as he broadcast a fresh warning to the aggressor nations that the American Republics would defend their liberties.

NAVAL UNITS BOMB DUNKIRK

Large Fires Started and Great Damage Caused Says Admiralty

London, Oct. 16 (CP)—British naval units bombarded the German occupied French port of Dunkirk last night.

An Admiralty statement said large fires were started and that great damage was apparently caused.

Dunkirk is one of the ports used by the Germans as bases for the expedition they hope to land in Britain.

The communique said:

"A naval bombardment of the port of Dunkirk was carried out by our forces last night. Fires were seen to have been caused and it is considered that much damage resulted."

Dunkirk was the scene of the British army's dramatic withdrawal from the continent after the Battle of Flanders early in June.

Casualties Greater Than in Recent Raids Says Ministry

London, Oct. 16 (CP).—The number of persons killed in last night's bombing of London was greater than in recent raids, an Air Ministry statement announced today.

The ministry described the attack as "widespread and wanton".

The statement said, however, that casualties last night were considerably less than in the early September raids, when the mass attacks on London began.

Death tolls in those September raids ran to 300 and 400 daily.

TRAFFIC FATALITIES REACH 17 IN HAMILTON

Hamilton, Ont., Oct. 16 (CP).—Traffic fatalities in Hamilton so far this year went to 17—two more than in all of 1939—last night with the death of George H. Gibbons died on Petras told them Gibbons stepped Petras told them GiGbbons stepped out in front of his car and Petras had no time to stop.

Additional Police Detailed to Search For Missing Youth

Sudbury, Ont., Oct. 16 —(CP)—Additional members of the Provincial Police were detailed today to aid in the search for 23-year-old Basil Pierce of Sudbury who has been missing in the rugged bush country in the Levack Station district since noon Monday.

Pierce was on a hunting trip with George Barton and Michael Weroski when he became separated from his companions. Barton and Weroski returned to their homes Monday to report Pierce's disappearance.

Expert woodsmen who are taking part in the search were beginning to fear for the lost youth's safety. They pointed out that Pierce, who weighs only 126 pounds, is only lightly clad and that his only extra protection against last night's cold snap was a light sweater. He had no food with him at the time of his disappearance.

PLANES RAID GIBRALTAR

Algeciras, Spain, Oct. 16 (AP)—High-flying planes raided nearby Gibraltar at mid-day today in what some eye-witnesses here described as the heaviest attack since Vichy French airmen bombed the Rock Sept. 25 and 26.

The anti-aircraft guns went "all out" as the raiders dropped their loads from high above a layer of clouds.

Observers here and at nearby La Linea, Spain, were unable to determine the nationality or the strength of the raiders because of the clouds.

The anti-aircraft barrage sounded from the Spanish side as if the guns were firing shells more frequently then during previous raids and observers believed the defences of Gibraltar were newly strengthened.

WAR SLOOP SAFE IN HARBOR

Hanoi, French Indo-China, Oct. 16.—(AP)— French naval headquarter said today the 601-ton war sloop Marne, which had been reported lost in a typhoon in the Gulf of Tonkin, is safe in the Red River estuary. The typhoon disrupted the ship's radio communication with shore, leading to the fears she had foundered.

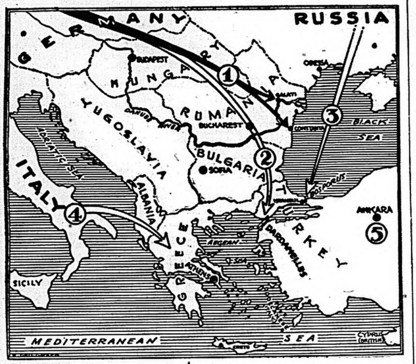
DECOMMISSIONED U.S. SUBS TO GO BACK TO DUTY

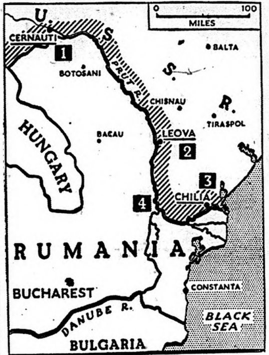
These submarines, shown tied up at Charlestown, said their farewell to arms after the world war. Now they are staging a comeback. These eight and many others will be recommissioned and returned to duty with the newly planned U.S. Atlantic fleet. The U.S. navy expects to have 36 of these submarines ready for duty by Jan. 1 In addition it has 104 first line subs and 81 more building.

SITUATION IN BALKANS BECOMES MORE CRITICAL



This Central Press Canadian map illustrates the present critical state in which the Balkan states find themselves. 1—A German army division is en route to Rumania's oil fields, which the German troops will garrison and effect a reorganization and training of the Rumanian army. 2—Bulgaria is expected soon to join the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo axis—a move which would threaten the Dardanelles. 3—Meanwhile, Russia is reported exhibiting great interest in the strategically placed Bosphorus and Dardanelles. 4—Greece is reported still opposed to any territorial concessions though Italian-dominated Albania is anxious to acquire northeastern Greece and the Macedonians seek either independence or union with Bulgaria. 5—Turkey is in a highly perilous position, caught between conflicting ambitions of the axis powers and those of Soviet Russia.

RED TROOPS WATCH GERMAN TROOPS



Russian concentrations on the left flank of German troops occupying Rumania have been reported in Bucharest. Civilians were ordered from Cernauti (1), reports said, to make room for Russian troops; Red naval ships were concentrated at Leova (2); Russian monitors sank two Rumanian patrol boats at Chilia (3); and long-range Russian guns were mounted at the junction of the Prut and Danube rivers (4).

"OVER THERE LIES RUMANIA AND GERMAN TROOPS"

A glance at the map will show that Odessa military district of the U.S.S.R. is only a stone's throw from newly-Nazified Rumania into which Germany has poured thousands of troops. Although Germany and the Soviet Union still live up to the letter of their trade pact, it is no accident that one of the top military men in Russia, none other than the seldom photographed deputy people's commissar of defence, Marshal S. Budenny (moustache), is keeping a watchful eye on his neighbor. With him at the observation post are Lieut.-General Kurdiumov and Battalion Commander Captain P. Pavliuchenko.

ST. BARNABAS' CHURCH WRECKED BY NAZIS

All that is left of St. Barnabas church in Southampton is this pile of rubble and the church directory board, setting forth the hours of divine service. Southampton, great southeastern port of England, has been the target of repeated bombings by the German raiders. In the so-called "Hell's Corner" of England, it bore the brunt of bomb storms before the Germans began the business of "demolishing" London.

BRITISH children who have been brought to Canada have been unanimous in expecting a land of ice and snow but a surprise is in store for these fortunate youngsters whose new homes will be on Vancouver Island, Canada's Evergreen Playground, where snow is a rarity and flowers bloom throughout the winter. Cold October Rain Hampers the Raids During the Night

Only a Few Nazi Raiders Able to Penetrate London's Defences and Damage, Casualties Are Light

London, Oct. 17.—(CP)—Formations of hundreds of aircraft attacked Britain today as the Germans switched back to the mass daylight style of raid against London and other areas.

Most of the German fighter-bombers were forced back by anti-aircraft fire and the Royal Air Force, but some managed to penetrate the London defences and dropped bombs in the capital area.

The raids started early in the morning when twenty planes crossed the coast near the Thames Estuary and tried to force their way toward London.

They were quickly repulsed. But a few minutes later a group of more than 100 appeared and some of these bombed the London area.

Then an even larger formation crossed the Kent coast, flying high above the clouds. It split into waves, some of which took the favored western routes inland and circled towards the capital.

Fourth Alarm Sounded

Only a short time later the sirens in the London area shrilled out for the fourth time since dawn, as Germans tried to beat off the Hurricane and Spitfire squadrons patrolling the coast. Some of them slipped past the British guard and

Why The Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen

Indoor and outdoor air! Everyone knows, especially those who travel in airplanes, that outdoor air cools generally with elevation, the rate being a drop of 1.6 degrees for every 300 feet. On cold winter mornings it is found that the air warms with elevation up to a certain point, where it begins to cool again as usual. Indoors the air does not cool but warms with elevation, just the opposite from the outdoor condition. The indoor rate is only about one degree per foot but even at that the ceiling air is generally uncomfortably warm. This is because cold air, being denser, hugs the floor, while warm air, being lighter, rises to the ceiling.

NAZI NAVAL BASES BOMBED CAUSING EXTENSIVE FIRES

Kiel, Hamburg and Cuxhaven Given Severe Hammering During Night

FIVE PLANES LOST

London, Oct. 17 (CP).—The Royal Air Force's incessant bombardment of war bases and war industries, now tied in with a growing naval offensive, was announced today to have caused new "extensive fires" at Kiel and fresh damage at Hamburg, Bremen and Cuxhaven.

The fierceness of attack and defence in last night's operations was hinted in a concise Air Ministry communique acknowledging loss of five planes.

Prowling for action in the English Channel and the North Sea, British warships were reported last night to have destroyed an entire convoy of five German vessels and to have attacked a sixth ship "successfully".

Apparently this was a submarine action—a follow-up to the recent reported naval bombardment of Dunkerque and Cherbourg, on the German-occupied French coast.

Unfavorable weather hampered last night's R.A.F. operations, the Air Ministry said, but nevertheless the operations were described as "successful".

Numerous heavy bombs, the Ministry's communique said, were dropped in target areas at Kiel, causing extensive fires. "Good results" were attained at the two other ports.

The Synthetic Oil Production Plant at Leuna was the objective of another bomber group, the Ministry said, while munitions factories and a power station in Saxony were hit.

Five British planes were lost.

SAY 200,000 GERMAN CHILDREN GOING TO RUMANIA

Bucharest, Rumania, Oct. 17 (AP)—Preparations to house 200,000 children now being removed from Berlin, Hamburg and other large German centres to escape Royal Air Force bombing raids are being made in the Benat region of Western Rumania, it was reported authoritatively today.

The plan follows upon a Berlin announcement, widely publicized in the Rumanian press, that German women and children are to be removed to "avoid imperilling their health."

Japanese Planes Will Likely Operate From French Indo-China to Keep Road Closed

London, Oct. 17 (CP—Authoritative sources said today the Burma Road, which Britain closed for three months last July 17th in an effort to improve relations with Japan, will be reopened to arms traffic to China at midnight tonight Burma Time (1.30 p.m. E.D.T.).

Only a technicality—rescinding by Burmese authorities of a closure order issued at the instance of the British Government—remained in the way of the opening.

Authoritative circles said ending of the Burma Road agreement also paved the way for re-opening of the Crown colony of Hong Kong to arms shipments to China if this action seemed desirable.

The Hong Kong route was closed to the transport of arms to China last Jan. 1 for "security reasons" and movement of gasoline, trucks, railway equipment and other sup-

BRITISH AUTHOR ANSWERS CRITICS

H. G. Wells Says He Has a Right to Express Views in Democratic Country

New York, Oct. 17 (AP)—H. G. Wells, British author whose name was brought before the House of Commons in London yesterday for making statements here described as harmful to the British cause, replied last night that he had the same right to express his views as any member of the House had in criticizing him.

His lecture manager, Harold Peat, said:—

"Mr. Wells says England is not yet a totalitarian country and that as a British subject he feels he has a right to express his views on British politics the same as any member of the House had in criticizing Mr. Wells."

This was in answer to Earl Winterton, Conservative, who sought an investigation of a protest he said had originated in the United States against Wells' remarks against the policies of Viscount Halifax, British Foreign Secretary.

The issue was an aftermath of the novelist's arrival here Oct. 3, when in an interview he blamed Lord Halifax for the British failure to win Soviet Russia to her side, and added:—

"I think Halifax is the quintessence of what every patriotic Englishman should be afraid of. I disavow everything he does and I think he should leave the Cabinet immediately."

Equal Life Spans Tendency Of Husbands, Wives, Says Science

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
(Associated Press Science Writer)

New York, Oct. 17 (AP)—The National Academy of Sciences publishes a report that husbands and wives tend to live about equal life spans, in a ratio distinctly beyond chance.

A startling, new angle is that if one partner dies of cancer, the odds are 1½ to one that the other will die of cancer.

The study was made by Antonio Ciocco, of the National Health Institute, Washington, on the death records of 2,571 couples in Washington County, Maryland.

Cancer is one of five diseases which he finds exceeding the laws of chance as a cause of death in the mate left behind. The others are heart disease, also a surprise, and tuberculosis, 'flu and pneumonia. The latter three can be explained as infections passed from one marital partner to the other.

But there is no explanation for cancer. It is not supposed at present to be in any manner infectious. Mr. Ciocco says there is a possibility to account for cancer in the fact that the mates in marriage tend to be similar types.

Their body bulids and their constitutions are often similar. Their resistance to disease may be similar, too. Any of these factors might influence cancer, although in a manner now unknown.

The heart disease deaths Mr. Ciocco says might be accounted for by these similarities in marital mates.

All five diseases, however, fail to account for more than a small fraction of the husbands and wives in excess of chance who live about equal spans. Mr. Ciocco says the reasons may be the action of environment, heredity and other factors on the diseases about which so little is known but which are so prevalent in adult and old age.

BOMB WRECKAGE CLEAN-UP URGED

London News Chronicle Says Clogged Streets Interfere With Trade

London, Oct. 17 (CP)—The News Chronicle led a campaign today for speeding up the work of clearing away bomb wreckage from London's streets as the result of complaints from business men that clogged streets are interfering with trade.

The newspaper said some streets which were bombed weeks ago still were closed to traffic and cited an instance of a building bombed more than a month ago which was still being demolished by workmen yesterday.

"Business men were inclined to be bitter about the way in which authorities were tackling the ruins," the News Chronicle said.

The newspaper quoted business men they described as representative to back up its statements.

"A bomb fell here some time ago," it quoted one as saying, 'and as you can see the street is still closed and heaped with wreckage."

Another said:

"My premises are just a pile of ruins and I've thousands of pounds worth of stocks in safes down below. I certainly think the work of clearing up could go on at a much faster rate."

'Farms of Britain Frontline of Freedom' Says Churchill

London, Oct. 17 (CP). — Prime Minister Churchill wrote the president of the National Farmers Union today that "the farms of Britain are the front line of freedom".

Replying to criticism of fixed agricultural prices, Mr. Churchill said that food rates were established to "meet exceptional needs of war", and if hardship was caused in some cases "the call to duty would still go out to the farms as it does to the factories."

Schemes Planned To Counter Raids "Very Novel Kind"

London, Oct. 17 (CP Cable)—The Daily Telegraph today said that schemes of a "very novel kind" are being evolved to counter German night raiders over Great Britain.

"When the time comes to put them in operation Hitler may discover that secret weapons of our own are much more formidable than any the Germans can devise," the paper said.

"It is impossible even to hint at the highly ingenious devices now in process of perfection. When they are introduced the surprise will be considerable."

Madrid, Oct. 17 —(AP)— Ramon Serrano Suner, Minister of Interior who recently conferred with Axis leaders in Berlin and Rome was named foreign minister today to replace Col. Juan Beigbeder y Atienza.

Gen. Franco took personal charge of the interior ministry portfolio surrendered by Serrano Suner his brother-in-law.

Reports had been current for several months that Serrano Suner would take over the foreign ministry and that Beigbeder would be shifted back to his former post of high commissioner in Morocco.

Serrano Suner has risen steadily in Franco's confidence in recent months and it was as Franco's personal representative that he went to Berlin and then to Rome for conferences with Hitler and Mussolini.

Beigbeder was high commissioner of Morocco under the Spanish Monarchy and headed insurgent troops there when Franco led the revolt against the Republican government.

Published in Gazette

Serrano Suner's designation as foreign minister was accompanied by appointment of Demetrio Carceller as minister of commerce and industry replacing Luis Alarcon.

Decrees making the changes effective were published in the official gazette

In dismissing Beigbeder and Alarcon, Franco publicly expressed his "recognition of their services."

While Franco himself becomes head of the interior ministry, he stipulated that Under-Secretary Jose Lorento Saenz actually would direct the department.

Carceller, the new minister of commerce and industry, is 52 years old, an engineer by profession and regarded here as an expert in industrial matters.

Serrano Suner, known to have long wanted the post of foreign minister, is the third man to hold that portfolio under Franco. Beigbeder was preceded by Francisco Gomez Jordana.

Expectant Mothers Leave London 500 Every Week

London, Oct. 17 (CP).—Malcolm MacDonald, Minister of Health, told the House of Commons today that 500 expectant mothers are leaving London every week to escape the dangers of German air raids.

Air raid casualties at present, he said, are "slight" despite "the strenuous and wanton efforts of the German airmen," and only some 5,500 beds in hospital wards are filled by such casualties. More casualties may be expected, however, he said, "before the enemy is finally beaten back from London."

He also told the House that about 489,000 school children, or about 56 per cent. of the school population, had left London.

The minister said there had been "an ominous increase in the incidence of cerebro-spinal fever which should make us pause in contemplation of the coming winter," despite the discovery of new drugs to deal with the disease.

25,535 MEN IN COMPULSORY MILITARY TRAINING

Number 'Very Satisfactory' Though 3,975 Short of Total Needed to Fill 39 Camps

27,559 REPORT

2,034 Rejected as Medically Unfit After Examination at Training Centres

Ottawa, Oct. 17 (CP)—Enrolment of young Canadians for the first 30-day period of compulsory military training stood today at 25,525 men, a figure described by two government departments as "very satisfactory."

A joint statement issued last night by the Departments of National Defence and National War Services said the enrolment is 3,975 short of the number required to fill the 39 training centres to capacity. The statement listed five reasons for the shortage.

"On the whole, the view of both departments is that the results may be considered to be very satisfactory," it said, "particularly having regard to the fact that this was the first call under the new training scheme.

"All reports received indicate that the young men attending the training centres are looking forward with great keenness to their training experience in these centres."

Nearly All Are of 21 Years

Almost all the men selected by the National War Services Department for the first camp period are 21 years old, but a few men 22 and 23 were called up in districts where there was a shortage of 21-year-olds or where there were a number of individual postponements of training.

Total number of men who reported for training was 27,559 but 2,034 were rejected as medically unfit after examination at the training centres. This left a net enrolment of 25,525.

In addition to the rejections on medical grounds, the statement said large numbers of postponements had been granted to men employed in seasonal occupations and in war industry, to men who had filled their training requirements through past or present service in the Non-Permanent Active Militia but failed to list the fact at National Registration, and to students.

In outlying districts a few men were absent from home and did not receive their notices to report, the statement said.

SHORTAGE OF DOCTORS FACING HOSPITALS SAYS DR. H. AGNEW

Victoria, B.C., Oct. 17 (CP).—Canadian hospitals are faced with a shortage of doctors caused by the demands of the services for medical men, Dr. Harvey Agnew of Toronto told the British Columbia Hospitals Association yesterday at its annual meeting. "Larger hospitals as well as smaller ones are feeling the pinch and are falling back on nurses for some interne duties," said Dr. Agnew.

HURLED 50 FEET BY TRAIN

Oakland, Calif., Oct. 17 (AP).—Patrolman Henry T. Rose never thought a five-ton steamroller could lose a traffic argument. But the evidence was indisputable. Answering, a routine call he found the steamroller 40 feet from the spot where an interurban train had hit it. To make it more impressive—the steamroller was in the middle of Patrolman Rose's lawn.

Must Not Tell of Number of Huns Nor What They Eat in Rumania

Bucharest, Rumania, Oct. 17 (AP). —The press published warnings today against spreading information about "the number of German troops in Rumania, what kind of food they are eating, where and how much."

The general staff ordered several towns in Moldavia, which adjoins Russian-occupied Bessarabia, cleared out in preparation for the arrival of German army "instructors". At the same time seventy more Britons, including several newspapermen, left Bucharest.

The leader of the Iron Guard, Horia Sima, meanwhile urged his followers to join "the battle for iron" asking that they collect all kinds of metal, even shoe polish cans, and also old rubber.

Sixty additional trains on regular passenger lines were suspended today, making 120 trains in all which are not running. It was announced they would not resume normal runs until Nov. 1 or later. (The explanation of this measure was censored.)

British Artillery Fires at Speedboat In English Channel

German Flying Boat Seen Circling Above Torpedo-Carrying Craft

London, Oct. 17 (CP)—British aircraft bombed the power station at Brest today and caused "extensive damage," the Air Ministry announced tonight.

Dover, England, Oct. 17.—(CP)—British long-range guns fire at a German torpedo-carrying speedboat several miles off the French coast this afternoon.

The speedboat apparently escaped. Watchers on the coast saw spouts of water shoot up near the small craft and, after another British long-range battery opened fire, the boat sped off.

A German flying boat circled above it.

2 MORE STRICKEN WITH PARALYSIS

Six of Family of Gerald Brooks Have Now Been Down With Poliomyelitis

Brantford, Ont., Oct. 17 (CP).—Two more of the children of Gerald Brooks, Burford farmer, are in hospital here today, suffering from infantile paralysis, bringing the total in the one family to six.

The mother, age 34, her two elder daughters, Mabel, 14, and Vera, 8, already were undergoing treatment for the disease and the eldest son Gerald, died of it, despite efforts to save him by means of an iron lung.

The children now admitted to hospital are 7-year-old Elaine and 10-year-old Garth. Ith occurrence of more than one case of the acute antrior poliohyelitis in one family, a rarity, the local series is believed to be unprecedented in Canadian medical annals.

TWO CANADIANS AWARDED D.F.C.

London, Oct. 17 (CP Cable)—The award of the Distinguished Flying Cross to Acting Flt.-Lt. Robert Alexander Barton, native of Kamloops, B.C., was announced today. Barton was born in 1916, educated at Penticton, B.C., and joined the Royal Air Force in 1936.

At the same time official announcement was made that Sqdn.-Ldr. Ernest McNab of Regina, leader of the fighter squadron of the Royal Canadian Air Force, in action in the defence of London, had been awarded the D.F.C. This award became known unofficially on Oct. 10.

MUST MEET IMMIGRATION LAWS

London, Oct. 17—(CP Cable)—Release of Jewish aliens sent in error to Canada and Australia does not mean that they will be free to live in those dominions because the government of neither is prepared to accept them as immigrants except in accordance with their immigration laws.

This information was given the House of Commons today by Home Secretary Herbert Morrison. He said the released aliens will be returned to Great Britain unless released to emigrate to another country.

Churchill Asked To Allow Serums, Vaccines and Drugs Go to Unoccupied France

New York, Oct. 17 —(CP)— An "open letter to the Right Honorable Mr. Winston Churchill," published as a half-page advertisement in New York newspapers today, appealed for a lifting in the British blockade to permit the sending of serums, vaccines and drugs to unoccupied France.

The advertisement, published by James Wood Johnson, described as formerly president of the American Volunteer Ambulance Corps in France, said in part:—

"It is apparently not possible to send food to the French and this is not a plea to do so, but the effects of food shortage might be considerably mitigated. Has it not been brought to your attention that epidemic diseases flourish amid underfed and under-heated populations, especially where millions of refugees have been crowded into close and unsanitary quarters? I am sure that this has not been brought before you, or you would not let it be said that you were not willing that the necessary navicerts be issued to permit of sending serums, vaccines and drugs to unoccupied France.

"In no sense could purely medical supplies be of aid to your enemy, even if he took some of them, which I am assured is most unlikely, if only because he does not need them."

TO DOUBLE PROGRAM

Washington, Oct. 16 (AP).—The United States War Department disclosed today that its pilot training program would be doubled next year, in line with the general expansion of the air corps, to provide schooling for 24,900 "flying cadets". Officials said the program originally contemplated giving the seven-month cadet course to young men at the rate of 12,500 annually.

W. H. BAILEY ENTERS BUSINESS IN THIS CITY

Former Dairy Instructor at Madoc Purchases Flour and Feed Business

FINE CONNECTIONS

Mr. W. H. Bailey, well-known Hastings County resident and former dairy instructor in Madoc for thirteen years, has taken over the flour and feed business of R. G. Coulter, North Front Street grocer.

Two large modern storehouses situated on Evans Street, adjacent to the Coulter store will house Mr. Bailey's business and will be the distributing centre for a large surrounding district of the products of the Western Canada Flour Mills Company Ltd.

From this point will emanate to a large clientele, wholesale and retail stocks of flour and feeds, including chicken and hog feeds and mashes, turkey mashes, grits, oyster shell feeds, whole and ground grains such as wheat, barley, oats, etc.

The buildings are all practically new, the main building being erected three years ago, and the other storehouse a product of this year's construction. The flour bins are lined with heavy layers of tin and are proof against the usual marauders, that feed upon this product.

Mr. Bailey will also include salt and fertilizer in his stocks, as well as other essential products necessary to the business.

Mr. R. G. Coulter originated this phase of his business some three years ago in connection with his grocery store, but of late decided to turn over the flour and feed department to new management.

Mr. Bailey is well qualified to attend to his new business. He enjoys fine connections with rural and urban residents of the county, and his long association with farmers through the medium of his dairy, cheese, and other agricultural activities should stand him in good stead. He was for a number of years, manager of the Maple Valley Creameries here.

Possessed of a genial personality and a likeable disposition, the new flour and feed merchant will inject his fine personal qualities into his business activities and the result should achieve success on the one hand and satisfaction on the other.

OPEN VERDICT RETURNED

Calgary, Oct. 17 (CP).—An open verdict of death from inhaled poison was returned last night by a coroner's jury which probed the death Sept. 24 of Marion Jean Allen Gordon, 22, of Calgary. The jury's verdict stated, "Death was due to mercurial poison inhaled into her system from a chemical containing mercury stored in the warehouse adjoining the office where the deceased was employed."

Dr. J. H. Foulger, toxicology expert from Wilmington, said evidence showed four persons ordinarily worked in the warehouse where Miss Gordon was employed. Two girls became sick; two men did not.

Sam Johnson Pleased By Recruits' Alertness

Sam Johnson of the Argyle Light Infantry, World War veteran and Regimental Sergeant-Major at the Peterborough Exhibition Camp, had a happy look on his face this morning as he watched the non-commissioned officers putting the 21-year-olds through squad drill.

"In my twenty-five years of soldiering I have never seen a bunch of men pick up the training as fast as these young fellows," he said. "Even the N.C.O.'s have expressed their surprise to me at the great progress that is being made, and I can assure you that in ten days you won't recognize these boys as the same crowd who walked into camp on Wednesday. At least ninety per cent of them had never received any military training before."

Plenty of Pep

The spirit that prevails among the men is excellent and it was reported that the boys turn out for physical drill early in the morning with a snap and enthusiasm that is heart warming for the training staff.

All around the half mile track at the park this morning, squads of khaki-clad soldiers were being trained. They snapped to attention, and tried squad marching with an ease and precision that indicated they would come along fast.

Lt.-Col. E. O. Keeler and his staff of officers are highly pleased with the progress being made, and with the various loose ends of organization being smoothed out, the camp has dropped into a steady routine that smacks of efficiency.

Orderly room staffs are still busy with documentation, and the stores department are completing the issuing of essentials, so that by tonight at the latest the camp will be in high gear, and everyone will have settled down to the business of training the 700 men to the highest point of efficiency possible in the thirty days allotted.

Several of the N.C.O.'s voiced approval today over the fact that Joe Foley, a druggist from Wellington had been put in charge of the camp hospital under the direction of the two medical officers. Mr. Foley has had considerable experience and is a favorite with the men.

Work is still progressing on the camp hospital and this will be completed within a few days. It will be carefully and properly equipped and any man who gets a cold or any other minor ailment will get the best of attention. — Peterborough Examiner.

OPEN VERDICT GIVEN IN DEATH OF O. R. THOMSON

Passenger in Thomson Car Testifies Pavement Slippery at Time of Accident

TRUCK DRIVER HEARD

Colborne, Oct. 17.—Unable to arrive at a verdict in almost ninety minutes, a coroner's jury, investigating the death of O. R. Thomson, Assistant Superintendent of Hydro, of Belleville, at Colborne last night returned to the Court to request further instruction, before bringing in an open verdict.

The jury returned for instruction from Coroner Dr. A. C. McGlennon in regards to the formal wording of the verdict. The Coroner instructed the jury that the duty of the jury did not involve the fixing of the blame to any person or persons for the fatality. Retiring again the jury returned with the verdict that stated as follows: "We find that O. R. Thomson died in the Cobourg Hospital on October 7 as the result of injuries received when his car collided with a truck on Salem Hill on the same day."

Evidence given during the inquest, stated that an automobile driven by Mr. Thomson, and a truck driven by William Hobbs, Toronto, collided on a curve near the Village of Salem on October 7th.

Testifying at the inquest, Dr. F. R. Pember, of Colborne, who attended the injured man, stated that death was due to a fractured skull. The injured man died in the Cobourg Hospital 15 minutes after his admission.

Highway Slippery

A passenger in the Thomson car, Aircraftsman J. D'Aoust, R.C.A.F., St. Thomas, stated that the highway was slippery. "It was not raining at the time of the accident but the highway was slippery. Mr. Thomson was not driving very fast, but was driving at an ordinary rate of speed."

"The truck seemed to go onto the south shoulder of the road and hit the fence," said Aircraftsman D'Aoust. "It then came back across the highway to the centre. Mr. Thomson tried to avoid the truck by turning his wheel to the right but there was a collision."

The witness maintained that the Thomson car was "on its right side of the road." The truck was about right angles to the car and heading toward the north side of the highway at the time of the impact.

Given Protection of Court

After receiving the protection of the Court, at the request of R. Phelan, Toronto lawyer, William Hobbs, the truck driver, took the stand. In his testimony, he stated that the car was on the wrong side of the road.

"I noticed the car approaching on the wrong side of the road and cutting the corner," testified Mr. Hobbs. "I thought he wasn't going to turn back to his own side so I cut sharply into the railing along the south shoulder. Just then the car driver turned quickly and skidded into the left fender almost broadside. The blow took the wheel out of my hand and the tractor went across the highway and swung around into the north ditch."

The truck driver stated that he was travelling at 30 miles an hour before the accident and had applied his brakes slowing down. "The Thomson car was coming very fast," he said.

Traffic Officer Testifies

Traffic Officer D. Wilson, who investigated the accident, informed the jury that "there were no marks left on the pavement to establish the actual point of impact. Marks on the left side of the tractor indicated the truck outfit had jack-knifed at some time in its course." The truck and car were approximately 63 feet apart after the collision.

George Miller, one of the first to the scene of the accident, stated that "there were marks on the wet pavement immediately after the crash. These marks showed the course of the two vehicles. A scrubbing mark made by the wheel of the Thomson car had rubbed the moisture from the road and was clearly on the north side of the centre line."

Crown Attorney H. Deyman of Cobourg, conducted the inquest.

SENT TO TRIAL

Elphinstone, Man., Oct. 17 (CP).—Roderick Bone, 24-year-old Indian of this district 175 miles northwest of Winnipeg, was committed yesterday to stand trial at the Fall assizes in Minnedosa, Man., for the murder of his bride of a month. Mrs. Bone's body was found Sept. 26 on a road near the young couple's home on the Kiesekowayin Indian Reserve north of Elphinstone.

13-Year-Old Boy Rescues Elderly Farmer and His Son After Vicious Attack by Bull

Irvin Moore, Plainfield, Distracts Animal's Attention Until Victims of Attack, George and Blake Collins, Reach Safety

SEVERE INJURIES

Victims of a savage attack by an enraged four-year-old Jersey bull, George Collins, eighty-six-year-old retired farmer and his son Blake, of Plainfield are lying in their homes today suffering with severe injuries. The timely intervention of thirteen-year-old Irvin Moore, neighbor boy, who rushed to the aid of the elderly man, and distracted the attention of the infuriated animal, saved the elder Collins' life. The youth leaped to safety over a fence a few feet ahead of the charging animal. It was later gotten under control by neighbors, and will be disposed of today.

The bull was tethered in a pasture field with a twenty-foot chain. Noticing a weak link, Blake Collins was repairing it when the animal suddenly charged him, knocking him down and rolling him a distance of a few feet. His father, seeing his plight, immediately rushed to his rescue. The animal turned savagely on the aged man and hurled him to the ground gorging him with its horns and inflicting painful injuries.

Without a moment's hesitation, the plucky thirteen-year-old boy leaped a fence and rushed to the aid of the elder Collins. He succeeded in diverting the bull's attention from its victim, and raced to a nearby fence to safety.

The injured men were treated by Dr. Jack Empson who was called to the scene, and removed to their homes.

The Collins' Jersey herds are well-known in live-stock circles of the district and province, and are of particularly good strains. The bull was a registered animal and is the progeny of some of the finest Jersey blood in Canada.

SECOND MURDER CHARGE IS LAID

John Plachedko, Allegedly Shot by John Kluk, Dies in Hospital

Toronto, Oct. 17 (CP)—A second murder charge was laid yesterday against John Kluk after John Plachedko, 45, died in hospital from a bullet wound in the neck. Kluk is alleged to have shot Plachedko and two days later allegedly murdered Arte Borisevitch. All three men are members of Toronto's foreign colony.

Plachedko died today, about three weeks after he was shot at his home.

At present Kluk is under committal for trial on the first murder count. He was captured in a laneway, a loaded revolver in his possession, a few days after the Borisevitch shooting.

Chief Coroner Smirle Lawson said the one bullet fired at Plachedko, during an altercation Sept. 21, had made five wounds in the neck and shoulder, lodging in a position where physicians felt it too dangerous to attempt removal.

The arrest of Kluk had climaxed one of Toronto's greatest manhunts.

WHAT TIMBER WEALTH MEANS TO CANADA

"Never before in the history of Canada has its timber wealth been deemed of such vital importance as today," said Deputy Minister W. C. Cain of the Lands and Forests Department of Ontario, at a picnic held recently at Vivian by the York County Reforestation Committee. "Canada is pledging its last dollar and man to the cause of Britain in the agonizing struggle for freedom against the totalitarian juggernauts of Europe, is placing at her disposal its timber resources, third in importance after mining and agriculture from a primary production point of view. Canada possesses the principle reserve of soft woods within the Empire, its forested area being greater than any other in the world with the possible exception of Russia and Brazil." The Deputy Minister went on to show that douglas fir, red cedar, sitka spruce and hemlock in Western Canada, with red and white pine, spruce and hardwoods in Eastern Canada form basic potentialities upon which the United Kingdom must now depend since the Russian and Scandinavian sources of supply have been cut off by the war.

It was pointed out that sitka spruce of British Columbia and yellow birch of Ontario are essential factors in the manufacture of fighting planes and both the United Kingdom and Canada are vehemently urging the production of such types to speed up supplies for the invincible R.A.F. air armadas.

Speaking of the importance of reforestation, Mr. Cain drew attention to the progress of York County in the system of tree-planting launched in 1922 since which time 11 counties have made long term agreements with the province covering an area of 25,000 square acres. These other counties have established forests within themselves while no less than 11,000 applications were made in 1940 for trees from the provincial government nurseries. He made a strong plea for the movement and said:—

"Every county in Ontario is invited to actively join the movement and every hamlet throughout Canada, however humble and insignificant it may appear to be, should make a determined effort to plant is own quota and thus be a real link in an essential chain of trees that will tend to maintain the beauty of the landscape, eliminate erosion, improve watersheds, aid the soil, create a timber crop and bind the Empire more economically than has been."

LATE TOM MIX AND THE FILMS

The motion picture has brought childhood, youth and age into an intimacy with screen actors, the like of which has never been known in the older arts. The stage itself has not the intimacy that the screen has provided. The bright light beats upon the film actors and if they have any measure of greatness, the intimacy enhances their glory.

One of the men who basked in the popularity of the early film and carried on into the sound pictures was Tom Mix. Born far, very far, from the Great Frontier, Mix played at "Wild West" from his earliest days so that he finally became a part of it, according to the New York Times. "He was by no means a mere movie cowboy. Soldier in three wars, Oklahoma sheriff and Texas Ranger, he never hesitated to swap bullets with the border bad men, carrying three of their slugs in his body until the end of his life which came suddenly without warning as his car was overturned on Saturday and he was pinned beneath.

"Worshipful little boys flocked to his pictures and nobody felt his responsibility to his public more than he. He never let his camera catch him smoking a cigarette. He never killed a saloon varmint who did not richly deserve it. Even his screen love affairs were circumspect and confined to the foreman's daughter or the district teacher. If he relaxed a bit off the lot, nobody begrudged him his diamonds, his white evening dress and his purple tuxedos. For millions he typified the stern yet tender eye, the heart of gold and the trigger finger, tightened only in defence of the right that were supposed to rule our rough unruly West. It may be said he flourished only in the naivete of a less sophisticated generation. But many a boy now grown to manhood, who watched him dash so boldly across the screen to rescue virtue in distress, still remembers Tom Mix as his favorite hero."

Tom Mix had the spirit of adventure in him. He fought in the Philippines and in South Africa during the wars at the close of the century and his official duties as sheriff in a mild sort of way brought him close to some of the realities he had mimicked on the larger canvass of the movie.

WHY DID NAZIS SCRAPE OFF GOLD?

Why have the Germans scraped off the gold leaf from the vast winged figure in Berlin symbolizing Victory on top of the Victory Column which commemorates the Prussian defeat of France in 1870?

That question is prompted by the remarks of a correspondent of the London Times who says the statue is now painted dull yellow instead. He declares that the popular guess that the gold was removed to pay for Germany's food imports is indignantly resented by Berliners who say it was done to prevent the gilded figure from reflecting moonlight or the gleam of parachute flares and thus guiding down bombers to the broad thoroughfare into the heart of the Reich government headquarters and the German chancellery.

Is not the removal of the gold an omen of the day when the defeats of France in 1870 and in 1940 will be forgotten in a triumph of democracy which will restore to France and other nations the freedom the Nazis deprive them of?

It can be taken for granted by all that Germany has used that gold leaf recovered from the statute. France that will be free can well believe that.

STREET RAILWAY FOR BELLEVILLE. That Belleville will be blessed with an up-to-date street railway in the near future seems altogether likely. Some time ago a syndicate of local men obtained a charter from the government to operate a street railway system in Belleville. It is reported now in well-informed circles that the Electric Power Company, Limited, has taken over the charter or are about to do so, with the object of building and operating an up-to-date line. It is further stated that on Jan. 1st. or thereabouts, the Electric Power Company will seek from the city, through the introduction of a bylaw, the necessary concessions to enable them to build and operate here. It is also understood that it is proposed to run a line from the station to the wharf at the foot of Front Street. It is believed that the company also intends to run a line over the east hill to Point Anne and that when the city line is completed to extend the line to Trenton and later to Tweed.

Soldiers Home From South Africa. Privates Charlie Gibson and Edgar Geen, late of D. Company, First Canadian Contingent to South Africa, arrived home today noon and received the same warm reception which was tendered to their comrade Jack McNair, three weeks ago. They were received at the station by the Bugle Band and comrades in uniform; the school children lined the streets and cheered, the bells rang and the whistles blew. The old veterans were there too with their medals on. A procession was formed at the station, composed of the officers of the 15th. Battalion, A.L.I., the returned soldiers and city officials in carriages and headed by the bugle band the procession came down Front Street and great scenes of rejoicing. Enthusiastic boys drew the carriage containing Privates Geen and Gibson. 'Deathless Day' Record Starts Wear And Tear on Nerves

Dallas, Oct. 17 —(AP)— Sometimes Police Captain B. B. Smith wonders why his head does not ache all the time. The Captain's job is to keep Dallas the champion deathless day city of the United States in the 250,000 to 500,000 population class.

His troubles are manifold and on this, the city's 138th day without a traffic death, the Captain is a bit weary.

The wear and tear on peoples' nerves is beginning to tell. Nearly everybody is deathless day conscious. Policemen wear arm bands proclaiming the number of days Dallas has escaped an auto death.

Yesterday a rumor reached Captain Smith that Anna Elizabeth Sewell, seven, a Negro girl hit by a pie truck, had died and was buried secretly. The Captain investigated. He found Anna beaming and alive.

The strain on motorists is mounting.

A car stalled in an underpass. Another motorist obligingly pushed the stalled machine. His bumper dented the rear fender of the other car and the owner pulled out a piece of lead pipe and struck the good Samaritan over the head.

"A bad case of nerves," said the police.

4 Men in Camp Are Accepted Into C. A. S. F.

Cornwall, Ont., Oct. 17 (CP)—Four 21-year-old men at the Cornwall Compulsory Militia Training centre, are being accepted into the Canadian Active Service Force at their request, Lt.-Col. R. Larose, Camp Commandant, reported Wednesday.

Col. Larose said that before the compulsory 30-day training period is up he expects others at the Cornwall Camp will apply for transfer into the C.A.S.F.

Organizes Group For Medical Aid To Air Fighters

Ottawa (CP)—While Canadian airmen in the All-Canadian Squadron of the Royal Air Force help meet the German air attacks on Britain, the man who largely was responsible for putting their legless leader, Douglas Bader, back in the fighting is taking up new duties in the Dominion.

Group Capt. (Dr.) Raymond W. Ryan who has served in every country where the R.A.F. operates has been appointed to organize a medical service for the Royal Canadian Air Force.

Before being posted to Canada, Group Capt. Ryan was president of the R.A.F.'s Central Medical Board. It was his job to rule on the eligibility of any man to take a plane into the air. So when Sqdn. Ldr. Douglas Bader, leader of the Canadian squadron, lost his legs some years ago, Ryan invalided him out of the service. Then, when Bader tried to return to active service he came to Ryan.

"Bader is a protege of mine," Ryan says. "He is an amazing man. He plays squash and tennis—I don't know how he does it—and he said he had been flying privately for years. They tested him in a Spitfire fighter, and you have read what happened. He has been leading these Canadian lads who have been shooting down the Nazis with such success."

Group Capt. Ryan isn't surprised that the Canadians in Bader's squadron have won such a name for themselves. As he puts it, "any man would want to follow a leader like that." But Ryan also has a sincere respect for the flying ability of the average Canadian, once he has been trained.

"There's no doubt about it, the Canadian is naturally adapted to flying," he says. "He operates a plane as naturally as he skates, or plays hockey and baseball.

Modern War Need

Although high in praise for the manner in which the Royal Canadian Army Medical Corps has provided medical service for the R.C.A.F., Group Capt. Ryan feels that there will be advantages in having a separate R. C. A. F. medical group.

"When a man gets his feet off the ground, a new science is involved," he says. New problems and new medical conditions have arisen in aviation, and they have to be studied and met.

"This has created a need for a special branch of the flying service to get the answer to the problems, and maintain the flyers in a state of health where they can carry on their air duties."

Keeping a pilot's eyes in perfect condition is one of the specialized problems of aviation medicine, he explains, adding: "A man can shoot a hawk at 1,000 yards range with perfect results, but that doesn't mean he can operate aircraft with the same success."

Twenty years ago, Group Capt. Ryan was active in organization of the R.A.F. medical service, and has been directly associated with flying and aviation medicine since then. He learned from practical experience the importance of having a medical service attached to the air force.

"It is impossible to establish complete intimacy and liaison between members of the service if you are not actually a member of that service," he says.

Group Capt. Ryan says that the first objective of the new R.C.A.F. service will be to "get on with the war." Staff Officers are already busy preparing for the changeover. Every R.C.A.M.C. medical officer now attached to the R.C.A.F. will be given an opportunity to decide whether or not he will join the air force.

Col. R. M. Gorssline, director-general of medical services for the department of national defence, is handling details which involve the R.C.A.M.C. Other aspects of the re-organization are being handled by Air Commodore H. Edwards, air member for personnel, R.C.A.F.

Thousands Employed In Canadian Yards Building Navy Ships

Ottawa.—Almost dormant since the end of the First Great War, Canada's shipbuilding industry within a year has been brought back to capacity production to meet the needs of the Dominion war effort. Some 15,000 workmen are engaged at more than two score shipyards on the east and west coasts, along the St. Lawrence River and on the Great Lakes, constructing modern naval vessels particularly adaptable to the requirements of the Royal Canadian Navy. Ships are also being built for the Royal Navy.

The major naval programme involves the construction of about 65 sleek; speedy corvettes and some 30 minesweepers at a cost of approximately $52,000,000. It is anticipated that by the end of the year about half of the corvettes and five minesweepers will have been delivered to the naval services.

Three fast passenger liners have been converted into armed merchant cruisers at a cost of $1,700,000. This expense was amply justified recently when one of these cruisers, the Prince Robert, captured the Nazi express cargo vessel, the Weser, thought to be acting as a supply ship to submarines off the coast of Mexico in the Pacific Ocean.

Other merchant vessels have been fitted with equipment to defend themselves at sea and trawlers have been converted for minesweeping. Work is under way on a programme for the construction of high speed motor torpedo boats, rescue vessels, and target boats for bombing practice. A $500,000 small boat construction programme includes refuelling scows and fast rescue boats for the Royal Canadian Air Force, aircraft and bomb-loading tenders, salvage boats and other pieces of floating equipment for the handling of supplies of all kinds.

Existing shipbuilding facilities have been used exclusively and some facilities have been developed to permit enlarged operations where shipbuilding workers and technicians are available.

Medical and Diet Treatment of Gall Bladder Disturbance

There never was a time in the history of medicine when so much interest was taken in the gall bladder as at present. For years operation for removal of stones has been common but as many patients failed to get relief even after draining or removal of the gall bladder, it has been found that just as with stomach or intestinal ulcer, the patient whose gall bladder has been removed must always watch his health habits, particularly his diet, if he wishes to be free from the usual symptoms of pain, distress, belching and gas pressure.

Because operations are not successful or are not performed soon enough, physicians are giving more and more attention to the medical and diet treatment of gall bladder disturbances.

The two conditions where medicine and diet give satisfactory results are gall bladder stasis (sluggish gall bladder) and the persistently inflamed gall bladder where no stones are present.

When, however, stones and gall bladder colic, obstruction of bile ducts, and chronic inflammation of the gall bladder are present, surgery is considered the best treatment.

In the stasis or sluggish type of gall bladder, it is known that most of these patients are of middle age and overweight. There is pain in upper right side of abomen, indigestion, but little or no jaundice. In these cases small meals, daily exercise, and bile taken by mouth relieve many cases.

In cases of chronic inflammation of gall bladder with no stones present, emotional disturbances, mental conflicts, worry, may be causing the symptoms. Naturally the first thought in the treatment is to try to remove or control the emotional disturbances. An Xray examination of this type of gall bladder disturbance shows enlargement of the gall bladder and slowness or delay in the emptying of the gall bladder.

Most gall bladder disturbances are helped by bending exercises, keeping knees straight, and the daily following of a gall bladder diet. The main points about the diet are (a) eating small meals even if four or more meals are eaten, (b) eating at regular hours, (c) chewing food carefully, and (d) avoiding fried foods, pork, shell fish, rich cheeses, nuts, pies, chocolate, alcohol and rough vegetables such as cabbage, celery, lettuce, onions.

Driven by a 40-horsepower gasoline engine, a motorboat for use on shallow water invented by a St. Paul man is propelled by twin motors enclosed in cones instead of a propeller.

A spiral bladed saw, weighted at the ends and towed behind a boat with cables attached to a handle to operate it, has been invented for cutting underwater weeds that interfere with fishing.

Batteries to supply current to a new flashlight to be worn on a man's head are worn in a pocket to be attached to his belt, one being switched on when the other has been exhausted.

Miss Earshman Addresses Club On Public Health

The regular monthly meeting of the Ladies' Conservative Club was held in the clubrooms on Friday night last, with Mrs. Harry Rollins, president, in the chair. After the usual business was taken care of, Mrs. Rollins advised that Mrs. (Dr.) Kinnear would speak at our next meeting on "The Future of the Conservative Party". A solo by George Shepherd, and readings by the talented young elocutionist, Miss Anna Hogle were greatly enjoyed.

The speaker for the evening was Miss E. Earshman, school nurse for Belleville. Her topic was "Health" from the Provincial and Federal Department of Health. Miss Earshman spoke on the developments of Public Health in Canada, giving in detail the responsibilities assumed by the various departments in the Federal and Provincial Departments of Health. The story of early efforts toward community health might well be written around the occurrence of epidemics of typhus, smallpox and cholera, for disaster frequently was the parent of legislation.

It was the manner in which the temporarily appointed Board of Health handled an outbreak of smallpox in Hungerford Township in 1865 that justified their appointment, and gave the necessary public support that led to the forming of a permanent Provincial Health Department in Ontario in 1882. Today every province in Canada has its own Health Department the various divisions of which are responsible for such problems as preventable diseases, tuberculosis prevention, maternal and child hygiene, industrial hygiene, public health nursing, sanitary engineering, hospitals, laboratories, nurse registration, vital statistics and public health education.

Special mention was made to the work of the division dealing with such preventable diseases as cancer, diphtheria, diabetes. The use of diphtheria toxoid for immunization of children against diphtheria has proved of great value in reducing the incidence and mortality of that disease from 1800 deaths annually in Ontario in pre-anti-toxin days to only 11 deaths in 1938. The Federal Health Department assumes responsibility for public health problems of a national and international character.

The division of quarantine and immigration prevents the entrance of disease into the country, as well as the entrance of undesirable citizens who might become public charges. This division also assumes responsibility for the two leper stations in Canada. The profound effect of the daily work of the Food and Drugs Divisions upon his life and well being is only dimly appreciated by the average man in the street, as is its amazingly low cost of one and one-third cents per head of population. At the present time, although still not perfect, Canadian legislation in food and drugs is in advance of almost every other country of the world. Contemplation of public health activities in our Dominion and our own Province surely cannot fail, said Miss Earshman to excite our admiration of the accomplishments of the health officials of the past and stimulate us to greater interest in the public health activities of today.

The meeting closed with God Save the King, after which euchre, Chinese checkers, and bridge were played and lunch served by Coleman Ward.

UNCERTAINTY and conflict may manifest in business affairs on this day, judging by the contradictory astral influences. Things seem to pull in opposite directions, with very promising and expansive tendencies decisively hampered, obstructed, delayed, drawn to limitation or inertia. This may also be attended by treachery, betrayal, misrepresentation and fraud. Rash or impetuous moves or quarrels will not save the situation, but a feminine intervention might.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves plunged in a year of perplexities and problems, with business under contradictory influence, being forcefully drawn between two quite different trends Expansive and productive prospects may also come up against a stone wall of delays, limitations, obstacles and frustrations. These perhaps due to extravagance, fraud, trickery, litigation, or some phase of misrepresentation or betrayal. Reprisals in quarrels, rashness, impetuosity or want of control but complicate matters. The social, domestic and affectional interests being well aspected may encourage sympathy or financial aid from such sources.

A child born on this day while being gracious, kindly, sympathetic and well-intentioned may have certain anti-social qualities which need supervision in its tender years Integrity and truth should be inculcated

Modern Girl Must Be Independent

Parents who've seen more of the ups-and-downs of life than their daughters are almost always in favor of giving the girls as much education as they can afford knowing that it will enable the daughters to get better jobs if they know something more than the three R's.

Often the girls write me: "I don't want to finish high school. I'm only young once; why shouldn't I have a good time?" The trouble with this formula is that it's blown up, and women without educational equipment or some profession or trade have anything but a good time when confronted with the responsibilities of life.

More than a generation ago those splendid women who worked early and late to get the vote for women, to see that they were admitted to the professions and that working women worked under decent living conditions, announced that marriage no longer furnished economic security for their sex.

Today the majority of wives have to work. There is no getting around that, even if they work at home, cook, wash, iron, mend, even tend fires, take out the ashes, and try to earn a little extra money by taking in washing, mending or other work at home.

When the census was taken the time before last, there was a tremendous rumpus on the part of women who worked endlessly at household drudgery, when they were classes as having "no occupation", which they felt put them on a par with park bench sitters and other idlers.

As one of them protested: "Me —no occupation! I work fourteen hours a day. After my husband is snoring comfortably in bed, I'm still at it." At present the census lists women who work under their own roofs as "housewives".

You will probably remind me, if you're opposed to wives working for wages, that someone always has to do this kind of work. The answer to this is that housework grows easier for the housewife every year. Consider the work women did in Colonial days, when they had to dip the candles, weave cloth and linen from which they sewed the garments for the entire household. In addition to doing the family laundry in the old-fashioned way—hand-rubbing on a washboard—they did all the cooking, butter and cheese-making for the family, as there were no convenient chain stores at the corner.

No wonder old-fashioned burying grounds show tombstones of Jane, Mary, Mehitabel and Patience, first, second, third and fourth wife of Jabez, or some other worthy given to marrying a succession of domestic martyrs.

Housework can never be the drudgery it was in the past. Year by year it grows simpler and it's only the sensible thing for every girl in every walk of life to learn to do something which will help her to stand on her own feet, whether she marries or does not marry. The most tragic letters which come to this column are from women who have never learned to do anything in the way of gainful occupation. They lose their husbands, through death or desertion, and are distraught at the prospects of having to support two or three children, not knowing which way to turn. Their attempts are so heartbreaking I will not depress you by relating them.

Every girl should learn how to do something that will help her to be independent, come what may.

Tips to the Hostess

When you're telephoning or writing your invitations to a party, remember that guests always wonder "what to wear". It's thoughtful of you to give them some hint about this: for example, "Don't dress", or "The men are wearing black ties".

When you are giving a dinner party, keep the centrepiece low—help conversation.

Always have your party dinner table candle-lighted—helps the "atmosphere", and have candles enough to shed sufficient light—helps the guests to see what they're eating. Use tall candles (plain white or ivory are best) so that the light will be above eye-level.

Don't be dismayed by the fact that you haven't service plates. Large dinner plates will serve the same purpose.

The silverpieces of each "cover" should be placed in the sensible and convenient sequence of their use; that is, so that the guest may use first the silverpiece farthest from the plate and "proceed toward the plate".

As part of your preparations, set out in the pantry or on a serving table in a corner of the dining-room, all the serving pieces that will be required. Also all the items for the dessert service: finger bowls on the dessert plates, silverpieces for the dessert. You may, if you wish, use lace doilies between the finger bowls and the dessert plates, but this isn't necessary.

Water glasses are filled before dinner is announced. Any other beverage is poured later. Water glasses and beverage glasses should never be more than three-fourths full.

Don't expect your guests to wait until you start eating. However, if they don't begin to eat, don't urge them to start—this gives the impression that you are instructing them in table manners. Also remember that you must not finish eating a course before the last guest has finished—better get the habit of saving something on your plate "in case".

Don't work so hard at "entertaining" your guests that you give the impression of having high blood pressure. This uneasiness is bound to communicate itself to your guests and make them uncomfortable. Take it easy!

Take it easy too if emergencies arise— late guest (or perhaps worse, a too-early one), an overturned glass of water at table, some blunder of the waitress. The less said the better.

Don't think that, because you may wish your dinner to take on an air of formality, you should not use bread-and butter plates. Nowadays we see them used on some of the most formal tables. It's a sensible idea to use them if you wish; they provide a place not only for the bread and butter but for such items as celery, radishes, and so forth. Most men guests would rather have butter than formality!

Before the dessert is served, the table should be cleared of all dishes, remaining silver, salts and peppers. Crumbs should be brushed from the table into a small plate by means of a napkin, no, a brush.

Finger bowls should be partially filled with tepid water. There may be a tiny flower or a flower-petal floating in them.

Get the pleasant habit of serving your after-dinner coffee in the living-room.

And remember: hospitality is more a question of the heart than of the pocketbook.

Courtesy Tip

"Assume a virtue if you have it not," says our friend Shakespeare, and this is an excellent rule for listening. Even if you're not interested in what someone is saying to you, assume an attitude of attention. Before the person has finished talking, what he or she has said may interest you; it may even be tremendously important to you. In any event, your attentive listening will show that you are a courteous person. And that's important.

DR. DAFOE'S COLUMN on the Quintuplets and the Care of Your Children

Club Foot

One of the most common congenital malformations the human race suffers from is club foot. Fortunately it can be corrected, and about all that is needed to accomplish this is plenty of perseverence and patience.

Of the four varieties of club foot, the most common is that in which the foot is turned in so that the person walks on the outside of the foot. Sometimes, in addition, the person can't straighten the foot out, but must walk on the toes as well as on the outside of the foot.

Another type is where the child walks on the inside of the foot with the member turned out; still another, where there has been a shortening of tendons in the leg and foot so that the toes cannot be put own, and the person must walk on the heel.

Each type ust be treated carefully, and the treatment is largely up to the parents. They must be prepared to keep up treatment of the poor, twisted feet for months, and in some cases years, if necessary. However, if the mother is intelligent and patient, she can do most of the treatment herself under the supervision of her doctor.

Beginning when the child is about three weeks of age, you massage the foot several times a day. When I have such a case do the massaging for the first few times, with the mother or father, or both, watching me. After a few lessons I find that most mothers are better at it than I am. From that time on these massages are part of the regular

If the child's foot is turned in, the lar as the meals, bath or sleep. daily routine of the baby, as regu- massage should be done in such a way as to loosen and lengthen the muscles and tendons on the inside of the foot. Only in this way can the foot become able to take its normal position. Each massage should stretch the foot to a position as near normal as possible.

At first it will be a bit discouraging, because the foot with its twisted tendons will seem as rigid as if it were solid bone. After a while however, the tendons will respond to the continued massaging, and it will give you great satisfaction to see the progress you are making. In fact it has given me great satisfaciton to see how a devoted and faithful mother can help straighten out her child's foot.

If the massages are done properly and regularly, the foot may be normal by the time the child is six months old; that is, if the case is not too severe. In cases which do not respond, the doctor usually feels that at the age of six months it is wise to put the foot in a cast.

To perform this it may be necessary to give the child an anaesthetic, depending on the seriousness of the deformity. The anaesthetic surely will be needed if the parents haven't done some massaging.

When the joint is movable, it is twisted to as near normal position as possible, then a plaster cast is put over the leg extending up as far as the mid-thigh region. The knee is kept at a right angle and the foot is held in this position until the cast is dry and firm.

The child may be uncomfortable for a day or two after the cast is made and may be fretful and unhappy. However, this discomfort doesn't last very long, for the stretched tendons gradually lengthen and give him relief.

Every two weeks the case is changed, and each time the foot stretched a little nearer the normal position. Eventually the time comes when the feet are normal and the case can be left off entirely.

Actually I have had to place feet in casts only a few times, for I have found massaging very satisfactory.
